Free—The Western Miner. 3 mos. to get acquainted; devoted to an exceptional invest-ment and news. 2539 W. 37th Ave., Denver, Colo.

War Gardens Paid $.94 Per Hour

Per Hour

So many stories have been circulated that war gardens do not pay—stories that may be genuine German propaganda—that it is a pleasure to be able to present some actual figures—probably the most thoroughly business-like figures kept last year, to show that war gardens do pay.

The Firestone Tire and Rubber Co. of Akron, Ohio, turned over to its employees some vacant land near their factories for war gardens. In order to determine if this ground was used profitably, they installed a time clock in the tool house. Gardeners "punched in" when they went to work and "punched out" when they stopped work, just as factory workers do.

This enabled the Firestone Company to keep an exact record of the time spent by their employees in the garden. Seeds were sold at cost and all the garden produce raised was checked and priced at regular retail prices.

The figures kept by the company showed that vegetables, etc., valued at $14,205.59 were raised on 265 gardens. Each man or woman who worked in a garden received an average of 9te worth of garden produce for every hour worked. Figures like that effectually put an end to the propaganda that War Gardens do not pay and give people a good idea of how profitable it is to raise their own garden truck.

Spraying "Circles" for Farmers

Community cooperation in spraying, particularly in the control of such diseases as potato late blight and tomato leaf spot, is urged by the United States Department of Agriculture. The department is suggesting to county agents and extension pathrologists the early organization of such spraying "circles" to deal more effectively this year with such destructive plant diseases. A community spraying outfit with a man and team continuously employed throughout the season is both economical and efficient, department officials say, and proved a successful plan in Vermont and New York last year. In one New York community the average spraying cost per acre for the season was as low as 65 cents while the cost of one application averaged 13 cents an acre. Detailed reports of the organization and operation of the community spraying circles as they were conducted in Vermont and New York are being made available by the department to workers.

Farmer Attains "Efficiency"

To show how farmers of the United States are meeting the shortage of farm help a field agent of the Bureau of Crop Estimates in a recent report told of seeing a farmer in Indiana, driving a team of six horses hitched to a disc plow and leading three horses drawing a harrow. He was working nine horses and two modern farming implements, and doing the work of several men and teams under the old system of farming. To show how farmers of the United

By Name and by Nature

A chap named Spies was arrested in New York for anarchistic statements. He was ultra fachionably dressed and wore suede shoes. He must have been eyen suspicious of himself.—Boston Ad-vertiser.

Comfort's Comicalities

The Leopard's Spots

The Leopard's Jpots

Buffalo Jones, the animal hunter and trainer, was telling an after-dinner story: "Pete had charge of the animal tent, and among his pets was a leopard, the only one with the show. He was a bad leopard, too, and gave Pete far more trouble than all the rest of the menagerie together. One day, when the show was in New Jersey, I went out to Chicago to arrange some business. While I was having dinner a telegram was handed me. It read: "The leopard has escaped. Prowling about town. What shall I do. Pete."

"Pete was one of those fellows who had to have explicit directions to do anything, even in an emergency. He was always afraid of making a mistake. I rushed from the table and sent a reply. "Shoot him on the spot," I wired. Being unusually busy, I forgot all about the affair until about two hours later, when I returned to the hotel, and another telegram was handed me. It proved to be from careful, conscientious Pete, and asked: "'Which spot?"

Our Amateur Soldiery

"Now, men," said the Captain of a training camp company of recruits, "I will give the command to charge at double quick. The barbed-wire fence yonder will be the entanglement—see how quick you can get through."

After the company had made the charge, the Captain looked back and saw one of the rear rank privates standing on the other side of the barbed wires.

"What the dickens is the matter?" he shouted, "Can't you obey a command?"

"Shore—but you see, Keptin, I lost my pants in a poker game, last night, and these I got on now ain't mine!"—Louis-ville Herald.

Ideal Alarm Clock

A customer had overhauled a large number of clocks of all shapes, sizes and descriptions, but nothing seemed exactly to suit his tastes. At length the jeweler, in despair, fetched out a massive timepiece of complicated design.

"Here, sir, is a clock which will, I think, suit your æsthetic taste. At pre-cisely 10 o'clock every morning the tiny bells chime and a bird hops out and sings a carol."

"I will take that if you will make a few changes in it."

"With pleasure," the jeweler said.

"I have a daughter," went on the customer, "and I want the clock for the room where she entertains her company. Make it so that at 11 o'clock at night a milkman's bell will ring and a newsboy will skip out and shout, 'Morning papers!' "—Chicago Heratd.

Auto Suggestion

Mrs. A.—"You say brandy's a good remedy for colic, but I don't agree with you."

Mrs. B.—"What do you know about it?"

Mrs. A.—"A great deal. Before I began to

75

Mrs. A.—"A great deal. Before I began to keep brandy in the house my husband seldom now he has it almost every day."—Louis-ville Herald.

Holding Him to His Word Bobby (trying to get away)—"Say, pa, wait a minute. Didn't you tell the callers last night that I couldn't be beat for mischief?" Father-"That's just what I did, you young rascal."

Bobby—"Well, then, what do you mean no me

Retribution

The teacher was telling her class a long, highly-embellished story of Santa Claus, and the mirth of Willie Jones evclaus, and the mirch of While Jones evidently got entirely beyond his control.

"Willie," said the teacher, sternly,
"what did I whip you for, yesterday?"
"Fer lyin'," promptly answered Willie,
"an' I was jest wonderin' who was goin'
to whip you."—Ladies' Home Journal.

Listening

There is a species of sentry groups employed near the trenches. They are are called "listening patrols," and their duties are to be always on the alert to give timely warning of any attempted attack. One night an officer on his rounds inspected a listening patrol stationed in an empty farmhouse. He asked, Who are you?"

The reply was, "Listening patrol, sir." "What are your duties?"

"We listen for the hen cacklin', and then we get the eggs, sir."

Letters to Read

Little Willie, age six, was missed by his mother one day for some time, and when he reappeared she asked: "Where have you been, son?"

have you been, son?"
"Playing postman," replied Willie. "I gave a letter to all the houses in our street. Real letters, too."
"Where on earth did you get them?"
questioned his mother in amusement.
"They were those old ones in your wardrobe draw, tied up with ribbon," was the innocent reply.

A Note to Teacher

"Jest for Fun"

A Note to Teacher

A school teacher once received a note like this: "Dear Teacher: Please excuse Johnny today. He will not be at school. He is acting as timekeeper for his father. Last night you gave him this example, If a field is 4 miles square how long will it take a man walking 3 miles an hour to walk 2½ times around it? Johany is no man, so we had to send his daddy. They left early this morning, and my husband said they ought to be back late tonight, though it would be hard going. Dear Teacher, please make the next problem about ladies, as my husband can't afford to lose the day's work. Goodness knows I don't have any time to loaf, but I can spare a day off occasionally better than my husband can.

Resp'y yrs,

"Mrs. Jones."

Rightol

Mrs. Askem—"Haven't you observed that the designers take a woman's head to adorn many of your coins?"

Askem—"No, but I have observed that designers take many of my coins to adorn a woman's head."

Happy Day

"Twenty years ago was the happiest day of my life."

"That couldn't have been the date of your marriage. You're too young to have been married so long."

"No, it wasn't that. Just twenty years ago was the first time a barber asked me if I wanted a shave when I went in to get a haircut."

Hopeless Case

Passing a hand over his forehead, the worried drill sergeant paused for breath as he surveyed the knock, kneed recruit. Then he pointed a scornful finger. "No," he declared, "you're hopeless. You'll never make a soldier. Look at you now. The top 'alf of your legs is standing to attention, an' the bottom 'alf is standin' at ease!"—Louisville Herald.

Food Value of Milk

The following statement with reference to milk has been made by the United States Food Administration:

"Milk is one of the most important food sources the human race possesses. For the proper nourishment of the child it is absolutely indispensable and its use should be kept up in the diet as long as possible. Not only does it contain all the essential food elements in the most available form for ready digestion, but recent scientific discoveries show it to be especially rich in certain péculiar properties that alone render growth possible. This essential quality makes it also of special value in the sick room. In hospitals it has also been shown that the wounded recover more rapidly when they have milk.

"For the purpose of stimulating growth, and especially in children, butter fat and other constituents of milk have no substitutes. Therefore, every parent owes to himself and to his family the duty of providing requisite amounts of milk, butter, cheese and other dairy products. During this last winter when there was much agitation in some of the larger cities over the price of milk, which was advanced from two to three cents per quart by reason of the rapid rise in the cost of feed and labor, many families among the poor were found giving their children tea and coffee instead of milk. Such methods of feeding fail to nourish the child properly.

"In spite of the shortage of milk in Germany, that country has at all hazards maintained the milk ration of the children and in the hospitals, even though to do so meant that the adult population has had largely to forego its use. In a 'safety first' health campaign it must be remembered that it should be 'children first.'" of the future.

When Peace Comes

Some day peace will come. Thousands—millions of men—will suddenly be thrown back again into civil life. Consider the vastness of the readjustment that will be necessary. Look back at the period of reconstruction after our own Civil War. Prepare for this new period of reconstruction. The day of reckoning is bound to come. Begin to save now. Thrift is the need of the present the hope of the future.

Liberty Loan Bonds, War Savings, the safest securities in the world, are a wise provision for the day peace comes.

Great War Loans

The following are the greatest war loans made by various belligerent nations:

British victory loan early in 1917, 5 per cent. Total subscriptions, $5,096,245,820.

United States Second Liberty Loan, 4 per cent. Total subscriptions, $4,616,000,-000.

per cent. Total subscriptions, $4,018,000,000.

Eighth German war loan, 41-2 per cent and 5 per cent. Total subscriptions, $3,600,000,000.

French war loan of 1915, 5 per cent. Total subscriptions, $2,261,864,400.

Austrian seventh war loan, 5 per cent. Total subscriptions, $1,150,000,000.

Italian fourth war loan, 5 per cent. Total subscriptions, $1,000,000,000.

Hungary seventh war loan, 6 per cent. Total subscriptions, $60,000,000.

Canadian victory loan, November, 1917, 51-2 per cent. Total subscriptions, $60,000,000.

51-2 per cent. $418,000,000.

America, my country, brave souls gave thee birth—

They yearned for a haven of freedom on earth; And when thy proud flag to the winds was unfurled, There came to thy shores the oppressed of the world.

Thy milk and thy honey flow freely for all— Who takes of thy bounty shall come at thy call: Who quaffs of thy nectar of freedom shall say: America, my country, command, I obey!

America, my country, now come is thy hour—

Humanity pleads for the strength of thy hand,

Thou guardian of freedom, thou keeper of right,

When liberty bleeds we may trust in thy might, Divine right of kings or our freedom must fall—

Chorus: America, my country, I answer thy call,

Lest liberty perish on sea and on land.

· America, my country, I come at thy call!

The Lord of hosts counts on thy courage and power:

The Mother of the Regiment

(See front cover illustration)

Copyright, 1918, by W. H. Gannett, Pub., Inc.

OST of the officers and men of the —th American Infantry knew and reverenced old Mrs. Langdon, a widowed New England woman who had made her home in France for a decade. Also, most of these officers and men knew and reverenced old Mrs. Langdon's daughter, a strikingly pretty young person with New England applebloom cheeks and an odd mingling of youth's gladness and war's sorrow in her brown eyes. The Langdons now lived in an old stone house in the French village in which the third battalion of the —th Infantry had its rost billets, and they entertained one or more of their countrymen friends almost every evening in their basement sitting-room. A light above ground was likely to draw a Boche airman and a rain of bombs.

The two had already shown their allegiance to the country of their adoption. They had given to France a son and brother, who had died at immortal Verdun.

Young Private Lester Eastman had come back from baying done a turn in the front line

Young Private Lester Eastman had come back from having done a turn in the front line trenches, with his nerve literally tied up and ready to be thrown away. He had been reared under glass, so to speak, and he had enlisted in the State Guard more for the fun of the thing than for any other reason. His company was now about to "go in" again, and he had turned a chalky white at the bare thought of having that front-line nightmare all over again. His company commander misunderstood. "You've been suffering from shell shock ever since we came out, Eastman," he said, sympathetically. "Better stay belyind at rest billets, and get straightened up."

Eastman turned away, went out, and walked

"Retter stay behind at rest billets, and get straightened up.

Eastman turned away, went out, and walked slowly down the fast darkening main street of the old French village. He was glad; and yet, he was calling himself bitterly a coward and a slacker. The further he walked, the more down-hearted he became. But presently he came to himself and found that he was standing like a stone image in front of the darkened door of Mrs. Langdon, that good old woman who was called almost religiously "The Mother of the Regiment."

Blessed be the Providence that cares for these highly strung men who must whip themselves so terribly before they can possibly amount to anything. The door before Eastman opened softly, and a slightly stooped feminine form appeared dimly outlined against the thicker darkness within. She advanced, put a mothering hand on Eastman's drooping shoulder, and peered into his troubled face.

"Oh, it is you, Lester," she said gently. She knew him well; he had been one of the most frequent of her visitors. "Come in, Lester, boy. I can see that you are in some difficulty. Come in and tell Mother Langdon about it; won't you?"

It was very like her to say that. Without a word, he followed her inside, waited while she closed and locked the door, and then went with her down a winding flight of stone steps and into her basement sitting-room. There the girl Sarah sat sewing beside a lamp that burned yellow and dim.

Sarah rose and smiled at him, and offered him chair. He sat down, and Mother Langdon sat wwn before him. Eastman looked across to the rl. He loved the girl, though he had never told a chair. He sat down, and Mother Langdon sat down before him. Eastman looked across to the girl. He loved the girl, though he had never told her of it.

"It won't matter if Sarah hears it," smiled the old woman. "Sarah and I keep nothing from each other. Tell us, boy."

Eastman suddenly straightened in his chair. "I am a coward!" he blazed, in a low and tragic voice. "I was afraid to go with them back to the front-line trenches—I was afraid, afraid!" Mother Langdon sat looking at him as though she doubted her ears. It was such queer talk, coming from an American, surely! For once, her daughter was the quicker-witted of the two. Sarah dropped her sewing to her chair, walked over beside Eastman and put a hand tenderly on his raven-black hair. War easily kills formalities.

"The fact that you are so much upset over it," she told him, "is proof that you are no coward, Lester. The world's greatest heroes, some of them, have felt just as you feel now. You are merely sick of what you have seen of war; your sensibilities are fine. But this sickness will pass. Perhaps I am taking a great responsibility upon me when I urge you to go back and do your bit with the others, but I do urge you to do that, Lester. I gave my one brother to the cause of civilization and Christianity: I am willing to give my—my friends, too."

In spite of his perturbation, Eastman noted the shining brightness of her eyes as she finished. In that moment the soul of the man knew that she cared for him even as he cared for her, that he was vastly more to her than merely a friend. As though to call him to his duty, there came from somewhere to the eastward the growling, roaring rumble of heavy artillery.

The Mother of the Regiment noticed it. "It means a barrage preparatory to an attack, and it comes from a sector the Americans are holding," she said, while she looked straight at the young soldier. "They will need you there, Lester, my dear. I gave my son; I am willing to give my daughter, myself, and such good friends as you, dear boy—though Heaven in the unlighted street.

"In the morning," he whispered, as they started toward that ever increasing cannon-thunder in the east, "will you go to quarters and tell them where I've gone?"
"Yes," she whispered, "I'll tell them in the morning."

"She won't work! She's jammed—she's toward that ever increasing cannon-thunder in the east, "will you go to quarters and tell them where I've gone?"

"Yes," she whispered, "I'll tell them in the morning."

"To Lester Eastman, a thick blackness settled down over the world. It was so thick that, to the invaders, past gaunt and broken shafts of the invaders, past gaunt and broken shafts of wood that had once been beautiful trees, through shell-torn entanglements of rusted wire, past gray homes. Not once did Sarah lose her way: it was now deserted save for the dead and homes. Not once did Sarah lose her way: it was now deserted save for the dead and homes. Not once did Sarah lose her way: it was now deserted save for the dead and homes. Not once did Sarah lose her way: it was now deserted save for the dead and wounded. His head ached, but it had?" been during all this time the firling in the east grew spidly plainer. They could see flashes from big guns and exploding shells now.

The bursting of an overshot Bertha less than

If I can't, I'll fight with some other company. Good by!"

A cannon's flash showed him that she was smling sweetly at him. She was utterly unshaken. Eastman caught her in his arms and kissed her. "Good by!" he told her again, and this time trenulously.

"If you'll watch closely, you can see a bit of forest straight ahead," she said to him. "Straight beyond that, you will find your comrades. May Heaven keep you for me, Lester."

She turned and ran from him. The flashes of shells and big guns showed Eastman the broken, splintered trees. He ran toward them, reached them, and found himself in the midst of a torment of bursting shrapnel. Through that rain of fire and steel he struggled desperately, and before long he found himself climbing into a trench filled with men of his own company.

In the sudden light of a flare, one man recognized him. "You slacker!" laughed that grimy-faced, bleeding man. "Where you been, you slacker?"

Eastman wrestled himself free of all his burden.

America, My Country

By Jens K. Grondahl

Copyright By Daily Republican, Red Wing, Minn.

AMERICA, my country, I come at thy call;
I plight thee my troth and I give thee my all;
In peace or in war I am wed to thy weal—
I'll carry thy flag thru the fire and the steel.
Unsullied it floats o'er our peace-loving race,
On sea nor on land shall it suffer disgrace;
In rev'rence I kneel at sweet liberty's shrine:
America, my country, command, I am thine!

four hundred yards in advance of them brought Eastman to a quick halt. He was still afraid; but he had resolved to kill the thing which he termed his cowardice, or die in the trying.

"What am I thinking of!" he exclaimed above the roar of the Hades in front of them. "You must go back—Sarah, you must go back! Surely, I can find the way from here on to my company. If I can't, I'll fight with some other company. A cannon's flash showed him that she was smiling sweetly at him. She was utterly unshaken. Eastman caught her in his arms and kissed her. "Good by!" he told her again, and this time treaulously.

"If you'll watch closely, you can see a bit of forest straight ahead," she said to him. "Straight beyond that, you will find your comrades. May Heaven keep you for me, Lester."

She turned and ram from him.

The flashes of shells and big guns showed Eastman the broken, splintered trees. He ran toward them, reached them, and found himself in the midst of a torment of bursting shrappel. Through that rain of fire and steel he struggled desperately, and before long he found himself climbing into "Look!" Eastman whispered. "There come the little cry that brought Withers up straight to him. "Look!" Eastman whispered. "There come the indest of a torment of bursting shrappel. Through that rain of fire and steel he struggled desperate by, and before long he found himself climbing into a trench filled with men of his own company.

In the sudden light of a flare, one man recognized him. "You slacker!" laughed that grimy-faced, bleeding man. "Where you been, you slacker?"

Eastman wrestled himself free of all his burden save for his rifle and ammunition. He sprang to the firing-step of the trench, which he correctly judged was a trench of the second line. A moment, and he was working the bolt of his rifle about this sort of gun?"

Eastman have camouflaged their helemets and bayonets! If we could get this gun to working, Withers, we could hold those reserves—here's ammunition. We've got to work it, Withers if we don't, the Americans have given ground to the German reserves.—here's admunition. We've got to work it, Withers in the moonlight?

Output Desput Could have camouflaged their helemets and bayonets! If we could get this gun to working, Withers, we could hold those reserves—here's ammunition. We've got to work it, Withers in the moonlight? Greenhorns, or they'd have camouflaged their helemets and bayonets! If we could get this gun to working, Withers, we could hold those reserves—here's ammunition. We've got to work it, Withers in the moonlight? Greenhorns, or they'd have camouflaged their helemets and bayonets! If we could get this gun to working, Withers up straight to him.

By Hapsburg Liebe wounded as they reached the ambulance station. When Eastman arrived, she ran up and pressed his hand. It was for him that she had been

"I heard about what you did," she said happily.
"Everybody knows about it. It was splendid,

"I heard about what you did," she said happily.
"Everybody knows about it. It was splendid, Lester."

"You may ride back with him, if you like, Miss Langdon," said the driver. "I have only him for a passenger this time, unless you go along."
She climbed into the car with Eastman. The driver started the machine, and they were off for the hospital. Sarah Langdon sat beside Eastman, with her proud eyes full upon him.

"It was splendid, Lester," she said again.

"Thank your mother, the Mother of the Regiment, for the example she set me," smiled Eastman. "I'll lose this leg below the knee, sure."
he went on, "and I won't get to fight the Boches any more, But I'll still have the knee-joint, and with an artificial limb.——Sarah, do you think you could possibly marry such a man?"
Her face bent nearer and nearer to his. "Why, Lester," she murmured tenderly, "wouldn't you need me all the more because of that?"

Thus spoke in her the unconquerable spirit and soul of the Mother of the ——th Infantry.

Sibyl's Influence

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 8.)

According to his way of thinking, the death of Sibyl's mother would only complicate matters; for he knew that Raymond would insist upon an immediate marriage, and, even providing that Sibyl's secret was never known beyond their own family circle, he could not think of such an alliance with any degree of satisfaction.

The change did indeed prove a good thing for Sibyl.

The change did indeed prove a good thing for Sibyl.

Away from the sad associations of the past few months, her whole mind bent upon one purpose that of caring for her mother, and leading her toward a higher and purer life—she gradually grew to be more restful and content than she had ever hoped to be again.

Mrs. Stillman, too, since she had become more dependent upon her care, seemed more gentle and social, and this, of itself, gave Sibyl much hope and comfort.

Sir Athelstone had taken a charming little cottage, whose broad-covered veranda looked directly out upon the sea; and here they sat day after day, Sibyl with her work or book, either chatting pleasantly, or reading aloud some interesting tale, while the invalid, too weak or too languid to work, lay back in her luxurious easy-chair, and listened as she watched the white-crested waves sweep gracefully ashore, and break upon the glistening beach, a growing thoughtfulness in her dark eyes, an unwonted gravity on her pafe face.

"Sibyl, how can you honestly believe that there is a just and merciful God, when He deals out such wretchedness as the world is filled with?" she asked suddenly one day.

They had been reading one of the daily papers which Itaymond kept them constantly supplied with, and which was filled with accounts of crime and disaster.

Sibyl's beautiful eyes filled with pain, but her riney had been reading one of the dally papers which Raymond kept them constantly supplied with, and which was filled with accounts of crime and disaster.

Sibyl's beautiful eyes filled with pain, but her tones were clear and confident as she replied:

"I know there is a God who is just and merciful, and like a tender father to his children; but I do not believe that it is. He who deals out the wretchedness with which the world is filled, as you express it."

"Who then, pray, if He is the almighty and overruling power?"

"Salvation is far from the wicked, for they love not thy statutes; but great peace have they who love the law, and nothing shall offend them!" Sibyl repeated, opening her Bible, which lay upon the table.

Her companion frowned.

"Then, according to that, you believe that my own wickedness has been my curse," she said, sullenly.

"Far be it from me to judge any one save myself," was the soft, sweet answer, "but all the way through this wise book, we are told that sin brings its own punishment, and obedience and submission their reward."

"I don't see how you can make that rule apply to yourself, for I know of no one who commits less wrong than you do. Perhaps, though, you believe that saying about the sins of the fathers being visited upon the children to the third and fourth generation. Even then," she added, more to herself than to her companion, "I can't understand how it would work in this case."

Sibyl did not reply for a moment; she knew it was not wise to argue upon these points, though her heart was filled with thankfulness that her mother was pondering upon this vital subject.

But at length she said:

"There are a great many things that we canot."

that her mother was pondering upon this vital subject.

But at length she said:

"There are a great many things that we cannot understand, but we must accept them as right and necessary, just as we would take the remedies of a trusted physician without knowing what they were, or exactly why they were given. They are often bitter and nauseating, and sometimes make us suffer more than we did before; but we know that they are prescribed by one wiser than we are, and with the end in view of restoring us to health and the enjoyment of life."

"Then sorrow and wretchedness are not panishment after all, but God's medicine to cure us of sin. I think your views are rather contradictory." Mrs. Stillman returned skeptically.

"God knows best what we all need; and I believe there is a wise purpose in every trouble or sorrow that Tie sends into the world," Siby! replied.

Then kneeling down by her side a tender.

sorrow that Tie sends into the work, plied.

Then kneeling down by her side, a tender, yearning look in her dark eyes, she continued:

"I told you that submission and obedience would always bring their own reward, and I am beginning to find it true in my own case. You have made me very happy this morning by giving me so much of your confidence, and by conversing so freely with me. I am more content at this moment to be caring for you, and ministering to your comfort, than I could ever have been if I had rounnined, its you suggested, in my beautiful moment to be caring for you, and ministering to your confort, than I could ever have been if I had remained, as you suggested, in my beautiful home with auntie; therefore, out of my sorrow some good has already come."

Mrs. Stillman, looking earnestly into her beautiful face which shone with the light of her hely, unselfish purpose, knew that she spoke naught but truth.

"How can you feel thus, when I have ruined your life and all your future prospects?" she asked, in solemn wonder.

"No: not so," Sibyl answered, the light in her eyes deepening, the smile upon her lips growing sweeter, "my life is not ruined—I believe I an doing right, and every duty is sweet which will give to me a clear and quiet conscience. Let me make you happy—continue to give me your confidence, as you have done today, and let me lead you into 'greener pastures,' and I will henceforth ask for no purer joys in life."

She beut forward and touched her lips to Mrs. Stillman's white cheek, then arose and went quietly from the room, and no one beholding the pure light upon her face, could doubt that

"Peace like a river attended her way."

"Peace like a river attended her way."

Her heart was full.

She believed that the "wedge of truth" had at last entered that heart of adamant—that the hitherto invulnerable armor of obstinacy and unbelief had been penetrated, and would ere long be entirely stripped away.

After Sibyl left the room, the invalid sat motionless until she saw the slender, graceful form pacing upon the white, sandy beach: then with a moan of pain, she bowed her head upon the Bible she had left in her lap, and wept long and passionately.

. .

- TO BE CONTINUED.

That freedom may live and that tyrants may fall, I owe thee my all and my all will I give-I do and I die that America may live. The toregoing is esteemed by many to be the greatest patriotic song Inspired by the present war. It received the applause of Congress when quoted by Representative Siegel in his speech the day war was declared. It has moved men to enlist. It expresses the prevailing patriotic sentiment of our people and has been halled by some as a new National Anthem. The words with music on sale at the music stores or by the Dally Republican, Red Wing, Minn. Jacques Latture's farm, you know. You might go with him for a few miles, and show him this near way. You are not apt to meet a Boche this side of the fighting trenches, but take along the little revolver, and if you meet one—you'll know what to do."

In her was the spirit that has kept unsulled the stars in Old Glory. Realizing that, Lester Eastman honored her for it. He rose and stood straight, his countenance suddenly determined straight, his countenance suddenly determined thand and kissed it, rose and went toward the street a better man than he had ever been before.

And Sarah, with a dark shawl hurriedly flung about her shoulders, and with a tiny revolver in her bosom, followed to show him the way to and through the shell-pitted farm of old Jacques Latture.

Eastman stole into his rest billet, made himself up hastily in heavy marching order, snatched up his rifie and stole back to Sarah, who waited in the unlighted street.

"In the morning," he whispered, as they started toward that ever 'increasing camnon-thunder in the east, "will you go to quarters and tell them where I've gone?"

And somebody replied: "Leave her there, you where I've gone?"

"I've seen them operated, that's all. I could feed one, maybe."
Eastman knew a little concerning rapid-firers. He fell to work on the disabled piece, his fingers flying, and when the Teuton reserves were within two hundred yards of them at the closest point, he had the gun in working condition! Withers helped him, and they soon began to rake the massed ranks of the Boches at the rate of six hundred shots to the minute, a deadly fire that spared nothing. There was plenty of ammunition, fortunately, and the Germans dropped into their own trenches to escape the hall of lead.

"Throw it at them!" Withers kept saying. "They don't know there's only two of us; we sound like a regiment!"

Dawn broke, and the Americans filled their forward trenches, thereby surrounding a thousand of the enemy. Then came the stretcher-bearers, picking up those who had fallen. Two of them halted under the machine-gun that had done such magnificent work. Withers sat there; he was holding the inert body of Lester Eastman in his arms.

"It's Eastman," Withers told them in a thick

"It's Eastman," Withers told them in a thick voice, "Private Eastman, who held the Boche reserves and saved us all. Handle him carefully—he's got a leg nearly off! And get this, men; he did all that fighting standing on his one good leg?"

Eastman opened his eyes in the early morning light. He smiled at Withers, then he made his youthful countenance stern.
"Cut it out, Withers," he said weakly. "It wasn't anything."
Eastman was the last of the badly wounded men taken from the trenches in the clean-up. Where the stretcher-bearers connected with motor ambulances, an American girl, her brown eyes weary and anxious, scanned the pale faces of the

MID-SUMMER SHORT NUMBER The Key to Happiness and Success in over a Million and a Quarter Homes

War Situation Brightening with Germans Checked in France and Austrians Driven Back in Italy

To good purpose would be served by trying to disguise the plain fact that since the total collapse of Russia closely followed by the near collapse of Italy, last fall, the war situation has been perilous until within a few weeks and even now is critical, although very recent events have given it a decidedly brighter aspect.

If Russia, with her huge army and immense resources, had kept her solemn promise to fight to a finish and not make a separate peace the war would have ended in the triumph of the Allies before now-in all probability last fall. For in June of last year the iron ring of the Allies was pressing back the German, Austrian and Turkish armies on all fronts with crushing force. The English and French were steadily advancing their lines in France and Belgium; Turkey was in despair over the rout of her armies by the British and Russians, while Austria, unable to check the progress of the Italian invasion on the west, was panic stricken by the brilliant victory of the great Russian army pressing from the east toward Vienna. Such was the situation the latter part of June, last year, which induced the lower branch of the German parliament at that time to adopt a resolution in favor of "peace without annexation or indemnity." But at this critical juncture treachery wrought for Germany what all her vaunted military power could not accomplish.

The Russian Socialists, the Bolsheviki, led by the infamous Lenine and craven Trotsky, and aided by German gold and Prussian propaganda, corrupted the Russian army and induced the greater part of the rank and file to mutiny, so that the same troops, which had won so gloriously before, in the next battle a few weeks later refused to fight, murdered their officers and fled before the enemy, abandoning the French aviation and British artillery corps and such few of their own comrades, including the Russian woman's "Battalion of Death," as remained loyal, to meet the attack of the combined German and Austrian armies. Thousands deserted and returned to their homes, but a large majority joined the Bolsheviki-Socialist-Anarchist-I. W. W. movement and assisted in the forcible overthrow of the last remnant of reputable government and in its place instituted the Bolsheviki reign of terror, murdering those who opposed them, pillaging the towns and cities and confiscating property generally on the pretext that private ownership is

By such means and with such a backing the Kaiser's tools, Lenine and Trotsky, made themselves masters of Petrograd and of a considerable part of Russia and straightway made a three months truce with Germany for the purpose of arranging the terms of a separate peace for Russia. Both these traitors were recently returned Russian exiles, Lenine from Switzerland by courtesy of the German government, and Trotsky from New York. They denounced the Allies and especially vilified the people and government of the United States which had entered the war and helped Russia with much material, food, ships, Y. M. C. A. and Red Cross service and a loan of two hundred million dollars which the Bolsheviki government dishonestly refuses to acknowledge as a debt.

How perfectly to the Kaiser's taste these pro-German Russian Socialists have played the game appears in the grand result. By the peace treaty, concluded last winter, Russia has lost the best and richest part of her territory. An area larger than the German Empire, stretching from the Baltic Sea to the Black Sea and inhabited by fifty-seven million people, rich in agricultural products ranging from wheat to cotton, and in mines and mineral deposits including the wonderfully productive Russian oil fields, has been passed over to Germany and is now being occupied, organized, developed and exploited by the Germans. Of course the acquisition of this vast territory has greatly strengthened Germany's material resources which were running low.

The Russian truce enabled Germany and Austria to withdraw large forces from the Russian front for the great drive last fall which routed the Italian army out of Austria, conquered northeastern Italy and came dangerously near to being a crushing blow

The separate peace with Russia, last winter, permitted Germany to transfer millions of troops from the Russian to the western front. Thus augmented her forces in France and Belgium largely outnumbered the combined armies of England, France and America and made possible the succession of terrific drives, begun last March, which compelled the retirement of the Allied armies and imperiled the safety of Paris and the Channel ports. The gain of ground, however, has been at the cost of enormous losses in the German army and each drive has diminished in force and effectiveness, while the resistence of the Allies has been increasing until now, since the last drive, the Allies have been making counter attacks with considerable success. The tide of battle seems to be turning and good news is now the order of the day, the most significant of which came recently from Italy where the big Austrian drive, late in June, not only failed but was turned into a signal victory for the Italians who forced the Austrians to retreat with heavy losses.

As we go to press another grand attack is in course of preparation by the German army in France; but the commanding generals of the Allies are confident that they can resist it successfully. And another bit of cheering news, published on July fourth, is that the American army in Europe has now reached the million mark and is being augmented at the rate of more than two hundred thousand each month. Needless to say that our soldiers are doing their share of the fighting and in a manner that is simply glorious.

United States to Intervene in Russia

7AST quantities of food and war munitions furnished by the United States and our Allies are stored at Archangel, in the Russian province of that name, and at Vladivostok in Siberia, and small bodies of allied troops are assisting the local authorities at these places in guarding these supplies to prevent their falling into the hands of the Germans and Bolsheviki who are reported to be preparing to attempt to capture them and subdue Siberia and Archangel Province, which have not acknowledged but are resisting the German-Bolsheviki authority. It is believed that the Bolsheviki are about to declare war against the Allies, including the United States. It is of the utmost importance to stop the further extension of pro-German Bolsheviki power in Russia and Siberia, and it is for this purpose that the United States is to join our Allies in armed intervention in Russia.

No Packages Accepted for Oversea Delivery Unless on Soldier's Written Request Approved by Commanding Officer

HE sending of packages to our soldiers in Europe has been overdone to an extent and in such manner as to have become not only an intolerable burden on transportation facilities but a positive detriment to the discipline of the army. An examination of five thousand sacks of parcel post mail destined for General Pershing's soldiers disclosed the fact that the articles therein not only were, in the main absolutely unnecessary but very undesirable. The amount of such mail had reached the extraordinary total of half a million pounds per week last February and was growing at the rate of a hundred per cent increase each succeeding month. With transatlantic cargo space the most precious thing in the world the Government was obliged to enforce restrictions on the sending of these packages which had reached such a degree of congestion on the other side that the French railroads were unable to move them.

Therefore a general order has been issued, and is being strictly enforced, to the effect that post offices, express companies and freight stations are not to accept any article for shipment to a soldier oversea unless accompanied by the soldier's written request approved by a major or higher commanding officer of our Expeditionary Forces. The same rule applies to parcels destined for persons connected with the Red Cross, Y. M. C. A. and other organizations in France, except that in such case the request is to be approved by an executive officer of the organization.

Many of the articles sent to soldiers are not only undesirable but absolutely prohibited, while most of those which are useful or permissible can be purchased at the army canteens or quartermaster's stores in France at cost to the Government which is less than the retail price in America. According to a recently published statement by the War Department, "tobacco is now being supplied as part of the Army rations, and merchandise of practically all kinds can be purchased in France through a general store established by the quartermaster corps." The restrictions on parcels do not apply to magazines and newspapers. These can be mailed without request and without military approval. The Government needs all available cargo space for shipment of munitions, food and other necessaries, but the friends and relatives at home may rest assured that General Pershing, who attends so carefully to the welfare of his men, will see to it that any reasonable requests for packages from home shall have the necessary approval.

England Joins in Celebrating the Fourth of July

THERE were public demonstrations of joy all over England when the United States entered the war and since then the Stars and Stripes have been much in evidence in public places. The people of London went wild when the first American troops paraded the streets of the British capital a year ago. Our navy has stations and our army has camps in England where hundreds of thousands of our troops have stopped over on their way to France, and everywhere our soldiers and sailors have received a hearty welcome and the best of treatment by the British officials and people. But for England to officially recognize and celebrate the anniversary of the declaration of the independence of the United States surely is going the limit of international courtesy. That is just what England has done spontaneously and with genuine enthusiasm. Preparations were made for a gala day. At Sheffield accommodations were prepared for fifty thousand spectators at the armynavy baseball game and due celebration was held in all American camps throughout Great Britain. In London the bells of Saint Paul's Cathedral were rung as on the great British holidays and five hundred American soldiers were brought to the city. The King conferred signal honor on the occasion by consenting to open the ball game by pitching out the first ball himself. Whatever their past differences, the great nations arrayed against the military despotism that seeks to conquer the world are now in perfect accord and it is to be devoutly hoped that they will continue forever bound by a bond of sympathy and common interest stronger than treaty alliances for the future peace and liberty of humanity.

COMFORT'S EDITOR.

COMFORT, PUBLISHED MONTHLY BY W. H. GANNETT, PUB., INC., AT AUGUSTA, MAINE.

Subscription price in United States and United States Possessions 35c a year; Canadian subscriptions 50c a year, foreign countries 75c a year. No premiums or prizes will be given on Canadian or foreign subscriptions. Please send your renewal just as soon as your subscription expires. Upcan not continue sending COMFORT to you unless you do. If you do not get your magazine by the 25th of the month write us and we will send you another copy free. Please notify us immediately in case you move, so that we can change your address and see that you do not miss a single copy. Remember that we must have your former address, as well as your new address to make the change. Be sure to send both. We do not supply back numbers.

By Albert Sonnichsen

Copyright, 1916, by Albert Sonnichsen.

Out will not find Portsmouth Peterslisted in "Who's Who" even under his proper name, which I know but may not tell, but to this day his fame survives in all those places in the world where seamen gather.

His first leap into the dazzling publicity which lluminated his later career was simultaneous with his lodgment in Honolulu jail, after he had engaged the combined forces of the Royal Havaiian Navy and Revenue Service in a three lours' pitched battle, single handed, while his bur comrades lugged two thousand five-tael tins of opium, which they had just landed below the fall, out of danger of confiscation. Next he bobbed up on the Russian frontier of Mongolia, bading a raid of Manchu brigands on the penal settlement of Akatou. The result of this exploit was the liberation of half-a-dozen noted political prisoners whose loss so incensed the Czar's government that for months two brigades of Cossacks bovered along the Chinese frontier, threatening hternational complications.

When I first knew Peters, in Hong Kong, he had settled down to the comparatively obscure, though lucrative, occupation of filibustering military supplies over to the Island of Luzon for the Filipino Revolutionary Junta. He was then just the sort of picturesque figure that would catch a voman's eye; barely an inch under six feet, agile as well as powerful of build, deep-set eyes that were sometimes green, and a chestnut-brown hair that harmonized well with his sun-tanned, tawny complexion.

deck of the Zafiro, ostensi-bly an inter-island tobacco trader, on which he and Inez her services to the Junta.

It was only natural the years' revolutionary activities in Spain, in Cuba, and finally in the Philippines, where she offered her services to the Junta.

It was only natural that I should have met her in Hong Kong, for she mixed a good deal with the English and American residents. I believe her mother was an American, for she spoke a New England English with such purity that it was only with the closest attention that you could detect the Spanish accent here and there. Physically, she was a remarkably handsome girl, though I fancy most men would have preferred a more softly rounded chin, a smaller mouth, fuller lips, and a figure not quite so tall. But I can easily imagine the appeal she would make to a man like Portsmouth Peters. Just what there was between them, I never knew. Quite a good deal, I fancy, for a man of Peters' temperament does not succumb to fatal nervous disorders at the age of thirty-four without some very deep cause.

"I was Sir Arthur Conningsby." said Peters, continuing his narrative; "and Miss Balmaceda was, of course, Lady Conningsby. British globe trotters, you know, taking passage on a freighter from Hong Kong to Singapore, via Manila and Mindanae, just for an experience. Then there was an elderly mestiza as lady's maid. I had a real French valet. Bill Simons, my chief mate, as skipper. And the crew—all Chinese, some of my old Akatou crowd that would have followed me to hell. There you have the cast.

"Well, things worked out pretty much as we had figured. The port officials swallowed our story of a cracked crank shaft, and they allowed us to dock alongside the jetty by the arsenal machine shop for repairs. I guess we looked our parts, for those two young

Guam, who thought the Charleston was saluting when she was bombarding the citadel, and came to apologize because he hadn't the powder to reply.

"Finally, out came the commandante, sleepy, but all smiles and politeness. His quarters were just off the passageway from the front entrance to the courtyard opposite the guard room. The rest of the quadrangle was all barracks and prison cells, I suppose.

"Well, our talk was mostly smiles and polite exclamations, for Bill's Spanish was mighty lame, and we weren't supposed to know any. And, then after we'd drunk chocolate, came what we had hoped for—an invitation to inspect the prison.

had hoped for—an invitation to inspect the prison.

"So the commandante sends for the alcaide, a sneaky, spindle-shanked little chap, who brought his keys, and we began to make the rounds. Right behind the commandante's room was the corridor, then the first cell. We passed through that, talking, looking at the poor devils stretched out on their mats, through one big cell after another, each containing thirty or forty prisoners. And finally we reached the end of the row, and there was a barred door which the alcaide did not offer to open. But the commandante told us to look in—we might see the "incommunicados." "I saw there were three light-colored natives in there, and I suddenly got interested in a view from a window, overlooking the sea. We could barely make out the coast line of Mindanao. We, that is, Bill, and I, kept that up to the full limit. Finally, from the corner of my eye, I caught Miss Balmaceda's face. She'd done the job. Of course, all the prisoners in the cell we were in must have seen her hand in the blank check and the fountain pen to the doctor, and take both back from him, but that was a chance we had to take. "We started back along through the cells. It was like walking along the brink of a precipice: I regretted that I had not come armed. When we got into the last cell to the corridor, I noticed that the alcaide wasn't with us. There was a minute's waiting, and he came sneaking in, and when I saw his face I smelt trouble. He took the commandante aside and whispered, rather louder than he would had he known how well both Inez and I knew Spanish. I caught enough to us.

size up the situation—a prisoner to size up the situation—a prisoner had spilt on us.

"In slangy English, I told Bill what was on and what to do. I watched my chance. I knew they didn't intend to do anything till they got back in the commandante's room and could summon a corporal's guard. Finally, the alcaide unlocked and opened the door to the corridor. With one sweep of my arm, I shoved Miss Balmaceda out. Bill gave the alcaide a kick in the stomach that doubled him up, and before the commandante had grasped the situation, both of us were out in the corridor, and had slammed the outer door to and shot the big boit.

"Then we just flew. As we shot through the commandante's room, I grabbed a revolver that was hanging from a chair-back in its holster.

"As we dashed out into the passageway between the main entrance and the courtyard we could hear the shouts of the commandante back in the building, calling the guard, but before the sentry had sensed anything out of the ordinary, I had the commandante's gun under his nose. And, while I beld him up, Bill slammed to the courtyard gate and barred it; then he and Inez got busy and slipped the breech blocks out of the Mauser rifles, in the rack in the guard room, and stuffed them into our pockets. We had just finished that job when the first soldiers in the barracks to respond to the commandante's shouts were shaking the inside gate, trying to get out into the passageway.

"Three minutes later the three of us, with the

She shaded her candle with her hand and went into the next room. A boy lay there in bed, a handsome child of ten, with something in his sleeping face that made her quiver and turn ghastly in the candle light.

"God, how like he is." she muttered "I didn't I didn't do it. If the worst comes to the worst I could swear that." She swallowed some thing in her throat. "I was treated like a do.," she gasped. "I was driven. But I can swear I never did it. Oh, I musn't think of it." I'd break down. I've got to hight—for Adrian."

For that sleeping child's name was Adrian, too. But the very thought of what she was going to light seemed to paralyze her, the danger of if, the — She put down the candle, knell with passion beside the child.

"I'll do it for you!" she said deliberately. Assiput away from her the thought that if she hid been a driven, desperate woman a week ago, she was more so now by a hundredfold, and with a harder taskmaster behind her. When she got up her face was steady.

"It's lucky I'd got back when he came!" she thought, harking back to Adrian Gordon. "Otherwise there might have been questions to the landlady. But all she knew was that for two or three nights I dined out, and came home in a hansom at half-past twelve. Even that she might not know, because of my latch-key. I defore she had assured herself that she was guiltess, and safe in any case.

The neighbor she knew nothing of had certainly not been reading the papers, and if he had, might very well have overlooked the small print, unimportant paragraph about a man named Murray having been run over in the street, while the worse for drinking, and taken to Guy's Hospital. But from Guy's Hospital Mrs. Murray had not long returned when he paid his foolish visit to her. It was long after visiting-hours, but lester was a pretty woman still. The house swas small chance for the man she asked for.

"He may linger one day, perhaps two," he said. "But in all probability he'll never be conscious, and he can't recover. Was he," marveling, "a relation?"

"Oh,

said. But in an probability he if never be conscious, and he can't recover. Was he," marveling, "a relation?"

"Oh, no!" said the woman in the faultless widow's weeds, prettily. "Only a—a sort of protege. He had come down in the world."

The surgeon thought that was a mild way of describing the sodden, dying wretch up stairs.

The woman who had lived with poor Bob Murray for years drove away with a lightened spirit. That which she had to do was robbed of half its peril since he was dying, was practically dead. If he had been alive and well, it would have had to be done just the same, if she cared to live in this world at all; but the doing of it might have been all but impossible. Now her safety lay almost in her hand. She slept that night.

live in this world at all; but the doing of it might have been all but impossible. Now her safety lay almost in her hand. She slept that night.

Mr. Atkinson—it was the name of the readymade clothing shop, and had seemed less like an alias than Smith or Brown—the new lodger at number fourteen, informed his landlady that he was an invalid. His drawn face confirmed him, and his occupation of sitting all day by the window and never going out was accounted for. Morning and evening he read the papers. The rest of the day he never took his eyes off Mrs. Murray's house—and all he got for his pains was to see her go out and in quietly, sometimes alone, sometimes with that boy, whose face was so like another face. She never had a visitor, man or woman, and certainly if Miss Brown had been described as being given to drink, Mrs. Murray was not. Pale, dainty, mournful, she came and went; and if he had had a purpose in watching fier he thought it a mad dream as the days flew by. A whole week and he saw nothing; a night when he slipped out to his own rooms, in Charles Street, and came back with a letter from Boulogne, that he dared not sign Atkinson. And the letter give him no shred of hope that Hester had lied to him. It was in a man's hand, short and businesslike.

"Madam Murray, the friend after whom he asked, had certainly spent the summer at the Pension Bocaze, which she had left, indeed, not ten days ago. The writer was unable to supply her present address."

It was signed Jean-Paul Berthier. And on inquiry it was no pleasure to Adrian Gordon to find that Jean-Paul Berthier and the pension were well, and reputably enough, known in Boulogne.

"Hester is out of it," he said to himself. Yet he lingered another week in his sordid lodgings.

find that Jean-Paul Berthier and the pension were well, and reputably enough, known in Boulogne.

"Hester is out of it," he said to himself. Yet he lingered another week in his sordid lodgings, among smells of bad cooking. It was madness, perhaps time wasted, when there was but a fortnight now to Valehampton Assizes, where the woman he loved would be tried for her life. Yet haggard-eyed, worn to a shadow, Adrian Gordon still sat peering through his half-closed shutters; still searching the papers for he knew not what. Perhaps a tramp dying in a workhouse, a swell mobman arrested and turning queen's evidence. It began to enter his head that he might do that equally well at Levallion Castle; began to rend his soul from his body to stay away from Ravenel. But he knew, perhaps, it would be madness to go to see her, considering the part he must bear in the circumstantial evidence that lied and yet was true; for he stayed on.

And one wet, ghastly evening he flung down the Star, and then caught it up again. With blazing eyes he read a long article.

A little after one, the three of us started up for the state of the

MLLE MARIANNA BOOLETTA!!!
THE ARRIVAL QUEEN
WHO DISROBES IN THE AIR !!! ICE EREAM HUNDER Marianna B!" Bernice gasped under her breath. Why Mlle. Booletta must be See Marianna the creature whom Bob was The plane boasted a stock which is a stock of the plane boasted a stock of the plane is a stock of the at 3.00 o'clock going to see. For th'love o'Mike! You're a fine This place boasted a stock | "I couldn't get This place boasted a stock company of near-musical away sooner. were putting a melange of players who changed their program nightly. All the smart-set of the hotel attended —the show was so rotten it was good.

As Bernice neared the theater, her eye caught an immense poster, finning across the side of the building. It bore the picture of a floridly handsome woman, and likewise the legend:

"Couldn't get away sooner. We're putting on a new show it an immense poster, finning across the side of the can get your a at the theater in for it, you sit do "Well. it's all husband Copyright, 1918, by W. H. Gannett, Pub., Inc.

Y dear," began Mr. Bob Charlton, as he prepared to leave the table, "I have an appointment with a gentleman at three o'clock this afternoon, so I shall be obliged to leave you for a be obliged to leave you for a couple of hours."

"Oh, Bobby, must you really? Can't you take me with you?"

Now, if Bob Charlton hadn't been married but a week, he might have given a gently sarcastic hint as to the lucidity of his statement, but this was his honeymoon-time, so he smiled indulgently as he replied:

was his noneymourdine, so to all a she replied:

"I'm sure I would if I could; but in this particular case it would spoil everything if you came. Now, you be a good girl, and while I am gone you can read or sleep and the time will pass quickly. Come, we'll take a little stroll before I go."

gone you can read or sleep and the time will pass quickly. Come, we'll take a little stroll before I go."

Bob and Bernice were spending their honeymoon at a Florida resort. Their honeymoon was conventional, but heavenly. It consisted of dips in the surf during the morning, motoring or yachting through the day, and at night long strolls down palm avenues to romantic piers which jutted out into the ocean and from which they could watch the southern moon shedding its glade on the mercurial waves below.

Acting upon Bob's suggestion, they left the dining-room and went out upon the big hotel piazza with its tall Corinthian columns, and down the steps and along the walk lined on either side with tall hibiscus, the glowing red blossoms burning brilliantly against their deep green leaves.

They followed this path to a little pergola in a palm grove and here for more than half an hour they rested.

"Well, little girl, I really must go," Bob said at last. "I believe I'll change my Palm-beach for a heavier suit; the wind is getting chilly." Together they went to their rooms. Bernice picked up a book and Bob went into the bedroom to change his clothes. He presently emerged, watch in hand.

"Gracious!" he exclaimed, "it's later than I packed up a book and 1500 went into the bedroom to change his clothes. He presently emerged, watch in hand.

"Gracious!" he exclaimed, "it's later than I expected. Just pick up that suit and lay it over a chair until I return, will you, sweet?"

"All right," she answered, as she raised up her lips for his kiss.

Bob left, and as soon as the door banged, Bernice flew to the window, where she stood watching until she saw his figure go the full length of the board-walk which terminated at the beach. Then she went to the bedroom and picked up the suit he had just discarded.

"Just like a man," she said, in imitation of her mother, whose favorite expression it was.
She held the suit tenderly; somehow, Bob's clothes seemed a part of him. Then with a little blush and a quick glance around, she caught the coat to her breast, and kissed the inanimate thing.

"How perfectly idiotic I am about him," she thing.

"How perfectly idiotic I am about him," she confided to herself. Then defiantly: "But I don't care. He's mine!"

The next moment she was attending to business. She carefully smoothed the wrinkles from the coat and hung it up on a hanger, creased the trousers according to their crease and hung them up likewise, and then put the soiled collar and crumpled handkerchief with the laundry.

Pleased, she stood admiring her work, when suddenly she noticed one of Bob's business cards lying on the floor, and before she knew it, she had picked it up and sensed what he had written on the reverse side:

lying on the noor, and before she knew it, she had picked it up and sensed what he had written on the reverse side:

"See Marianna B. at 3:00 o'clock."

Horrified, she stood with dreadful, unbidden thoughts clamoring for consideration. Who was Marianna B., and why must he see the creature? Was she some old sweetheart of his, and was she going to annoy him? She had heard that often old-time sweethearts blackmailed the objects of their love after they had married. Was this woman going to do the same thing?

Bernice had never asked Bob whether she was the only girl he had ever loved, but he assured her that though he had admired many girls, she alone was his heart's first choice. But if it wasn't anything dreadful, why hadn't he taken her along? And then his words of an hour before came to her with horrific clarity: "It would spoil everything if you came!"

At the thought, Bernice did the only thing possible—she cried; and with crying came decision.

possible—she cried; and with crying came accision.

"I'll follow him, and if Marianna B. is going to bother him, I'll claw her." she decided fiercely, as she wiped her eyes. "I don't care what she was to Bob before; he's mine now. I don't care who she is, even if she's a big—husky—Amazon!" and Bernice started to cry all over again, for you see she would have liked to swear, but not being practiced, she really didn't know how, and the awful appellation she had bestowed upon the unknown "Marianna B." seemed the closest she ever came to it!

came to it!

Bernice having decided on her course, picked up her light coat and marched out of the hotel determined to confront the woman who threatened her happiness.

She hurried along the palm avenue and to the beach and then followed the board-walk past various amusement concessions. There was the usual miscellany, side-shows, curio shops, shooting galleries, crazy rides and a summer theater.

after all!

As they entered the boathouse, Bernice came from her place of concealment, and hurried to the pier, and hid behind a heavy trestle. Right above her was the boathouse, and she could hear Boletta groaning and Bob trying to soothe her. In another moment, she heard the scrape of feet on the sand on the pier, and then she heard Bob halloo.

She looked in the direction his voice was hurled, and beheld a structure of the same contents.

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 3.)

Davidge and Lord Levallion took place at the registrar's office in Islington, but the bride, with excellent reasons, refused to have it made public, and went abroad with him under the name of Mrs. Gordon, by which surname he also called himself. Needless to say, the bride was anxious to avoid France and Mr. Murray, although assured he could have no claim on her. And she also never allowed Lord Levallion to introduce or mention her to any friends whom he encountered, giving as an excuse that she was in delicate health and fanciful.

"In 1890 her son was born, at Vevay, where he was christened and registered as Adrian Gordon, Lord Valehampton, Levallion's second title, and described as the only son of Adrian Gordon, Lord Levallion, and his wife. And at Vevay the bubble burst. Murray, by some trick of fate, came face to face with the pair; claimed and denounced his wife, and, to her surprise, had discovered that she had been not only his wife, but Davidge's.

"Lord Levallion was furiously angry. There halloo.

She looked in the direction his voice was burled, and beheld a strapping fellow, who noting the signal was for him, came up on a run. He climbed up the trestle work of the pier and went into the boathouse.

And then Bermee heard:

"For th' love o' Mike! You're a fine husband, you are! I told you to meet me here, and you're late as usual."

"Oh, pshaw, Marie," a man's voice returned.

came face to face with the pair; claimed and denounced his wife, and, to her surprise, had discovered that she had been not only his wife, but Davidge's.

"Lord Levallion was furiously angry. There is no doubt that he would have thrown her back on Murray's hands if it had been possible. But at first it was not. Davidge had been undoubtedly alive at the time of Mrs. Gordon's supposed marriage with Murray, and as undoubtedly dead when she secretly became Lady Levallion. But Mur-or the late Sir Thomas Annesley, the same unfortunate lady who, justly or unjustly, now awaits her trial for his murder. Mrs. Murray was powerless, never having been his wife, as she thought. But no later than a fortnight ago fate's kaleidoscope shifted. It turned out, by a curious turn of events, that the late Lord Levalion was right about the death of Davidge. It was he and no other who was killed in a scandalous brawl in Paris, but his death was hidden by a namesake, a cousin, Maurice Davidge, who quietly changed identities with the dead man, who was in receipt of an allowance from their family; buried himself, so to speak, and as John Davidge went to America, when quite casually the thing leaked out. Mrs. Murray, be she good or bad, is probably Lady Levallion, for Murray's wife she never was. He had left her for months, having somehow discovered about Levallion, when the quondam John Davidge spoke out.

"Our readers will find the opening proceedings of the case against the present heirs of Lord Levallion, on our first page."

The reader dropped the paper. This was what had been up Hester Murray's sleeve!

"She can have the whole show for all I care!" he said, after a moment of wonder that any woman could be so shamelessly outspoken, even for money.

"She must know no one will accept her after all that story," he thought, though—except that Davidge was dead—he had known most of it.

His face grew very hopeless. This case of Levallion's death. She would far rather have forced herself on him, and shamed him; it seemed to Gordon that his death had taken away the point of the woman's revenge.

(continued on page 10.)

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 10.)

This Department is conducted solely for the use of COMFORT sisters, whereby they may give expression to their ideas relative to the home and home surroundings, and to all matters pertaining to themselves and families; as well as opening a way for personal correspondence between each other.

bbject is to extend a helping hand to COMFORT subscribers; to become coworkers with all who seek friendship, encouragement, sympathy or assistance through the interchange of ideas.

assistance through the interchange of ideas.

Any abuse of this privilege, such as inviting correspondence for the purpose of offering an article for sale, or undertaking to charge a sun of money for ideas, recipes or information mentioned in any letter appearing in this department, if reported, will result in the offender being denied the use of these columns.

Do not ask us to publish letters requesting money contributions or donations of any sort. Much as we sympathize with the suffering and unfortunate, it is impossible to do this as we would be flooded with similar requests.

Please write only on one side of the paper, and recipes on a separate sheet.

Always give your correct and full name and address.

Always give your correct and full name and address, very plainly written; otherwise your letter will receive no attention.

Address Mrs. Wheeler Wilkinson, Care Comfort, Augusta, Maine.

NE of the most interesting letters which I received this month was from a woman in New York state who wrote that her most enjoyable vacation was the week after her city friends left her home in the country where they had been spending their vacation. She said that while August might be the vacation month for the city people who visited her, it certainly wasn't for her, that it was one of the busiest seasons on the farm anyway, that guests made so much more work and ended by asking if I thought her selfish or inhospitable.

Indeed, I do not, but I do think she takes her guests too seriously. She shouldn't allow them to upset the routine of the home, and the guest has a much better time if she can feel that she is causing no extra work or worry. With plenty of the good things we get om'a farm, such as milk, eggs and vegetables, the food question should be easny taken care of and if plenty of plain, well-cooked food is served instead of some thing more elaborate, and the time taken to enjoy each other's company, she will find that company isn't so tiresome after all.—Ed.

Norfolk, Va.

Spoons of sugar. Add a pinch of salt and return to double boller and cook till it slightly thickens, about five made cook till it slightly thickens, about five mand the mate water and beat thoroughly with an egg beater; then add the beaten whites of the eggs and flavoring then add the beate whites of the eggs and flavoring then and beat again with egg beater. Pour into the mould beat again with egg beater, Pour into the mould beat again with egg beater. Pour into the mould beat again with egg beater. Pour into the mould beat again with egg beater. Pour into the mould beat again with egg beater. Pour into the mould beat again with egg beater. Pour into the mould beat again with egg beater. Pour into the mould beat again with egg beater. Pour into the mould beat again with egg beater. Pour int

DEAR MRS. WILKINSON AND SISTERS:

I have taken COMPORT off and on for twelve years and have derived lots of help from it, and now I would like to know how to make a rose jar.

Miss Zella Prichard, you surely spoke my thoughts on the subject of charity. So many people have the chance to do good right at home but do not see it, or do not want to.

Troubled Wife, let me tell you something from my own experience. I, too, have a husband who does not believe in showing his love and calls it foolishness, but down in his heart he loves me and there is not a thing he will not get for me, if possible, but he does not want me to kiss him or fuss over him and that at first was very hard for me as I am of a loving nature but let me tell you what I do. I got him to buy a nice little bungalow with plenty of land and I bought ten chickens and some seeds and went to work. Am raising chickens (also rabbits) besides putting in a lot one hundred by thirty-seven and one half feet into a garden. Between my outdoor work and my housework I haven't much time left to think of my troubles or would-be troubles, and when he comes home at night I have everything the way he likes it and all goes well. You can get yourself accustomed to his ways and be happy if you will just try and have a little patience. So take heart, all will come out right in the end.

Mrss. Della B. Boone, you are a mother after my own heart.

Mrs. Della B. Boone, you are a mother after my

Mrs. Delia B. Boone, you are a mother after my own heart.

Perplexed, don't be selfish. You have made your bed, mow lie in it, and if it makes trouble to take more than the two weeks, don't do it, for we have enough trouble in this world without bringing it on ourselves. You should be glad he is willing to take you back home for even those two weeks and you should improve every minute while there. I have not been able to go to my home for six years and see no chance ahead. If you were not willing to leave your home and go among strangers you should not have married, for, from your letter, you knew you would have to go away.

With love to the sisters and Mrs. Wilkinson,

Mrs. John Anast.

Mrs. Anast.—June with its roses will be gone by the time this reaches you, but since we have every reason to believe there will be other Junes and other roses, just as sweet, I'll tell you how I make my rose jars.

Gather the roses every morning as soon as the dew has dried. Strip the petals from the calyx, throwing away decayed petals. When half a peck, or more, has been collected take a large porcelain bowl and in it place alternate layers of rose leaves and table salt, with salt for the last layer, and cover with a plate the size of the howl. Let them remain like this for ten or twelve hours, then turn, stir and mix them every day for a week. When it begins to turn moist, add three ounces of allspice. Turn it three days more, adding each day a little more allspice and ground cinnamon. By this time it is ready to put into the Jar, and have one that will close up tightly. Then add the following ingredients, coarsely powdered: Cloves, mutmeg, cinnamon, allspice, mace, anise seed and root, one ounce each, and a little black pepper. Then add a few drops of oil of lavender and rosemary and any other desired oil. The contents of the Jar must be frequently stirred and shaken and the various perfumes -and oils can be added as they are obtained. Keep the jar tightly closed for a month after making. When it becomes dry it can be slightly moistened with fresh oil of flowers. Other sweet smelling flowers may be added, after being prepared in the same way if one wishes.—Ed.

BERGERSVILLE, IND.

BERGERSVILLE, IND.

After reading the letter from Perplexed and sitting here trying to imagine myself in her place, I felt that I would like to write to this corner. I wonder how many sisters are doing just the same as Perplexed is doing. Do you know that try as I will I cannot feel sorry for such women. Now I know you are wondering how I can talk so.

doing. Do you know that try as I will I cannot feel sorry for such women. Now I know you are wondering how I can talk so.

Let me tell you the only way to live with any manmo matter how good he is—is to let him know you have a head of your own and that you are entitled to your way of thinking and doing, at least half of the time. If I were in Perplexed's place I would gently and firmly tell my husband that I had my mind all made up for a nice long visit this summer and would go ahead and have my visit half over so that when he came I could visit his folks with him and then we could return home together, which, to my way of thinking, is the very best part of a visit as there is no place like home and no matter how much we want to go away it is always good to get home. I am sure that if you do not let that husband of yours know that you have rights as well as he that yok will not be a very happy wife.

I expect that someone is saying I must be an old maid, but I have been married almost fourteen years to one of the very best of husbands. Neither of us boss but each try to do as we please when we can and if not we always try to please each other in our plans,

Comfort Sisters' Recipes

HE secret of salad making is to have everything ready, even the dishes, cold before beginning. If the letture is not perfectly fresh, it is better to let it stand in ice water half an hour before serving, but be sure the leaves are thoroughly dry, and this can be accomplished by putting them into a clean cloth and shaking lightly until the water is absorbed. The greens will wilt if allowed to stand in salad dressing, so do not add it until ready to serve.

Left-overs, in small quantities, can be combined to make a dainty appetizing dish which is easy to prepare and more healthful during the hot weather than heavy food.

SPANISH CREAN —Soal and stand in salad dressing the hours of water and boil all together for one and one half hours.—Kathering D. Hoza, Hse, Colo.

Potato Sour.—Four large potatoes, one onion; bell in two quarts of water with mayonnaise.

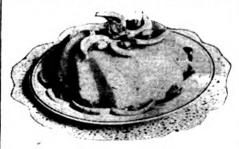

SHANGH AND CHEAR.—Cook well-washed spinach until tender in boiling, saited water, drain, chop fine and season with pepper, sait and kend in which as buttered mold. When cool, turn from mold opto plate and serve with misconding the most into a buttered mold. When cool, turn from mold opto plate and serve with mayonnaise.

Here are the clear serve with mayonnaise.

Here A D., Augusta, Maine.

Stenach A

SPANISH CREAM.—Soak one quarter of a box of gelatine in one quarter of a cup of cold water half an hour; dissolve in three quarters of a cup of boiling water. Bring two cups of rich milk to the boiling point, and pour over the yelk of three eggs that have been beaten to a light creamy yellow with three table-on. This costs much less than chicken and is almost as good.

SPANISH CREAM.

PINEAPPLE AND CHEESE SALAD.—In the center of salad dish, arrange a mound of cream cheese cut in small cubes and sprinkled with chopped walnut meats. Around this arrange rings of canned pineapple, and outside a border of tender lettuce leaves. Sprinkle ka, and pour over a French dressing made by mixing quarter of a teaspoon of salt and half as much pepper. Slowly add three tablespoons of olive oil, and lastly three teaspoons of vinegar. Serve with toasted crackers.

ing. — Evangeling M., Camden, Maine.

M., Camden, Maire.

PRUNE SALAD.—

Wash and steam one half pound large prunes. Remove stones and fill cavity with the following mixture: One and one half cups of cottage cheese, one half cup chopped nuts and one quarter cup chopped olives. Chill and serve on lettuce leaves with salad dressing.

BASKET SALAD.—Remove inside part of green peppers and cut in form of baskets. Fill with chopped string beans, chopped beets and chopped olives. Serve on lettuce leaves, using an ordinary salad dressing.

PINEAPPLE AND CELERY SALAD.—Mix two cups of shredded pineapple with one cup of finely cut celery, half-a-dozen olives, cut into small pieces, and one half cup of chopped nuts. Moisten with salad dressing and serve on crisp lettuce leaves.

CHEESE AND NUT SALAD.—To one and one half cups

CHEESE AND NUT SALAD.—To one and one half cups cottage cheese, add three quarters cup of chopped nuts, one teaspoon of chopped parsley and one teaspoon of chopped parsley and one teaspoon of chopped celery, and a little salt. Moisten with two or three tablespoons of heavy cream, shape into small balls, chill and serve in lettuce nests, with salad dressing.

BEET AND CARROT SALAD.—Boil beets and carrots until tender; peel and set away until cold. Chop equal parts quite fine and thoroughly mix with French dressing and let stand three quarters of an hour. To four good-sized beets and an equal amount of carrot, use four hard-boiled eggs. Remove the whites and cut into rings and put in layers through salad. Rice the yolks over the top of salad.

BEET AND CARROT SALAD.

STUFFED TOMATO SALAD. - Peel six large, smooth to-STUFFED TOMATO SALAD.—Peel six large, smooth or matoes, cut off stems and scoop out centers, saving the solid portions. Mix with this one half cup chopped celery, a little chopped onion, one tablespoon of chopped nuts, and salt to taste. Fill the tomato shells with this and serve with mayonnaise, on lettuce leaves.

FRENCH DRESSING.—Blend well together two tea-poons of salt, one eighth teaspoon each white pepper nd paprika, a dash of cayenne and four tablespoons f vinegar and four of olive oil. Add one teaspoon of craped onion if desired.

BAKED BEAN SALAD.—This is a good way to use left-over beans. Chop fine or run through food chopper, add a small quantity of chopped beets, a little chopped celery, and half a teaspoon of onion juice. Place on lettuce leaves and serve with salad dressing.

JRILIED SALMON SALAD.—Take two cups of canned salmon, drain and remove the skin and bones. Mince fine and add a tablespoon of lemon juice, a little red pepper, one teaspoon of minced parsley and salt to taste. Mix together with salad dressing and a tablespoon of powdered gelatine dissolved in one quarter of a cup of water. Fill small molds with this and set them on ice to cool. Turn out on crisp lettuce leaves, POTATO SOUP.—Four large potatoes, one onion; boil in two quarts of water until soft. 4 Press through a sieve and add one pint of sweet milk, one tablespoon of butter and a little salt and pepper. Let boil up again and serve.—Grace C., Augusta, Me.

VEAL FINGERS.—Cut pieces of bread one inch thick and three inches square. Toast brown in the oven. In a stew pan have ready hot slices of left-over veal and gravy. Cover toast with veal and pour enough gravy over to moisten the toast. Cover the veal with rings of boiled carrot and surround with canned peas that have been drained, then heated in a double boiler, and butter, pepper and salt added.

VEAL FINGERS.

WAR COOKIES.—One cup each sugar, shortening and molasses and buttermilk. Put one teaspoon baking powder, one level teaspoon soda and one of salt in one cup of graham flour, oat flour, rice flour and three of white flour. Sift well, mix in order given. Roll thin. These are healthy and good.—Mrs. MAGDALEN CLARK, The Dalles, Ore.

CABBAGE SOUP.—One half head of cabbage, chopped fine and boiled one half hour in a little water. Drain and add one pint of boiling milk, one half cup of cream, butter size of an egg and pepper and sait to taste.

MOCK RAREBIT WITH OATMEAL.—Cook two cups of oatmeal, as usual, and just before serving add one cup of soft, mild, grated cheese, one tablespoon of butter and one teaspoon of salt. Stir until cheese is thoroughly blended.—Mrs. James Spurway, Billings, Mont.

ly blended.—MRS. JAMES SPURWAY, Billings, Mont.

COTTAGE CHEESE.—Place sour milk on back of store and let warm slowly. Cook until a spoonful can be taken up and drained and the curd left will be firm.

Take from stove and turn into cloth strainer and hang up to drain. When drained, add a piece of butter and some cream or milk and a little salt.

Beat while warm.

Press into molds or form into balls.

BEET S ALAD.—

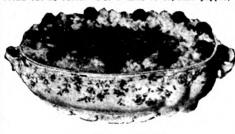

salt into the boiling water. Cook forty-five minutes.
e: One add hamburg steak and tomatoes and stir until red color disappears. Add salt and pepper. A sweet pepper adds to the flavor. Grease baking dish, put in layer of corn-meal mush and seasoned meat and cover with mush. Bake one half hour. This serves six people.—Mrs. Hazel Black, Randsburg, Cal.

Drift Peach Turnofers.—Sort disk for the control of the c

DRED PEACH TURNOWERS.—Soak dried peaches over night. Remove skins after soaking. Put in stew pan, cover with water and cook about one hour, sweeten to taste and cook about half an hour longer. Season with any desired spices. Make a dough as for ple, roll out, cut into small pieces, cover one half with the peacles, turn the other half over and pinch the edges together. Bake.

Bake.
PRUNE TARTS.—To one cupful of prune pulp previously boiled and rubbed through a sieve, add one cup of sugar, one half cup of milk and the yolks of two well beaten eggs. Line a pie tin with rich paste, fill it with the mixture and bake until the crust is done. Beat the whites of two eggs, adding one quarter of a cup of white sugar, spread over the top of the tart or pie and brown slightly.

SPANISH TOMATO. — Fill a buttered pudding dish about two thirds full of layers of canned tomato and bread cut in cubes. Put a dash of cayenne pepper, a little onion juice, salt and butter on each layer. Bake half an hour in fairly hot oven. Flake one cup of cooked fish, add a little pepper and salt, one cup of mashed potato, two tablespoons of butter, one egg beaten light and one third of a cup of rich cream. Put the mixture over moderate heat, and keep tossing until it is creamy and blended, then spread over the scalloped tomato. Put riced mashed potato around the edge and dot with pimolas.

SPANISH TOMATO.

POTATOES AU GRATIN .- Cover bottom of baking dish POTATOES AU GRATIN.—Cover bottom of baking dish with silees of left-over potato, cover with grated cheese and bread crumbs, corn meal bread crumbs may be used. Season with salt and pepper and dot with pieces of butter: repeat until dish is full, with top layer of crumbs. Fill dish to top of potatoes with milk, and bake until brown.

BLACKBERRY JELLY.—Pick the blackberries over carefully and mash them in preserving kettle and heat slowly until the juice is all drawn out. Squeeze through a double thickness of cheese-cloth and boil the juice fifteen minutes, then add as much hot sugar as you have juice and boil until it thicknes when poured on cool plate.

The Rendezvous of Good

The earth is being torn by Armageddon, the great conflict between the positive forces of good and the negative forces of evil.

It is not necessary for the mo-ment for all progressive world citizens to agree in detail upon all subjects, in order to work together for the establishment of righteousness

The fields of grain must first be saved from the destroyer before there can be need of final winnowing of the grain.

In the crucial hour the world is coming to recognize the uplifted standard of THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE MONITOR, international daily newpaper.

The Monitor is standing firmly with democracy against autocracy, with abstinence and sobriety against license and insobriety, with the cause of equality for the sexes against the forces which seek to perpetuate the disfranchisement of woman and with the cause of medical and religious freedom against the reactionary elements of organized medicine and proscriptive religion.

The Christian Science Monitor, 3c a copy, is on general sale throughout the world at news stands, hotels and Christian Science readingrooms. A monthly trial subscription by mail anywhere in the world for 75c, a sample copy on request.

THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE PUBLISHING SOCIETY BOSTON U. S. A.

Sole publishers of all authorized Christian Science literature

We have one child, a boy of twelve years, and although we are not very well off in this world's goods, we are a happy family.

With best wishes for COMFORT,
MRS. STELLA BROWN.

when we can be described in the second strainer and hand a little and hand of rained, and and a little salt, he can be described from the form that the form that the form of the fore of the form of

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 11.)

Copyright renewed, 1908 by Mrs. Georgie Sheldon

Serial rights by W. H. Gannett, Pub., Inc.

Serial rights by W. H. Gannett, Pub., Inc.

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS.

Lady Prescott, wife of Sir Athelstone Prescott, and her son Raymond, while traveling by coach, lose their way, and night overtaking them, they stop at a miserable inn, in a little fishing village on Flamborough Head. They are attracted to a little girl, Silvyl, who walts on them. Her winning ways, her admittance own mother would not do it, convince them that the child away. Seeking Mistress Sloan, they learn that a woman who had been in a rallroad smash up and injured leaves the child, who for weeks cries for Nansie. Mistress to leat the child go, muttering she will keep her secrets. That night Silvy is awakened and overhears Jem and his wife talking over the terms of the bargain, and through a chink in the wall she detects the place where an invaluable trinket, belonging to her, is concealed. The next morning she secures "I. A." which she dimly remembers and which convinces Lady Prescott that the gem is Silvyl's, and by it she may be restored to her own people. Five years later, her nineteenth birthday, Lady Prescott introduces her to society. She clasps a beautiful chain, to which is suspended the trinket, around her neck, with Lady Prescott Silvyl assists in receiving the guests. Raymond, watching and anxious, admits to his mother how beautiful Silvyl is, and that no one attracts him as she does, and that his mother has the first right to his confidence. She will like nothing better than to keep her children with her. Silvyl in Maplewood. Seized with a sudden faintness, Miss Therwin is carried to a quiet room. Silvyl remains with her. Regaining consciousness, Miss Therwin refers to the ornamest Silvyl wears, and to hegasurprise discovers the letters S. H. S. intervovo in this gives to the ornamest Silvyl wears, and to hegasurprise discovers the letters S. H. S. intervovo in this gives to the room of the carry fire thousand pounds, enlists the aid of an unscruption of early life, the vision of a beautiful face, the faint remembrance SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS

CHAPTER XXVII.

DUC D'AUBIGNE'S ATTENTIONS.

HE will conquer me yet in spite of myself," she said at last. "I cannot do it—I must not do it! Oh! Ada Therwin, I believe you are rearing a fabric which will some day fall and crush us both repeated, with a shudder, and dropped her head again into her hands.

A long time she sat there in deep, troubled thought, but lifting her eyes now and then to look out at that pretty figure down by the sea.

Finally she opened the sacred book upon her lap, and began to read.

Finally she opened the sacred book upon her lap, and began to read.

Meanwhile, Sibyl rambled along the smooth, white beach in a happier frame of mind than she had been for many a long day.

"Ah!" she murmured, as she breathed in the pure, strengthening air, and looked thoughtfully out over the blue waters, "what greater reward could I desire than to help lead the dear wanderer home to her father's house?"

Many, many times Sibyl would thus review the past, and this was always where she had to stop, because she could go no further.

Who could have tempted her mother—who had ruined her life when she was young, and pure, and happy? And more than all she wondered, yet dreaded to know, who had been her father.

She could never think of it at all without a feeling of faintness and dizzy horror creeping over her, and her whole soul crying out for help to bear this great and terrible burden of her life.

But today, even this grief seemed less fearful beside the light of the new hope that had come to her—that her mother was perhaps being led toward a better and higher life.

A half hour later, while she was sitting there, thinking and listening to the waves as they broke on the crags beneath, she heard steps crunching the gravel behind her.

Glancing over her shoulder, she saw a manly form approaching, and thought there was something familiar in his appearance, yet she did not at the moment recognize him.

The stranger came nearer, and lifting his hat said, politely:

"Madam, can you point me the nearest way to the village?"

said, politely:
"Madam, can you point me the nearest way to the village?"

"Madam, can you point me the nearest way to the village?"

Sibyl lifted her face to answer him, pushing back her wide-brim hat as she did so, when, with an exclamation of pleasure he sprang toward her. "Miss Prescott — or, pardon, Miss Stillman! truly this is an unexpected pleasure," the stranger cried, extending his hand, and then she saw that he was none other than the Duc d'Aubigne. He had shaven his beard, leaving only his long, curling mustache, which made him look much younger than when she had last seen him in Dumfries and which had also prevented her from recognizing him.

She gave him her hand in kindly greeting, and then answered his query regarding the nearest way to the village, but he seemed in no haste to depart now, and seating himself upon a boulder beside her, began chatting in his usual lively, officiand manner.

He had left Dumfries only three weeks before, and had all the latest news to tell her—for, be it known, Sibyl, to her great anxiety and perplexity, had received no Jetter from either Raymond or his mother for a longer time than that—and she listened with eager interest to all he had to say, which fact he was quick to perceive and to make the most of.

"Do you enjoy Barmouth?" he asked, bound to make her talk.

"I do not know much about the place, for I seldom go to the village, but I love the sea wherever it is."

"Are you fond of yachting, Miss Stillman?—if you love the sea, I should think you would like it."

"I don't know," she answered with a little smile. "I never was in a yacht in my life."

"Would you like to try it?" he asked eagerly.

you love the sea, I should think you would like it."

"I don't know," she answered with a little smile. "I never was in a yacht in my life."

"Would you like to try it?" he asked eagerly. "Mine is at your disposal any day. We could take a run down the bay some fine morning and return by moonlight. I should be delighted to give you the pleasure."

Sibyl thanked him, but declined, because of her mother's feeble health and she could not leave her long at a time.

Then she changed the subject and inquired after Miss Therwin.

"I have not seen her for a month," the duke replied, gnawing his lip with vexation at her refusal, "but," he added, with a keen glance at her out of the corner of his eyes, "report says that she contemplates changing her name one of these days."

she contemplates changing her name one of these days."

Sibyl looked her astonishment.
"Is it possible?" she said, at last.
"Yes; have not your friends, the Prescotts, written you about it?"

Her beautiful face paled.
It was so very strange, that she had received no word from them for the past four weeks.
But she answered, quietly.
"No, they have written me nothing about it."
"That is singular; but perhaps young Prescott-your adopted brother, is he not?—wishes to surprise you. You and Miss Therwin were quite intimate, I believe, before you left Dumfries—how would you enjoy her as a sister?"
Sibyl turned her dark eyes full upon him.
"I do not think I fully understand you, my lord," she said.
"I'm afraid I have made a mess of it," he returned, with pretended vexation, "but as I have said so much, it would be unkind not to explain.

"I'm afraid I have made a mess of it," he returned, with pretended vexation, "but as I have said so much, it would be unkind not to explain. Mrs. Grundy has it that Mr. Prescott is to marry Miss Therwin. I thought, of course, that you must be aware of the fact, or I would have said nothing about it."

A beautiful color rose to Sibyl's checks, and her lip curled a trifle in scornful unbelief, while her slender fingers almost unconsciously turned the diamond circlet which gleamed on her left hand.

'It cannot be true, my lord. Mrs. Grundy is at fault for once," she quietly replied.
"By George, they are engaged!" was his lord-ship's mental exclamation, as he caught the sparkle of the moving diamonds, and noted her place, and I warn you never to go so near the edge again."

"Thank you," she said, quietly, as she released herself from the hand which he had put forth to save her. "I have been here often, and I have no fear."
"Nevertheless, the waters are deep beneath these rocks and there would be danger of your drowning if you should fall—that is, unless you can swim," he returned, wondering at her composure.

can swim," he returmed, wondering at her composure.

"I cannot swim, but I do not fear," and she found herself feeling thankful to that rolling stone for saving her the necessity of replying to his lordship's request to call upon her.

But the day came when she would have given worlds, had she possessed them, if she had paid better heed to his warning.

He accompanied her to her own door, having apparently forgotten his own request, though inwardly chafing at the cool indifference which she manifested toward him.

She did not invite him to enter, and he left her with a smile and bow, and went his way.

The next morning, as Sibyl took her seat at the breakfast table, she found beside her plate an enchanting little basket filled with the freshest, dewiest, sweetest roses.

dewiest, sweetest roses.

A card lay on top, directed to Miss Sibyl Stillman, with the compliments of a friend."

The following day a basket of choicest fruit "for Mrs. Stillman" found its way within their

"Who sent it, do you suppose?" she asked, her eyes gleaming with pleasure, as she observed its dainty arrangement and inhaled the sweet perfume.

Sibyl then told of her meeting and interview with the Duc d'Aubigne, and said she supposed the attention must have come from him.

Mrs. Stillman made no reply to this information, but the basket of fruit remained untouched from that moment, and she retired to her room immediately after breakfast, where she remained all day, upon the plea that she did not feel as well as usual.

One bright day Sibyl took her book and a little

One bright day Sibyl took her book and a little basket in which to gather ferns and mosses, and strolled away from the seashore, part way up the mountains, which rose very abruptly from the coast, and not far from their cottage.

A half hour later her basket was filled to the

A half hour later her basket was filled to the brim with lichens, ferns, and delicate moss.

Seating herself upon a rustic throne, and throwing aside her hat, she lay back against the great gray rock, and prepared to enjoy her solitude to the utmost.

She read for an hour or more, when she was suddenly startled by the sound of steps not far from her retreat.

The steps came nearer, and soon, to her great annoyance, the Duc d'Aubigne came into view, clad in a handsome hunting costume, a rifle and a well-filled game bag hanging from his shoulder.

His face lighted with a smile of intense gratification as he saw her, and noted the pretty picture she made outlined against the brown, moss-grown rocks.

With a graceful salutation he deposited his gun

With a graceful salutation ne deposited his gun and bag upon the ground.
"I fear I am intruding, but I pray your leniency for a little season, for I do assure you, most gracious lady, that this heat and the weariness of my bones are unsupportable; while nature, with her wondrous charms," looking into her flushed face, "binds me irresistibly to this spot," he said.

he said.

He bowed with pretended humility and supplication before her, and Sibyl laughed, in spite of her vexation, at his words.

"Rest yourself, my lord; I have not the right, if I had the heart, to forbid you," she replied; but her color rose higher beneath his glance of undisguised admiration.

"What book have you there to beguile the quiet hours, oh, maid of the mountain?" he asked, a moment later, and holding out his hand for the volume.

She gave it to him.

She gave it to him.
"Ah! Tennyson. Are you fond of him?"

"I have always liked him since I was a child," she answered, remembering who, by his eloquence and power, had first taught her to love the "Poet Laureate." she she allower, had first taught her to love the "Poet Laureate."

"What think you of "The Princess?" he asked, with a peculiar look.

Again Sibyl's eyes drooped beneath the glance which told her very plainly what he thought of the one whom Raymond called "Princess."

"I have not yet read it thoroughly enough to pass judgment upon it as a whole. Some parts of it I like, some I do not," she answered, wishing that he would go, or that she could find some excuse for leaving him.

"Let me read you a little of it, will you?" he asked.

She smiled, and nodded assent.

He turned to the seventh part of the tale, and read it through—read it with a power and expression that held her wrapped throughout the whole, until he came to those last few passionate lines, when he dropped his tones to a tender cadence, and threw his whole soul into his voice:

Indeed I love thee; come, Yield thyself up; my hopes and thine are one; Accomplish thou my manhood and thyself; Lay thy sweet hands in mine, and trust to me.

With one swift glance at the flushed, downcast face opposite him, the Duc d'Aubigne laid down the book; then his eyes wandered off to the distant sea, which looked like one vast sheet of silver in the strong sunlight, and there was a silence of several minutes.

"Will you, Sibyl?"

"My lord, I do not understand you," she replied, quickly, and lifting her small head with a gesture of hauteur.

"Then, with increasing ardor, he went on:

"My beautiful one, I have long been wishing to tell you how I love you, but I saw how shy you were of me, and feared to startle you. Now I can keep the secret no longer; every day in your presence only serves to rivet anew the chains that hold me captive. Give me, my beloved, the right to care for you, and love you all that my fond heart dictates, and to make your life one long, enchanting dream."

Sibyl here stretched forth her hand with an exclanation of pain.

"Don't—please don't!" she said, with white lips.

"And why not, love? You have drawn me exclamation of pain.

"Don't—please don't!" she said, with white lips.

"And why not, love? You have drawn me irresistibly from the first moment that I saw you. Poor, little white dove!" he went on, looking compassionately into her pale face, and reaching forth his hand to take hers, "have I frightened you? Have I been too precipitate? I can wait, dearest, and give you all the time you wish to think of this."

He raised her hand to his lips, and, as it happened, they pressed the very spot over the circlet of diamonds where Raymond had kissed it that day when he had put it upon her finger. With a feeling as if it had been desecrated, she released it from his hand, saying, in tones of distress:

"No, my lord, I do not wish for time. I can never be your wife."

If she had looked up at him, she might have seen something very like a cruel sneer curling his lips beneath his heavy yellow mustache.

He had not asked her to be his wife, but her pure heart never dreamed but that his words had intended to convey an honorable offer of marriage.

"I cannot have it 'no'," he said, with extreme had intended to convey an honorable offer of marriage.

"I cannot have it 'no'," he said, with extreme gentleness. "I cannot give up this hope that has been growing within my heart for so long. Dear Sibyl, pray give me a little hope that I may some time win you."

"My.lord, my answer would have to be the same at any other time. I do not love you, and I can give you no hope," she said, deeply agitated.

"Why cannot you love me?" he demanded, in a

"Why cannot you love me?" he demanded, in a concentrated tone, his piercing eyes fixed in keenest scrutiny upon her troubled face.
"Pardon, but I think you should not ask me that," she replied, with gentle dignity.
"Do you love another?" he cried, in the same tone as before.
She arose and stood before him, calm, reserved, even haughty.
"My lord, I can only give one reply to your suit. I do not love you, and I never can love you, and I have no right to give you any hope for the future."

suit. I do not love you, and I never can love you, and I have no right to give you any hope for the future."

"You will at least allow me to claim your friendship still?" he said, with a deep-drawn sigh, and an appealing quiver in his voice.

"I have too few friends to be willing to lose any," was her sad reply, as she thought how short a time ago they numbered legion, and now she stood almost alone in the world.

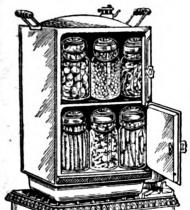

She stooped to pick up her book and basket, preparatory to returning home, but he gently took them from her, and then, with respectful attention, guided her steps down the steep mountain path, and attended her as usual to her own door.

A white, almost convulsed face, peered out at them through the closed blinds of the cottage, and a pair of dark eyes, filled with passionate fire and pain, watched the duke's figure as he passed down the street.

(continued on page 8.)

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 8.)

Canning and Drying Is EFFECTIVE FOOD THRIFT

STORE YOUR PANTRY WITH HOME PRODUCTS

By Violet Marsh

N this great hour it is necessary that all women live greatly. At the battle front they have performed prodigies of valor and have been decorated with the Cross of War for heroism under fire. You too would like to drive an ambulance and bring out the wounded under shell fire; but the work behind the lines is even more important. It is not the single act of heroism that will win the fight, but the steady sticking to the job.

This year's campaign is a struggle of reserve against reserve; America is the last reserve; in overwhelming numbers our forces are being moved to the front; and behind the lines the women are asked to bring up their last reserves of energy and intelligence in the practical carrying out of food orders.

The food situation must steadily degenerate as long as the war lasts. It is therefore of prime importance to add every item to the total production. No woman with fruits and vegetables at her disposal can afford to be merely a destroyer of rations; a dependent on the food supplies of a starving world. America is today the careful guardian of the needs of the world. As the Food Administration anxiously counts the dwiading bushels of wheat, it asks of every woman. To what extent can you make your home independent of the complex o what extent can you make your home indepen-dent of this com-mon store?" And the answer is, that the women of America will continue their real war, work real war work of conservation, holding every po-sition they took last year, and go-ing forward to new ground this me ground this year. That they will back up their gardening plan with a cellar and pantry plan. To sit down with pencil and

To sit down with pencil and paper and put info figures just of stove. Top to figures just how many jars of fruit and vegetables it will require to carry the family from one harvest to another, how many potatoes and beans you will need, how much sorghum syrup and honey can be substituted for sugar, and to what extent rice and neighborhood meals and flours can be used in place of shipped breadstuffs, is a practical plan and most useful when the question of substitutes has to be met. And do not leave out the home-canned meats, that your home-pantry may be as independent as possible of the world pantry.

The preservation of foodstuffs by canning and drying is always effective food thrift. It enables the housewife to take advantage of summer's low prices for fruit and vegetables, even if no garden has been planted. It effects the saving of a surplus of foodstuffs that would otherwise be wasted through excess of supply over immediate consumption. It eliminates the cold storage cost that must be added to the prices of commodities bought during the winter, but of vital importance to every individual is the saving of transportation, the greatest problem of the war, for shipping space has become the most precious thing in the world.

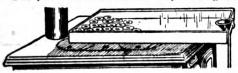

FIG. 4.—COMMERCIAL DRIER.

Food will win the war, and the willingness with which American women are going about this real conservation and the hard and steady day-by-day work it involves, proves their intelligent insight and lofty spirit.

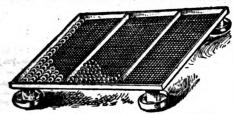

FIG. 3 .- SIMPLE TRAY FOR SUN DRYING.

Mrs. Robert Lansing, wife of the Secretary of State, gave a luncheon at her home, the entire menu of which was composed of dried foods. The meal was pronounced a success by all 'present. As one of the Cabinet wives present remarked afterwards: "A dried luncheon does not sound appetizing, but we have found today that it is; everything served from soup to dessert, was most delicious and delicate."

Drying or Condensing Food

Vegetable and fruit drying have been little practiced for a generation or more. Its revival on a general scale is the purpose of this article. There is no desire to detract from the importance of canning operations. Drying must not be regarded as taking the place of the preservation of vegetables and fruits in tins and glass jars. It must be viewed as an important adjunct thereto. This year's need for vegetable and fruit drying is given added emphasis by the shortage of tin for the manufacture of cans. This condition has created an unusual demand for glass jars. Dried products can be stored in receptacles that could not be used for canning. Drying makes it possible for the over-abundance of summer to be made the normal supply of the winter. GENERAL RULES FOR DRYING.—As a general rule, vegetables or fruits, for drying, must be cut into slices or shreds, with the skin removed. In using artificial heat, be careful to start at a comparatively low temperature and gradually increase. To be able to gauge the heat accurately, a thermometer must be used. An oven thermometer may be bought at slight cost. If the thermometer is placed in a glass of salad oil the true temperature of the oven may be obtained. The actual time required for drying cannot be given, and the person in charge must exercise judgment on this point. A little experience will make it easy to determine when products are sufficiently dried. When taken from the drier, vegetables should be rather brittle, but not so dry as to snap or crackle, and fruits rather leathery and pliable. One method of determining whether fruit is dry enough is to squeeze a handful, and if the fruit separates when the hand is opened, it is dry enough. Another way is to press a single piece; if no moisture comes to the surface, the piece is sufficiently dry. Berries are dry enough if they stick to the hand but do not crush when squeezed. Raspberries, particularly, should not be dried too hard, as this will keep them from resuming their natural shape when soaked in water for use. Material will mold if not dried enough.

FIG. 8 .- CARROTS CUT FOR DRYING.

Storage of Dried Products.—Of importance equal to proper dry-ing is proper packing and storage. Tin cans, pasteboard boxes having tight-cans, pasteboard boxes having tight-fitting covers, strong fitting covers, strong paper bags, and patented paraffin paper boxes. Covers of either tin or pasteboard containers should be sealed by pasting a strip of paper around the top, covering the joint between box and cover.

joint between box and cover.

If a paper bag is used, the top should be twisted, doubled over and tied with a string. An extra precaution is to store paper bags in ordinary lard pails or other tin containers.

Produce should be stored in a cool, dry place, well ventilated mice and insects. In sections where the air is very moist, moisture-proof containers must be used. Label packages.

Methods of Drying

Oven Daying.—The simplest form of oven drying is to place small quantities of foodstuffs on plates in a slow oven. In this way left-overs and other bits of food may be saved for winter use with slight trouble and dried while the top of the stove is being used. This is especially effective for sweet corn. A few sweet potatoes, apples or peas, or even a single turnip, may be dried and saved. To keep the heat from being too great, leave the oven door partially open. For oven use a simple tray may be made of galvanized wire screen of convenient size, with the edges bent up for an inch or two on each side. At each corner this tray should have a leg an inch or two in length, to hold it up from the bottom of the oven and permit circulation of air around the product. See Fig. 5. Commercial Drier for Oven.

bottom of the oven and permit circulation of air around the product. See Fig. 5. Commercial Drier for Oven.

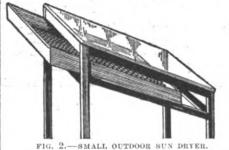

An effective drier for use over a stove may be made easily at home. As represented in Figure 1, use strips of wood one half inch thick and two inches wide. The trays or shelves are made of galvanized wire screen of small mesh tacked to the supports, or separate trays sliding on strips attached to the framework are desirable. This drier may be suspended from the ceiling over the kitchen stove, or over an oil, gasoline or gas stove, and it may be used while cooking is being done. If an oil stove is used, there must be a tightly fitting tin or galvanized iron bottom to the drier, to prevent the fumes of the oil from reaching and passing through the material which is to be dried. A bottom of this kind may be ing has the double advantage of requiring no expense for fuel and of freedom from danger of overheating. For sun drying of vegetables and fruits the simplest form is to spread the slices or pieces on aheets of plain paper or lengths of muslin and expose them to the sun. Muslin is to be preferred if there is danger of sticking. Trays may be used instead of paper or muslin. Sun drying requires bright, hot days and a breeze. Once or twice a day the product should be turned or stirred and the dry pieces taken out. The drying product should be covered with cheese-cloth tacked to a frame for protection from dust and flying insects. If trays are rested on supports placed in pans of water, the products will be protected from crawling insects. Care must be taken to provide protection from rain, dew and moths. During rains and just before sunset, the products should be taken indoors for the purpose of protection.

To make as represented, use light strips of wood, a sheet of glass, a small amount of galven in the glass top is eighteen by twenty-four inches. To hold the glass top is eighteen by twenty-four inches. To hold the glass top is eighteen by twenty-four inches. To those in the rear. This will cause the top to slope, which aids in circulation of air and gives direct exposure to the rays of the sun. As a tray support, mail a strip of wood to the legs of each of the four sides, about four inches below the top framework and sloping parallel with the top. The tray is made of thin strips of wood about two inches wide, and has a galvanized wire screen bottom. There will be a space of about two inches between the top edges of the tray and the glass top of the drier, to allow for circulation. Protect both sides, the bottom and the front end of the drier, with cheese-cloth tacked on securely and snugly, to exclude insects and dust without interfering with circulation. At the rear end place a cheese-cloth curtain tacked at the top but swinging free below, to allow the tray to be moved in and out. Brace the bottom of this curtain with a thin strip of wood, as is done in window shades. This curtain is to be fastened to the legs by buttons when the tray is in place.

FIG. 3.—SIMPLE TRAY FOR NUN DRYING.—It is made of wire mesh with light framework and rests on bricks placed in pans of water. This arrangement protects the material from creeping insects.

insects.

Fig. 4, Commercial Drier for Use on Top of Stove.—A shallow metal box to be filled with water, and so constructed that one end may rest on the back of the stove and the other on a leg reaching to the floor, or it may be suspended over a lamp.

FIG. 5, COMMERCIAL DRIER FOR USE IN OVEN
OF STOVE.—Remove grates from oven. This re-

The eleven by ten inches.

FIG. 6, COMMERCIAL DRIER FOR USE ON TOP OF STOVE.—This same type of drier is also made with its own furnace underneath.

Preparing Food Material for Drying

A sharp kitchen knife will serve every purpose in slicing and cutting vegetables and fruits for drying, if no other device is at hand. The thickness of the slices should be from an eighth to a quarter of an inch. Whether sliced or cut into strips, the pieces should be small so as to dry quickly. They should not, however, be so small as to make them hard to handle or to keep them from being used to advantage in preparing dishes for the table such as would be prepared from fresh products.

FIG. 7.—This shows one form of preparing sweet potatoes for drying, which was done with a meat chopper, using the coarse cutter.

FIG. 9 .- APPLES PEELED AND SLICED FOR DRYING.

Fig. 8.—Carrots cut lengthwise for drying.

Fig. 9.—Apples peeled and sliced for drying.

Vegetables and fruits for drying should be fresh, young and tender. As a general rule, vegetables will dry better if cut into small pieces with the skins removed. Berries are dried whole. Apples, quince, peaches and pears dry better if cut into rings or quarters. Cleanliness is imperative. Knives and slicing devices must be carefully cleansed before and after use. A knife that is not bright and clean will discolor the product on which it is used, and this should be avoided.

product on which it is used, and this should be avoided.

Blanching is desirable for successful vegetable drying. Blanching gives more thorough cleansing, removes objectionable odors and flavors, and softens and loosens the fiber, allowing quicker and more uniform evaporation of the moisture, and gives better color. It is done by placing the vegetables in a piece of cheese-cloth, a wire basket or other porous container, and plunging them into boiling water. The time required for this is short and varies with different vegetables. Blanching should be followed by the cold-dip, which means plunging the vegetables into cold water for an instant after removing from the boiling water. Cold-dipping hardens the pulp and sets the coloring matter. After blanching and dipping, the surface moisture may be removed by placing the vegetables between two towels.

eggs that may have been deposited. One measure that is useful is to subject the dried material to a heat of 160 degrees for from five to ten minutes before storing it away. By the application of this heat the eggs will be killed. Be careful not to apply the heat long chough to damage the product.

DRIED SWEET POTATOES.—Wash, boil until almost cooked, peel, slice or run through meat chopper, spread on trays and dry until brittle. Sliced sweet potatoes may be dried without boiling. If this is done, dipping in cold water just before drying will brighten color.

DRIED TOMATOES.—Blanch long enough to loosen skins, cold dip, peel, slice to thickness of one eighth of an inch. Start at temperature of 110 degrees and gradually raise to 145 degrees, continuing until thoroughly dried. Another method is, after peeling, to cut crosswise in center, sprinkle with sugar and dry at temperature as above until the finished product resembles dried figs.

SWEET CORN.—Select ears that are young and above until the finished product resembles dried figs.

SWEET CORN.—Select ears that are young and tender and freshly gathered. Blanch on cob in steam or boiling water—preferably steam—for five to ten minutes to set milk. If boiling water is used, add a teaspoon of salt to each gallon. Cold dip, drain thoroughly and with a sharp knife cut off in layers or cut off half the kernel and scrape off the remainder, taking care not to include the chaff. Drying time, three to four hours. Start at temperature of 110 degrees and raise gradually to 145 degrees.

In using field corn, it should be taken at the roasting-ear period of ripeness, and the ears should be plump.

In using field corn, it should be taken at the roasting-ear period of ripeness, and the ears should be plump.

To prepare for sun-drying, corn may first be dried in the oven for ten or fifteen minutes. After sun-drying is completed, the corn should be heated in oven to 145 degrees to kill possible insect eggs. Dried Pumpkin and Summer Squash.—Cut into one half inch strips and pare. Blanch three minutes. Cold dip, remove surface moisture and dry slowly. Drying time, three to four hours. Start at temperature of 110 degrees and raise to 140 degrees. The strips may be hung on strings and dried in the kitchen above the stove. Greens and Herns.—After washing carefully and removing leaves, slice or cut into strips a few inches long, and dry in sun or artificial heat. If steam is not easily available, dry without blanching or cold dipping. Drying time, three hours, starting at temperature of 110 degrees and raise gradually to 145 degrees. These directions apply to spinach, kale, dandelions and parsley. Celery tops, mint, sage and herbs of all kinds for flavoring are treated in the same way. This rule applies to cabbage, which should be blanched ten minutes and dipped.

Green Straing Beans.—Select only such beans as are in perfect condition for table use. Wash carefully and string. If full grown they should be slit lengthwise or cut—not snapped—into pieces one quarter to one inch long. If young and tender, dry them whole. Blanch six to ten minutes. To set color, add one half teaspoon of soda to each gallon of boiling water. After blanching, dip quickly into cold water, then drain thoroughly to remove surface moisture. Drying time for young beans, two hours, for those more mature, three hours. Start at temperature of 110 degrees and raise gradually to 145 degrees.

Dried Carrots and Parsnips.—Clean thoroughly and remove outer skin, preferably with a stiff bristle brush: or the skin may be removed by scraping. Slice into thickness of one eighth of an inch. Blanch sk minutes, cold dip and remove surface moisture. Carrots m open with a sharp knife. Arrange haives on trays.

DRIED APPLES, PEARS AND QUINCES.—Pare, core and slice, dropping slices into cold water containing eight teaspoons of salt to the gallon, if a light-colored product is desired. Leaving them a minute or two in the salt water will prevent discoloration. Or the fruit may be cut into rings. Remove surface moisture. Drying time, four to six hours, or until leathery and pliable. Pears and quinces may be steamed ten minutes after slicing and before drying. Start temperature at 110 degrees and raise gradually to 150 degrees.

arter shifting and before aryling. Shift temperature at 110 degrees and raise gradually to 150 degrees.

Dried Peaches. — Dip peaches into boiling water long enough to loosen skin. Then dip in cold water and peel. Cut into halves or quarters, remove stones and dry.

Dried Berries. — Pick over, handling with care to prevent bruising. Spread in thin layers and dry slowly. The total time for drying is four or five hours. Start at temperature of 110 degrees, raising to 125 degrees in about two hours. Then raise temperature to 140 degrees and maintain two or three hours longer.

Dried Cherries. — After washing and removing surface moisture, spread unpitted in thin layers. Drying time two to four hours. Start at temperature of one hundred and ten degrees, and raise gradually to 150 degrees. If preferred, the pits may, be removed, although this causes loss of juice.

Dried Celery.—After washing carefully, cut into one-inch pieces, blanch three minutes, cold-dip and remove surface moisture. Dry slowly, about three or four hours. Useful as flavoring in soups and stews.

Dried Peppers.—Steam until skin softens, or place in biscuit pan in oven and heat until skin blisters. Peel, split in half, take out seed. Start drying at temperature of 110 degrees, and gradually increase at 140 degrees. Small varieties may be dried in the sun.

Can All Food That Can Be Canned

Modern methods have made the canning of fruit and vegetables a very easy matter. In many towns community work has proven very satisfactory. Several families club together for the work, meeting at some central place where heat and water can be had, and by joining in the purchase of equipment, each participant will be in a position to save money as against individual purchases and at the same time have the advantage of larger and more complete equipment.

ment.

Equipment should be bought as early as possible, to prevent disappointment in delivery. The cut in our heading shows one type of home or community canner and steam cooker, which holds fourteen one quart jars. Canning is very rapid when sterilization is done in steam maintained at a pressure. There are several canners of this type. Each is provided with pressure gauge and safety valve and they carry from five to thirty pounds of steam pressure.

removes objectionable odors and flavors, and softens and loosens the fiber, allowing quicker and more uniform evaporation of the moisture, and gives better color. It is done by placing the vegetables in a piece of cheese-cloth, a wire basket or other porous container, and plunging them into boiling water. The time required for this is short and varies with different vegetables. Blanching should be followed by the cold-dip, which means plunging the vegetables into cold water for an instant after removing from the boiling water. Cold-dipping hardens the pulp and sets the coloring matter. After blanching and dipping, the surface moisture may be removed by placing the vegetables between two casily attached to any drier, either home or commercial. A crane, as represented, makes it possible for this drier to be swung to one side when not in use.

FIG. 2, SMALL OUTDOOR SUN DRIER.—Sun dry-

Cubby Bear's Mid-Summer Night Adventure

By Lena B. Ellingwood

Copyright, 1918, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher, Inc.

IDSUMMER Night was always a time of frolics in the forest where Cubby Bear lived. No one wanted to sleep—they could do that next day—and all the animals met together for games and merry-making.

"What will you do with your Bunny Babies?" asked Cubby Bear of Bunny Rabbit. "They are not old enough to play with the others, and you cannot leave them at home alone." So the Baby Bunnies went to the Midsummer Night frolic. They will be happy sitting in their little cart and watching the games."

So the Baby Bunnies went to the Midsummer Night frolic. They laughed in glee as they watched the animals running around and around and singing loud enough to wake the echoes of the forest, while they played "Here we go 'round the mulberry bush."

The moon was shining brightly up in the sky, smilingly watching the happy little woods people below.

Tired with so much running, they stopped at below.

Tired with so much running, they stopped at last to rest a while and get their breath and drink some cool, fresh water from the Big Brook.

And then it was they heard a chorus of frightened little shrieks, and the Bunny Babies tumbled out of their cart as fast as they could, and came running to Bunny Rabbit. Their round eyes were bulging with fright, and they cried shrilly:

"Foxy got one of us! Coming back for more!"

shrilly:

"Foxy got one of us! Coming back for more!"
Bunny Rabbit hurriedly counted his Baby Bunnies.

"One, two, three, four, five, six—why!" he cried, "there should be seven! You count them, Cubby Bear, to see that I have made no mistake."

So Cubby Bear stood them all in a row and counted carefully, "One—two—three—four—five—six," while all the other animals stood looking on.

—six," while all the other animals stood looking on.

"Yes," they said solemnly to each other, "it is quite true. One of Bunny Rabbit's babies has been carried off while we were at play!"

"Went that way! went that way!" cried the Bunny Babies, pointing with trembling little paws. Mamma Bruin stepped forward.

"I will stay with the Baby Bunnies and Betty Badger's children," she said, "while the rest of you follow Foxy. Nothing shall harm them while I am near."

Through the monlit forest they searched wild-

I am near."

Through the monlit forest they searched wildly, looking under clumps of bushes and behind rocks, diving into dark corners, peering up through branches of trees, but nowhere did they see the round face and long pink ears of the lost one.

Tears ran down Bunny Rabbit's fat cheeks, but he did not even stop to wipe them away.

They found Mr. Wise Owl sitting on a branch of a dead mountain-ash tree, staring with big eyes at the bright moon.

"My Bunny Baby is lost!" Bunny Rabbit told him.

him.

Mr. Wise Owl slowly turned his staring eyes from the moon to the excited crowd of little forest

"Who? who?" he asked.
"My Bunny Baby! He was stolen and carried off!"

Owl's feathers bristled out, and his

ried off!"

Mr. Wise Owl's feathers bristled out, and his eyes were larger than ever with indignation, as he asked, "Who—whoo—whoo-oo dared do such a thing?" "It was Foxy Reynard," answered Bunny Rab-bit, "and we are all trying to find him."
"Who—who?"

"BABY?" ASKED FOXY. "ARE THEY NOT AT THE PARTY—OR IS THIS THE PARTY?"

"Good evening, good evening!" he called gaily, waving his hand at them.
"Ah, there you are, Foxy Reynard!"
"We have you now!"
"You shall not get away from us!"
"We were after you!"
"Oh, were you?" asked Foxy. "Now that is pleasant. I was on my way to the Midsummer Buny Rabbit seized his rescued baby, and looked him over carefully, then gave a deep sigh of relief.

"I cannot see that he is hurt," he said. "Your name fits you, Mr. Wise Owl. You were wiser than all of us, and knew where to look."

"I was passing Mamma Bruin's house, said Mr. Wise Owl, "and heard a little cry! I looked in through the window, and these was the lost Bunny Baby sitting on Cubby Bear's bed, crying and rubbing his eyes. Finding that the door was not locked, I went in and brought him out with me."

"But why," asked Cubby Bear, wonderingly, "did he put him there?".

"It was to make us believe you stole him," said Bunny Rabbit.

"But you would never have believed that," said Cubby Bear.

"Not I, indeed," declared Bunny.

They found Busy Beaver and Brother Binny Beaver still holding grimly to Foxy Reynard, but tired, for Foxy had tried by many sly tricks to get away from them.

Mr. Wise Owl looked at Foxy soleinnly.

"The prisoner must be brought into court," he said. "Bring him to my hollow tree. You must all come, and the other Bunny Babies must be brought for witnesses."

When they reached the tree, Mr. Wise Owl went inside, but soon came out, wearing big glasses and a judge's black gown.

"Order in the court!" he commanded, though all was still.

Betty Badger had gone to bring the Bunny Babies, and soon came back, pushing their little cart, while Mamma Bruin and the little Badgers followed.

"We do not need a long trial," said Mr. Wise Owl.

"Wise Owl inside, but soon the Mideummer. Night."

Sibyl's Influence

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 6.) CHAPTER XXVIII. "WE MEET AT LAST."

though she did not invite him to come again, he repeated his calls, until his visits grew to be quite frequent.

He always made some errand or excuse for coming. He wanted a book which he knew she had, or he had just receivd some new music, and would she play it for him?

He never saw Mrs. Stillman; she had not been as well of late, and did not feel able to receive visitors, was the excuse which the young girl always made when he inquired for her, while he felt an intense curiosity to behold the woman who claimed his beautiful inamorata as her daughter.

He was destined to have his curiosity satisfied "WE MEET AT LAST."

For several days after the duke's proposal Sibyl did not go on her accustomed strolls, for she was fearful of meeting him, and she heartily wished that he would go away entirely from the place, and leave her in peace.

He, on the other hand, sought her continually, in every place she was accustomed to go, and grew furious as he became conscious that she was intentionally avoiding him.

In proportion as his designs seemed likely to fail, his purpose to win strengthened.

At length, driven to desperation, he made a bold venture and called at the cottage.

Sibyl received him courteously, and entertained him like the perfect lady she was, and, finding that she did not resent his assurance, even ceremony of ringing, and tapped gently upon the half-opened door.

half-opened door.

A voice bade him enter, and he obeyed.

The room had been darkened to keep it cool, and coming in so suddenly from the strong sunlight without, it was a minute or two before he could distinguish a single object in the apartment.

ment.

At last he discovered a figure rocking slowly back and forth in a large comfortable chair; he saw a white cap above a startlingly colorless face, and a spotless lace handkerchief folded across a pair of symmetrical shoulders.

Instinctively he knew at once that he was in the presence of Mrs. Stillman.

Disappointed at not finding Sibyl there, yet somewhat anxious to see what manner of woman this was, he advanced nearer to her, and said, suavely:

"Pardon, madam; but I expected to find Miss Stillman here. I did not mean to intrude." He stopped suddenly, for at the first sound of his voice the woman had risen from her chair, her face like marble, and bent forward, seeking in the dim light to distinguish his features.

"Sibyl has gone down to the beach," she said, in a voice that made him start and regard her with surprise.

She advanced and stood before him locking.

m a voice that made him start and regard her with surprise.

She advanced and stood before him, looking into his eyes with great dark orbs that made the cold sweat start suddenly out upon his brow. With a sudden movement she tore the cap from her head, then laid her hand upon his arm in a grip that made him wince, while bending toward him, until her lips nearly touched his ears, she hissed rather than spoke:

"Arthur d'Aubigne, we meet at last!"

"Great Heaven! Judith!"

"Hush," she said, authoritatively, but with a bitter sneer, "you must not call me that here. My name, just at present, is Mrs. Sylvia Stillman. I am neither Judith Hoffman nor Mrs. Aubrey now."

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 18.)

CONTENTS

Page Portsmouth Peters Albert Sonnichsen The Girl He Loved (continued) Adelaide Stirling An Appointment with Marianna B. Joseph F. Novak Comfort Sisters' Corner Comfort Sisters' Recipes Sibyl's Influence (continued) Mos. Georgie Sheldon Canning and Drying Is Effective Food Thrift Violet Cubby Bear's Mid-Summer Night Adventure Lena B Ellingwood September Comfort Announcement -Crumbs of Comfort Comfort's League of Cousins Uncle Charlie . 9 Home Dressmaking Hints Geneva Gladding - 10 The Thief Discovered Arthur Wallace Peach - 11 The Rock in a Changing Sea Robert Newton . 11 In and Around the Home Conducted by Mrs. Wheeler Wilkinson 12 The Pretty Girls' Club Katherine Booth . . 13 The Modern Farmer 14 Poultry Farming for Women Mrs. Kate V. St. 15 The Wishing Ring Carence T. Hubbard 16 Veterinary Information Talks with Girls Wanderers Anna S. Ells Home Lawyer 17 18 18 20 Manners and Looks - - -21 Seven Wheel Chairs in July • • • 22 Family Doctor - - - -22 Information Bureau - - -. 22 The Emporium of Bargains and Opportunities - 23 Comfort's Comicalities - - -

SEPTEMBER COMFORT

our Home Outfitting Number will be helpful to the housewife in fitting out the home and the family for winter. It will specialize on clothing which is such a troublesome problem in these times of high prices and scarcity of good material. These are some of the

Other Special Features for September

Fall Pickling and Preserving Gives a lot of useful directions and recipes for pickling, canning, preserving and condensing fall fruits and vegetables.

"Out of Her Travail" A gripping war story written from the heart of a war mother who has felt the mingled pride and heart pangs of sending her two boys to the war.

"Giving Your Boy a Start in Life" A large proportion of the failures and wrecked careers are due to the boy having had the wrong start at home. This article is of value to children as well

"Barrel Furniture" Tells how rockers, divans, dressing tables, cabinets and a surprising number of other useful and pretty pieces of furniture can be made from barrels.

Any woman can do it.

If the number over your name on the wrapper on this magazine is 359, or any less number, it means that your subscription needs to be renewed at once.

Send 50 cents today for a two-year renewal and make sure not to miss September COMFORT. Use coupon below.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES: 35 cents a year, 70 cents for three years, 50 cents for a TWO-YEAR renewal, in U. S. and Cuba. (In Canada 50 cents a year.)

SUBSCRIPTION COUPON FOR RENEWAL OR EXTENSION ONLY Publisher of COMFORT, Augusta, Maine. I enclose cents for renewal and extension of my subscription full years from date of expiration. DateName, Post Office Street

Crumbs of Comfort

Keep in the sunlight. Fame is sweet self-homa Men are spirits saturating clay. Never be positive; all must err. Economy is the poor man's mint. Sins may be crooked generosities, No estate can enrich a poor heart. Good books are legacies of genius. A general does not need a fine coat. Light wives can make heavy husbands The world is advancing; advance with it. Carve your name on hearts and not on marble. Beware of a man who hates the laugh of a child. Ostentation is the signal flag of hypocrisy. Three may keep a secret if two of them are dead. Life is but a loan to man by a careful creditor. Knowledge without justice is not wisdom but cunning. The greatest homage we can pay to truth is to use it.

A man's eyes are spectacles through which his heart may be read. Moderate riches will carry you; if you have more you

To have learned to say "No" is better than to have learned Latin and Greek.

We have to arrive somewhere; why not reach a place worthy of the journey?

There can be no persevering industry without a deep sense of the value of time.

When there is much pretension, much has been borrowed, for Nature never pretends.

The ideal that you enthrone in your heart, this you build our life by, this you will become,

Life is like a game of chess, where an ill move may bring loss, and a pawn can insure victory.

Through the determination to be kind a life may be increased in happiness and usefulness.

Every man has within himself a gold mine whose riches are limited only by his own industry.

In order that men should change their way of living, they must first of all change their way of thinking.

Nine times out of ten, the first things a man's companion knows of his shortcomings is from his apology.

We suffer more from our anger and grief than from the things for which we are angered and grieved. A man who defers working because he wants tranquility of mind, will have lost the habit when tranquility comes.

The world would be both happier and brighter, if we would dwell on the duty of happiness as well as on the happiness of duty.

CONDUCTED BY UNCLE CHARLIE year and admittance to the League of Cousins for only 30 cents. Join at once. Everybody welcom before the whole shap away, and terhany stands before the world today a confessed international liar, perjurer and murderer, condemned as guilty even by her own people.

ADDRESS all letters to COMFORT, Augusta, Maine. See Instructions at the close of this Department.

Read this, you pro-German fanatics, you Britain haters, you worshippers of the vilest monster that ever cursed the earth or disgraced a throne—and the Kaiser is no worse than the rest of the ruling party in Germany. Here is what Lichnow-sky says: "My London mission was wrecked by the perfidy of our own policy. I had to support in London, a policy which I knew to be fallacious. I was paid out for it, for it was a sin against the Holy Ghost. We pressed for war. We deliberately destroyed the possibility of a peaceful settlement. Sir Edward Grey (Great Britain's foreign secretary) throughout the whole of the negotiations never took open sides with Russia or France. We encouraged Count Berchtold (the Austrian foreign minister) to attack Serbia, although no German interests were involved. We rejected the British proposals of mediation. We, without Austria having been attacked, replied to Russia's mere mobilization by sending am ultimatum to St. Petersburg (Russia) and on July 31, we declared war on the Russians, although the Czar had pledged his word that so long as negotiations continued not a man should march—so that we deliberately destroyed the possibility of a peaceful settlement. In view of these indisputable facts, it is not surprising that the whole civilized world outside Germany attributes to us the sole guilt of the world's war."

Germany's ex-foreign minister, von Jagow, also acquits Great Britain of having any hand in starting the war. The leading newspapers of Germany also exonerate England. The Berliner Tageblatt says: "An understanding ought to be easier now since we have heard from two opposing forces that England was not responsible for the war." The Mannheim Volkestimme comments as follows: "The memorandum is an important testimony, accusing Germany and acquiting English policy. The Bremerburger Scitung speaks thus: "The German lun earth, humbugged the German people into believing that Britain, who had practically no army, wanted Belgium as a base to attack Germany. The Mumchner Post, a German paper, exposes the ridiculousness of this malicious foolery in the following paragraph: "Now we learn that England intended no war against Germany, and with this the whole Anglo-Belgian legend explodes. Through an untruth we have been driven into an attitude of unconsciously intensified opposition to England. The German government knew that this lie was a lie, but had not the courage to resist Pan-German Anglophobia." Another lie has been going the rounds that the Crown Prince and the German general staff forced the Kaiser into the war against his will. Prince Lichnowsky confirms a fact already well known that the war was decided on at a conference at the Kaiser's Potsdam Palace on July 5, 1914. Later the Kaiser, to further fool the world, went off on a brief yachting trip to Norway, though he was in constant communication with Berlin. At the psychological moment he dashed back home, unleashed the dogs of war and swore, like the lying hypocrite he is, that the sword had been forced into his hands. Now Captain Persius, Germany's greatest naval critic, writing in the Berliner Tageblatt, explodes another lie which German propogandists have spread broadcast in this country and the entire world. England was supposed to be jealous of Germany's growing sea power and trade expansion generally. It is well to remember in connection with this, that England is a free trade nation, that German goods on into England without paying any duty, while English goods going into Germany are taxed to the limit. But listen to what Captain Persius says, and he is German to the bone: "It is unquestionable that England's economic jealousy is a phantom that rose under the pressure of war psychology in heads that were not capable of HEN this terrible war started, millions of simple minded Americans, who let others do their thinking for them, were, thanks to German lying, spying and buying, fooled into them, were, thanks to German lying, spying and buying, fooled into forced into the saw surrounded by cavious ending that Germany was surrounded by cavious ending the same was a lie. All himself the same was surrounded by cavious ending the same was a lie. All himself the same was surrounded by cavious ending the same was surrounded by a continuous states of the same was surrounded by a ribitration. Germany steadily opposed all that, it was not only the outside spots settled by arbitration. Germany steadily opposed all that, it was not only the outside spots of the same was surrounded by the fact that instead of attacking this supposed menace, she dashed into Belgium and headed straight for France. German hate at first was decadent and had no army and would not the French people were a bunch of degenerates who could be easily swallowed, so to hate them was suprefutous: England cared only for money, was decadent and had no army and would not get the prejudiced and the credulous who had been looked by the German hate at first was switched from Russia to England. Next Italy, came in and got her does of hate or "straing, and now it is tack Sam who is catching it."

Read this, you pro-German sympathizers, to believe whe was a single processed menace, she dashed into Belgium and headed straight for France. Germann hate was the French people were a bunch of generates who could be easily swallowed, so to hate them was suprefluous: England cared only for money, was decadent and had no army and would not get the prejudiced and the credulous who had been looked by the German hate was supremented to doubtful the damning facts have been coming out an truths that though they may not be palatable to fanatics, will be mightily comforting to all honest men.

On the twenty-fifth of next month I celebrate my fifty-fifth birthday, and shall be glad if everyone of you will write me as cheerful a letter as possible. At the beginning of this year I suffered a complete physical breakdown, and for months it looked as if your Uncle ('harlie would never see another birthday, and that your old friend and relative who has talked to you so many years in these columns was going to become emerly a memory. I am still on the ragged edge but am hanging on with all the courage I can muster. The strain of this terrible war, every move of which I have followed night and day has been almost unbearable. I knew the break would come sooner or later. As I write I can see the airplanes and dirigibles and hear the roar of their engines as they scoot seaward to watch for enemy submarines. The war has been brought to our very doorsteps, but with a few sunny letters from you I think I can hang on until we get the Kaiser licked, and once he is licked, nothing else matters, so send those letters along and God bless you.

Don't forget that Uncle Charlie's four wonderful books may still be had. Start in at once to obtain them—they cost you no money, only a very little time and effort—and keep at it until you have the entire set. The book of Poems is beautifully bound in ribbed silk stiff covers; the Story Book is bound in two styles, the one in ribbed silk stiff covers; the Story Book in handsome stiff covers like the Poems, the other in paper covers; the Song Book or the Story Book in handsome paper covers for a club of four subscriptions; the Song Book or the Story Book in handsome paper covers for a club of only two subscriptions; the Song Book or the Story Book in handsome paper covers for a club of only two subscriptions. These four books are a library of endless joy and merriment, the best Christmas gifts in the world.

My picture book, too, has started a deluge of inquiries: Is Billy the

Now for the letters.

TOSHES, R. R. 2, Box 33, VA.

TOSHES, R. R. 2, Box 33, VA.

DEAR UNCLE CHARLE:

I can do most all kinds of housework, such as cook, sew, milk, churn and can cut wood like a boy. I love outdoor life. Will you please make me a good little verse for my collection, which I am collecting from different people and I hope to have printed some day for a souvenir. Would be proud to have yours among the list. I thought once the letters that appeared in Comport were not written by real boys and girls. I however, have corresponded with some of those whose letters have appeared in print and now I know that the letters are genuine and I appreciate Comport all the more. Am a brunette, weigh 120 pounds, have dark brown hair and eyes. Guess my age and I will send you a dime, as soon as I see this letter in print and find your reply is correct. I am in the fourth grade. Love and best wishes. Your niece,

LILY F. LIPSCOMS.

Lily, I shall be only too happy to contribute to your verse collection, so here goes:

Lily, Lily Lipscomb, you have given my heart a And if Miss Lipscomb's lips come near me, they're likely to be quite an artist if you can cut wood like a boy. Who taught you this wonderful art of wood carving? The Goat says you mean that you can cut wood as well as a boy can. If that is so, Lily, it is evidently a case of muscle and not of art. Glad you have proved to your complete satisfaction that all the letters that appear in Comfort are genuine. As I receive thousands of letters from all over the United States and even from the remotest corners of the earth, I would be an awful chump to waste time inventing what others so liberally supply. I also am supposed to be a myth and not to exist. A peep into Uncle Charlie's picture book would settle that matter quickly. I won't guess your age, Lily, not even for a whole dime. You are a bright girl, however, no matter what your age, and when you have time some day you can carve out a statue of me in wood for the Goat's breakfast.

Battery A, 52nd Artillery, C. A. C.,

American Expeditionary Force.

Via New York.

I write this to let you and the cousins know that Fritz hasn't got me yet and that I'm still on top. It is impossible for me to answer all the letters received from the cousins as I have not much time, but will reply to all I can. I am deeply grateful for all the kind and welcome letters I received. The greatest battle of the war is now being fought. The Kaiser is licked and he knows it but he won't give up until the last moment. If I were the Allies I would take no prisoners and after the war would parcel Germany out to the different nations, for the Prussians are the most treacherous and brutish people the world has ever known. I want to see this cruel war ended, but not until it is ended right. As long as Prussianism exists the war will have to go on, for freedom and justice are what we are fighting for and the whole civilized world knows it. Some day I hope to see America's starty banner waving triumphantly over the black flag of Prussian oppression. With lots of love to you and the cousins, I am,

Your affectionate nephew,

JOHN W. Moskison.

I am delighted to get John Morrison's letter, attry banner waving triumphantily over the black flag of Prussian oppression. With lots of love to you and the cousins, I am, Your affectionate nephew, John W. Mourison.

I am delighted to get John Morrison's letter, and for a reason which you will probably not guess. Before the war, his ideas were in line with a lot of other half-baked pacifists and progerman socialists who have an idea they can tame the Prussian wolf by reading Bible texts to him and whispering words of brotherhood in his ear. John has got the truth now, but he had to go to France to get it. I had been giving him and others the truth for years but they refused to accept it. Experience, after all, is the only teacher for some people. If I could take very man, woman and child in America, including the Budweiser beer followers of the great German fingo Kaiser "socialist" Herr Berger, over to Europe and show them the devastation Germany has wrought in the countries she has conquered and devastated, I could convince even native-born Germans that the country of their birth needed licking and that their own blood relatives ought to be given the same dose that they have given others, or be locked up in a prison or a madhouse. Feed a child in the cradle of Maiserism, and by the time that child comes to manhood be will be a raving fannatic ready to murder or slaughter anybody who comes within his reach. Even the German socialist prattling of brotherhood was ready to betray his comrades and wade up to his neck in the blood of innocent people and the same bunch are using socialism to do the Kaiser's dirty work in this country right now. Once we thought only the German ruling class was at fault, but the preachers in the pulpits, the professors in the universities, are all tarred with the same murderous brush; they and the common people are all cogs in the great state machine of murder and pillage, and they boast and glory in Prussian deeds of rapine and violence. They have no sense of shame and decency, let alone a sense of fair play, honor and righteousn

ELMIRA, OREGON.

DEAR UNGLE CHARLIE:

I am a little girl, twelve years of age, have brown hair and brown eyes. I have one sister who is sixteen years old and one brother who is fifteen. I am in the fifth grade. I can tat, crochet and embroider a little. I wash and dry the dishes and help keep the house clean. Our cow has a little calf now. My mother takes the COMFORT and I like it very much. My father is a carpenter. I would like to see you and all the children that write letters to you, I should like to see Billy the Goat too. We had a spelling contest last Friday and I got one hundred. I have three dolls, the largest is twenty-four inches high. I like to read books but Mama will not allow me to read much while school is going, on account of my eyes. Your loving friend, Leola Moode.

Leola, we should all be delighted to see you embroider a little, if we only knew what that little was. Now try and get out of the little class and embroider a whole lot and Billy the Goat, Maria and I will come and build a house on the lot and we will let you embroider a chimney for the roof to set it all off. So, Leola, you got a hundred at a spelling contest, did you? One hundred what? Dollars, planos, steam yachts, or automobiles? The Goat says you mean you One hundred what? Dollars, pianos, steam yachts, or automobiles? The Goat says you mean you got one hundred marks. When I was a boy I got one hundred marks. When I was a boy I got one hundred marks in a similar contest, and when I look in the mirror I can see some of those marks today. After one spelling contest, one of my marks was so painful that the doctor said he would give me something for it. I told him he did not need to give me anything for it, as I would gladly let him have it for nothing. I'm glad your mother is taking care of your eyes and does not allow you to strain them. In a previous letter I spoke of something that is good for overstrained and inflamed condition of the eyes. It did wonders for me. It is prescribed by the best known specialists and is called argyrol. Ask your doctor about it as it is unwise to use anything on the eyes except boracic acid solution, without the advice of a physician. Drugglists, however, can always secure anything in the drug line from their wholesale houses.

WOLFE CREEK, UREGON.

I am a country boy sixteen years old. I am greatly, interested in the war, and if old enough, would be in France by now, exerting my energies, upholding the principles of humanity against the fiendish desires of the German Kaiser. I admire the stand Ernest Graf has taken, and heartily wish that all socialists would believe the same way. I'm not against socialism in particular, but there are many who claim to be socialists when in reality they are traitors and anarchists. It is as the saying goes, "A bad egg spoils them all."

Your sincere friend,
CLYDE WILLIAMS.

Range of the state of the socialist movement in America is, that it has been, and still is, essentially a foreign movement, dominated by fathings around the house, Lily, and you must be clearly a foreign movement, dominated by fathings around the house, Lily, and you must be considered by fathings around the house, Lily, and you must be considered by fathings around the house, Lily, and you must be considered by fathings around the house, Lily, and you must be considered by fathings around the house, Lily, and you must be considered by fathings around the house, Lily, and you must be considered by fathings around the house, Lily, and you must be considered by fathings around the house, Lily, and you must be considered by fathings around the house, Lily, and you must be considered by fathings around the house, Lily, and you must be considered by fathings around the house, Lily, and you must be considered by fathings around the house, Lily, and you must be considered by fathings around the house, Lily, and you must be considered by fathings around the house, Lily, and you must be considered by fathings around the house, Lily, and you must be considered by fathings around the house, Lily, and you must be considered by fathings around the house, Lily, and you must be considered by fathings around the house, Lily, and you must be considered by fathings are considered by fathing are considered by fathing are or choice of 44 s or choice of 44 styles, colors and sizes in the tamous manager line of bicycles for you to keep and use a month as your own would You then agree to show your bicycle to ten or more of your friends and tell them the ridiculously low factory price, easy terms, nuussua conditions and exceptional offers I would make, all of which I will explain to you'ff within ten days of seeing this you will say in a letter or on a postal, "Send particulars of Bicycle Offer" and address your postal card or letter:

Personal for G. L. LEWIS, Meanager MEAD CYCLE CO., 3 Mead Block, Chicago

will say in a letter or on a postal, "Send particulars of Bicycle Offer" and address your postal card or letter:

MEAD CYCLE CO. 2 Mead Block, Chicago;

even before the war was only skin deep, a mere humbug and camouflage. Since the war started, these dastardly hypocrites have thrown off the mask of deceit and under the guidance of Schiedemann, their leader, who is one of the Kaiser's chief boot lickers, the whole movement has been used both here and the world over, not to boost socialism, but to poison the minds of the workers, to undermine their loyalty to their native lands and make them believe that they had no enemies except those at home, and that protecting their homes and families would be a crime, as their only salvation lay in licking the Kaiser's feet and having Germany conquer and rearrange the world along lines that would be eminently advantageous to them. It is these wretches who tumbled Russia isto the dust and made it one vast bughouse and slaughter house; it is these wretches who are responsible for Northern Italy being overrum by the troops of the Central Powers and reduced to a heap of ashes, its women outraged and the whole adult population enslayed. It is these wretches who have gained control of the movement in this country and linked it up with the I. W. W. gang and other Bolsheviki anarchists. Schiedemann visited this country a year before the war to fix up matters with certain German and Jewish socialist elements, who have done the Kaiser's dirty work to perfection, and are still doing it in secret where they dare not do it openly. Here is what Herr David, one of Germany's great fake socialists, said in the Reichstag soon after the war began: "Germany must squeeze her enemies with a pair of pincers, namely the military pincer and the pacifist pincer. The German armies must continue to fight vigorously whilst the German socialists encourage and stimulate pacifism among Germany's enemies." It is these wretches who made conditions so intolerable that genine Americans on this country lives

MAHAFFET, R. R. 4, Box 1, Pa.

DEAR UNGLE CHARLIE:

I am a little girl thirteen years of age and have red hair and brown eyes. I live on a farm on the top of a hill and it is very cold up there now. We have horses, cows, pigs and chickens and one dog named Mamie Bill, but not Kaiser Bill. I have a little song and I want you to help me get a tune for it:

Slip a pill to Kaiser Bill and make him shed a tear, Shoot the enemy in the back while he runs to the rear.

I go to school and teacher is very cross. I would like to know what to do to please her.

MARTHA BEATTY.

I would like to be introduced to that dog, Mamie Bill. That is the first time I ever knew a dog to bear both a lady's and a gentleman's name. Barnum would have given a fortune for that dog. It is not necessary to shoot the Germans in the back. No good soldier cares to shoot even the meanest enemy in the back. If those who start wanton, aggressive wars, no matter what their rank or station, were publicly hanged when the fighting was over, just as other common murderers are, there would be no wars. This war has been so wanton, wicked and horrible that Kaiser Bill and the Potsdam gang should get more than a pill. They should get the same treatment other murderers get, the rope or the electric chair. Sorry, Martha, you can't get along with your teacher, but if you want to (CONTINUED ON PAGE 17.) (CONTINUED ON PAGE 17.)

Home Dressmaking Hints Forecasts for Summer Fashions

By Geneva Gladding

cotton foulards, and charming ginghamsand last but not least real calico is to be used for summer gowns. It is indeed a cotton age.
Surplice effects on waists and blouses, deep cross tucks on skirts, loose flowing sleeves, fichu collars, and ever so many pretty chemisettes, vestees and waist coats.

A waist coat is a dress accessory not to be despised. With a coat suit, the waist coat may fill the place of a blouse or guimpe, being fastened in place under the coat with snaps, hooks or buttons.

Pattern Descriptions ALL PATTERNS 12c. EACH Unless Other Price Is Stated

2108.—A Comfortable Play or Beach Suit for Small Boys. Gingham, drill, serge, linen, cham-bray, poplin, repp and galatea are nice for this style.

bray, poplin, repp and galatea are nice for this style.

Cut in four sizes; two, three, four and five years. It requires two and one fourth yards of 36-inch material for a three-year size.

21 — A Set of Serviceable Caps. These models are nice for silk, satin, poplin, cravenette and other rubberized cloth. They are ideal for motoring and traveling. The pattern includes the three styles portrayed.

Cut in two sizes; medium and large. No. 1 will require one yard, No. 2 will require seven eighths yard, No. 3 will require seven eighths yard, No. 3 will require seven eighths yard, No. 3 will require seven eighths yard of 27-inch material for the medium size.

2162. — Ladies' Two-piece Morning or House Dress with sleeve in either of two lengths. Percale, seersacker, lawn, linen crepe, silk, washable satin, flannelette, challie and cashmere may be used for this model.

Cut in seven sizes; 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust measure. It requires for a 38-inch size, five and three eighths yards of 36-inch material.

2170.—An Ideal House Dress. This model is made with reversible closing, and its fullness is held by a belt that fastens at the center back. Cut in seven sizes; 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust measure. It requires for a 38-inch size, six and seven eighths yards of 36-inch material.

inch size, six and seven eighths yards of 36-inch material.

2229.—A stylish Shirt-waist with Long or Short Sleeve. This pattern is pretty for madras, pique, striped flannel, serge, taffeta, voile, crepe and crepe de chine.

Cut in seven sizes; 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust measure. Size 38 requires three and one fourth yards of 36-inch material.

2368.—A Neat, Practical Apron Model. Very attractive in brown checked gingham, with facings of brown or white, or in blue chambray, with white braid for trimming, or in khaki or galatea, with pipings of red or white.

Cut in four sizes; small, 32-34; medium, 36-38; large, 40-42; and extra large, 44-46 inches bust measure. Size medium requires six and one fourth yards of 36-inch material.

2476.—A Smart Suit for the Little Boy.—This is a good style for flannel, serge, cheviot, galatea, gingham, velvet, corduroy, repp. pique and poplin. The shield is fastened to the jacket, underneath. The trousers are made with a straight lower edge.

Cut in four sizes; three, four, five and six neath. The trousers are made with a straight lower edge.

Cut in four sizes; three, four, five and six years. Size four will require three and one eighth yards of 44-inch material.

2484.—A Pretty Slip-On Night Dress. You may have this in nainsook dimity, batiste, crepe or silk, or in muslin, cambric, longcloth or flannelette. The gown may be finished with openings at the shoulders if the slip-on style is not preferred.

ar the shoulders it the shp-on style is not preferred.

Cut in four sizes; small, 32-34; medium, 36-38; large, 40-42; extra large, 44-46 inches bust measure. Size medium requires seven\ and one half yards of 27-inch material.

2486.—A Comfortable Suit for the Small Boy. Serge, galatea, drill, corduroy, velvet, cheviot and khaki are nice for the trousers. The blouse may be of percale, linen, soisette or flamel.

Cut in four sizes; three, four, five and six years. Size four requires two and one eighth yards of 40-inch material.

2488.—A Pretty Frock for Summer. In organdle, batiste, dotted Swiss, foulard, linen, crepe, gabardine or serge this model will be very attractive. The bolero could be of contrasting material.

tractive. The bolero could be of contraging in terial.

Cut in three sizes; 16, 18 and 20 years. Size 18 requires five yards of 36-inch material.

Coat 2491; Skirt 2462.—A Smart Sport Suit. White serge was used for the skirt and striped satin with facings of serge for the coat. Coat 2491 is cut in seven sizes; 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust measure. Size 38 requires two and three eighths yards of 44-inch material. Skirt 2462 is cut in seven sizes; 22, 24, 26, 28, 30, 32 and 34 inches waist measure. Size 24 requires two and one fourth yards of 36-inch material. Two separate patterns, 12 cents for each pattern.

Waist 2469. Skirt 2489.—Just the Dress for terial. Two separate patterns, 22 pattern. Waist 2492: Skirt 2489.—Just the Dress for Business or General Wear. The waist pattern 2492 is cut in seven sizes; 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust measure. Size 38 requires three yards of 36-inch material. The skirt 2489 is cut in seven sizes; 22, 24, 26, 28, 30, 32 and 35 cut in seven sizes; 22, 24, 26, 28, 30, 32 and 36 cut in seven sizes; 22, 24, 26, 24 requires three is cut in seven sizes; 22, 24, 26, 28, 30, 32 and 34 inches waist measure. Size 24 requires three and three fourths yards of 36-inch material. Two separate patterns, 12 cents for each pattern. 2493.—A Good Model for School or General Wear. This will do nicely for serge, gingham, galated, chambray, linen, or mixed suiting, plaids or checks.

galatea, chambray, linen, or mixed suiting, plants or checks.

Cut in five sizes; four, six, eight, ten and 12 years. Size 10 requires three and three fourths yards of 44-inch material.

2495.—A Good "Service" Uniform. This model will be excellent for housework or for domestic science or canning clubs, as a uniform. Gingham, seersucker, galatea, chambray, percale, drill, linen, poplin and repp are serviceable materials.

Cut in seven sizes; 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust measure. Size 38 requires six and seven eighths yards of 36-inch material.

2496.—A Pretty Frock. Flouncing, embroidered batiste or voile, crepe, challie, dimity, lawn, dotted Swiss, silk and gabardine could be used for this style.

Cut in four sizes; four, six, eight and 10

cut in four sizes; four, six, eight and 10 years. Size six requires three and one fourth yards of 36-inch material.

2499.—A Pretty Frock for a Little Girl. This is a lovely model for voile, batiste, dimity, lawn or Swiss. In silk, cashmere, challie or albatross, the style is also very attractive.

Cut in five sizes; two, three, four, five and

USE THE COUPON

Special Offers. For one one-year subscription (not your mail you any one Pattern free. Or for a club of two one-year subscriptions at 35 cents each we will mail you any three patterns free. The cash price of each pattern is 12 cents (three for 25 cents) unless a different price is stated. Be sure to order by number and give size or age wanted.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

HE most fascinating and youthful fashions are in the simple wash dresses of this season. Fretty voites, silk and cotton foulards, and cotton foulards, and or galatea.

Cut in four sizes; small, 32-34; medium, 36-38: large, 40-42; extra large, 44-46 inches bust measure. Size medium requires five and three fourths yards of 36-inch material.

2507.—A Simple, Comfortable Dress for Mother's Girl. Bordered goods, embroidered voile or batiste and flouncing, are just the thing for this model. The dress slips over the head, but additional opening may be made at the yoke fronts. Cut in four sizes; four, six, eight and 10 years. Size eight requires three and one fourth yards of 40-inch material.

2508.—A Practical Design. Lawn, crepe and batiste are nice for the guimpe, and the same materials may be used for the dress, which is good also for serge, gabardine, gingham, seer-sucker chambray and linen.

Cut in four sizes; four, six, eight and 10 years. Size eight requires two and one half yards of 36-inch material for the dress and one and three fourths yards for the guimpe.

2509.—A Popular, "Easy-To-Make" and "Com-

Please Fill Out This Coupon And Send It With Your Remittance COMFORT, Pattern Dept., Augusta, Maine. I enclose $_____ ___ cash, (or subscription and $_____) for which please send me Patterns No.__ No. Size No. (or Age) Name Street and No. R.F.D. No. Box No. Post Office State If you send subscriptions write names on separate sheet and pin this coupon to it.

fortable To-Wear" Model. This is just the style for satin, crepe, gabardine, foulard, silk or wool Jersey cloth and nice for other seasonable ma-terials.

stortable-to-wear" Model. This is just the style for satin, crepe, gabardine, foulard, silk or wools Jersey cloth and nice for other seasonable materials.

Cut in six sizes; 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. Size 38 requires seven and five eighths yards of 44-inch material.

2512.—Just the Style for Your New Dress of Silk or Cotton. The tunic may be omitted. This model is good for foulard, taffeta, lawn, batiste, gingham, chambray, gabardine, serge, wool or silk Jersey cloth.

Cut in seven sizes; 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust measure. Size 38 requires six yards of 40-inch material.

2513.—A Practical Set of Short Clothes for a Little Girl. The dress is a design good for lawn, batiste, gingham, chambray, voile or percale. For the undergarments, muslin, cambric, long cloth and nainsook could be used. If the combination undergarment is used as rompers, it could be of galatea, gingham, drill, linen, repp or percale.

Cut in five sizes; one, two, three, four and five years. Size four requires, for the dress, two and three eighths yard; for the combination, ene and one half yard, of 36-inch material.

2525.—A Very Comfortable Dress. Gingham, galatea, percale, chambray, seersucker, voile, repp and poplin could be used. The bloomers may be of the same material or of sateen, linen, repp, or any other serviceable fabric.

Cut in five sizes; four, six, eight, 10 and 12 years. Size 10 requires three yards of 36-inch material for the dress, and one and three fourths yard for the bloomers.

2529.—A Simple, Pretty Frock. Net over organdie, or dimity, organdie, batiste, lawn, crepe, washable silk, foulard and charmeuse, voile and marquisette; sall these are nice for this style. The sleeve may be gathered to the cuff or finished in short length, loose and flowing.

Cut in three sizes; 16, 18 and 20 years. Size 18 requires five and three eighths yards of 36-inch material.

2535.—A Smart Style for the Growing Girl. Here is a very attractive style, showing a smart collar trimming, under which the fronts ar

ALL PATTERNS 12c. EACH Unless Other Price Is Stated

The Girl He Loved

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 4.)

"No, she's out of it," he said. "It could not have been her whom Tommy saw."

From sheer habit he stared once more at her house—and started to his feet in the dark, forlora room.

CHAPTER XXXIV.

"FALSE AS A PACK OF CARDS."

"FALSE AS A PACK OF CARDS."

Mrs. Murray and her story were a thunderbolt in society. It chanced that the only person who did not hear of it was Lady Annesley, whom fate had afflicted with a sharp attack of neuralgia in the eyes—real this time—and her doctor consigned to a rest-cure at Horrogate, where newspapers and the outside world did not exist.

The duchess sent for Tommy at Valehampton, and aired her views on the character of Mrs. Murray.

But the boy cared very little. The conversation turned soon enough to the topmost thing in both minds—Ravenel in jail, and the precious days that were flying by and bringing out nothing to help her.

days that were hying by and bringing out nothing to help her.

"I'll help her if I have to choke the home secretary," the duchess cried, tearful and regardless. "Oh, Tommy, it breaks my heart to see her! She's never cried, never broken down, they tell me. But I know she's past all hoping. I think she's just waiting to die."

Sir Thomas opened his mouth and shut it again.

Sir Thomas opened his mouth and shut it again.

After all, he had nothing to tell the duchess; his thought that night in the garden had come to nothing. He had played secret police on the boot-boy in vain; had questioned him uselessly. Wide-eyed, frightened, almost idiotic, Towers had stared at him; what answers he did make were not what Tommy Annesley wanted.

"Will she talk to you?" he said.

The duchess could only nod. All that pitful, childish story of Adrian Gordon's letters and ring had Lady Levallion told her—and even the duchess could see that it would make Levallion's death look black enough—to a jury.

"Captain Gordon has never been near her. I suppose he dare not," she said heavily, as she wiped her eyes. "Where is he?"

"Nobody knows," and Tommy could have killed the man who, instead of moving heaven and earth to set Ravenel free, had seen fit to vanish and leave her to her fate. The whole world, except the duchess and her lawyers, was doing that Surely Gordon could not mean to do nothing at all!

"I must get home," he said, and got up to go.

and leave her to her fate. The whole world, except the duchess and her lawyers, was doing that. Surely Gordon could not mean to do nothing at all!

"I must get home," he said, and got up to go. Not all the duchess could say would keep him away from Levallion Castle. The clue was there, if it were anywhere on Gōd's earth. Night after night, while the house was asleep, the boy examined every inch of it, and look and wondered and hoped in vain. If there had been any one in tweed clothes on the other side of Levallion's door when Mr. Jacob's banged it—and was forced for his pains to run back through a passage and Lady Levallion's suite of rooms before he could get out into the corridor again—that man would not have dared to go into any of the guest' rooms, where the dog might keep him besieged. Nor would he have had time to gain the kitchen, where Jacobs had rushed. The only place he could have got to would be the housekeeper's room, which was up two steps as you went to the kitchen. And that was out of the question, because the housekeeper had been in there, and Carrousel, too. No man bouncing into a quiet room to get away from a dog could do it without disturbing its occupants. The housekeeper had not heard a sound. And the theory of Carrousel having a hand in the poisoning did not hold water. A cook, dressed in white, could not tear tweed clothes on the latch of a door; nor if he had would have had time to change them.

Mr. Allington looked up as they were at dinner, a lovely pair in a desolate house. The new development anent Mrs. Murray had nearly driven the good man frantic, for he had little doubt that her story was true. Most of it was, to his own knowledge. And, as for Lady Levallion, he had never for one moment imagined her guilty. Perhaps Tommy's watch on the servants was not the only one in that house that so far had been fruitless.

"Can you eat nothing, either?" he said precisely "It seems to me our dinner is not so the only one in that house that so far had been fruitless.

"Can you eat nothing, either?" he said precisely. "It seems to me our dinner is not so good as usual."

"Carrousel is out, sir," the butler put in respectfully. "The steward gave him leave to go at luncheon-time. He will be back tonight."

"Ah!" said Allington; too much annoyed to utter. If any servant left, the house he had been able, so far, to ascertain just where he or she went. This was unbearable! "Has he friends in the neighborhood?"

"He went to take Towers, the boot-boy, to a new place in London, sir! Towers was frightened to go alone."

new place in London, sir! Towers was frightened to go alone."

Sir Thomas nearly leaped off his chair. Not for one moment did he ever imagine Carrousel would be back tonight or any other night. "Tommy!" said Allington quietly, and his eyes flashed warning, "let me advise you, at least, to drink your claret." He knew nothing about have only the evenings for personal corre With all good wishes for the continuance of Com-sonris good work and kindest regards to Mrs. Wilkin-son and all the large Compost family of sisters and

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 16.)

Comfort Sisters' Corner (SONTINUED PROM PAGE 5.)

The William of which for the continuous of treatment and the first form of the first

DEAR MRS. WILKINSON AND COMFORT SISTERS:

The Thief Discovered

By Arthur Wallace Peach

clear, soft, healthy. Directions and guarantee "DON'T SHOUT"

المنت

THE MORLEY CO., Dept. 766, Perry Bidg., Phila.

Pink Cameo Ring FREE

The spirit of the hour is fittingly expressed in this appealing patriotic song. 50% of the profits go for WAE PURPOSES. Sent anywhere 25c (Silver) postpaid. Bell Rusic Co., 237 Fifth Ave., Pittsburgh, Fa. Agents wanted in every city.

At the wedding supper, Captain Tom, respiendently happy, held aloft a sparkling glass and drank a toast to his belated, new ideal.

"The Noth and South. Forever One and Indichable."

need. I am a Red Cross member and want to do my bit.

We live on a farm of one hundred acres and have 115 pigs and 20 brood sows, and of course it keeps us hustling to raise corn enough to feed them, beside food for the other stock.

With love to all the sisters and dear Mrs. Wilkinson, I remain a silent reader.

Mrs. G. N.

MES. G. N.—How your husband must appreciate such a wife and helper as you are, and may the home you are both working for be yours. You are doing right in joining your children in their sports, for not only does it enable you to retain their confidence but it helps keep you young.—Ed.

"The home of the brave and the land of the free, Where the mighty Columbia rolls down to the sea. Where a man is a man if he is willing to toil, And earn his bread by the fruits of the soil."

APTAIN Tom always said that he was an "unreconstructed rebel." In his slouch hat and black the his straight, little, militant figure, was a decided bit of local color on the platform at reunions, Memorial Days, and on that peculiarly Georgia holiday, Jeff Davis's birthday. Iffs oratory teemed with references to the "flower of Southern chivairy" and the "beautiful women of the Southland." In more or less private conversation he was reputed to have said that, when he died, he hoped to "reat on the bosom of Father Abraham and look down and see the last Yankee roasting in hell."

In the younger social set there mingled with the native-born, schoolmates from above the Mason and Dixon line. New England schoolteachers taught the grandchildren of Confederate veterans, bankers entertained Northern financiers and millimen Yankee directors, yet Captain Tom preserved the eternal vertites. He was as a rock in a changing sea—at least on the aforementioned holidays.

He had two grandchildren, who did not share his rabid views on the general odlousness of Yankees. His grandson, Leonard Crawford, on the transport of the propersion of the propersion of the propersion of the general odlousness of Yankees. His grandson, Leonard Crawford, on the transport of the propersion of the propersion

DEAR MRS. WILKINSON AND COMFORT SISTEMS:

I have been a silent but interested reader of Control or years but after reading Frepleacy's letter have decided to keep silent no longer. The state of the Southland." In more or less private control or years but after reading Frepleacy's letter have decided to keep silent no longer most of us cannot afford a trip so far very often; but I would tell my husband in a very kind but irm way that I was going and would stay, at least, four weeks, for most of us cannot afford a trip so far very often; but I would tell my husband in a very kind but irm way that I was going and would stay, at least, four weeks, possibly five. Of course I would arrange to have the bome astisfactorily cared for in my absence. I would also tell him that I would be giad to have him go along for company and to help care for the children; but if he really felt that he ought to stay at home that perhaps it would be the better plan. I would not far the proparations for my trip intending that he go, for I am auce our visit will be more pleasant without him if he is of the disposition I think he is.

In regard to that suitcase, leave out everything you think you can possibly do without, taking a supply of plain, near clothers. By all means dreas yourself and the kiddles loose to a good time and children in plain, dark clothes while traveling and upon arriving at your destination, turn yourself and the kiddles loose to a good time and children in plain, dark clothes while traveling and upon a construction of the fallest extent. Don't try or even pretend to try, and when the possibly afford it. If that busband of yours of the fullest extent is not the fullest extent. Don't try or even pretend to try, and we have the children as next as yourself and the kindless loose to a good time and child one out it your visit to the fullest extent. Don't try or even pretend to try, and the possibly afford it. If that busband of yours of the fullest extent to think be will do—decides to go along—enjoy yourself just the s unwisely sought to sing the praises of the engineer.

Sometimes when all alone in his office the Captain would recall the manly carriage and tones of John Woodman, and he unconsciously felt a warming of the heart. Then he would remember that the man was one of a hated race and he would steel himself against the Northerner. Even so, the remembrance of John's gentlemanly attitude grew of more frequent occurrence in the old man's mind and it worried him for fear that he was basely weakening.

One afternoon, as he left his office, he observed a crowd in front of the bulletin-board of the "Sun." He had come to avoid crowds, but there was a certain silent suspense about this one which aroused a vague alarm in his mind, and he turned his steps toward it.

"Black Bend Dam Breaks," he read.

He read no more, but dashed into the newspaper office and up to the group that surrounded the telegraph instrument. The operator read off as he received the jerky words.

"It—is—thought—that two—engineers—were carried away—in the flood of water——" Then all was quiet.

Captain Tom hung over the instrument, his thoughts revolving in a chrele of contecture.

all was quiet.

Captain Tom hung over the instrument, his thoughts revolving in a circle of conjecture. The city editor cursed under his breath at the wait. Now it ticked the next sentence.

"Construction Eagineer Woodman missing."

Drowned! The thought flashed through the soldier's brain. No enemy now. Just a brave man—and—the tears sprang into his eyes as he thought of Mary Belle.

The voice of the operator, no longer colorless,

The voice of the operator, no longer colorless,

"Assistant Leonard Crawford—Missing."
His daughter's son! He stood there hopeless, helpless, while the world seemed to slip from under his feet.

Mary Relia and a midd a mi

NADINOLA banishes tan, freckles, pimples, liverspots, etc., extreme cases. Rids pores and tissues of impurities. Leaves the skin in package. By toilet counters or mail, two sizes, 50 cents and $1.00. Address Dept. A. C. NATIONAL TOILET COMPANY, Paris, Tenn.

The first paroxysm of joy over she became caim, and, doubt assailing her once more, she gently released herself from her grandfather's clasp and, backing away, stood looking at him. There was an obvious question in her eyes.

The Captain hesitated, the muscles of his face working in the agony of a brief struggle. Then he reached out and forcibly took her in his arms. With a mixture of command and shamefacedness on his stern countenance, he looked over her head at the group of friends.

"Mr. Mo'ton," he said to the city editor, "I reckon I've an interesting piece of news fo' youah social column. It goes about like this: 'We learn that at an early date there is to be a wedding solemnized at the home of our well-known citizen. Captain Thomas Benton. The contracting parties will be the Captain's lovely granddaughter, Miss Mary Belle Benton, and Mr. here the old man's voice faitered a bit—'and Mr. John Woodman of Boston. Massachusetts, a popular and—'"

The rest was smothered by Mary Belle's kisses, and a spontaneous outburst of congratulations came from the others present.

"Ah reckon, suh, there's no geographical limitations to bravery, suh," the old soldier said to the editor.

the editor.

divisible need. I am a Red Cross member and want to do my

DEAR MRS. WILKINSON AND SISTERS:
Please make room in your comfy corner for one of your neighbors from the beautiful West,

Dask Mas. Wilkinson:

Enterence:

Linkas, Ii.

Dask Mas. Wilkinson:

Enterence:

Enter is no other? questioned the engineer, circle, while the first in the somethings of the state of the state of the source of the state of the source of the

IN @ AROUND The HOME

Terms Used in Crochet

Ch. st., chain stitch, simply a series of loops or stitches each drawn with the hook through the preceding one; s. c., single crochet, having a loop on hook, insert hook in work as indicated, draw loop through thread over, and draw through both loops; d. c., double crochet, thread over hook, insert hook in work, draw loop through, thread over draw through two loops; tr. c., treble crochet, thread over, draw through two loops; tr. c., treble crochet, thread over hook twice, then work off as in double crochet, there being three groups of two loops to work off instead of two; h. tr., half. treble, same as tr. c., only work off two loops; thread over and then through three loops; d. tr., double treble crochet, thread over three times, hook through work, thread over and draw through one loop, giving five on hook, thread over and work off by twos; sl. st., slip stitch; insert hook in work, draw loop through work and loop on hook at the same time; p., picot, a picot is formed on a chain by catching back in the fourth st., or as indicated and working a sl. st. r. st., roll stitch, throw that thread over the needle as many times as indicated, insert hook in the work, thread over, pull through coil or roll, thread over, draw through the one loop on hook. The roll when completed is straight, with a thread the length of roll along its side. The length or size of a roll is regulated by the number of times the thread is thrown over; o., over, thread over hook the number of times indicated; k. st., knot stitch, draw out Toop about one quarter inch, catch thread and pull through, then put the hook between the drawn loop and the thread just pulled through, catch the thread, draw through these two stitches to form the knot; blk., block, a st. in each of a given number of sts., preceded and followed by a space; sp., space, a space is formed by making a chain of 3 or 4 sts. and omitting the same number of sts. in preceding row; sk., skip, to miss or omit number of stitches indicated in preceding row; p. c., padding cord; stars m

Some Patriotic Pillows

ITH flags flying, service flags and war posters here, there and every-where, it is only natural that the influence of the war spirit which influence of the war spirit which now fills our thoughts should reflect even in designs for fancy work.

In sofa pillows especially one can introduce a touch of up-to-date patriotism in home decorations, very easily.

A noticeably striking and handsome cover which requires little time and no fine work, can be made of one yard each of red, white and blue material of any kind.

Cut each color in half lengthwise and join blue material of any kind.

Cut each color in half lengthwise and join the lengthwise edges. This will result in a circular band or tube of red, white and blue. Gather the edges of both ends, draw up closely and fit over a pillow finishing the center of each side with a larger button made of the material stuffed with cotton.

Service Flag Pillow

Such a pillow as this can be made up on

Such a pillow as this can be made up on either a blue or white background.

For crocheting the center use red, white and blue silkateen of any soft finished mercerized cotton, and a suitable steel hook, five balls of red, three white and three blue will be needed.

With the white make a chain of seven inches, the and single crochet in each stitch, ch. 1.

turn and single crochet in each stitch, ch. 1.
2nd row.—1 s. c. in each st., ch. 1, turn 3 to 12th rows same as 2nd row.
13th row.—Count stitches, work with white then make center stitch blue balance of row

14th row.—White, 3 s. c. blue, white.
15th row.—Same as 14th row.
16th and 17th rows.—White, 5 s. c. blue.
18th row.—White, 7 s. c. blue, white.
19th and 20th rows.—White, 19 s. c. blue,

21st row.-White, 17 s. c. blue, white. 22nd row.—White, 15 s. c. blue, white, 23rd row.—White, 15 s. c. blue, white, 23rd row.—White, 11 s. c. blue, white. 24th row.—White, 11 s. c. blue, white. 26th row.—White, 11 s. c. blue, white. 27th row.—Same as last row.

28th row.—White, 12 s. c. blue, white.

27th row.—Same as last row.
28th row.—White, 13 s. c. blue, white.
29th row.—White, 6 s. c. blue, 1 s. c. white, 6
s. c. blue, white.
30th row.—White, 6 s. c. blue, 3 s. c. white,
6 s. c. blue, white.
31st row.—White, 4 s. c. blue, 7 s. c. white, 4

31st row.—White, 4 s. c. blue, 7 s. c. white, 4 s. c. blue, white.
32nd row.—White, 2 s. c. blue, 11 s. c. white, 2 s. c. blue, white.
Next 13 rows all of white.
14th row.—Join in red and s. c. all around making 7 s. c. on each corner, thus 3 s. c. in corner st. and 2 s. c. in st. just before and after.
Every other row only make 3 s. c. at corners, work a blue band 3 inches wide. If more than one star is wanted, count stitches and plan st., * ch. 1, 1 d. c. in next space, ch. 1, 1 d. c. in next space, ch. 1, 1 d. c. in same space; repeat from * around (12 widenings in round); join as in let round space;

st., * ch. 1, 1 d. c. in next space, ch. 1, 1 d. c. in next space, ch. 1, 1 d. c. in same space; repeat from * around (12 widenings in round); join as in 1st round and ch. 3.

2rd round.—1 d. c. in same space as sl. st., * ch. 1, 1 d. c. in next space, ch. 1, 1 d. c. in next space, ch. 1, 1 d. c. in next space, ch. 1, 1 d. c. in same space; repeat from * around. Continue in this manner, in every round having 1 more d. c. between each of the 12 widenings, until there are 13 d. c. between; join and ch. 3.

1st round of border.—* over, a loop in same space, over and through 2 loops on hook, over, a loop in next space, over and through 2 loops, over and through all 3 loops on hook, ch. 1; repeat from * to end of round; join and ch. 3.

2nd round.—1 d. c. in first space, ch. 1, 2 d. c. in same space, * ch. 1, skip 1 space, over, a loop in next space, over and through 2 loops, over and through all 3 loops on hook (a V stitch), ch. 1, skip 1 space, 2 d. c. in next space, ch. 1, 2 d. c. in same space.

3rd round.—1 skip 1 space, 2 d. c. in next space, ch. 1, 2 d. c. in same space (a shell); repeat from * around. Join with a sl. st., another sl. st. on top of next d. c., 1 sl. st. under ch. 1, ch. 3. Join this way in every round.

3rd round.—1 d. c., ch. 1, 2 d. c. in same space, * ch. 1, 1 d. c. in next space, ch. 1, V st. on V st. in round below (over, a loop in space before V st., over and through 2 loops, over, a loop in space on other side of V st., over and through 2 loops, over, a loop in space before T shell in center space of shell below, ch. 1, 2 d. c. in same space; repeat from * around. Make 2 more rounds like the last, but skip 1 space before and after V st.; 3 rounds with 1 d. c. in each of the 2 spaces on each side of shell.

Final round.—Like last round, but make a picot (ch. 3, 1 s. c. in top of d. c. below) on all but the last d. c. of scallop, skip 1 space on each side of V st. and make only 3 d. c. in center of shell in round below; fasten off.

ter of shell in round below; fasten off.

Spider Web Lace

o, 1 d. c. on last d. c. of shell making another shell, ch. 16, d. c. in first d. c. of shell 2 d. c. under ch. 7, ch. 7, 6 s. c. on s. c. skipping first and last s. c., ch. 7, 2 d. c., 1 d. c. on d. c., ch. 2, d. c. on last d. forming a gauge last d. c., forming a square, make squares on end ch. 4, 3rd row —Make 5 squares, 1 shell, ch. 7, 4 s. c. on s. c., skipping first and last ch. 7, shell on ch. 7, ch. 7, 2 s. c. in center of ch. 16, begin-

5th row.—7 squares, 1 shell, ch. 2, 1 shell, ch. 7, s. c. under ch. 4 s. c., on s. c., s. c. under ch. making ch. 6, 1 shell in loop, ch. 8, turn.

6th row.—1 shell, ch. 7, s. c. under ch. 6, s. c. on s. c., s. c. under ch. 7, 1 shell under ch. 2, closing up web, make 8 squares to end, ch. 4.

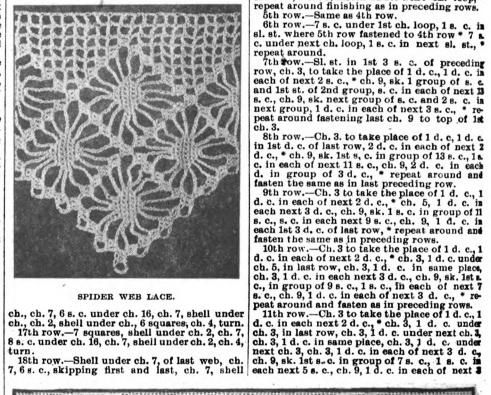

Materials required. 1 lb. of either black Germantown or Scotch knitting worsted, 1 bone crochet hook No. 7.

Work loosely. Ch. 15.1 d. c. in 4th ch. from hook; taking up 2 threads of ch., * ch. 1, 1 d. c. in ext ch; repeat from * to end of chain and then continue around on other side of ch., * web, ch. 8, turn.

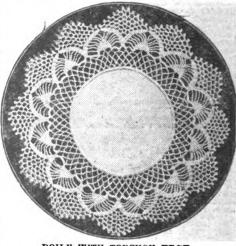

squares, ch. 4, turn.

15th row.—Make 5 squares, shell under ch., ch. 7, 2 s. c., ch. 7, shell under ch., ch. 7, 4 s. c. under ch., ch. 7, shell under ch., ch. 7, 2 s. c., ch. 7, shell under ch., ch. 7, shell under ch., ch. 7, shell under ch., ch. 2, shell under 16th row.—Shell under ch., ch. 2, shell under

Conducted By Mrs. Wheeler Wilkinson

rect.

2nd row.—Ch. 7, fasten under 1st ch. loop in preceding row. * Ch. 7, fasten under next loop, * repeat around making last loop same as last loop in preceding row.

* repeat around making last loop same as last loop in preceding row.

3rd row.—Ch. S., fasten under 1st ch. loop in 2nd row * ch. S., fasten under next loop * repeat around finishing as in preceding row.

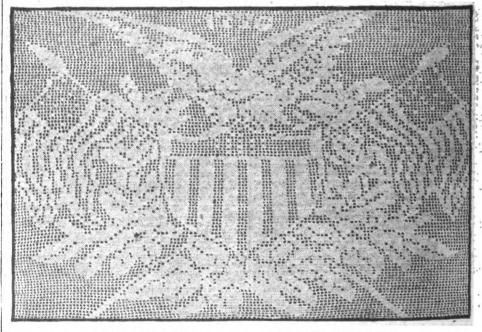

4th row.—Ch. 9, fasten under 1st ch. loop in 3rd row, * ch. 9, fasten under next ch. loop, * repeat around finishing as in preceding rows.

5th row.—Same as 4th row.

6th row.—7 s. c. under 1st ch. loop, 1 s. c. in sl. st. where 5th row fastened to 4th row 7 s. c. under next ch. loop, 1 s. c. in prext sl. st. *

sl. st. where 5th row fastened to 4th row * 7 a.c. under next ch. loop, 1 s. c. in next sl. st., *

c. under next ch. loop, 1 s. c. in next sl. st., * repeat around.
7th *ww.—Sl. st. in 1st 3 s. c. of preceding row, ch. 3, to take the place of 1 d. c., 1 d. c. in each of next 2 s. c., * ch. 9, sk. 1 group of s. c. and 1st st. of 2nd group, s. c. in each of next 13 s. c., ch. 9, sk. next group of s. c. and 2 s. c. in next group, 1 d. c. in each of next 3 s. c., * repeat around fastening last ch. 9 to top of 1st ch. 3.

AMERICAN EAGLE, SHIELD AND FLAGS IN FILET CROCHET.

under ch. 7, ch. 16, shell in square, 6 squares, | d. c., * repeat around and fasten as in precedunder ch. 7, ch. 16, shell in square, 6 squares, ch. 4, turn.

19th row.—5 squares, shell in square, ch. 7, 2 s. c. in center of ch. 16, ch. 7, shell under ch. 7, ch. 7, 4 s. c., ch. 7, shell under ch., ch. 4, turn.

20th row.—Shell under ch., ch. 7, 2 s. c., ch. 7, shell under ch. 4, s. c. in ch. 16, ch. 7, shell in square, 4 squares, ch. 4, turn.

21st row.—3 squares, shell in square, ch. 7, 6 s. c., ch. 7, shell under ch., ch. 2, shell under ch., fasten in corner, ch. 4, turn.

22nd row.—Shell under ch. 2, ch. 7, 8 s. c., ch. 7, shell in square, make 2 squares, ch. 4, turn.

ing rows.

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 18,)

Filet Pillow Top

American Eagle, Shield and Flags

We are unable, owing to the length to giw space for the directions of the Filet Pillow Top Any one desiring them, upon the receipt of re-quest, with enclosure of three-cent stamp, they will be sent. Address.

COMFORT, Pub., Augusts. Me.

white. A crocheted service flag can be made in the same way and is very attractive for a window both sides being alike.

French Relief Shawl

It's easy for YOU to make this pillow

Rick rack work is a great favorite with needle-workers, and the Nufashond Rick Rack Book hows some of the handsome and useful articles they naking. It gives clear and easy directions for makg pillows, centerpieces, scarfs, doilies, luncheon sets, table covers, aprons, guest towels, night dress yokes, cornet covers, edgings, insertions, etc. And yet it costs you only 10 cents because it serves to make you ar department store or needlework shop for the Nufashond Rick Rack Book. If you can't get it, we will send it with one full piece of Nufashond Mercerized Rick Rack Braid and one ball of Nufashond Mercerized chet Cotton, on receipt of 30 Cents.

Lufashond Rick Rack

NUFASHOND, Dept. E, Reading, Pa.

In and Around the Home

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 12.)

12th row.—Ch. 3 to take the place of 1 d. c., 1 d. c. in each of next 2 d. c., *ch. 3, 1 d. c. under ch. 3 of last row, ch. 3, 1 d. c. under next ch. 3, ch. 3, 1 d. c. under next ch. 3, ch. 3, 1 d. c. in same vace, ch. 3, 1 d. c. under next ch. 3, ch. 3, 1 d. c. in each of next 3 d. c., ch. 9, sk. 1st s. c. in group of 5 s. c. 1s. c. in each next 3 d. c., *repeat around and fasten as in preceding rows. 13th row.—Ch. 3 to take the place of 1 d. c., 1

c. in each next 2 d. c., * ch. 3, 1 d. c. under ch. 3, of last row, ch. 3, 1 d. c. under next ch. 3, ch ch. 3, 1 d. c. under next ch. 3, ch. 3, 1 d. c. under next ch. 3, ch. 3, 1 d. c. in same place, ch. 3, 1 d. c. under next ch. 3, ch. 3, 1 d. c. under next ch. 3, ch. 3, 1 d. c. in each of next 3 d. c., ch. 7, 1 s. c., in center st. of 3 s. c., ch. 7, 1 d. c. in each of next 3 d. c., * repeat around and fasten as in preceding rows.

14th row .- Ch. 3 to take the place of 1 d. c., 14th row.—Ch. 3 to take the place of 1 d. c., 1-2 d. c. in each of next 2 d. c. This leaves 3 loops on hook, thread over pull through 3 loops to finish in point * ch. 7, fasten back in 3rd ch. to form a p., ch. 3, 1 d. c., under ch. 3 of last row, * repeat 5 times, ch. 7, fasten back to form p., ch. 3, 1 d. c. in same place with last d. c., * ch. 7, fasten back to form p., ch. 3, 1 d. c. under next ch. 3, * repeat 4 times, ch. 7, fasten back to form p., 1-2 d. c. in each next 3 d. c., finishing to form point to correspond with other ishing to form point to correspond with other group of 3 d. c., repeat around, fasten securely and break thread. MRS. FRANK BEAL.

Rickrack Edging

No. 1. Fasten in front of braid * ch. 5, 1 s. c. in next point. Repeat from * until you have length desired.

RICKRACK EDGING. NO. 1.

2nd row .- 1 d. c. and ch. 2 in every third st

2nd row.—1 d. c. and ch. 2 in every third st. of first row. Working on other side, 1 s. c. and ch. 5 in each point on edge. Break thread.

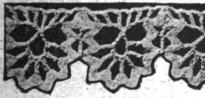

2nd row.—1 d. c. in first point * ch. 3, 1 d. c. in same place, ch. 3, 1 d. c. in same place, ch. 4, 1 d. c. in next point.

Repeat from * fasten, break thread.

No. 2. This pattern is worked out with a narrow braid and No. 40 cotton.

Begin by fastening cotton in 2nd point, * ch. 7, 1 d. c. in each of next 7 picots, ch. 3, 1 sl. st. in 4th of ch. 7, ch. 3, 1 s. c. in next point, ch. 6, skip 1 point, fasten thread in next point.

Repeat from * until work is desired length.
2nd row.—Fasten in 1st point * ch. 2, 1 d. c.

RICKRACK EDGING. NO. 2.

in next point (ch. 2, skip 1 ch. 1 d. c. in next ch.), four times, ch. 2, 1 d. c. in same picot where scallop was finished, ch. 2, 1 s. c. in next point, repeat from * working on other edge, draw cotton through a point each side of the one in which 1 s. c. is made, ch. 3, 1 sl. st. through corresponding 2 points on 2 scallops, ch. 3, 1 sl. st. through corresponding next 2, fasten off.

Crocheted Lingerie Ribbon

For these ribbons one can use either the mercerized cotton fiber silk or any of the silk substitutes which are well twisted and a steel hook of suitable size.

The ribbons wear well and are very inexpensive. Begin with ch. 5 * draw up loop under this ch., close to hook, thread over hook and draw a loop through. This loop is kept on the hook. Repeat this three times then thread over hook and draw through all loops, keeping this loop on hook until needed. Insert the hook in the last or fifth loop drawn up under the first ch. 5. draw up loop and make hook of suitable size. under the first ch. 5, draw up loop and make ch. 5, drawing the last st. through the idle loop on the hook. Repeat from * until the ribbon is the desired length, which will be about one and one third yards.

The ends can be finished with little crocheted rings balls or small crocheted ones.

rings, balls or small crocheted ros

The Pretty Girls' Club

Conducted by Katherine Booth

The Little Things Which Count

OW'S the hair this month, girls? Have you been watching over it carefully, shaking and airing and brushing and shampooing since our last month's talk together? If you have, I know you are all as sweet and dainty as can be, in spite of the hot summer days.

There are some other things, though, to which we must give more than ordinary attention at this season of the year. I expect you can guess what some of them are.

Armpits, did some one say? Indeed, yes! Most of us, I am sorry to say, perspire quite freely in this particular portion of the back.

Armpits, did some one say? Indeed, yes! Most of us, I am sorry to say, perspire quite freely in this particular portion of the body, and need to exercise great care to avoid being unpleasant to ourselves and others. Of course it goes without saying that we either jump into the bathtub the moment we are out of bed in the morning, of if we cannot do that, stand on a folded towel and sponge the body off quickly. The armpits need hot water and soap, a good hard scrubbing,

THE GENEROUS POWDER SHAKER WHICH MAKES SUMMER BEARABLE

then rinsing in warm water and finally in cool. A little grain alcohol (not the wood alcohol) rubbed into the armpit is cleansing if one can use such expensive stuff these economical days. Hair in the armpits not only holds the perspiration but is unpleasant to view through the thin gowns so many of us wear. Remove yours with a depilatory. Here is a home-made one:

To Remove Those Objectionable Hairs

Add an ounce of sulphate of barium to four ounces of water. Have a little corn-starch in a saucer and pour the liquid upon it, mixing into a spreadable paste. Apply to the hairy spot and let remain until it dries and the skin begins to itch slightly. Then use the blunt side of a silver knife and scrape off paste. The hair will come with it. If left on too long, it will irritate skin.

ver knife and scrape off paste. The hair will come with it. If left on too long, it will irritate skin.

If you incline to excessive perspiration in spite of bathing the armpits several times a day, try using a corn-starch pad to powder the armpits after rubbing a cake of soap lightly over them. To make the pad, cut two pieces of white flannel, not too firmly woven, each about two inches square. Stitch together all but one part of one side and fill loosely with corn-starch. Then sew up the remaining slit. The armpits should, of course, be freshly bathed and dried before rubbing with the slightly moistened cake of soap Be sure you do not apply the soap heavily or it will perhaps spot your sleeve. Dust quite heavily with the corn-starch pad.

Use the powderpuif quite liberally in summertime—it is the greatest preventive of a greasy, damp appearance. The body needs powdering as well as the face, but here a powderpuff is rather inadequate. There are tin powder cans sold, with a handle and a coarsely perforated top, and these are just the thing to apply the powder to the body, which should afterwards be gone over lightly with a huge pad of absorbent cotton. If you cannot find one of these powder shakers in your stores, you can adapt one of the large kitchen salt-shakers to your purpose. The main thing is to get the body powdered well from head to foot before putting on your undergarments.

Change your hose daily. It takes only a minute or two to wash out a pair of stockings and alf of us can have fresh ones daily with a little care. On taking off your shoes, put them to air in a good breezy spot of your bedroom, and never hang up a gown you have been wearing without putting it by the window inside out, to air thoroughly.

Perfectly spotless underwear and fresh ribbons go a long way toward making one both look and Perfectly spotless underwear and fresh ribbons go a long way toward making one both look and feel dainty. In fact the only way to be attractive in summer is to be scrupulously, consistently, constantly clean!

Answers to Questions

Butterfly.—Indeed I am very glad you decided to write me. It ought not take a great deal of courage to do that, when I feel such a good friend to my girls. The first thing you should do is to try to gain in weight and strength. If you only weigh about ninety pounds, you have a good deal of work to do in this direction, my dear, for you ought to weigh one hundred and fifteen or twenty. So let's get at our job. One of the best ways for you to gain, if you are able to get plenty of milk, would be by the milk diet. I believe you could gain three pounds a week, and you would find your complexion clearing up beautifully in the process, and that is something you would like, I am sure. Suppose you start at it right away. The first thing to do is to eat very little for a day, drinking quantities of water and orange juice. At night put half-a-dozen prunes to soak in a tumbler of water. The next morning on rising, drink two glasses of hot water as soon as you get out of bed. Fifteen minutes later drink the prune juice and eat the prunes, masticating thoroughly before swallowing. Indeed it is not a bad idea to rub the prunes through a sleve. Wait another twenty minutes or half hour and take a glass and a half of cool milk, chewing each mouthful before swallowing. Milk is a starchy food, and is almost entirely digested in the mouth, and if you swallow it quickly before it is thoroughly mixed with the saliva it is only partly digested. After your first dose of milk, take a glass and a half every hour until about 3.30 or 4. Between that hour and supper, drink a glass of water. For supper eat only light foods—green vegetables, fruits, a little bread and butter or toast. Before going to bed, drink a couple of glasses of water (do this about an hour before retiring). Keep this program up every day for a week, and at the end of that time, take two glasses of milk each hour, and do not eat any supper. You should begin your milk about 7.30 in the morning, say, and continue it until seven. Keep this milk diet up for about six weeks—not take water with your meals but lots of it between meals. Drink a glass of good rich cool milk in the middle of the morning and in the middle of the afternoon. For dinner, if you eat it in the middle of the day, any kind of meat if it is roasted or brolled, but never fried. Salt meats will not make you gain—such as ham and salt pork, chipped beef, etc. Fresh fish is excellent for you, and chicken or any other kind of fowl. Eat plenty of potatoes and butter, spinach, asparagus, peas, string beans, buttered beets, boiled onions (very soft), slieed tomatoes, summer squash, etc., etc., bon't eat ples or cake, but fruit for dessert. For supper, bread and milk or milk toast (plenty of it), or creamed fish, with boiled rice or a baked potato (do not eat fried potatoes), and a dish of fruit with plenty of bread and butter. As to the other matter you write me about, build yourself up until you welgh one hundred and fifteen or twenty. There is nothing to be worried about—you just haven't realized that it is your job to make yourself weigh the right amount.

X. Y. Z.—No, do not use a fine comb on your scalp; it irritates it and is not good for the hair. Wash your hair, which you say is dry, about once in three or four weeks. Use the soap jelly, directions for which have been given in many issues of COMPORT. Be sure to rinse and rinse the hair many times after washing it, and dry it in the sun. Then brush it gently for about one hundred strokes. Give it the same amount of brushing every night, and be sure that your brush is washed in warm soapy water once a week, well rinsed in many waters, finally in cool, and dried in the sun standing on its side. Never use a brush used by anybody else. Always let your hair down at night when undressing and toes: it about in the air; either let it hang loose all night or braid it very loosely indeed. Have your druggist put up the following hair lotion:

For Thin or Falling Hair

Jamaica rum, two and one half ounces. Tincture of cantharides (alcoholic) two and one half Tincture of cantharides (alcoholic) two and one half ounces.

Glycerine, one half ounce.
Sesquicarbonate of ammonia, two drams.
Oil of rosemary, twenty drops.
To this mixture have your druggist add nine ounces of distilled water. Every night after you have brushed your hair as directed, part your hair and pour a little of this lotion along the part; part in another place and moisten that part; and go over the head in this way. If you have a medicine dropper, it is easier to rum it along the part and apply the lotion in that manner. Then slip the flats of the fingers along each side of the head, and move the scalp back and forth on the skull. Do not lift the fingers or let them rub back and forth on the hair, but press them firmly against scalp and move scalp, hair and all. Go over the entire head in this way; it will rub the lotion into the scalp, and at the same time stimulate the circulation of the blood, bringing it to the scalp to nourish the hair.

Remember this about hair: If the rest of your body is not strong and well-nourished, your hair is not likely to be. It is more than likely that the first thing to do to make your hair healthier is to build up your own general strength; so do your best in this way, in the meantime massaging your scalp, using the lotion, brushing the hair daily.

PINK Rose.—I think you would be very foolish to try to dve your hair. I do not give directions for it.

the meantime messaging your scalp, using the lotion, brushing the hair daily.

PINK ROSE.—I think you would be very foolish to try to dye your hair. I do not give directions for it. If you think your hair is not "live" enough now, you certainly would not like it after dyeing, for it would lose even part of the life it now has. What you need to do is to shampoo. It frequently, and brush it every night for fifty or one hundred strokes. You will be surprised how soon it will begin to wake up and look alive. Shampoo your hair once in two weeks, if it is ordinarily oily; once in three weeks if it is inclined to be dry. See directions to "X. Y. Z." If your nails are very hard, you probably use a steel knifs or other steel instrument to clean them with. Never do this. The first thing your nails need, at present, is a soaking in a bowl of warm soapy water, and a good scrubbing with a stiff nail brush. Then clean them with your orange-wood stick, and use the flat end of the stick to gently press back the cuticle at the base of the nail. The nail should disclose a small half-moon at their base. If you have neglected yours, it will take a little time to make this half-moon show, so don't try to produce it all at once, but each day as you wash your hands, press back the cuticle. Form the habit of doing this with the towel when you wipe your hands, as well as with the orange-wood stick once daily. When nails are thoroughly cleaned (soak only one hand at a time), take your thin flexible nail file and gently file the nail into shape, following the shape of the end of your finger. Do not keep your nails too short. Scrub again, and use the orange-wood stick to remove any nail dust which might have clung beneath the nail. Your manicure scissors should be called into action to gently remove any hangnails or roughness. Now attend to the other hand in the same manner, and when both hands are ready, polish each with the paim of the other hand or with a bit of silk. This is a very simple manicure; you can use a polishing powder, and a cleaning ointment, etc., but this treatment is sufficient. Shape the nails with a file once a week, but attend to cleaning them several times a day, and to the cuticle daily.

USE A CORN-STARCH PAD FOR THE ARM PITS.

Address all letters containing questions to KATHERINE BOOTH, CATE COMPORT, AUGUSTA, MAINE.

A Lesson in Manners.—This is the way the agent got a lesson in manners. He called at a business office and saw nothing but a prepossessing though capable appearing young woman.

"Where's the boss?" he asked abruptly.

"What is your business?" she asked politely.

"None of yours!" he snapped. "I got a proposition to lay before this firm, and I want to talk to somebody about it."

"And you would rather talk to a gentleman?"

"Yes."

"Yes."
"Well," answered the lady, smiling sweetly, "so would I. But it seems that it's impossible for either one of us to have our wish, so we'll have to make the best of it. State your business, please!"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Send Only With Coupon

and we will ship you this

Pure Silk Taffeta Frock

This smart frock is made of the This smart frock is made of the finest grade of silk taffeta. The fancy shaped lapels of self material have overlaid white collar of silk crepe de chine prettily hemstitched. The waist part is made in circular ton effect extending around in novel butterfly belt effect in back. The lapels and waist front are elaborately embroidered with silk and gold colored threads. Dress can be had with self colored georgette sleeves having taffeta cuffs or all taffeta sleeves. Mention choice. Skirt is made with fullness in both front and back. This is a copy of a regular 325, 00 dress but produced to sell at this special price. Furnished in size $4 to 4 and Missea 16 to 20. Colors, Navy Bine, Plum, Copenhagen, Black or Silver Grey. Be sure to give sust, Belt, Hip and Length measurements, also style of sleeve and color wanted.

Orderby No. B-32, Georgette Sleeves Only $1.00 down, $2.50 monthly. Price, $15.95.

Six Months To Pay

rder mis bargain on our liberal credit order this bargain on the interest extensive terms. No need to pay all down to get the very latest styles and amazing values in anything you want to wear. We trust houset people to matter where they live. Buy the easy way! Send today for this offering and see for yourself what a big advantage it is to use your credit with us. Act at once, lail Coupon Thousands will be

Thousands will be sending in for this bargain. It will be first bargain first served. Mail on everything are going up! up! up! and we may advance the price on this wooderful bargain be So order NOW! Also get our remarkable fre-men's, women's and children's clothing on credit

Elmer Richards Co. W. Str. St. Chicago

Please send the Ladles' Frock No. 8-22 No. 8-33 ...Stan Brut.....Belt.....Blp. If I am not estimined with the Ladies' Frock, I can return I tand get my payment back. Otherwise, I will pay $2.60 a month until paid for.

U you want the Bergain Bulletin, which is Free, put Elbers

The Dairy Cow in August

The Dairy Cow in August

To this season of the year the dairy cow has a hard time of it on many a farm and the consequence is that the milk or cream check diminishes sadly, in addition to the discomfort, if not actual suffering, of the animal. It is no advantage to allow the dairy cow at this time to stand all day in a pond, stream or iver keeping herself free from pestiferous flies of the ox warble or gaddy variety. When a cow is not eating good feed she should be chewing the cud and so making milk; or getting ready to calve and supply plenty of milk for her offspring, or the market where calves are not allowed to nurse. Better to keep the cows in a dean, well ventilated, screened and darkened stable during the hot hours of the day than to turn them on pasture, and indoors supply plenty of nutritious feed, such as forage catch crops, such as oats and peas, green vetch, green corn of sweet or field varieties, or any nourishing green feed that succeeds well in the district where the cows happen to be kept.

Turning the cows out at night, on grass, is a hardly to the animal, provided mosquitoes do not forment. In breezy fields after eight at night the mosquito generally quits tormenting stock and on such pastures the cow will thrive better than if kept indoors all of the time; but we should prefer to keep cattle stabled when grass is dry and short and insect pests torment night and day. It is now that the standpipe individual frinking cup proves of greatest benefit to the cow. It saves turning the cow out and insures a drink of fresh water just as often as she cares to take it, whereas allowing the cows to drink morning abon and night is not enough in hot weather and who shall say what torment and damage is enabled by allowing the cows to drink but once or twice daily when the "boss gets around to it?"

August also is the season of the year when summer silage" proves of greatest benefit. With scarcity of labor, the cutting and haulling of soling crops of green forage for the cows tempts many a dairyman to pasture is the the case, to a profitable degree, unless the cows also have a shade to go to, fresh clean the cows also have a shade to go to, fresh clean the cows also have a shade to go to, fresh clean the cows also have a shade to go to, fresh clean the cows also have a shade to go to, fresh clean the cows also have a shade to go to, fresh clean the cows also have a shade to go to, fresh clean the cows also have a shade to go to, fresh clean the company and the co

Gasoline has been the sovereign remedy for stomach worms, but the disadvantage of the treatment is that the dose has to be repeated on three consecutive mornings and that is a very big job when many lambs have to be handled. Now that help is scarce, it becomes more immediately an immediately and that is a very big job when many lambs have to be handled. Why Stack Grain

Why Stack Grain

If we are to prevent losses in threshing and that at the same away from other work and that at the same time will insure descruction of the worms. Such a treatment is again being advocated and is a form the morning advocated and is a form the morning and that the same follows: Make a one per cent solution of blue-stone (sulphate of copper) in hot water, using the deep blue crystals, not those that have only the deep blue crystals, not those that have only the deep blue crystals, not those that have only the deep blue crystals, not those that have only the deep blue crystals, not those that have only the deep blue crystals, not those that have only the deep blue crystals, not those that have only the deep blue crystals, not those that have only the deep blue crystals, not those that have only the deep blue crystals, not those that have only the deep blue crystals, not those that have only the deep blue crystals, not those that have only the deep blue crystals, not those that have only the deep blue crystals, not those that have only the deep blue crystals, not those that have only the deep blue crystals, not those that have only the deep blue crystals, not those that have only the deep blue crystals, not those that have only the deep blue crystals, not those that have only the deep blue crystals, not those that have in the province of the lawn or in the orchard? If you do not attached that they and white. It is fitted with strong wonden that they mild and white. It is fitted with strong wonden that they mild and white. It is fitted with strong wonden that they will not the immediate they will shad they are a part of the ham of th tached to the free end of a small rubber tube having a funnel inserted in the other end. If the lambs are not well grown, one and one half ounces of the solution will suffice, while adult sheep might possibly take a larger dose; but two ounces is too much and one and one half ounces probably as small an amount as will prove effective for lambs.

When the lambs have to be treated, pen them closely so that they may be readily handled. Keep them in the pen overnight and in the morning give the medicine before feeding. One dose will suffice and no bad effects should follow if the medicine is carefully administered so as not to get it into the lungs.

In this connection it may be added that generous feeding is imperative when worms have shown their presence and also helps greatly to keep worms from getting the better of the lamb they infest. Prevention also is highly important and comes from providing new grass and a frequent change of such grass for the young lambs.

Dry Weather Plowing

Dry Weather Plowing

The fellow who owns a tractor is ahead of his neighbor in the dry weather of August and September, when plowing of stubbles should be done unless clover was seeded with the small grain, or hay is to follow the oats, barley or wheat. He can go ahead and plow when the land has become so dry that an ordinary farm team would be useless. And such plowing is advantageous. This spring on many a farm work was kept sadly behind for the reason that much dry weather prevented fall plowing. In many districts the usual fall rains did not arrive in due time or the land froze after the rainfall and so plowing was not done. The plowing in many instances was postponed until the conditions should become just right and they never became that. The lesson is that the vigilant farmer must plow the moment plowing is possible just after harvest and keep at it as long as the weather will allow. Of course there will be some manure to get out, but we should advise putting it on the hay land or meadow rather than the stubble if the plowing is to be held back by the manure spreading.

It seems certain that in these times of war and lack of man-power, that every possible acre of plowing should be done in fall so that small grain may be got in the moment the weather allows in spring. The fall plowing almost absolutely insures timely seeding in spring. Leaving the plowing until spring, on the contrary, will almost inevitably mean loss of the exactly right seeding day or week, and so we advise every reader to do all the plowing he can, even if the weather is hot and dry, and three, four or six horses have to be put on one plow.

It will be fortunate indeed when community tractors can be hired to do the plowing just when it should be done, and that time no doubt is coming in many districts. It is going to be an absolute necessity if war continues and all our young men have to be diverted from the farm to make the world safe for democracy and that every man may have a fair show, equal opportunity and assurance of a justly ga it will be "in the sweat" when threshed and the straw will be tough and the grain will be damp. There will be much grain lost in the straw and the grain in the bin will be likely to mold. Hence it is important that grain should be dry when stacked and should stand at least a month in the stack before threshing.

Smaller Better Shocks of Grain

WHY NOT THRESH FROM THE SHOCK?—The farmer may well ask,—Why not save all this bother by threshing from the shock? We have already said that grain is very likely to heat in the bin. But this is not all. Out west, where it never rains during harvest time, where wheat may be seen piled up like cord wood in sacks, lying for weeks in the middle of the field, threshing from the field is by all means the best plan. But this will not do in damp climates. Once in a, while for a day or two, one man's grain may be in good shape for threshing, but by far the majority of those in a neighborhood will have to thresh under this plan when they do not want to, that is when it is too wet. Again, the dew will always make the first load or two in the morning damp and tough.

If a whole neighborhood, however, stacks its morning damp and tough.

If a whole neighborhood, however, stacks its If a whole neighborhood, however, stacks its grain, they can get a machine in when threshing time comes and the grain is in good shape to thresh. This plan also makes threshing come later in the season when the weather is cooler and the rush of work is past.

Save Wheat at Threshing Time

We will need every bushel of wheat that we raise this year for our boys in the trenches, our soldiers in training, our allies over seas and for home use. Every kernel should be saved. There are large losses, in harvesting, in stacking and threshing, that should be carefully saved this year, no matter what we may have done about it in the ing, that should be carefully saved this year, no matter what we may have done about it in the past.

Threshing Over Straw.—In Kansas last year there were threshing crews that went from farm to farm buying up old straw piles and threshing often yielded from three to ten per cent of the original yield. With wheat at thirty bushels per acre this means that from one to three bushels of grain was left in the straw. The loss on a forty-acre field would thus be from 40 to 120 bushels, worth at present prices from $88$ to $264—a pretty neat sum. It is no wonder therefore that expert threshermen were willing to buy old straw piles and thresh them over for the grain they contained.

Government Plans for Saving Wheat.—The Food Administration has asked that a threshing county to help save these large losses at threshing time. Not only are we asked to thresh cleaner but also to waste less in hauling, in careless handling and in cleaning up around the stack. Some Necessary Precautions.—In hauling grain from the field to the stack or machine, care should be taken to prevent shelling. Either a tight-bottom rack should be used or a canvas stack cover should be spread over the bottom of the rack to catch the grain. In threshing, this same canvas should be pread under the feeding table to catch the grain shelled in this manner. Around and under the machine the most thorough cleaning should be practiced.

In stacking, arrangements should be made to protect the bottom of the stack from wet weather or other losses. Careless handling all along the line, from the field to the bin, should not be permitted. And, finally, the grain should be stored in bins proof against rats and mice.

Seed for Fall Wheat

Seed for Fall Wheat

One objection to fall wheat in the colder states is winter killing. In some sections practically all of the fall sowing was wiped out during the winter. This was particularly true in those sections where new seed was sown,—that is, seed from last fall's threshing.

WHY SOW OLD WHEAT INSTEAD?—The question may well be asked,—Why does old wheat do better than new for fall seeding? The answer is clear. All seeds must dry out and lie dormant for a time before they will germinate. If new wheat fresh from the machine is sown before it has gone through the sweat and dried out, it will have to go through a similar period of incubation in the soil. This means that its germination will be late and weak. The plants will be weak and grow slowly. This poor weak stand will come on late. It is well known that wheat that best withstands the hard winter is that which has a heavy top growth before winter sets in. This heavy growth catches and holds the snow and together with the snow forms a blanket that protects the roots against the cold of winter or the more disastrous thawing and freezing of spring.

With new seed no such growth is possible and the poorly protected plants are easily winter killed.

The lesson from all this is,—Never sow seed from the same season's harvest unless it is practically impossible to secure old seed. If new seed must be sown, get it into the ground as early as you possibly can.

Have a Fall Garden

Plant another crop of vegetables and enjey the garden as long as possible. Such vegetables as bush beans, beets, Swiss chard, kale, parsley, peas, radish, spinach and turnip may be planted as late as August,—lettuce, too, as the fall rains commence. Then it affords another chance to fill extra cans you may have—all helping to solve the food problem during the coming winter.

What is more appetizing in winter months than to have spinach, beets, peas, or some other good garden stuff to serve with the heavier foods that we cook? Don't think because you have planted a spring garden that you are to be satisfied with that. Plan on a fall garden and make the good things last as long as you can.

BELL-ANS

Absolutely Removes Indigestion. Druggists refund money if it fails. 25c

Assorted Toilet Soap and 10c Perfume. Sample FREE. Permanent business. CROFTS A REED CO., CHICAGO

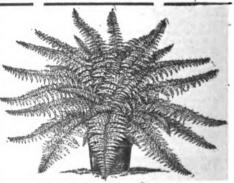

Destroy Weeds First.—After you have harvested the early garden crop, hoe out all weeds and keep working the soil as long as any crop remains in the garden. Lettuce, radishes, spinach, peas, can be planted in succession and the permanent crops like tomato, potato, and such, which are to be used later, need lots of cultivation during the hot, dry months. Working the soil fhoroughly holds moisture for the plants and lets the air into the root system which is so necessary for the plant's growth. Again, thorough cultivation keeps down the weeds and breaks up the heavy soil which bakes so hard during the dry weather of late summer. When the plants have established a good root system, only a shallow working of the soil is necessary, as the roots which lie near the surface of the ground must not be disturbed.

Save Seed for Next Year

If you have a fine variety of vegetable, it is a good plan to pick out the most promising plant and mark it with a bit of string, for your seed plant. Go through your garden and make selections of such plants, and be sure they are your best plants. Do not save seed from inferior plants or from any that may be diseased. If by wise selection you save seeds from the same vegetables from year to year, you may develop an improved variety.

Since many vegetable seeds have been imported from Europe in the past and the demand has been so strong during the past year for seeds for "War Gardens," it is not unlikely that we may be short of good seed next spring. Hence it will be a good plan to save as much seed as possible of our own growing for home use next year.

Six Beautiful Ferns

PREMIUM NO. 6112

Given For Two Subscriptions

Given For Two Subscriptions
Of all indoor foliage plants, none give more lasting pleasure and satisfaction than these popular house ferns. They need but little care and live indefinitely, growing larger and more beautiful year by year. The collection offered you here comprise four of the largest, handsomest varieties ever grown for house culture. They are the Asparagus Plumosus or "Lace" fern, the Rooseveit, the Boston or "Fountain" fern and the Whitmani or "Ostrich plume" fern. They will thrive in any dwelling room near a window and require almost no attention except a little sprinkling of water now and then. These ferns are guaranteed jo be absolutely free from all injurious insects of diseases which destroy foliage plants of this type, and they will be packed carefully and mailed to you by Parcel Post so that you will be sure to receive them in just as good condition as though they were fresh from the greenshouse. We are able to illustrate only one variety, "The Roosevelt." but remember you get all six ferms (four different varieties) free on this offer.

Club Offer. For two one-year subscriptions to Composite on this offer.

Club Offer. For two one-year subscriptions to each you by Parcel Post prepaid the abaye described collection of six beautiful ferns (four varieties) each of them a strong, healthy. well-rooted plant ready to post and guaranteed to grow and develop into a fine specimen beauty. Premium No. 6112.

and white. It is fitted with strong wooden stretchers at either end, so attached that they are a part of the hammock itself and always in place thereby giving it suitable spread for comfort. We can guarantee this hammock to give you real satisfaction because it is in no respect cheap or cheap looking but made throughout of high-grade material that will withstand the wear and tear of constant use. This handsome full size, guaranteed hammock is yours without cost on the terms of the following

War Thrift Stamps!

How You Can Help Your Country—And Save Money Too-Without Expense To Yourself!

Do you want to help win the war but feel financially unable to buy Liberty Bonds or War Thrift Stamps?

Here then is your opportunity to do your bit and yet not invest a cent of your own money. COMFORT is willing to buy 25-Cent War Thrift Stamps and give them to you in place of a premium or cash commission. By following our easy plan you will soon have enough Stamps to fill a Thrift Card. Then you can start all over again and fill another Card—and so on. In this way you can without expense to yourself, help furnish your Country with the money it needs in order to feed, clothe, arm and equip our soldiers and sailors and win this righteous war in defense of American honor and the cause of democracy throughout the world.

Thrift Stamps—What Are They?

Thrift Stamps—What Are They?

United States 25-Cent War Thrift Stamps are the best investment in the World. They are the equivalent of War Savings Stamps, also called "little baby bonds," which—like Liberty Bonds—have behind them the entire resources of the United States.

These Thrift Stamps themselves bear no interest, but they can be exchanged for the larger War-Savings Stamps which do bear interest. When you have filled your Thrift Card with sixteen 25-Cent Thrift Stamps, you are to surrender it to any post office, bank or other authorized agency, pay a few cents in cash—17 cents in June, 18 cents in July, and so on, adding 1 cent each month—and receive in return a $5 War-Savings Stamp. With this Stamp you will also receive a War-Savings Certificate, containing spaces for twenty of these $5 War-Savings Stamps. If you should fill the twenty spaces with $6 War-Savings Stamps before July 1, 1918, the cost to you—if you bought the stamps—would be $83.40, and on Jan. 1, 1923, the Government will pay you $100—a net profit of $16.60. In other words your War-Savings Stamps—which you get in exchange for your 25-Cent Thrift Stamps—will bear 4 per cent. interest, compounded quarterly. Please understand, however, that you are not obliged to fill your War-Savings Sertificates before July 1, 1918. We simply use that date to illustrate what the stamps bring you in interest, You actually have until Jan. 1, 1919, to purchase the stamps. But of course the sooner you secure them the more you will gain in interest on your investment. Therefore it's up to you to fill your Thrift Cards with 25-Cent Thrift Stamps—as soon as possible, in order to exchange them for the larger $5 War-Savings Stamps that pay you 4 per cent. interest, compounded quarterly, from Jan. 2, 1918.

You Can Help Win The War By Starting A Thrift Card Today!

Every 25-Cent Thrift Stamp which you buy, or secure free on this offer, strikes a blow at our enemies and hastens the victorious ending of the war. And at the same time you are investing money in the best and safest security in the world. We consider it our duty to describe this War-Savings Thrift Plan to our subscribers and offer the Thrift Stamps to our club-raisers instead of premiums or cash commission. We have made our offer as liberal as we possibly could in order to make it easy for all to earn the stamps. By accepting our offer you can obtain all the 25-Cent Thrift Stamps you want without paying any money yourself. We shall buy the Stamps and give them to you in return for subscriptions to COMFORT.

Here Is Our Offer!

For two one-year subscriptions to COM-FORT at 35 cents each, we will send you one 25.-Cent War Thrift Stamp and a Thrift Card free and prepaid. (Premium No. 3662.) For three one-year subscriptions we will send you two Stamps and a Thrift Card. (Premium No. 7883.) For ten one-year subscriptions we will send you seven Stamps and a Thrift Card. (Premium No. 73610.)

Acidress COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Sometimes both testicles are in sight, 'but not often, as the other usually lies beyond and more to the other side.

Now comes the only dangerous part of the whole operation—getting hold of and removing the testicles. But with a steady hand and plenty of light, not one bird in a hundred should be lost. Attached to the testicte and lying back of it is one of the principal arteries of the fowl, and this, if ruptured, is sure to cause death. It is here that the proper tools prove of the greatest advantage. The wire being small and very fine, is easily slipped between the testicle and artery without injury to either, and a clear, clean cut made. Take the canula in the right hand and adjust the wire in it so that the loop, about one half an inch long, will extend from the small end of tube, leaving the two ends of wire extending far enough out of the open end to secure a good hold. Insert the end of the tube that has the loop on it very carefully, and slip the loop over both ends of the testicle and entirely around it: hold end of tube close down to the testicle. When it is entirely encircled by the loop, take both ends of the tube, with thumb and first finger, holding it tight, and draw it up firmly but carefully until it is severed: then remove the other skin which you pressed down with your hand at the beginning of the operation, and as the skin resumes its natural place the outer cut will be upwards of an inch above the inner cut; in this way, the outer skin makes a covering for the inner cut. And keeps out all dirt and insures its healing qulckly.

To complete the operation, turn the bird on its other side and proceed exactly as before. Some experts can work entirely from one side, but it is risky, and difficult for an amateur to try.

its other side and proceed exactly as before. Some experts can work entirely from one side, but it is risky, and difficult for an amateur to try. After the operation, keep the bird in a small coop and feed lightly for a few days, and there will be no ill effects.

Capons, like all poultry, must be kept free from vermin to be profitable. A man having examined his birds and found them free from vermin, thinks he has every right to congratulate himself. It is my duty to warn him not to be "too previous." He must know that after dark, an army of fiendish, blood-sucking mites, swarm from every crack and crevice of old, neglected houses, to feed themselves at the expense of his fowls.

fowls.

Theobald asserts that there are eighteen varieties of mites. Dr. Woods, one of the best authorities, assures us that only five sorts are common—we must all be thankful-it is no worse. After many years' experience, it would in no way distress me to dispense with, say four of these varieties. Really, the poultry keeper's worst enemy is vermin. varieties. Reall enemy is vermin.

The bird tick, Dermanyssus Aviman—Imposing name for something about the size of a grain of sand—is particularly partial to pigeon lofts, and no wild bird is without it. Martins and swallows, that build in the barn, often infect eattle and horses, causing considerable annoyance. When empty, Mr. Dermanyssus is nearly colorless, but after its meal of blood, it is blood red for a while, then nearly brown. So close to this comes the gray or red mite, or poultry tick, that they are almost identical, the only difference being that they are slightly larger and usually much more plentiful.

Other unexpected menaces to poultry are har-ners serve for breeding places for their eggs, so let in all the sunlight possible.

If there are any parts of the house inaccessible to sun, scatter air slaked lime on them. That is a fair catalogue of the often unsuspected enemies which must be fought constantly.

Correspondence

Subscribers are entitled to advice of our Poultry Editor, free, through the columns of this department. Address Poultry Editor, COMFORT, Augusta, Maine. BE SURE to give your full name and address, otherwise your letter will receive no attention.

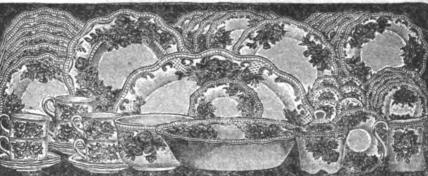

F. C. F.—Turkeys, or any other kind of hens, should have whole corn when setting, as it takes longer to digest, and pass through the intestines. When a bird is setting, she is liable to contract bowel trouble, if fed on rich mash food, and as her instinct tells her that the eggs must not be uncovered frequently, she will remain on the nest and suffer, as it is against bird or animal etiquette to defile their nests. The old henhouse in which you confined the setting turkey, probably contained cholera germs. It is always best to set turkeys under rough shelters in the open air. When the eggs under the common hens hatch, put the brood coops on fresh ground, as far as possible from other poultry. Give them nothing to eat for thirty-six hours; then only a pinch of bird gravel and sour milk cheese mixed. A thimbleful is enough for three baby turkeys. They should have that amount at least five times a day. Leave a small dish of sour milk always before them, in place of drinking water. After the fourth day add a small pinch of finely cracked grain to her food.

G. W. J.—The chicks had pneumonia. As you were

G. W. J.—The chicks had pneumonia. As you were using a fireless brooder, they may have been too cold at night, or, what is more likely, you neglected to dry out the pad or filling each day. And till you investigate, you have no idea of the amount of moisture which collects at the top of a fireless brooder during the night and if it is allowed to accumulate for two or three days, the atmosphere of the brooder when shut up at night is damp or unwholesome, and chicks are almost sure to contract either pneumonia or tuberculosis.

losis.

R. L. P.—The pen or stock could not have been healthy. Use a small quantity of iron in the drinking water. Give them free range on grass, clean, dry sleeping quarters and milk to drink. The old birds have "white comb," which shows that they are in a debilitated state. Look to the ventilation of the chicken house. Give them free range, if possible. If not, clean the house, and let in all the sun and air possible, by taking out the windows and doors, and covering with wire netting. Feed plenty of vegetable food, and add a small quantity of nux vomica to the drinking water. Rub the combs, wattles and head with sulphate of zinc ointment or carbolic vaseline.

You Need No Money. We Trust You. We Pay Freight. To gain a wider distribution for our strictly pure, high-grade groceries and family supplied offer ABSOLUTELY FREE, a magnificently embossed, artistically floral decorated, further than the control of 46-PC. DINNER SET for sale of 10 BOXES OF SOAP of extra quality and finely perfumed, giving as premiums, with each box of 7 large cakes, Baking Powder, Perfume, falcum Powder, leasspoons, Shears and Needles (as per Plan 250) here fillustrated, QUALITY as well as QUANT.

ITY are in this offer, as we buy in such large lots that we can afford to give more good goods.

ALL OF OUR PLANS SELL AT SIGHT, One pleased customer brings another and with our other Baking Powder, Tea, Coffee, Spice, Extract, Perfumeand Soap Offers, you will get duplicate orders and earn some of our many useful premiums such as Dinner Sets, Toilet Sets, Linen Sets, Silverware, Clocks Lamps Furnitus Graniteware, Russ Clocks, Lamps, Furniture, Graniteware, Rugs, DryGoods, Wearing Apparel, in fact, anything you need. We also pay large cash commission

WE PAY THE FREIGHT

we part the frequency of time to examine, deliver and collect before paying us one cert. Write at once for FREE SAMPLE OUTFIT and other things. If, after receiving them, you decide not to get up an order, you may keep everything we send you FREE of charge for the trouble in answering this advertisement. No license needed. We protect you. Our methods are honest. Satisfaction guaranteed. Reference: First National Bank, Provident Bank, Postmaster.)

SPECIAL FREE PRESENT.

We give a 6-Pc. High-Grade Granite Kitchen Set, or 12-Pc. Silverine Knife and Fork Set, or Elegant Decorated Parlor Lamp, FREE of all cost or work of any kind. Simply send us your name and address and ask for this FREE PRESENT.

We also give Beautiful Presents for appointing one or more Agents to work for us. You advance no money. You have nothing to risk. Remember, the SPECIAL PREMIUM AND SAMPLE OUTFIT are both absolutely free. A 2-cent stamp or post card is your only expense. WRITE TODAY. THE PURE FOOD CO., 893W. PEARL ST., CINCINNATI, OHIO.

THE RIGHT WAY Jim Riner and his wife were good, honest, industrious folks. Like a great many American families they wanted to have the best of everything. Jim loved his wike and would have given her anything in this world she wanted, had he been able to afford it, but although he worked steadily, it took all the money he carned to keep his family. If Mrs. Riner wanted a new dress or a piece of furniture for the home, it meant that they must deprive themselves of something else. One day she received a latter asking her to distribute a few high-grade household articles among her neighbors and friends. It only required a small pare of her time and she accepted theofor. For her services Mrs. Riner received a handome Dinner Set, then some fine Linens, a pretty lang, and many study values want to know more about the war Mrs. Riner received a home of the line of the control of the cont

ONLY $99 1½ Year's Satisfaction or Money Back Fine hand tailoring. Choice of many snappy, smart fabrics for dress or bus-laces wear. You save one half. Every penny back quick any time you are not well interest NO EXTRAS—WE PAY EXPRESS No strings to this offer. Not a pen extra for anything. We even prepail postage and express. extra for anything. We over all pertay and express. FREE PLATED PIN Classy lapel pin free with year first order to show with year first order to show the pertay of the pertay timited. SEND NO bead guide - supply limited. Cash Profits Our send CHICAGO TAILORS ASSOCIATION Dept. B 406, 515 So. Franklin St., CHICAGO

Shipped on Approval Pass.,34.7 H. P. 32x31/2 tires are prompt. Bush cars guaranteed or money back. 1918 models ready. Addr. J. H. Bush. free. Dept. H. 9 116-in Wheelbase Delco ignition—Elect. Stg. & Ltg.
BUSH MOTOR COMPANY, Besh Temple, Chi

FIBRE ARMS

4-POUND FIBRE LEGS-ON EASY TERMS Orthopedic Braces for All Deformities. Send for Booklet. Ruy Trautman, 657 Dean Building. Minneapolle, Minn

The Girl He Loved

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 10.)

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 10.)

the boot-boy, but he knew that Sir Thomas' mind was running in the same channel as his own.

"I'll have some beef," said Tommy to the butler, waving away a proferred dish. It was quite might to keep up appearances, but every minute might be precious. And then it came over him with a flat, deadly sinking that he was imagining monsense; because a cook chose to beat a boy and take a day's outing.

Strung up, tense, he felt as if every trivial word might mean something tonight. As he cut ap his beef he grew suddenly rigid in his chair.
A footnan was handing Allington a telegram, the pinky envelope seemed to swim on the silver tray to the boy's excited eyes.

Was this something—at last—from the detectives?

Allington with an impossive countenance.

tectives?
Allington, with an impassive countenance, crumpled the sheet and put it in his pocket.
"The Duchess of Avonmore would like to see you the first thing in the morning," he said.
"What for—" Tommy stopped himself. "Why didn't she wire me, I wonder?"
"That I don't know," said Allington. "If you don't want any more of an inferior dinner, suppose we adjourn. It seems to me," turning to the butler, "that the same sort of meal was served two days ago. Kindly give my compliments to the steward, and say I do not wish it to occur again."

again."
"Yes, sir.

again."
"Yes, sir. But Carrousel went out without leave last night. He is rather above himself, you know, sir," the butler explained hastily.
Allington made no answer. But as soon as he and Tommy reached the morning-room he shut the door, and his face was that of a different man.

man.
"Read that," he said. "Tell me what you think commy smoothed out the crumpled telegram saw the duchess' message was fiction.

"Wire to Atkinson, 14 Starr Street, Paddington," he read, "who, if any, of the servants has been in town during the week. A. Gordon."

ton," he read, "who, it any, or the servants has been in towa during the week. A. Gordon."

"What does it mean?" He shook like a leaf.

"I hope it means a clue. Why, did you jump so about the boot-boy and the cook? I hear he takes a great interest in him?"

Sir Thomas agreed with hearsay, but his tale aboved the interest Carrousel took was peculiar.

"I believe Carrousel did the poisoning," he said, below his breath. "I think the boot-boy caught him at it! And we've lost them again."

"Carrousel had a good alibi. It isn't possible," Allington returned. "Yet I don't like this business of the boy. What sort of a place do you suppose—" thoughtfully.

"No place." Tommy cut in short. "He's going to put that boy out of the way. He knows something. "Does this thing," tapping the telegram, "mean Gordon's in Starr street? What would he be there for? And what made him think any of the servants were in London?"

"That I don't know. But I might have guessed he was in Starr Street," absently. "I'm afraid he's wasting time. There's no hope there."

"So are we," sharply. "Aren't you going to answer that wire?"

"Yes! But I don't want the servants to know there 'is an answer. Will you go out the back way, and send one?"

"What'll I say?" breathless. For it seemed for the first time as if some one were doing something.

"Say, "The artist. Day before yesterday and stake would be so mad as to entangle nersell and the death of the man whose widow she wished to prove herself.

"I don't know what he means about the servants," he thought. "If he's trying to mix up one of them with Mrs. Murray, he's in a mare's nest. But if Monsieur Carrousel does not return I'll get a warrant out for him, on the pretext of that boy."

It was three miles to the telegraph office; he allowed two hours for Tommy to come and go; but when three had gone, and four, he began to wonder if in this house of horror there was still more to come. The night was dark as a wolf's mouth outside. After one glance without, Mr. Allington opened the door into the deserted hall. The house was absolutely silent, for it was after twelve, and the servants had gone to bed.

The lawyer slipped off his boots and vanished The lawyer slipped off his boots and vanished down the passage to the kitchen. When he returned there was a strange look on his face, though until tonight what he had discovered would have meant absolutely nothing to him. As he stood once more in the morning-room, a light tap came on the window. With instinctive, reasonless caution, he extinguished the light before he opened the wooden shutters and let Sir Thomas in.

"What kept you?" he said.

"What kept you?" he said.
"Hush!" said Tommy. "Carrousel's going by outside."

The Wishing Ring

By Clarence T. Hubbard

Copyright, 1918, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher, Inc.

By Clarence

T. Hubbard

Tabbit that helped him earn two hundred and liventy-five dollars each week.

SCOPTED down the capited asian servers are considered to the property fine and the regular best girl, Gertie English followed the nimble-legged usher who directed them to their two choice sears in the fourth row cendered a week in advance, they immediately became absorbed in the tumblings of the Swedish gymnasts the opening act of seven steller features detected a week in advance, they immediately became absorbed in the tumblings of the Swedish gymnasts the opening act of seven steller features that the server hars and chairs their ball-bearing arms only resting when they paused to dry them on fresh ironed handkerchlefs. The orchestra tarrareo har ragain which there is a server har and chairs their ball-bearing arms only resting when they paused to dry them on fresh ironed handkerchlefs. The orchestra tarrareo har ragain which there is a secone fun.

Anil vociferous applause. Hathaway the seem fun.

Anil vociferous applause which some lessed manifer is a seem fun.

Anil vociferous applause. Hathaway the seem fun.

Anil vociferou

see you."

"All right," came back Jimmy's answer. "I'll have to practice it up a bit but you wait—next time I come over I'll do it for you."

Gertie laughed and both gave their attention to the closing act while Hathaway the Great in his dressing-room turned back the double with a first little black have parting the plantful. in his dressing-room turned back the double side of his little black bag patting the playful

the dark, Allington, the imperturbable,

In the dark, Allington, the imperturbable, started.

"He's come back, then!" he whispered. "He's cleverer than I thought—or innocent."

"Why shouldn't he be innocent?" cried Tommy, hysterically. "Light a candle; it's so beastly dark here. I waited for an answer, and I saw Carrousel get off the train."

"Was the boy with him?"

"It doesn't matter whether he was or wasn't. Read that:" as the candle burned blue and then yellow, he flung a telegram to Allington, and hid his weary face on his arms. "We're all wrong."

"Not my man at all," Allington read, and the badly written lines sickened him with disappointment. "I was mistaken. Am doing no good here. Will be down tomorrow to consult. Unless you know something, am worse than when I started. "A. G."

Allington's discovery of the evening dwindled away to nothing again. He had no heart to speak of it since Carrousel was evidently not concerned in it.
"Don't despair till we find out what this means," he said slowly. But in his soul he knew that they had been led away by a will-o'the-wisp, made of suspicion, coincidence, and the ill treatment of a boot-boy. Their supposed clue was as false as a pack of cards!

CHAPTER XXXV.

But it was not to Levallion Castle that Adrian Gordon came in the crisp blue and gold of the autumn evening.

Ravenel, scated on her bed, with her sluggish blood barely moving in her veins, leaped to her feet as her door opened.

"You!" she cried, and if for am instant her face was transfigured, the next she put out her trembling hands as if to warn him to stay where he was. "How did you get in?"

"As men do who storm a city wall," he might have answered truly; but he only said: "Quite easily," and let his eyes look their fill on the face of the only woman in the world.

The matron after one shrewd glance turned her back on them. But it was trouble wasted; neither of them thought of her. Her eyes were on him as his on her. And the dead, ugly pallor of her face that had been like a rose, the black crisics round her dill eyes the thin trans. "What'll 1 say!" Divertainess for the first time as if some one were doing something.
"Say, "The artist. Day before yesterday and today. Answer." Sign your name."

He handed Sir Thomas some money and a stray cap from a table. He had never seemed so human before. But as Tommy disappeared through the French window the lawyer, closing the shutters behind him, gave a hopeless sigh.
Captain Gordon was in Starr Street because of Mrs. Murray—as if a woman with so much at stake would be so mad as to entangle herself in the death of the man whose widow she wished to prove herself.
"I don't know what he means about the servants," he thought. "If he's trying to mix up one of them with Mrs. Murray, he's in a mare's nest. But if Monsieur Carrousel does not return l'il get a warrant out for him, on the pretext of that boy."

It was three miles to the telegraph office; he allowed two hours for Tommy to come and go; but when three had gone, and four, he began but when three had gone, and four, he began but when three had gone, and four, he began but when three had gone, and four, he began but were flying, "Nel." he said, for the minutes were fl

s Six feet of bare floor lay between them, that was all; yet shame and the grave could part them no more utterly.

"Nel," he said, for the minutes were flying, "I had to come. You're not angry?"

"No," she whispered. And if for a minute she had thought he brought her good news, she knew now he had none. Gordon turned and saw the matron. Before he could speak she deliberately put her fingers in her ears. Ten juries might is ask her what they said, and she could tell them nothing. The look in the woman's eyes sent. Adrian to Ravenel's side.

"Nel," he whispered, "tell me, for God's sake! who you saw in that room, and why you lied at the inquest? Did you think it was I?"

"I know it wasn't, now. I might always have known, but I couldn't think—afterward."

"But you did see some one?"

"I said not," quietly. "It wouldn't do me any good now to let them know I lied."

"If I had done it twenty times I wouldn't have had you hold your tongue to save me." He rabbit that helped him earn two hundred and twenty-five dollars each week.

Four days after Gertie sat in the parlor expectantly waiting for Jim's periodical call. His familiar footsteps brought her to the door in chief and displayed the old this state in that little invisible rabbit?" laughed Gertie.

"Oh, he's in there yet," interrupted her Dad putting his arm in the bag, "Feel him, Ma?"

"I do feel a little hare," said Ma rubbing her hand up his arm, "But you can't fool me. It took me two days to make that bag!"

was hoarse with pain. "How could you think that I, who'd gone to London, was in Levallion's was hoarse with pain. "How could you think that I, who'd gone to London, was in Levallion's house?"

"I didn't think." She met his eyes with hers, dull from nights of agony. "I took down the bottle; looked up, and thought I saw you going out the door! I was frightened. I felt as if I had seen a ghost. When Jacobs growled and bristled, I ran. And then—the stuff killed him." Horror twisting her pale lips. "How could I tell? How was I to know you had not come back, for some reason? I—I never for one second thought you killed him."

"My own heart," said the man, with a breath like a sob, "don't defend yourself to me. I know you never thought that. But if you won't tell about the figure you saw, I will. Don't you know some one must?"

"You'd do no good," gently. "Only make me a llar. And even now, Adrian, I couldn't swear the figure was real and not my fancy. I'd been trying all that day to put you out of my mind."

"But you said the bottle was warm!"

"Quite warm," she shuddered, "like blood. But that was what frightened mo—afterward. I remembered what you'd said about poisoning him—and yet I wouldn't, wouldn't believe it!"

"Some one had been carrying it in a hot hand," he cried. "The same person who put those bottles in your room. Did you think I would have done that?" bitterly.

"I knew you wouldn't, buy ou must remember that I knew nothing about those bottles till my evidence was finished." simply.

"There's a God, they say!" he said, between his teeth. "If there is, He won't let the guilty escape. Nel, promise me something. Trust me, even if things come to the worst. There'll be help somewhere!" very low.

"Not for me," quietly. "You've been trying all this time and found out nothing. I see it in your face."

"It hought of Mrs. Murray," he said painfully, and I'm afraid I'm wrong. She had nothing to gain and revenge to lose. The talk would have been worse than death to him."

He answered with that utter honesty she had loved in him.

"Nel, you would not believe what Hester says about Levallion. He never went t

Read The Whole Story Now!

will hold you entranced to the very end. It is a wonderful story by a wonderful writer. Regular installments will ap-Regular installments will appear in Comport each month but you needn't wait inorder to get the whole story as we will give you free the ecomplete stery in book form splendidly printed in a handsome colored paper bound edition. Send us only one one-year subscription (not your own) to Comport at 35 cents and we will send you as copy of the book free by mail postpaid. Don't wait for the installments. Read the whole installments. Read the whole story now by accepting this offer at once.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

"I'll see you hundreds of times, please God.
Day in and day out," but his eyes were not on hers.
"You won't you can't!" The self-control that

"I'll see you hundreds of times, please God. Day in and day out." but his eyes were not on hers.

"You won't, you can't!" The self-control that, had held her since that dreadful night was gone now. "Adrian!" she wried, wild, terriffed, broken, "they!" hang me. I can't prove I did not do it. If ten matrons had been looking on, he would have caught her to him.

"Never," he said, low in her ear. "Not while I can speak and see." But what he meant never dawned on tier.

"Put that thought from you. I swear you can." For with that rag—and his tweed suit could easily be torn—there was one way open still.

"If they let me go tomorrow, the world would think we did it," she gasped. "There's blood between us. We'd be as far apart as if I died." "If I never see you on this side the grave." the man cried passionately, "do you think I'll ever be really parted from you? What are a few years—when some time we'll wake and find it's the Resurrection Day? Love, don't grieve!" For as he spoke she remembered how once it when the dead came out of their graves, and now God had made that the only hope left.

"Listen," he said, "I'll have to go in a minute. I came to tell you something. I let you think I'ld found out nothing; I've found out one way. There'll be no death for you, my sweetheart, no prison. I can't tell you what I know, but it will set you free."

"No, no, no!" Tears blinded her. She caught him to her madly. "Not that, never that."

"Not that." He hushed her like a child; and if ever a lie was pardoned, his was. "Be at peace; not that. Oh! what did we do that we should end like this?" he broke out fiercely, more to himself than to her.

"My heart, we'll wake some day in paradise," she said, very low, for his passion steadied her. "And perhaps it won't be long."

It estooped and kissed her as a man whose minutes are numbered; held her close in agony that hurt her and him.

"Be brave," he muttered, for he was broken utterly. "Remember you're safe. Eat what they give you," and the homely, kindly detail was and prayed he had n he thought, turning away.

TO BE CONTINUED.

If You Are A Woman Who Loves Crochet And Tatting Here Is A Set Of Books You Will Be Delighted To Own!

AT ONE of these books alone is a veritable treasure heuse of the newest, most beautiful designs. The seven books combined form a complete library in which you will find any pattern in crocheting and tatting you could possibly sak for. You will fairly revel in the many handsome designs shown, There are edgings, beadings, insertions and laces for every conceivable use. The illustrations are measured photographs of the finished work and show every thread so plainly that they are almost as good to work from as the directions themselves. The directions are adapted for either beginner or expert. They tell stitch by stitch how each pattern is worked, also the quantity and size of material required and the correct sizes of hooks to be used. Following is a description of each book. They are 8 by 18 1-2 inches; in size with the exception of Volume I which is 9 1-2 by 13 inches. Flease order by numbers.

Volume 1 Crocheted yokes for combinations or envelopes, nightgowns, correct covers, etc.—fifteem all different, exquisite designs.

Volume 2 Handsome crocheted edgings and chiefs, underwear, dresses and a multitude of other uses,—thirty-three different designs.

Volume 3 Eighteen lovely designs in Cluny insertions and laces for centerpieces, library soarfs, boudoir caps, corset cover yokes, piano scarfs, curtains, chemises, envelopes or combination suits.

Volume 4 Twomty-five handsome designs in artistic crochet for yokes, boudoir caps, candle shades, baby bonnets, bedspreads, doilies, library scarfs, pillows, centerpieces, portiere, medalions, curtains, etc., etc. Volume 5 Twemty-five designs in neverty and clover leaf crochet, including mile-a-minute and clover leaf crocheted yokes, primrose and sunflower yokes; doilies, centerpieces, boudoir caps unique edges and insertions for serving trays; novelty aprons and collars.

Volume 6 Maltese and Irish crochet, a varied and beautiful assortment of tatted handkerchief edges, edgings and insertions, tatted yokes, boudoir caps, towel edges, medallions; yokes, breakfast caps, centerpieces, edgings and lace in Maltese crochet and yokes in Irish crochet.

Volume 7 Thirty handsome novelty crochests.

Volume 7 Thirty handsome novelty crochests.

Per winkle, and Venetian yokes; bondoir caps, monkey face ilbrary searf, and isce pillow; large and small baskets, hat pin holder; iewel box, vanity tray coin purse, utility bag, starfish dolly, pineapple centerpiece; edgings and insertions in pillow lace; daisy edging; spider, bell, rick-rack, novelty and coronation braid laces.

with a discrete ways and a second to these splendid books before the assortment is broken. If however you do not care for the whole library at this time we have arranged the following special offers which give you the opportunity to secure any three books or the entire seven books. Whem ordering please he very careful to state the desired number of each book.

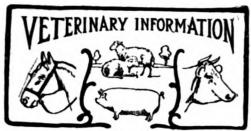

Offer 8011. For one one-year subscription (see will send you own) to Comport at 35 cents we will send you amy three books free by parcel post prepaid. Be sure to mention numbers of books wanted.

Offer No. 8972. For two one-year subscriptions to books wanted.

Offer No. 8972. For two one-year subscriptions to will send you the complete library just as described above—seven volumes in all, handsomely bound printed on high-grade paper and containing nearly 200 beautiful photographic alliastrations of all that is new and pretty in crochet and tatting designs with complete directions for working. When ordering please be sure to mention number of each book wanted.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine

The state of

Subscribers are invited to write to this department asking for any information desired relative to the treatment of animal troubles. Questions will be answered in these columns free by an eminent veterinarian. Describe the trouble fully, sign full name and give your address; direct all correspondence to the Veterinary Department, COMFORT, Augusta, Maine. No attention will be given any inquiry which lacks the sender's full name and address, but we will print only initials if so requested.

LAMENESS.—I have a mare that stands sixteen hands high and weighs about nine hundred and fifty. She is pastured on quite a steep hill. The other morning she came down to the bars limping as though she had string halt. Her withers were bruised and dusty, as though she had fallen, and her right hind leg, above the hock was swollen and full of pus.—C. T.

A.—We cannot give confident advice in such a case of lameness, as a personal examination is necessary to determine the seat and cause of the trouble. When an injury causes soreness and swelling such as you describe, it is a good plan to keep the part wrapped with blankets wrung out of hot water. If the mare still is lame, have the local graduate veterinarian make the necessary examination.

GARGET.—I have a pure-bred Jersey cow that was GARGET.—I have a pure-bred Jersey cow that was six years old last spring. She found her first calf at the age of twenty months. She was in splendid condition and did fine with that calf. With last two she has given lumpy milk, sometimes out of one side and then out of the other, the affected side being hard and lumpy. She is dry and fat enough for beef.—Mrs. J. W. C.

J. W. C.

A.—As such a condition will always give more or less trouble and unfits the milk for use, we should advise you to sell the cow to the butcher. It rarely pays to bother with an udder affected in the way you describe.

Internal Bleeding.—Can you tell me what was the matter with my mare? Her tongue and gums were white and her ears cold. When I tried to drench her she would fail and lie still for a while, then get up. She didn't appear to be in much pain. She lived five hours. She had been running on the range eating bunch grass.—F. U.

A.—The fact that the tongue and gums turned white indicates that there was rupture of an internal blood vessel and fatal bleeding. You should have opened the mare to determine the cause of death.

HABLESS SPOT.—Please tell me how to make the HARLESS SPOT.—Please tell me how to make the hair grow in a place that has been blistered on a horse.—P. L. S.

A.—H the hair roots were killed by the blister, and that is likely, hair will not grow again. The scar could be cut out by a surgeon and the new wound bealed so as to leave no unsightly, scar.

ALLES HYLESE T. DESCRIPTION OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY healed so as to leave no unsightly, scar.

AILING HEIFER.—I have a fourteen-months-old, half Holstein heifer calf that has something like a tumor in the wormb—a growth of some sort about one inch long and the size of a lead pencil. Could she be bred?

—D. F. H.

A.—It would be impossible to give a confident opinion without making an examination in this case. A tumor may be present, and if so could be easily removed by a surgeon, but there is a possibility that the animal is a Lermaphrodite and sterile.

Lermsphrodite and sterile.

DISEASED CATTLE.—Will you tell me what is the matter with my cow? A neighbor took the calf, which is small. It laid around for days before it could get up to suckle. I gave the cow slop; she doesn't eat it very good. A neighbor told me to cut her tail. If it didn't bleed she had the hollow horn. It bled.—R. C. M.

A.—We strongly suspect that the cow and heifer are afflicted with tuberculosis, which is contagious and incurable, and if that is so, all of the cows may be affected. At once have a qualified veterinarian apply the tuberculin test. There is no such disease as hollow horn. The horns of all adult cattle are hollow.

SCAR.—Will you give me a remedy to grow hair on SCAR.—Will you give me a remedy to grow hair on a horse that has been burned or scalded, or burned from using a liniment and left a scar.—M. M. A.

A.—The hair roots in such cases have been killed so that hair cannot grow again, and medicines will not help. Have a surgeon cut out the scar and stitch the wound to effect healing by "primary intention."

wound to effect healing by "primary intention."

WOUND.—I have a fine mule, one year old, that received, two months ago, a wire cut across the side of nose, three or four inches above the opening of the nostril. Although it was cut clear across the side of the nose and bled freely, I did not give it much attention after the bleeding stopped. It soon healed and left but little scar. I notice it has begun to disfigure her nose. The nostril on that side appears to be hanging down and in too much of a closed condition and oblong in shape, while the other is full and round. The end of nose or lip seems turned to the right, the cut is on the left. I think in healing, the air passage in the nostril must have closed some, as I can hardly see any movement of the muscles there. I have thought of trying to open it. Can you tell me what to do?—A. S. S.

UNCLE CHARLIE'S LIFE E IN PICTURES

Uncle Charlie's Picture Book Good as a Visit to His Home

Visit Uncle Charlie in his famous chicken coop and see how he lives and works. Big, beautiful, full page, half-tone cuts equal to photographs, that show Uncle Charlie and his charming assistants Maria and the Goat in every phase of their busy lives. See Uncle Charlie sitting in a chair for first time in nineteen years, and get a peep at his big son, mother, school and church, and see him as an actor playing many

UNCLE CHARLIES STORY BOOK

CHARLES NOEL DOUGLAS

A CONTRACTOR OF STREET

Full of the most delightful stories ever written. You will laugh one min-ute and cry the next as you read these as you read these entrancing stories of Uncle Charlie's life. Read how Maria and Billy the Gost met Uncle Charlie; read "Lily tory ever written. 160

Or Help Wanted" the funniest story ever written. 160 pages of mirth and merriment, pathos and tears, illustrated and beautifully bound in silk cloth, stiff covers, gold topped. Free for three subs at 35c. each—one dollar and five cents in all.

Also bound in heavy fancy blue paper covers for only two subs at 35c. each—seventy cents in all. Ideal birth-day presents. COMFORT'S greatest premium bargains. Work for them today. Secure one or both of these superb souvenirs of this remarkable man who devotes his time and talents to the service of humanity.

Note. Full particulars of how to secure Uncle Charlie's splendid poems and some book will be found at the end of the League of Cousins' Department.

A.—We suspect that paralysis of the part described has resulted from cutting of the nerves by the wound mentioned, and if so treatment will do no good, but it is barely possible that recovery may take place in time. Do not attempt treatment, but if possible take the mule to a graduate veterinarian for examination. Possibly the nasal bones were severed and are out of place.

ABORTION.—What caused three of my cows in good flesh and healthy to lose their calves three months before the freshening? They go up and down a ditch about three feet deep. Could the medicine put in chicken water hurt them? They might have drank some of it. They run on good wild grass pasture.—MRS. B. D. J.

A.—The chicken medicine would not be likely to injure the cows. Infection with germs no doubt has caused the abortions and there is no successful treatment, but cows in time may become immune and carry their calves the full time. If you keep the cows, they should not be rebred sooner than six months from date of aborting. Once daily for ten days and again daily for two or three weeks before breeding, syringe out the vagina of each cow with lukewarm water containing 30 grains of permagnante of potash per gallou. Use two quarts each time. Similarly treat heigrs. Cleanse, disinfect and whitewash the stable.

Sores.—I have a coming four-year-old cow. Her

Sories.—I have a coming four-year-old cow. Her back is broken out with sores that seem to be inflamed. She eats good and appears well. What is the trouble and what can be done?—H. J.

A.—We suspect that grubs (larvæ) of the ox warble fly will be found in the sores or boils upon this cow's back. Squeeze them out by pressing down hard upon each boil with the open mouth of a large bottle; then destroy the grubs. If we have not correctly understood the case, please give us a better description of the condition present.

GARDET.—About six months are my cow come in the condition present.

GARGET.—About six months ago my cow came in from pasture with one quarter of her udder swollen to nearly twice its size. She gave bloody milk from that teat for the first two or three days, but the milk looks as good as the other now. (2) I have another cow that has a hard lump, the size of a large hen's egg, on the small part of her neck. It is not attached to the jaw bone. What can I do?—O. W. C. A.—An injury caused the swelling and bleeding, and as the milk is normal now no further trouble may be experienced. It would be well, however, to give that quarter a good hand rubbing night and morning, using a little sweet oil or vaseline upon the hands. (2) The thyroid gland apparently is enlarged, but such a condition is not serious and we should advise leaving the lump alone.

Tumor.—I have a two-year-old heifer that has an lump alone.

Tumor.—I have a two-year-old heifer that has an enlargement on her jaw just over the jugular vein. In three weeks it has grown to the size one half of a cocoanut. What is the trouble and cure?—Mss. W. J. K. A.—Without an examination we cannot determine the exact nature of the lump described, but as it may be enlargement of a gland from tuberculosis it would be enlargement of a gland from tuberculosis it would be well to have the helfer tested with tuberculin. Meanwhile clip off the hair and apply tincture of iodine every other day. If it softens, pus should be liberated by lancing. It may turn out to be "lump jaw" (actinomycosis).

Summer Itch.—I have a mule seven years old that (actinomycosis).

SUMMER ITCH.—I have a mule seven years old that has been troubled every spring with a kind of dry scabby sores that break out over the body. He scratches continually and the hair comes off in patches.—C. D. A.—Clip the mule each spring and fall. Do not feed corn or grass in summer. If the trouble starts, mix one tablespoonful of granular hyposulphite of soda in the feed once daily and wet affected parts with a lotton composed of one dram of carbolic acid, 30 grains of menthol and one half ounce of granular hyposulphite of soda to the quart of cold soft water.

Thense—My mule ten years old her three in the start in the start in the start in the solution composed of the solution composed of the solution composed of the start in the s of soda to the quart of cold soft water.

Thrush.—My mule, ten years old, has thrush in her feet. She is stiff in her knee joints. They have little puffs swelled up on them and she is lame in her feet. In plowing she will bow her head up and down and stretch her neck as far forward as she can and then turn her head to one side. When I turn her in the lot, she is restless, walking for hours at a time back and forth in a narrow trail.—B. L. T.

A.—There is no cure for chronic founder and that may be present, but a personal examination would be necessary for a confident diagnosis. To cure thrush, cleanse the cleft of the frog; then pack in calomei with oakum on top and renew the dressing daily. Keep the stall floor clean and dry.

Comfort's League of Cousins

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 9.)

be sure of squaring yourself, wait until next winter when it is forty below zero, and present her with a ton of coal and she will be your friend for life, and I think also she will find a tune for that little poem of yours. If she won't, I'm sure Mamie Bill will.

1810 Lafontaine St., KOKOMO, IND.

1810 Lafontaine St., Kokomo, Ind.

DEAR UNCLE CHARLIE:

I am a girl sixteen years of age. I am five feet four inches tall and have brown eyes and real black hair. I had to quit school on account of my heart. Some of my girl friends and I want to start a little sewing club. Write and tell me your advice.

Your friend, HATTIE LOU.

P. S.—Please send me some boy's address.

that soon heated and has begun to disfigure de appears to be hanged to closed condition and er is full and round rise full and round organic heart trouble, and I fervently hope you have not, take things as easily as possible. Don't run or excite yourself, and remember nothing taxes the heart so much as running upstairs. I could tell you how to start an Indian club, but I don't know much about organizing a sewing club. The Indian club you just grab by the tail and start 4 twirling. A sewing club I imagine requires different treatment. You will of course want to buy some needles, probably a couple of carloads would do to start with. Next you have to buy a few quarts of sewing club I imagine requires different treatment. You will of course want to buy some needles, probably a couple of carloads would do to start with. Next you have to buy a few quarts of sewing club I imagine requires different treatment. You will of course want to buy some needles, probably a couple of carloads would do to start with. Next you have to buy a few quarts of sewing cub I imagine requires different treatment. You will of course want to buy some needles, probably a couple of carloads would do to start with. Next you have to buy a few quarts of sewing couple of carloads would do to start with. Next you have to buy a few quarts of sewing couple of carloads would do to start with. Next you have to buy a few quarts of sewing refresh the needle has jabbed you will know that the needle has jabbed you will know that the needle has jabbed you may be sued for damages, so be careful how you insert the thread. After you have you insert he thread. After you have you insert he thread through five full the most of the full that the ful

DEAR UNCLE CHARLIE:

Were I not so weak grammatically, I would like to tell you of some of the conditions in this county, and of which I suppose you never dreamed. A county official informed me that the population of McPherson County was seven eighths German, and a German frau told me that they were practically all German sympathizers excepting herself. It—the county—is almost solidly German from the east line of McPherson County to the Missouri river. Our officers in the court house are all German excepting one and he would not have gotten in but the register of deeds died and he was appointed. The Germans have the controlling power and the "whites" have no chance, and it is so with every other industry here. I hope however to see the time when there won't be a German hoding office in the United States, not even as road overseer. It should be that way. A short time before war was declared there was an address delivered here by a German and there were only three Americans present. The speaker became very enthused and leaped high in the air and shouted "Deutchland Uber Alles." He poisoned their uneducated minds most thoroughly. Some might ask why don't we try to Americanize them and teach them something? You might talk all day and explain matters to them and when you got through they would only shrug the ir shoulders and say: "Der English (Americans) know not anytings." I could tell you more about their habits of living and many other things, but perhaps it would weary you to hear of it. If you know anything about them it would surprise you. We must lick the Kaiser and his Sunday school class thing about them it would surprise you. We must lick the Kaiser and his Sunday school class.

AMERICAN.

For obvious reasons I have refrained from giving the name of the writer of this ietter. Living in what is practically a foreign community, as she does, things might be made very unpleasant for her by her Kaiser-worshipping neighbors. Conditions revealed in this letter are little short of appalling, but the menace of the unassimilated immigrant was realized and discussed thirty years ago, but only recently were any measures taken to deal drastically with the arrogant, impudent German colonists. It is encouraging to note that in South Dakota no church services are to be permitted to be field in the German language until further notice. No speaker or Jecturer may use German in a public address, and no school, public or private, is to be allowed to employ German as a means of instruction or expression. In Iowa the authorities have done all that South Dakota has done and a lot more, for there nobody is to be allowed to talk German on the trains, street cars, in places of public assemblage, or over the telephone. Strange to say, however, nothing has been done to prevent the printing or circulating of German newspapers, which naturally did all that lay in their power to keep their readers from becoming Americanized. Thank God, the war and its menace to this country and world liberty is beginning to open the eyes of a vast number of our citizens of German birth or blood. They are beginning to realize that they have not given this country, to which they owe everything, a square deal, and they now see that their interests lie with Uncle Sam and not with the Butcher of Berlin. The Turnverein of Jopilin, Missouri, disbanded recently and gave all its property, valued at $25,000, to the American Red Cross. The organization then made public this announcement, which every American will read with joy and which should inspire every German who has sought these shores to better himself, with a sense of loyality and devotion to a land who to the worst gang of brutes and beasts that ever disgraced the earth.

DEAR UNCLE CHARLIE:

I am a young girl sixteen years old and a member of your family. I live on a small farm of twenty acres, fourteen miles from the city. My father goes to market every week and we have a lot of work to do. I raise a lot of chickens but it seems some of them were slackers because they do not lay. Do you know what will make hens lay? Last year I raised a nice calf and this year I will raise a pig, because bacon is as necessary as bullets to lick the Kaiser, and I sure do hope this horrid war will soon stop. I have a brother in the service. He is a marine and is probably "over there" by now. What do you think about the war bread Uncle? Do you think it will make us have indigestion? I have heard that it was healthy. Your loving niece, EMMA M. KLINE.

DEAR UNCLE CHARLIE:

make us have indigestion? I have heard that it was healthy. Your loving siece, EMMA M. KLINE.

I deeply regret, Emma, that your hens refuse to help Mr. Hoover and decline to lay. What I suggest is that you go out and call a meeting of all your hen family and explain to them that they must do their bit toward winning the war by producing all the eggs they can. Maybe these hens have had their minds poisoned by German propaganda. One of the Kaiser's agents has possibly been reading extracts to them from German-American "socialist papers." That kind of treasonable Bolsheviki bunk would stop a hen from laying anything except a beer stein, an iron cross, a Zeppelin or a tintype of the Kaiser. That war bread filled me full of something. I'm not sure yet whether it is patriotism or indigestion, anyhow it has so thrilled me with martial ardor that I'm ready not only to go out and swat the Kaiser, but also the man who made the bread. Most people have not learned the art of making good war bread. Why not try a little war bread on the chickens and start the phonograph playing the Sar Spangled Banner, while they are eating it? That surely ought to get results. When you remember that it took this country nearly four years before it got war conscious and realized that Germany had to be licked, don't wonder if a lot of poor benighted old hens have forgotten their patriotism, are failing to do their bit and are following in the slimy trail of the pacifist, the conscienceless objector and the slacker. Of course if the hens refuse to lay you'll have to get an axe and lay for them, as feed is too expensive to waste on hens with pro-German tendencies. You should not hope for this horrid war to stop until it stops right. If this war were to stop right now we should have a Prussianized world which would simply mean hell with the lid off. You would probably have an experience worse than death and have the pleasure and privilege of seeing your parents murdered before your eyes. Of six thousand young carries and the way the Hun wages wa

Comfort's League of Cousins

The League of Gousins was founded as a means of bringing the scattered members of COMPORT'S immense circle of readers into one big. happy family. Its aim is to promote a feeling of kinship and relationship among all readers. Membership is restricted to COMPORT subscribers and cests forty cents, only five cents more than the regular subscription to COMPORT which is included. The forty cents makes you a member of the League and give you an extractive League button with the letters "G. L. O. G.," a handsome certificate of membership with your name engressed thereon, and the privilege of having your name in the letter list, also a pald-in-advance subscription to COMPORT, You continue a League member as long as you keep up your subscription to COMPORT. There are no annual dues, so after you have ence joined all you have to do to keep in good standing is to keep your subscription to COMPORT paid up.

How to become a Member

How to become a Member

Send forty cents to COMFORT'S Subscription Department, Augusta, Maine, with your request to be admitted into COMFORT'S LEAGUE OF COUSINS, and you will at once receive the League button and your membership certificate and number; you will also receive COMFORT for one year if you are a near a new subscriber; but if you are already a subscriber your subscription will be renewed or extended one full year beyond date of expiration.

The League numbering over ferty thousand members, undoubtedly is the greatest society of young people on earth.

Address all letters to COMFORT, Augusta, Maine, and they will promptly reach the head of the department for which they are intended.

All Worsted Serges
Pants Made to Order 9 orstomake a pair of fine blue Express paid Wonderful thought of for high cla New Plan Moving Picture Tie-Up RELIABLE TAILORING CC. 345 S. Peoria St., Chicago, Ill.

League Shut-in and Mercy Work for August ngton Civil Service School, 1015 Marden Bldg., Washington, D. C.

"Inasmuch as ye have done it unto the least of these ye have done it unto Me."

Written references from postmaster and physician must positively accompany all appeals from shut-ins. Appeals unaccompanied by written references will be destroyed.

ences will be destroyed.

Miss Sarah Ruth Deal, R. R. 5, Stuart, Va. Crippled from rheumatism. Sick, poor and needy. Send her some cheer. Mrs. Shellie Craddock, R. R. 2, Price, N. C. Has lung and heart trouble. Well recommended. Send her some assistance. Snow Tucker, R. R. 6, Box 46, Fayette, Ala. Badly crippled since childhood. Hip, ankle and arm out of place. Poor and needy. Send him a dlime shower. Mrs. M. E. Knight, Prosperity, S. C. Widow. Sick, aged and poor. Send her some of the sympathy that buys bread. Claud Shifflet, R. R., 3, Richmond, Ky. Helpless invalid. Fifteen years of age. Send him cheery letters and anything that will help brighten his life. Sarah E. (Continued on page 21.) (CONTINUED ON PAGE 21.)

Birth-stone Rings

Genuine Gold Filled

Guaranteed For 5 Years

For A Club Of Two!

THE most popular lady's rings worm today are these beautiful birthstone rings. Not only is it considered lucky to wear one of them but they are now and always will be exceedingly stylish. We are able to illustrate only three of the rings but there are twelve in all—a different stone for each month of the year and of course you should wear the stone that is symbolical of the month you were born. The following is a list of the twelve rings, names of the stones, the month to which one applies and its symbol.

No. 7632. January, The Garnet, Symbol of Pure Love.
No. 7652. March, The Bloodstone, Symbol of Courage.
No. 7652. March, The Diamond, Symbol of Purity.
No. 7682. June, The Agate, Symbol of Immortality.
No. 7682. June, The Agate, Symbol of Health and Long Llie.
No. 7692. July, The Ruby, Symbol of Charity,
No. 7692. August, The Sardonyx, Symbol of Happiness.
No. 7722. September, The Sapphire, Symbol of Constancy.
No. 7722. October, The Opal, Symbol of Club Offer. For two one-tions to COMPORT at 35c each, we will send you one of these beautiful gold-filled birth-atone rings by parcel post prepaid. Please he sure to give size and number of ring wanted. Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

No. 7692. July, and the Sardonyx, Symbol of No. 7792. August, The Sardonyx, Symbol of Happiness.

No. 7712. September, The Sapphire, Symbol of Constancy.

No. 7712. October, The Opal, Symbol of Hope.

No. 7732. November, The Topaz, Symbol of Friendship.

No. 7742. December, The Turquoise, Symbol of Friend ou can tell exactly what size ring you wear as: Put a stiff piece of paper around the
. Out the paper off so that when drawn ends exactly meet. Then lay the paper the line O and the other end will indicate s instructions your ring will be a perfect fit. 8 10 11 12 13

Conducted by Cousin Marion

In writing this department always sign your true name and give your address; if not, your letter will receive no attention. Name will not be published.

Y unusual amiability this month is partly due to the pleasing sights I witnessed while on my vacation. No, Imogene and Troubled Girlie and Sad Brown Eyes, I shall not tell you where I spend my vacations and it perfectly good money just for a rest and change, do you suppose I want you pouring your troubles into my control of the state of the perfectly good money just for a rest and change, do you suppose I want you pouring your troubles into my ears and shedding tears all over my newest summer dresses. I should say not. But this is what pleased me so much. Instead of letting some man hold her hands and whisper sweet mothings to her, in usual summer girl style, every girl's hands were holding knitting of some sort and they were so busy with their "knit one, purl one," that they couldn't stop to listen to the sweetest nothings man ever thought of, and some of them are great little thinkers, aren't they? But, after all, I was very glad to get back to my work.

The first letter is from Bright Eyes, of Arkansas and you've got the right idea, Bright Eyes, when you say you always try to look on the bright side of life, and you will find there are more bright sides in life to the unengaged girl than there are to the one that is engaged; at least when she is only sixteen years old. Don't take your love affairs too seriously and don't give up the attentions of other boys until your fance gives up other girls. Tell him that you don't care for other boys but go with them just for fun and that you shall continue to do so just as long as he goes with other girls, even if it is just for fun, as he tries to make you believe. What is sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander, though that doesn't mean that I'm calling you a goose.

Arkansas Hoosier.—Yours was a very sensible let-

ARKANSAS HOOSIER.—Yours was a very sensible letter and I think you are doing right in refusing to let an old family feud come between you and your life's happiness and it is wrong of your parents to insist upon it. Wait a year or two and then if you think as you do now, get married and I'll give you my good wishes now to accumulate until that happy day, and forever after.

BLACK EYE, Decatur, Ky,—How did you lose the other one, dearie, or is it a different color? If you had both eyes you could see that you are better off mmarried and happy than married and unhappy and I really don't think you would be happy to marry a of nineteen.

I really don't think you would be happy to marry a boy of nineteen.

Bum, Lebanon, Ohio.—Don't let your farmer friend take too much for granted, and feel too sure of you. Some Sunday when he calls, do not be at home and if he wants to know why you were not, tell him that if he had said he was coming or asked if he could come, you would have stayed home. Perhaps that will wake him up. Tell him about the plenic but don't ask him to take you. Perhaps he wasn't so much to blame about the automobile ride, so forgive him this time, though he acted unfairly in not telling you about it.

HANS AND FRITZ, TCRAS.—If your mother was married when she was only fourteen and thinks it all right for her fourteen-year-old daughters to have beaux, I don't see how I can prevent it, but I am sorry you have such an unwise mother. If you will pay more attention to your studies and less to your teacher I don't think he will fall in love with you. As for having so many dates—are you sure you are not to blame? You are both conceited.

PRISCILLA, Morrow, Ark.—You did right in refusing PRISCILLA, Morrow, Ark.—You did right in refusing to get married until you had completed your high school course. Maybe in two years you won't want to, though if you have such a horrer of being an old maid I suppose you'll snap up the first man that offers himself. Yes, one would naturally suppose that a girl of twenty would know enough to choose a husband, but very few of them do, even when they are older, so I think you had better take your mother's advice and wait a while longer.

Worked Soul, Versailles, Ky.—If he cares more for the opinion of his boy friends than he does for your wishes and prefers to "listen" to them rather than to you, why just let him "listen" all he wants. You wouldn't want a husband like that, would you?

BLUE EYES, Tenn.—I think you' had better regard.

BLUE EYES, Tenn.—I think you had better regard the seventeen-year-old boy as a younger brother in-stead of as a sweetheart.

PERILEZED ORPHAN, Decatur, Ark.—To be perfectly honest, don't you think you are acting rather like the proverbial dog in the manger? You want to keep this young man's love and attentions'for yourself and still you don't love him enough to marry him. Why not let some other girl have him?

not let some other girl have him?

LAUGHING EYES, Shell Lake, Wis.—I'm sure I don't know what your attractions are or how you can make yourself less attractive and I don't believe you'd do it if I told you. Your laughing eyes must be to blame for the admiration you receive.

DOLLIE DIMPLES, Shell Lake, Wis.—How can you attract more fellows? H'm, do you suppose if I knew how that I'd still be an old maid? Ask your friend, Laughing Eyes. She seems to be an authority on the subject.

Miss C. S., Leavenworth, Kans.—Perhaps it is all right to accept attentions from other fellows and write to them while your fiance is somewhere in France, but, personally, I wouldn't do it. However, that's a matter of personal opinion.

SHORTY, Bement, Ill.—Your heart must be easily captured if a fifteen-year-old Freshie can take it by storm. He must be some boy. Think of the conquests that will be his when he is grown up. I don't believe he has acquired a very lurid past in the first fifteen years of his life and since he has always used you "swell," I see no reason why you shouldn't be friends. Mind, I said friends, not sweethearts. Don't be silly.

J. V., Ky.—Don't judge all men by the unfortunate choice of your girl friend. There are some good ones. A boy and girl of eighteen should never be allowed to marry. Wait three years and then get married if you want to-only the chances are good that it won be to each other.

D. & E., Utah.—I realize, girls, that it is a serious proposition when a boy has your bracelet and won't give it up and you 'can't catch him to give him a flogging and it doesn't do any good to cuss him," and if I had the time, etc., etc., (meaning if I had the money) I'd come right out to Utah and fix things up for you. Since I can't do that you had better tell your troubles to your big brother or to a policeman. It is extremely inconsistent for the average girl of today to pretend to be offended because a boy rolls his trousers too high, though maybe Utah girls don't wear such short skirts as their Eastern sisters. I hope not.

ONE WHO WANTS ADYICE. Colorato.—Don't let him

One Who Wants Abvices, Colorado.—Don't let him know you are afraid of him. Tell him you will sue him for breach of promise if he reveals any of the family secrets you have told him, and in the future don't get confidential with any one.

Anxious, Brownwood, Texas.—If you have told him you do not love him and have broken the engagement and he still wants to call on you and take you to places of amusement, I don't know as you are to blame. Don't give him any encouragement unless you really mean it.

は、100mmのでは

There, most of your questions are answered and those that didn't belong to me were sent to the proper departments and will be answered later. Run along and play and enlay engagements of the summer and be good girls. By by,

COUSIN MARION.

Only the very poor men and women doing the hardest kind of work may have more than seven ounces of war bread a day in France.

Wanderers By Anna S. Ells .

Ooppright, 1918, by W. H. Gennett, Publisher, Inc.

N the autumn sunshine Belgium lay dying, Belgium the happy, the contented. All herr pleasant places lay waste, all her powers misspent. Her people were wanderers, or worse. Like a flower she had been trampeled upon by ruthless feet. A bitterness unless that the state of the flower she had been trampeled upon by ruthless feet. A bitterness unless that the state of the flower she had been trampeled upon by ruthless feet. A bitterness unless that the state of the flower she had been trampeled upon by ruthless feet. A bitterness unless the state of the flower she had supply the state of the flower every state of terror, and every night sound touched a knell of horror for these homeless creatures tossed on a wave of ruthless war.

Warmed by the sunshine, she fumbled in her tattered gown for the remnant of bark that would serve for dinner. Supper was a myth too faint to seek to fathom. Leaning against the tree, she half slept, unconsciously crooning a lullaby of days now passed. Before her closed eyes pattered baby feet; a baby's tinkling laughter sounded in her ears; a wrecked smile trembled on the cracked lips. For a single moment, present woe was forgotten in past happiness. She started. The baby, her little granddaughter, was falling, failing. She stretched out eager hands to clasp—only empty air.

With a moan she leaned back against the charred tree, more desolate than before.

"The wee one," she crooned brokenly. "Where, oh, where is she? God in heaven, couldn't You spare the little ones? The helpless bables? God—Father, where, oh, where art Thou?" Her wail swept through the ruined wood like a shiver in the night, but no answer came to her waiting ear. The sun shoue; the breeze whispered, but the ruined wood sat black upon the land. She beat her worn hands and rocked back and forth in her misery.

The figure amid the ruins was standing with bent head whose scant grey hairs moved idly in beat her worn hands and rocked back and forth in her misery.

The figure amid the ruins was standing with bent head whose scant grey hairs moved idly in the wind. No tears troubled his over-weary old eyes; no moan came from lips white with famine; his sorrow-laden heart sank and sank until there were no depths of earth it did not sound. Before him lay the scattered ruins of his home—little piles of ashes against the fallen walls. In these he had been groping, finding here and there some little common thing of sweet remembrance that had escaped the spoilers' hands. And then it had come upon him when he was weakest, worn with homelessness, faint from hunger, burdened by suffering and more than human sorrow. In this terrible hour it had come upon him, a thry heap of human bones, a strand of curling baby hair.

"Oh, God of sorrows! Did'st even Thou bear this? Our baby, our sunlight, our treasure, buried under the burning walls and left to die alone, while we were driven forth like cattle."

Dumbly he bent over the ungraved child and mourned.

The bright sun shown down; the autumn mourned.

The bright sun shown down; the autumn breezes crept over the land. Somewhere water arms beside the ungraved child.

Worn, weak and famine stricken, the old man gathered the wife of his heart into his weary arms beside the ungraved child.

"Then you confess you are only amusing your self, as usual?"

"You won't? How would you like to have her undecelved regarding her relations with you?" sneered the duke.
"I have no fear of you. My proofs to strong to admit of any doubt in the matter, even if you should interfere. Besides, I have only to tell her one thing to make her shrink from you with the utmost horror and loathing."
"And what may that be?" he asked, with gibtering eyes.

tering eyes

"And what may that be?" he asked, with tering eyes.

"She believes that she is the child of my shame; consequently she has none too much respect for the man who betrayed me. I have only to whisper the name of that man in her ear, in order to render all your vile schemes powerless. Therefore, you perceive that the advantage is all in my hands this time."

The duke swore a round oath.

After musing a while, he changed his tactics, and adopted a more conciliatory course.

"Come, come, Judith, I think you might lend me a hand in this matter. I love the girl, and, if you can only convince me that she is all right, I swear I will marry her fair and square."

"Providing you could gain her consent, I suppose you meam."

"But," he persisted, "it was understood between Miss Therwin and myself that I was to win her if I. could, so as to help her in her scheme; (CONTINUED ON PAGE 20.)

her own. With eager, stumbling footsteps she hastened toward the bent figure by the broken wall.

In his grief he did not hear her coming, and for a moment she looked, unseen, at his bended head; then a cry rang out on the quivering noontide air. The old man looked up; his thin lips parted; a wild look came into his faded blue eyes.

"Are you dead also?" he whispered hoarsely.

"No, no, oh, my husband, my love! No, I am not dead. There is a God, there is, or we would not have met again in this bitter world."

Stumblingly, half falling, they met, these two who had walked a hard path through a long wedded life only to find it rose-strewn beside the homeless waste now their only haven.

For a few minutes neither spoke. Dry sobs shook their weak frames until, together, they trembled like a tree in a strong wind.

Then he led her to the little place by the tottering wall where the baby lay, all its soft curves gone, all its beauty destroyed, just a tale that is told, a waft of humanity caught in debris to carry its message to these two old hearts.

A second cry rent the sweet autumn air as the old woman realized, then silence filled the place. Were the angels there, a heavenly host unseen, watching caring, loving, holding sheltering hands over hearts that mourned? No bird's song cheered the silence. The birds had long since vamished; vandal hands had ruined more than luman homes. "She's safe now, mother," crooned the old man. "Yes, now she's safe enough, but oh, what she may have suffered, and she so soft and tender! Do you remember, father, how we used to watch her lest she fall? She was just beginning to walk; how proud we were, and how she would laugh—laugh so hard it would tip her over; don't you remember, father?"

"Well, mother. I remember it well." The love light in his eyes gave tenderness to his sunken features.

"How she must have called for us, father, and we not there to answer." her mother not there

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 20.)

38-Piece Fishing Outfit

Given For A Club Of Two!

DOYS-no need for you to wait until you have reatures.

"How she must have called for us, father, and we not there to answer; her mother not there—oh, father," her yolce sank to a horrified whisper, "where do you suppose her mother is?"

"God knows," replied the old man hopelessly. "They took her away, those cursed Huns. She was strong and comely; she could work and serve."

DOYS—no need for you to wait until you have money to buy that fishing outfit you want—we will give you this dandy Outfit absolutely free. It contains everything you see in the above illustration—in all 38 different pieces.

There are Two Dandy Fish Lines, one of them on a fine Wood Winder equipped with Hook and binker all ready for business, and the other is Special Braided Line. Then there are 25 Assorted Fish Hooks, of all sizes for all kinds of Sahing. 6 High-Grade Snelled Hooks, I Adjustable Cork Floater or "Bobber", and I Ringed Sinker—B piece in all When you get this splendid Outfit you will have all the fishing tackle you need with exception of fish pole to de all kinds of fishing with, as the lines, assorted hooks in different sizes, etc. are adapted for brook, river, lake or pond fishing. And remember that we guarantee everything in this Outfit to be good quality.

We will send you this splendid Fishing Outfit, if you will accept the following Club Offer. For a club of two one-year subscrip-club Offer. tions to COMFORT at 35 cents each we will send you this 33-Piece Fishing Outil packed in a good, strong box free by Parcel Post prepaid. Premium No. 3863. Address COMFORT, Augusta, Haine.

For A Club Of Only Two!

Needles

THIS offer is for the woman and girl who "loves her crocheting" and insists upon having the best of everything to work with. In this outfit we give you any desired quantity of Daxter Cordonnette "Silko" crochet and tatting cotton, and three of the highest grade crochet needles. There is no better crochet and tatting cotton than Dexter "Silko"—a fact already known to thousands of our women readers. It is made of the best Sea Island cotton with a twist that makes it lie flat, is highly mercerized and actually improves with washing. It is smooth to the fingers and will not kink. With Dexter "Silko", crocheting is more easily done—and the finished pleces are far more beautiful and useful than if made with cheaper grade cotton. Dexter "Silko" for crocheting oomes in all the popular colors—white, ecru, pink, rose pink, light blue, delph blue, king blue, sapphire and seagreen, and in sizes 3, 12, 20, 60 and 70. The tatting cotton comes in the same colors and of the size always used for this work.

The three steel crochet needles are the finest made, 6 inches leng, nickel plated, perfectly formed and balanced, with flattened finger hold, and a nickel cap that slips on over the end, protecting it when not in use. This cap also prevents the sharp point from doing any damage when carried in the pocket, handbag or work basket. We give you three different sizes of needles—a, 10 and 15.

We believe that our crochet workers will appreciate this offer, as it means a considerable saving to be able to secure such an outst as this without expense. We shall send you the complete outst, also additional quantities of the crochet and tatting cotton on the terms of the following special offers.

Offer No. 8962. For two one-year sub-free outst and tatting cotton on the terms of the following special offers.

Offer No. 8962. For two one-year sub-free readies, one ball of Dexter "Silko" crochet needles, one ball of Dexter "Silko" tatting cotton fere by parcel post prepaid. Piesse be sure to give color and save and the continuation fact w Offer No. 8251. We shall furnish you with cotton at the rate of two balls for one one-year aubscription (not you own) to COMPORT at 35 cents, sent by parcel post prepaid. Fisses is use in give older and size twiced. Francium Re. 251.

Offer No. 8261. We shall furnish you with extra cot four balls for one one-year subscription (not your own) at 35 cents, sent by parcel post prepaid. Fisses is rate of four balls for one one-year subscription (not your own) at 35 cents, sent by parcel post prepaid. Fisses be sure to meetica celor wasted. Frankin No. 8261.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Main

"If there is a just God, I wonder why he does not send a thunderbolt to destroy you this instant."

Sibyl's Influence

harshly. "Pshaw! Jude, what is the use of making such a row over the past? You must know, of course, that it would never have done for me to make you the Duchess d'Aubigne," the duke returned, contemptuously.

Well, if you know that now you knew it then "Well, if you know that now you knew it then—over twenty years ago—but you deliberately went to work to win my heart and ruin me. You came to me in my brightest days, when I might have been a good, pure woman—a true and faithful wife. You won me with lies, you cheated me with fair, smooth words. You deserted me and left me with a legacy of shame, a breaking heart, and a hate that would have pursued you to your death had I met you earlier."

"What became of the children, Judith—they died, didn't they?"

"What matters it to you what became of them?" she demanded, turning upon him fiercely.

"What matters it to you what occurs of the demanded, turning upon him fiercely.

"Nothing much; only I had a sort of natural curiosity, you know," he answered, heartlessly.

"We

Sibyl's Inquence (CONTINUED FROM PAGE 8.)

He looked at her for a while, too entirely overcome to speak.

At last:

"Where in ______ did you come from?" he demanded, sinking into a chair, and wiping the cold sweat from his forchead.

"I did not come from the place you so politely mention, although I suppose I shall receive no more than my just desserts if I have to go there before every long," she returned, with irreverent searchs.

"Well! so you are the respectable widow whom its Therwin procured to play the part of the long-lost mamma. The plot thickens, and grows you will not be supposed in the special state of the words "respectable widow whom it the words "respectable widowen likely to get. I want Miss Sibyl Stillman, Prescott, or whoever she may be. What are your relations toward the words "respectable widowen likely to get. I want Miss Sibyl Stillman, Prescott, or whoever she may be. What are your relations toward in your disposition, I perceive; but I do not intend to leave you until I learn the particulars of Miss Sibyl's history."

"I shall tell you nothing, so you may as well now as the words "respectable widowen likely to get. I want this simy daughter, sir." the woman any be. What are your relations toward when you were you will see the may be. What are your relations toward in your disposition, I perceive; but I do not intend to leave you until I learn the particulars of Miss Sibyl's history."

"I shall tell you nothing, so you may as well want to so you want want your object is in playing the part you are."

"How do you know better than that." he added, after a moment, a look of relief chasing the fight way.

"Well, what do you know about Sibyl?"

"I know that she was the adopted child of Sir Athelstone and Lady Prescott; where they got want to you will an part of plotters and you will an part of plotters will an your disposition, I perceive; but I do not intend to leave you until I learn the particulars of Miss Sibyl's history."

"I knew better. You have to work in six playing a part of the work

"Then you comess you are only amusing yourself, as usual?"

"I am willing to confess that I am deeply enamored of the fair girl, and if you could convince me of the respectability of her birth, I think I should have no objection to making her the Duchess d'Aubigne."

"Heaven forbid! It would be like willfully consigning the dove to the talons of a vulture."

"Thank you: and it strikes me that that is an exceedingly original remark." he answered, with a sarcastic laugh, yet coloring, "but that is not the point in question just at present. Who is she? What is her parentage—do you know?"

His companion was silent, and he could see that she looked pale and ill, and was breathing with difficulty.

"Will you tell me what I want to know?" he asked."

ARE WEAK NERVES AND LACK OF PHYSICAL STRENGTH HOLDING YOU BACK IN LIFE?

You Must Have Plenty of Iron in Your Blood if You Want the Power and Energy to Win, Says Physician

When the crushing grip of worry, trial and care saps your vitality and keeps you from the full enjoyment of home, social and business life—take Nuxated Iron and watch its strength-giving, up-building effect—it will increase the strength and endurance of weak, nervous run-down folks in two weeks' time in many instances.

HOUSANDS are held back in life for want of sufficient iron in the blood," says Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly physician of Bellevue Hospital (Out-Door Dept.), New York, and the Westchester County Hospital, in commenting on the relation of strong nerves and physical endurance to the attainment of success and power.

"A weak body means a weakened brain; weak nerve force means weakened will power, and like the race horse beaten by a nose, many a capable man or woman falls just short of winning because they don't back up their mentality with the physical strength and energy which come from having plenty of iron in the blood. That irritable twitch, that fit of despondency, that dizzy, fearful feeling-these are the sort of signals. nature gives to tired, listless folks when the blood is clamoring for strength-giving iron-more iron to restore the health by enriching the blood and creating thousands of new red blood cells.

"In my opinion the greatest curse to the health and strength of American people of today is the alarming deficiency of iron in their blood. Iron is absolutely essential to enable your blood to transform the food you eat into muscular tissue and brain. It is through iron in the red coloring matter of the blood that life-sustaining oxygen enters the body. Without iron there is no strength, vitality and endurance to combat obstacles or withstand severe strains. Lack of sufficient iron in the blood has ruined many a man's nerves. and utterly robbed him of that virile force and stamina which are so necessary to success and power in every - walk in life.

"Therefore, I strongly advise those who feel the need of a strength and blood builder to get a physician's prescription for organic iron-Nuxated Iron—or if you don't want to go to this trouble, then purchase only Nuxated Iron in its original packages and see that this particular name (Nuxated Iron) appears on the package. If you have taken other iron products and failed to get results, remember that such preparations are an entirely different thing from Nuxated Iron, which has been used and strongly endorsed by many physicians formerly connected with well-known Hospitals, the Hon. Leslie M. Shaw, former Presidential Cabinet Officer, former United States Senator and Vice-Presidential Nominee Charles A. Towne, former members of Congress, distinguished United States Army Generals (retired), Judge Atkinson of the United States Court of Claims, at Washington, and others."

In regard to the value of Nuxated Iron, Former Health Commissioner of Chicago, William R. Kerr, said: "As Health Commissioner of the City of Chicago, I was importuned many times to recommend different medicines, mineral waters, etc. Never yet have I gone on record as favoring any particular remedy. But, in the case of Nuxated Iron, feel an exception should be made to the rule. From my own experience with it, I feel that it is such a valuable remedy that it ought to be used in every hospital and prescribed by every physician in this country, and if my endorsement shall induce anaemic, nervous, run-down men and women to take Nuxated Iron, and receive the wonderful tonic benefits which I have received, I shall feel greatly gratified that I made an exception to my life-long rule in recommending it."

Dr. Schuyler C. Jaques formerly Visiting Surgeon of St. Elizabeth's Hospital, New York City, said: "I have never before given out any medical information or advice for publication, as I ordinarily do not believe in it. But in the case of Nuxated Iron I feel I would be remiss in my duty not to mention it. I have taken it myself and given it to my patients with most surprising results. And those who wish quickly to increase their strength, power and endurance will find it a most remarkable and wonderfully effective remedy."

No matter what other tonics or iron remedies you have used without success—if you are not strong or well, you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired; next take two five-grain tablets of Nuxated Iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see how much you have gained. Nuxated Iron will increase the strength, power and endurance of delicate, nervous, run-down people in two weeks' time in many instances.

MANUFACTURERS' NOTE: Nuxated Iron which has been used by so many successful people with such surprising results, and which is prescribed and recommended above by physicians is not a secret remedy, but one which is well-known to druggists everywhere. Unlike the older inorganic iron products it is easily assimilated and does not injure the teeth, make them black nor upset the stomach. The manufacturers guarantee successful and entirely satisfactory results to every purchaser or they will refund your money. It is dispensed by all good druggists and general stores. Advertisement.

Mrs. A. S. McC, Pennsylvania.—We do not think that your grandson is apt to receive any very severe punishment for representing himself to be older than he was at the time he enlisted in the marines, provided he continues to perform his duties in a proper manner.

wided he continues to perform his duties in a proper manner.

Mrs. B. M., Maine.—Under the laws of your state, we are of the opinion that upon the death of a married woman, leaving no will, her estate would descend one third to the surviving husband and the remainder in equal shares to her children, the descendants of any deceased child taking the parent's share; we think the signatures of both husband and children would be necessary to the sale of her real estate.

C. R. P., South Carolina.—We think that the creation of entailed estates or estates tail in real property has been pretty generally abolished by statute in this country, we think however the creation of a trust in real estate for the centinuance of a life or lives in being, and in some cases under certain circumstances, for a short limited period of years thereafter, is still permitted by law; we think the validity of such a trust, and the length of time for which it legally extends, would depend upon the instrument under which it was created, and the births, ages and deaths, as the case may be, of the life tenants and of those entitled to the remainder under such trust.

Miss J. B. E., Pennsylvania.—Under the laws of the case may be, or the life tenants and of those entitled to the remainder under such trust.

Miss J. B. E., Pennsylvania.—Under the laws of California, we are of the opinion that the signature of the wife is not necessary for the conveyance of the real estate of the husband, except that the wife should join the husband in the sale of the community property, (2) We do not think you have any legal right to construct your drain in such a manner as to damage your neighbor's property, but we do not think you can be compelled to change the natural course of the water crossing your property in order to relieve him from having it cross his property.

Mis. W. F. H., Texas.—We think you should be able to procure a copy of the will of your uncle who died, from the clerk of the probate court of the county in the state in which he resided at the time of his death; we think that if you find that the receipt you signed for your share in his estate was procured from you by fraudulent statements, you should be able to have such receipt set aside in the proper action brought, promptly for that purpose.

Mis. M. G., North Carolina.—We think that if the man you mention departs.

Mrs. M. G., North Carolina.—We think that if the man you mention deserted his wife without good cause, she is entitled to support from him, unless she has independent means of her own sufficient to provide for her maintenance; we think that this right of support can be enforced by the wife against the husband's real estate or other property in the proper court action on proceeding brought for that purpose.

Mrs. R. N. Wiscensin.—If the company from which

Mas. R. N., Wisconsin.—If the company from which you purchased the goods you mention, fails to perform its part of the agreement with you, your legal remedy would be to bring an action for the return of your money or for the damages you have suffered; the bad feature, of your case, is the fact that the amount involved is so small that it would scarcely warrant the expense of such a litigation.

involved is so small that it would scarcely warrant the expense of such a litigation.

Mrs. A. L. M., Alabama.—Under the laws of your state, we are of the opinion that upon the death of a married maa, leaving no will, and leaving a surviving widow and five children, his widow would receive dower of a one third interest for life in his real estate, and one fifth of the personal estate absolutely, after payment of debts and expenses, the balance going in equal shares to his children, the children of a former marriage receiving the same share as his child by the surviving widow; we do not think property disposed of by him during his lifetime would form any part of his estate, unless disposed of to children by way of advancement on their interest in his estate.

Mrs. D. M. B., New Mexico.—Under the laws of your state, we are of the opinion that the husband has the absolute management, control, and disposition, except testamentary, of the community property, except that he cannot give it away or convey it without a valuable consideration, and cannot sell or incumber the homestead property then used as a home by the husband and wife; nor the furnishings of the home, nor the wearing apparel of the wife and minor children, without the consent of the wife.

Mrs. E. P., Michigan.—We think your grandfather had a legal right to disinherit your father by will, provided the will was legally drawn and executed and expressed his true intent, and provided he possessed testamentary capacity, and no undue influence was exercised upon him.

Mrs. J. D. B., Arkansas.—Under the laws of your state, we are of the opinion that upon the death of state.

ercised upon him.

Mrs. J. D. B., Arkansas.—Under the laws of your state, we are of the opinion that upon the death of your husband, leaving a surviving widow and four children, if he left no will, you would be entitled to dower of a one third interest for life in his real estate and one third of his personal property absolutely, after payments of debts and expenses, the balance going in equal shares to his children by both marriages; we think that in case the real estate is sold, you would have a legal right to have your dower interest liquidated on the basis of your probabilities of life figured from the life insurance tables.

B. E. G., Tennessee.—We think that in cases where

B. E. G., Tennessee.—We think that in cases where the parents are separated, the custody of the minor children is a question to be decided by the court, and that the man whose wife abandoned him, taking their child with her, should bring an action or proceeding against her to determine this question.

L. S. T., North Carolina.—We think that if the paper you mention has discontinued publication, you are entitled to recover from the publishing company such an amount as would represent the unexpired balance of your subscription payment.

Sibyl's Influence

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 18.)

and she also gave me to understand that I should meet with no opposition from you."

"Miss Therwin was not aware, probably, of some incidents connected with my past history when she made that statement," Judith answered, bitterly. "No, Arthur d'Aubigne, in spite of Ada Therwin's wishes, I will never let you come near that pure girl if I can help it. But I am confident that Ada Therwin will fail in that part of her plot."

"That part of her plot—what is the rest of it?" demanded her companion, eagerly.

"Perhaps you think I am going to play my cards all into your hands," was the sneering reply.

"Do be reasonable, and tell me, Judith; I'll make it worth your while;" and he put his hand into his pocket, showing her a handful of gold.

"Thank you; I'm in no pressing need just at present," she answered, her lip curling and her eye flashing, adding, "and I shall never reveal anything that can in any way place Sibyl within your power or reach."

"Then I'll discover some other way of getting at your secret," he cried, angrily. "I'll sift this matter to the bottom. Money will do anything, and you know me well enough to know that I will leave no stone unturned to accomplish my purpose. I swear I will have the girl now, if only to spite you!"

Judith made no reply, but sat watching him in dogged silence, and he continued:

"It has just come to me who Ada Therwin is, and why you should be connected with her. It is strange I did not think of it at first. She must be the child of the woman who was your foster-sister, for I remember she married that rascal, Therwin. How would you like to have me go to Sir Athelstone Prescott and reveal the whole plot, telling him all about your early history, and this fine trick you have played upon his adopted daughter?"

The woman smiled serenely, though she was startlingly pale.

The woman smiled serenely, though she was startlingly pale.

"If you are really in earnest about your liking for Sibyl, I have no fear of your doing any such thing, for it would upset everything, as young Prescott would undoubtedly be only too glad to get her back again, and would probably marry her at once."

He saw the force of her argument, and sat savagely gnawing at his yellow mustache.

At length he arose, saying:
"You'll find out yet, Jude, that I have not done with either you or Miss Sibyl. Do you think I am to be foiled by you? You'll hear from me again before long, and we'll see then who has the advantage in their hands. Au revoir." startlingly pale.

CHAPTER XXIX.

THE STING OF REMORSE.

CHAPTER XXIX.

THE STING OF REMORSE.

When Sibyl returned from her favorite retreat on the beach, where, sheltered from the sun by the cool, overhanging rocks, and fanned by the sea breeze, she had spent two delightful hours with her book, she found Mrs. Stillman unconscious in her chair.

Sibyl immediately summoned help, had her conveyed to her bed, sent for the nearest physician, and then wrote an urgent appeal for Sir Athelstone, to come to her.

Mrs. Stillman revived after a while, but was evidently very ill—in a very critical condition, the Barmouth doctor said, when he came, and, as the days went by, they brought no improvement in her condition.

Sibyl was deeply distressed and anxious, all the more so because she heard no word from any of the dear ones at Dumfries.

Oh, how-she longed for the kind and loving care and sympathy of Lady Prescott, the manly encouragement of Raymond, and, above all, for Sir Athelstone's medical skill.

But he came not, and though at the end of a week she wrote again, she received no reply, and, sad and disheartened, she watched alone, but with unwearied vigilance, beside the invalid's bed.

"Why doesn't he come?" Mrs. Stillman murmured every little while, a terrible fear gradually settling down upon her.

"I am sure I cannot tell. I have written again and again, but have received no reply from any of them for many weeks," Sibyl had replied.

"It is more of her work," Mrs. Stillman had muttered to herself, with a clouded brow, and she never spoke of the doctor's coming again.

She knew well enough, without being told, why he did not come.

One day Sibyl saw her mother's look fastened longingly upon the Bible, which lay upon the table near the bed.

"May I read you a little from this?" she asked, taking it up.

Mrs. Stillman nodded, and paid the strictest attention while she read, and every day afterlongingly upon the Bible, which lay upon the table near the bed.

"May I read you a little from this?" she asked, taking it up.

Mrs. Stillman nodded, and paid the strictest attention while she read, and every day afterward Sibyl brought it as a matter of course to her bedside, and chose the most comforting and comprehensive passages that she could find.

One morning she read from the beautiful chapter in Malachi, where it says:

"And they shall be mine, saith the Lord of hosts, in that day when I make up my jewels, and I will spare them, as a man spareth his own son who serveth him."

"Do you think God could possibly spare me, Sibyl?" the invalid asked with a deep sigh, turning her beseeching eyes upon the beautiful face beside her.

"He will spare all who really desire it, dear mother; we can all be 'jewels' if we will. Can not you believe it?" Sibyl answered, with lips that trembled.

"If I only could—but, Sibyl, I have been a very wicked woman; you cannot conceive how black the catalogue of my sins is."

"Though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be white as snow," repeated the sweet voice, in low, clear tones.

"Can it be that those are the words of God, sent to comfort people like me?" Mrs. Stillman asked, after thinking them over.

"God's very own, sent just to you, dear," Sibyl answered, with tearful tenderness.

"Thank you, Sibyl; what a comfort you have been to me."

"I am glad; will you try to believe what I have been telling you?"

"Yes, I will try. I think I could, if—— But I must do much before I can claim anything," was the low, resolute response.

"Do you mean—"

Sibyl could go no further, but her white face said the rest.

"Yes, I mean that I think I am not going to live a great while, and I want to talk with you

Sibyl could go no further, but her white face said the rest.

"Yes, I mean that I think I am not going to live a great while, and I want to talk with you a little about it. I do not think it is coming just yet, and I know I am not ready for it, but you have led me to see that I have need to be ready, and I think it—the comfort—will come when I have done what I know is right."

During the day she called for writing materials, and while Sibyl went to snatch a few hours' rest in the afternoon, she wrote several sheets, inclosed them in an envelope, and directed it. Then calling a maid, she desired it to be sent at once to the post office.

The letter was addressed to "Miss Ada Therwin," and a portion of it ran thus:

"I am dying—I know that my days are num-

The letter was addressed to "Miss Ada Therwin," and a portion of it ran thus:

"I am dying—I know that my days are numbered, and, thanks to you—yes, thanks! and you can never know the gratitude I feel—and to your scheming, I have been led to realize what my life has been before it is too late. The daar child whom you have plotted to ruin, and tempted me likewise to cheat and destroy, has been a blessed little messenger of truth to me, and I know, notwithstanding all she has suffered through me, that when she comes to understand the great work which has been accomplished through her patience and faithfulness, she will deem her sorrows but trifles compared with the blessedness of having guided a lost soul into the way of life. Ada, I write this to tell you that I cannot de in peace until I have confessed all to this dear girl whom I have learned to love—who, by her gentleness and sweetness has compelled me to love her, as if she were indeed my very own. Before you receive this she will know all, and you must prepare to meet your disappointment as best you can. If you choose to be reasonable, you never need to fear anything from her—a sweeter, gentler, and more forgiving nature does not exist upon the earth, and Heaven could not give you a better friend. And now, as I am going soon to an unknown country, where you must one day follow me, I send one last plea to

The Complete Story In Book Form

If you do not care to wait for the monthly installments of this new serial as they appear in Comport we will be glad to make you a present of the complete story in book form. You will enjoy this great story. "Sibyl's Influence," with an elaboration of interesting detail and thrilling incidents, tells the hardships and trials of two true lovers barassed by a fiendish plot. This splendid romance, written in Mrs. Georgia Sheldon's best style, is strong throughout, tragic in parts and dramatic in its conclusion. Send us only one one-year subscription (not your own) to Comport at 35 cents, and we will send you a copy of id.

the book free and postpaid,
Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

27 YEARS THE ENEMY OF PAIN

FOR HEADACHES, NEURALGIAS, LAGRIPPE, COLDS.

Women's Aches and Ills

ASK YOUR DRUGGIST FOR "A-K" TABLETS THE ANTIKAMNIA CHEMICAL COMPANY, ST. LOUIS and remorse which have made the struggle so hard for JUDITH HOFFMAN."

CENTS

She was so wearied after writing this that she had strength for nothing more that day, though she had fully intended to confess everything to Sibyl before she slept.

That evening, when the young girl had arranged everything for the night, she bent over the invalid, asking if there was anything more that she desired.

"Only to have you kiss me and, then go to your rest, dear. Your face is growing thin and pale again, and is a continual reproach to me," she answered, fondly, yet regretfully.

"Do you feel as well as usual, dear mother? Would you not rather I would stay with you tonight?" she asked, gently.

"No, dear. I am very comfortable and free from pain tonight. But, Sibyl," catching her breath with a half sob, "I am not worthy that you should call me 'mother,' though the word comes very sweetly from your lips."

"Then I shall say it very often to please you," she answered, smiling.

"You must go, dear," Mrs. Stillman agaim said. "Marie will do everything, and I want you to be refreshed by morning, for I have something very important which I wish to communicate to you tomorrow."

She saw Sibyl shiver slightly at these words, as if she were destined to hear more about that story of shame, and she hastened to add:

"I hope what I have to tell you will give you great joy, and you will be glad to mark the day with a white stone. Now, good night."

Yet as she uttered those last words, Sibyl thought she clung to her with a strange yearning.

But she went to her rest wholly unconscious of what the morning was to bring forth.

TO BE CONTINUED.

Franklin's Experience. — When Benjamin Franklin was sixteen years old, he was an apprentice to his brother in the printing business. At that time, a book on vegetarianism fell into Benjamin's hands and he became a convert to that doctrine. He was then boarding with a family, and his brother paid the board. His vegetarian habit made it inconvenient for him to eat at a table where meat was the central idea, so he persuaded his brother to pay him in cash half of what his board cost and he would board himself. To this the brother readily consented. With a little experience he found he could save half you. I loved your mother as well as I in my selfishness could love her. I have loved you, and I pray that the child of my kind foster-sister may be led to choose a better portion in life than she has hitherto known—that when this hour comes to you—the hour which reveals to you that death is near, and life, and time, and opportunity are all gone—you may not experience the sorrow and remorse which have made the struggle so hard for Judith Hoffman."

She was so wearied after writing this that she had strength for nothing more that day, though she had fully intended to confess everything to Sibyl before she slept.

That evening, when the young girl had arranged everything for the night, she bent over the invalid, asking if there was anything more that she desired.

"Only to have you kiss me and, then go to your rest, dear. Your face is growing thin and pale again, and is a continual reproach to me, she answered, fondly, yet regretfully.

"Do you feel as well as usual, dear mother? Would you not rather I would stay with you by using Statement Precause only-clearing skin. If you have freckles, write us to for our Free Booklet "Wouldst The Fair?" Stillman's Cream is sold by druggists, 50c a jar, or direct from us, sprice, prepaid. Write now, We can help Dept.10.

Agents wanted to sell glasses. Send for catalog. COULTER OPTICAL CO., Dept. B. CHICAGO, ILL.

CARDS, Dice, Magic Goods, Novelties, Catalog Free, D. M. SMYTHE Co., Newark, Mo.

See The Wonders Of War Through The Pan-Chro Scope!

If you have ever been to the "movies" and watched the magnificent spectacle of a fleet of Uncle Sam's huge battleships under full speed—or a thrilling infantry charge "over the top"—or gazed upon the melancholy ruins of a Belgian village—then you have some idea of what you see when you look at the same scene through the Pan-Chro Scope, only of course the objects are stationary—not moving.

The Pan-Chro Scope is a new invention—something like the stereoscope, but larger and more powerful, being fitted with twin stereo-lens of wonderful magnifying power. The war views are taken with a specially constructed double lens camera. On the back of each view is printed a complete and accurate description of the scene represented. You place the view in the Scope, adjust the focus to fit your eyes, and immediately you find yourself face to face with an astonishing lifelike scene that resembles a section of a moving-picture film. One moment you are on the deck of an American warship:—the next moment you are "somewhere in France" looking into a trench where an anti-aircraft gun is working;—next you find yourself among the barbed wire entanglements in "No Man's Land;"—again you are watching fierce house-to-house fighting in a captured town. Belgian field artillery in action on the firing line, and many other scenes of actual warfare just as interesting and exciting.

The different views take you direct to Belgium, to France, or wherever the place may be, and show you the scenes just as plainly as though you were there yourself.

48 Views Free With The Scope!

New views for the Pan-Chro Scope are constantly coming out and we have made arrangements to send you a set of forty-eight views free with the Scope. Think of it! Forty-eight genuine war views—all different. Among them you will find such scenes as:

In a British Camp in France.

Deep Trenches Bitterly Contested in Battle of Yores.

Ypres.
French Military Camp Near Rheims.
Barbed Wire Entanglements Protecting German
Trenches. Allied Soldiers Firing From Trenches and Peri-

Allied Soldiers Firing From Trenches and Periscope in Use.
Anti-Aircraft Gun Being Worked in a Trench. Fighting the Germans House to House.
Belgian City Leveled to the Ground by German Bombardment.
Belgian Field Artillery on the Firing Line, and many other scenes just as interesting and exciting—forty-eight of them in all.
The Pan-Chro Scope should be in every COM-FORT home. It will prove a constant source of pleasure and instruction to every member of the family. Boys and girls attending school should have one. One look through the Scope will teach

Given For A Club Of Three them more than hours spent in hearing or read-

Magnified Life-

Like Views Of

Scenes And

Events Of The Great World War Taken With The Camera! Fascinating As The Motion Pictures!

Interesting!

Instructive!

Educational!

ing descriptions.

Send for a Pan-Chro Scope today! Entertain and instruct yourself and family with these realistic war views right from the camera—views that show you war as it really is. We will send you one with a set of forty-eight views if you will accept the following CLUB OFFER. For three one-year subscriptions to COMFORT at 35 cents each, we will send you a Pan-Chro Scope with 43 War Views free by parcel post prepaid. Premium No. 7813.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

"Virtue itself offends when coupled with forbid-ding manners."—Bishop Middleton.

Through the columns of this department free information pertaining to Etiquette. Personal Appearance and Eindred subjects will be given in answer to questions by our subscribers, but not more than two questions the same month by any one subscriber. Address Etiquette Editor, COMFORT, Augusta, Maine, and give your own full name and address. Name will not be published.

BLUE EYES AND ANXIOUS, Center, Texas.—If a young man that you are both in love with has proposed to one of you, we would certainly think that was the one he liked best. What other way do you think there is of judging? And what kind of a young man can he be if he seems "more affectionate" to another than the girl he has asked to marry him.

SINSHIME SIME Sence Mo After buying broken

SUNSHINE SUE, Seneca, Mo.—After having broken your engagement with this young man for what you think are good reasons, you should return to him his presents and his ring.

PERPLEXED, Salem, Oregon.—In a menu marked as you have described, it would be correct for you to say: "I will take 'Lunch number one." If any dessert is included in the combination listed, that would be your dessert. If not, and you ordered separately, you would do this when you had finished the first part of your meal. In the ordinary restaurant you must specify each dish you desire in your order. The dessert need not be ordered at the beginning of the meal. Just ask for what you want to eat in a sensible manner, and the waiter will do the rest.

M. Z., Zearing, Iowa.—If you are 25, a man of 34

Just ask for what you want to eat in a sensible manner, and the waiter will do the rest.

M. Z. Zearing, lowa.—If you are 25, a man of 34 is not a bit too old for you to marry. That he comes from another country and does not speak our language with correct accent, is no reason why you should not be happy as his wife,—if you love him and he is the right kind of a man to deserve your love.

Puzzled, Nebr.—You can certainly regard yourself as engaged to be married to this young man if you have planned with him regarding a future home, and evep ran away at one time to locate a judge to do the "hitching." If he has given you no engagement ring, it would be proper for you to drop him a gentle hint concerning it. There should be no reason for a quarrel about the incident, if you do the thing tactfully.

M. R., Amsterdam, N. Y.—A schoolgirl of fourteen may certainly speak to boys who are her classmates when she meets them on the street—or anywhere else. They are right in thinking it peculiar that you do not greet them. You may have a seventeen-year-old boy as a friend but we would not "go around" very much with him, unless some older woman is of the party. Easter Lilly, Sand Point, Idaho.—You are wise in not letting this young man's attentions to you become too noticeable at a dance or public gathering. We would not have gone to him regarding this trouble-making gossip you mention, unless we had been certain that he knew of it and that it had influenced his actions. But no harm was done. As a general rule, it pays to be simple and direct in the case of any misunderstanding between friends—or lovers.

Sammie And Shoeffy, New Orleans, La.—We do not think a girl of sixteen should correspond with a sol-understanding between friends—or lovers.

Sammis and Shorty, New Orleans, La.—We do not think a girl of sixteen should correspond with a soldier, and certainly a younger girl should not, when her father objects—as he very sensibly does. We cannot tell you if this young man cares for you. That he does not pay much attention to you in public goes for nothing, as he may be bashful.

A WEST VIRGINIA GIRL.—You can refuse this young man's request by saying: "No thank you; I have promised to go with some one else." As to the candy, you might say: "Thank you, but I would rather not accept it." And you probably will not have to refuse twice.

RED ROSE Minoral Walls, Towas—We think a barry.

RED ROSE, Mineral Wells, Texas.-We think a boy to MED ROSE, Mineral Wells, Texas.—We think a boy to whom you were engaged should have spoken to you when he had not seen you for two months—even if your father objects to him and was in the vicinity when you met. However, you should know him well enough to judge if he did it purposely. Why not write and ask him? (2) Yes, we think a boy that 'loved you better than anyone else in the world' should appreciate that you refuse the attentions of other suitors on his account.

on his account.

RLUE EYES AND BLACK EYES, Tenn.—If your soldier sweethearts are in France, it is not surprising that they do not write you. They have plenty of other things to do and think about. (2) Yes, join the Red Cross, by all means.

Brown HAIR, Etowah, Ark.—Yes, two girls of 17 and 18 may go to a dance at night with boy friends f their neighborhood. (2) Yes, the waltz is condered a "nice" dance—if you dance it nicely.

BLONDS AND BRUNETTE, Sweetwater, Texas.—A girl of fourteen or fifteen is too young to accept the attentions of young men, or to go with them to dances or other entertainments unless older women are of the party.

DIMPLE, Chinook, Mont.—A girl of seventeen would be wise not to marry a, man fifteen years older than herself—and one that her parents did not want her Dolly, Chinook, Mont.—You may go to dances in your vicinity with boy friends, but you must not go driving after dark. (2) Do not be the first or the last to leave a dance. We should call midnight about as late as it would be well to remain.

as late as it would be well to remain.

TROUBLED, West Va.—We do not think you can find much pleasure in being in the company of a boy that you think is "bigheaded" and that you semetimes can "hardly bear." Why not drop him and wait for one to come along that you like better? At sixteen there is plenty of time to wait. And you do not have to be beautiful to make boys like you—although we admit it helps. But being kind and sensible helps, too. And also knowing how to spell!

And also knowing how to spell!

Blue Eyrs, Etowah, Ark.—The Government is not in favor of many useless and often foolish letters being sent to our soldiers. If you are writing to three, we think you are making more than your share of trouble.

(2) Of course you may "talk" to a boy of 24—unless you are dumb and have to do it by signs.

Comfort's League of Cousins

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 17.)

Joyce, R. R. 1. Spencer, Va. Shut-in. No means of support. Needs food and clothing. Do something for her. T. H. Byers, Monson. Cal. Helpless from injuries of spine, hip and shoulders caused by loaded wagon running over him. No means of support. Alone in the world; 54 years of age. Open your hearts and pocketbooks and give him a boost. William Cobler, Price, N. C. Crippled from rheumatism. Also ruptured. Would appreciate second-hand clothing, and any assistance you care to send him.

Miss Myrtle Jones, Turner's Falls, Mass. A dear, sweet girl, and one of the best beloved of our shut-ins, has passed to her heavenly rest. The poor souls whose names are listed above are in too desperate need to care for anything but substantial financial aid. Sympathy and cash make a splendid combination, but sympathy without cash cuts no icicles. Do to others as you would have them do to you.

Lovingly yours,

Uncle Charlie

Uncle Charlie's Poems Will Make You Laugh, Scream and Yell!

That is exactly what they will do, and they are the best and cheapest medicine for the blues in the world. Only one in two hundred of our readers have availed themselves of the opportunity to secure this exquisitely beautiful 160 page volume of screamingly funny verse bound in like silk cloth, free for a club of only three one-year subscriptions to Comport at thirty-five cents rach. This elegant book contains splendid pictures of Uncle Charlie and a touching account of his life. It contains the funniest resitations ever written. It is a present fit for a king and no home should be complete without it. If you won't get it for yourself, get it for the children and make them happy. Free for an hour's easy work. Start your clubbing today.

Uncle Charlie's Song Book Is a Knock-out! The One Best Bet!

A home without music is a home without joy. Uncle Charlie's Song Book contains twenty-eight of the dandiest songs ever written, songs for churches, pariors and concert platforms. Here you have a great hig beautiful music follo, containing such gems of mirth and melody as "My Beautiful Queen of Dreams," "The Old Village Choir," "The Dream That Never Came True," and "Broke Again." Five dollars' worth of music, with full score for voice and piano, a splendidly gotten up folio with a handsonnely decorated cover on which appears several pictures of Uncle Charlie, equal to photographs, and all free for a club of only two one-year subscriptions to Comport at thirty-five cents each. Both books free for a club of five. Greatest premium bargain ever offered. WORK FOR THEM TODAY.

Comfort Sisters' Corner

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 11.)

to worry them as well as you have...

Goodness knows I've had my shaee of trouble, but that is just between me and my God. I try to live up to the good old quotation:

"Laugh and the world laughs with you, Weep and you weep alone. For the sad old earth must borrow its mirth, But has troubles enough of its own."

Can any of the sisters send me the song, "Plant Sweet Flowers on My Grave." I would like to get it for an old lady friend of mine.

Thank you, dear sisters, for the time you have given me in reading this, my first attempt at letter writing to COMPORT. Best wishes to all.

MRS. FLORENCE HORNBECK

PIERCETON, IND.

MRS. FLORENCE HORNECK.

PIERCETON, IND.

DEAR COMFORT SISTERS:

I am a farmer's wife, twenty-six years old, with brown hair and eyes and weigh 140 pounds. I have a little six-year-old girl named Nedra, and Ivan, a fat little chap, three years old the 11th day of last June. We also have an orphan boy, fifteen years old, that has been with us two years. He is as dear to us as if he were our own.

I noticed the Editor asked us to write of our best vacation. I will tell you of a little trip we have just had. As we are busy farmers on a farm of 160 acres, you may know that we couldn'st leave but for a few days but how we enjoyed the few days. One of our neighbors and his wife and our family rented a little cottage at "Yellow Banks," a beautiful resort on Webster Lake, just four miles from Lake Wawasee, Indiana's largest lake, and close to several smaller lakes and also near a small town. As to fish, you should have seen the strings we brought in. Of a morning, about "sunup" we would eat a bite and put the children on cushions in the bottom of the boat and fish until it got too warm. Then we'd take ar automobile trip or else sit on the porch and rest until evening, then fish a while, come in and get supper and take another ride or walk and come in for a good night's rest. I took my camera along and got some fine pictures that will serve as reminders of one of our least expensive and most enjoyable vacations.

Wishing you all a pleasant summer, I remain, a Comfort sister.

Mrs. Ethel. Wertenberger.—Valur vacation is one of MRS. ETHEL WERTENBERGER. Mrs. Wertenberger.—Your vacation is one of my ideas of a good time. Let's hear from others.—Ed.

MIS. Wertenberger.—Four Vacation is one of my ideas of a good time. Let's hear from others.—Ed.

GRAND MARSH, WIS.

DEAR MRS. WILKINSON AND SISTERS:

May I say just a few words on the food situation? We all know food is wasted in a great many homes and cating houses. It is awful to think of it but nevertheless it is true. We should eat no more food than our bodies need for growth and repair and to support health and fat instead of brawn, and makes us sluggish and indolent instead of brawn, and makes us sluggish and indolent instead of brawn, and makes us sluggish and indolent instead of herefold in cooking, improperly prepared and poorly seasoned, it will be left on the table and wasted. Buy food wisely and prepare it carefully. When too much food is prepared for a meal, unserved portions are thrown into the garbage paid or allowed of spoil. Such food should be given to some poor family, as many housekeepers do not know how to use left-over foods to make appetizing dishes. I have often seen uneaten portions of food left on plates and later thrown into the garbage pail. Learn to know the needs of your family and serve each no more than you think he will want. All food should be handled carefully. Buy clean food and keep it clean and be neat in all details of serving and cooking. This lessens waste and is a valuable health measure as well. Keep good food out of your garbage pail and kitchen sink. Demonstrate thrift in your home. Don't feed high-priced human food to hogs and chickens as we shall need it before this war is over. Don't pour into the sewer such nourishing food as milk, sweet or sour, soup, gravy, melted fat or water in which cereals or regetables have been cooked. Make use of everything. I find it a great advantage to market in person and see the food before buying it. In this way it is possible to get the best that is offered for sale. I always weigh articles that are sold by weight. In case the grocer gives short weight it should be discovered. Though the difference may be small, in a year's time i

Best Ways of Doing Things Around The Home

Remove stains from zinc with vinegar. Remove peach stains with spirits of camphor.

Use a nutmeg grater to scrape off the burned parts

Stand on a cushion while ironing and you will not

When setting bread sponge, omit the salt until the bread is light and ready to knead.

Moisten the spoon with water before serving jelly and it will be much easier to serve.

Sprinkle table salt on cabbages and it will help keep the worms away.—Mrs. Page, New York. Marks on wood work, made by scratching matches, can be removed by rubbing with a cut lemon.

To remove peach stains, put cream of tartar on the water-soaked stains and place article in the sun.

When necessary to boil a cracked egg, add a little negar to the water and the white will not run out. To clean silver, dip it in a boiling solution of baking soda and water, to which has been added a pinch of salt.

A thick slice of onion laid on top of a roast of beef and cooked with it gives a fine flavor to meat and

To clean a vinegar cruet, put a teaspoon of lye in it and fill with water. Let stand a day or two before washing.

SPRAIN.—Bathe well with hot vinegar and salt solution or one pint of hot water in which one tablespoon of epsom salts has been dissolved.—Mas. M. M., N. Dak.

Dak.

Polsoving by Morphinf or any Office Prefara-rion.—Give an emetic of mustard and water or salt and water, in large quantities until comiting is pro-duced. Give plenty of strong coffee and keep the per-son awake by any means.

Rheumatism.—One to three drops of wintergreen oil on a lump of loaf sugar, three or four times a day. Touch the sore spots with feather moistened with the oil. Keep the bowels in good condition. Mrs. Harrier E. Trott, Solon Springs, Mo.

NECEALGIA -- Macerate the leaves of the common field NEURALDIA.—Macerate the leaves of the common nead thistle and use as a poultice on the parts affected, while a small quantity of the leaves are boiled down from one quart to one pint of liquid. Drink a small wineglass of this before each meal.

wineglass of this before each meal.

SUNSTROKE.—Treat this by removing the clothing and applying ice to the head and arm pits or wrapping the patient in sheets wrung out of ice water, which must be kept wet and cold by water or ice. If the latter is done, the body must be rubled to prevent shock and to bring the heated blood to the surface. When consciousness returns, cold water may be given freely. Do not give any stimulants, and if there is any return of the symptoms, renew the application of ice or cold water.

Requests

How to make wax and paper flowers.

Song, 'I have a Package of Old Letters."-Mrs. MINNIE DRYBREAD, Ramah, Colo.

How to cure meat (hogs) without smoking. Also ow to make head cheese and blood pudding. Poem, "The Lily of Peace," printed thirty years ago in "The Saturday Night." The paper is not published now.

Will some sister who has a book of old-fashioned dance music, sell it or exchange with me.—Mas. Zella Coom, Wayne, Neb.

Will some one please send me "The Illustrated Companion for March and April, 1918. Will return postage or favor in any way possible.—Mrs. Sadie Mil-Lee, Dandridge, Tenn.

Will some one please send me the following songs:
"Just Before the Battle, Mother," "Somewhere in France," "Over There," "Good by Broadway, Hello
France."—MISS BETTIE STALLINGS, Lebanon Jet., Ky. If any of the readers have photographic or teachers' magazines they can send me, I will return the favor in any way I can. Other magazines accepted, and I will pass them on to the shut-ins when I read them.—IRMA ANDERSON, LOWRY, Minn.

Missing Relatives and Friends

Any one knowing the whereabouts of Oliver Gentry, last heard of in Memphis, Tenn., please notify Jennie Scheltinga, Creve Coeur, Box 74, Missouri.

Information of Archie H. Penman, last heard of in Stockton, California. Notify his sister, Mrs. Robert Clark, Tiffany, Colo.

Information of William B. Humber, last heard of at Lakeland, Florida. Mollie Humber, R. R. 3, Box 6, Honey Grove, Texas.

Information of Morgan Blair in Civil War, or home on sick furlough at surrender. Joined army near Charleston, S. C. Write Mrs. M. L. Blair, 409 Chickamauga Ave., Rossville, Ga.

Stops Ford Accidents

A new crank release for Fords which is positively guaranteed to remove all danger of broken arms, etc., caused by back firing, is the invention of H. W. Dammann, 126 Bear Bldg., Rock Island, Ill. This wonderfully simple and inexpensive device should be used by every Ford owner. It gives such universal satisfaction that Mr. Dammann is making a free trial offer to one Ford owner in each locality who will use it on his own car and show it to his friends. Take advantage of this unusual offer. Agents wanted. Write today.—Advertisement.

PRESERVING EGGS Learn latest and best way

—EGGOLATUM. Keeps eggs perfectly 1 year, costs but le dozen. No expensive jars needed. Kept in ordinary box or carton. Endorsed by National Housewives League.
Successful 3 years. Sample for 50 dozen eggs felt nostraid. Book free.
GEO. H. LEE CO.. Box 704, OMATIS., NEB.

PREMO CAMERA

For a Club of Four!

We will also include free of charge one

We will also include free of charge one Six Exposure Roll Film Cartridge and a complete Instruction Book. This is the well-known "Premo" camera, made by the Eastman Kodak Co., therefore you can depend upon it to produce the most pleasing and satisfactory results. It takes a picture 1 1-4 by 1 3-4 inches, is fitted with the best quality Meniscus lens and an automatic shutter adapted for snap shots and time exposures. The pictures may be taken either the long way or the short way of the camera. It uses the regulation roll film cartridge containing six exposures, and this may be put in the camera and taken out again in broad daylight, so that you don't have to go into a dark room every time you want to load the camera. Anybody can make good pictures with this camera. Being small and compact it is just the thing to carry with you to "snap" pictures of your friends, sports, etc., with. And remember, we send you not only the camera itself but also include One Six Exposure Roll Film Cartridge and Instruction Book, all packed together in a strong box and sent to you Free by Parcel Post, prepaid, on the terms of the following special Club Offer. For a club of four one-year subscriptions to COMFORT at 35 cents each, we will send you by Parcel Post prepared if you will accept the following we will send you by Parcel Post prepared if you will accept the following we will send you by Parcel Post prepared if you will accept the following we will send you by Parcel Post prepared if you will accept the following the Composition (not Camera with one Roll Film Cartridge containing six

AGENTS: $40 A WEEK

Guaranteed One Year: Must wear 12 months or replaced Free!

Enalest time to sell A prospect in every home. Often will deep pair to one family. Repeat orders will make you a steady shooms.

Easy Seller—Big Profits
Work spare time or full time Every man or woman, young or old, can sell this wonderful line of guaranteed besiery.

Silk Hose Free Try our hostery before sell-come familiar with our boslery line. Write quick for particulars if you mean business, and state size of hose worm.

Thomas Hosiery Co. 7530 Ell: St. Dayton, O.

Wanted An Idea! Who can think of some Protect your ideas. They may bring you wealth. Write for "Needed Inventions" and list of "Patent Buyers." RANDOLPH & CO., Patent Attorneys, Dept. 112, WASHINGTON, D. C.

SELL 24 AM. FLAG PINS AT 10c Send no money, When sold send $2.40and we'll send etem-set watch or keep 76c for your trouble. Write teday. CLARE WATCH CO., Dept. 200 CHICAGO, ILL.

Silk Remnants

Premium No. 5561

All Sizes, Shapes and Colors-A Large Package Sent You For One Subscription (not your own)

You for One Subscription (not your own)

REMNANTS of real silk, in all shapes, sizes and colors. They are carefully trimmed and gust what you need for making up beautiful quilts, tidles, pillow tops and all kinds of "ernay patchwork." We will send you a package containing more than one hundred of these beautiful silk pieces and 5 skeins embroidery cotton in different bright colors. If you order at once we will also send you, in addition to everything else an Imstruction Book with eight infipage illustrations showing how to ornament seams of crazy patchwork and other work where fancy stitches are used. It tells you how to put pieces of patchwork together to get the best effect, how to cover up seams with fancy stitches, how to join the edges, etc. This book illustrates over one hundred and fifty of these besides containing full and explicit directions for working the dutiline and Kensington Stitch, Arrascne and Chenille Embroidery, ribbon work, plush or infited stitch, also directions for Kensington painting. Remember you get one nice lot of these Silk Remnants (over 109 pieces), 5 skeins Embroidery Cotton and an Instruction Book, as above described, all sent to you free by Farcel Fost prepaid if you will accept the following

Free Offer, For one one-year subscription (not

Camera with one Holl Film Cartridge containing six exposures and complete Instruction Book. Premium No. 7614.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Tree Unites your own) Ac COMFORT at 35 cents we will send you one package of these Silk Remants, free by parcel post prepaid. Premium No. 7614.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

"Over Your Boy There"

Wouldn't You Like To See His Picture In This Handsome Service Frame?

"I wish I had a distinctive frame for Harry's picture. He looks so manly in his uniform and I am so proud of him."

udin.

Seven Wheel Chairs in July 481 is COMFORT'S Total to Date

The seven July wheel chairs go to the following mamed shut-ins, carrying sunshine and a ray of happiness into their joyless lives. The figures after their names indicate the number of subscriptions sent in by them or by their friends for them.

Vern Sparks, Marionville, Mo., 200; Mrs. Frank J. Libby, Mill St., Orono, Maine, 170; Mrs. Sarah E. Whittington, R. I, Box 58, Monroe, La., 168; Melvin F. Barker, Chapmanville, W. Va., 157; Mrs. S. V. Hughey, 524 S. Workman St., Los Angeles, Calif., 140; Ira E. Huddleston, Carterville, Mo., 127, T. J. Ragland, Winters, Texas, 120.

Vern Sparks, age 14, has been afflicted with tuberculosis of the spine seven years and confined to his bed the last two years. The wheel chair will be a joy to him and a great help to his good mother in caring for him.

Mrs. Libby, age 45, has been an invalid eleven years, the last five years confined to the house and unable to walk. With the help of her husband and two sons she will be able to enjoy some fresh air and sunshine in her wheel chair.

Mrs. Whittington, age 62, widow, lives with her anmarried daughter. She writes that she is badly crippled with rheumatism and will be so thankful for COMFORT'S help in procuring a wheel chair of which she is in great need.

Melvin F. Barker, age 5, has been sick with spinal meningitis two years and unable to walk the last three months and can not sit up long at a time. The wheel chair will be a relief to this poor little sufferer.

Mrs. Hughey, age 29, an invalid for the last two years and until recently dangerously sick, but surgery has brought her some relief so that she will be able to get about in her wheel chair.

ira E. Huddleston, age 42, has been entirely paralyzed in his left side the last four months. He has seven children and a devoted wife who has obtained all the subscriptions for his chair.

T. J. Ragland, age 63, sick with pellagra and crippled by a broken hip that will not mend. Has four children and wife who, besides all her other work and cares, has obtained all the subscriptions for his chair which will be a blessing to her as well as to him.

COMFORT'S subscription rate now (since July first) is 35 cents a year and I had hoped, as stated in my July announcement, to award a wheel chair for a club of 150 yearly subscriptions at 35 cents each, But wheel chairs, like everything else, have been going up in price, and 1 have just received notice from the manufacturers of another large advance in price which will make these wheel chairs cost me, at the factory, sixty per cent more than formerly. Also there has been a large advance in freight rates and, worse yet, the Government embargo prevents ship-ment by freight to many places and compels me to ship the wheel chairs by express in most cases now, which costs me still more, as I prepay the transportation charges so that the shut-ins receive the chairs absolutely free of expense. These chairs, delivered to the shut-ins, now cost me nearly twice as much as formerly and therefore I am obliged to resume my old offer of one wheel chair for a club of 200 subscriptions-but please bear in mind that the subscription rate now is 35 cents a year.

Please rush the subscriptions for the Wheel-Chair Club, there are so many poor shut-ins waiting and suffering for wheel chairs.

We have an interesting Roll of Honor but there is no space to spare for letters of thanks.

Sincerely yours,

W. H. GANNETT, Publisher of COMFORT.

P. S. For the information of our many hew subscribers let me explain that for each and every 200 one-year subscriptions to COMFORT, at 35 cents each, sent in either singly or in clubs by persons who direct that they are to be credited to COMFORT'S WHEEL-CHAIR CLUB instead of claiming the premiums to which they would be entitled, I give a FIRST-CLASS INVALID WHEEL CHAIR to some needy crippled Shut-in and pay the freight, too. It is a large and expensive premium for me to give for that number of subscribers, but I am always glad to do my part a little faster each month than you do yours. Any shut-in who has friends to help him get subscriptions can obtain a wheel chair free. Write me for information.

COMFORT'S Roll of Honor

The Roll of Honor comprises the names of those who have sent five or more subscriptions to credit of the Wheel-Chair Club during the month previous. Following each name is the number of subscriptions sent.

the Wheel-Chair Club during the month previous. Following each name is the number of subscriptions sent.

Mrs. Emma Sparks, Mo., for Verne Sparks, 200; Mrs. Ira Edward Huddleston, Mo., for Ira E. Huddleston, 127; Mrs. Julia Rice, Okla., for Mrs. Adella Evans, 81; Rev. Horace B. Sellers, Maine, for Mrs. Frank J. Libby, 68; Mrs. J. H. Price, Okla., for Harold Brown, 64; Mrs. J. S. Pool, N. C., for Stroud Pool, 56; Annie Estelle Whittington, La., for Mrs. Sarah Elizabeth Whittington, 56; Mrs. Ella Hensley, W. Va., for Melvin French Barker, 52; Mrs. J. M. Aston, Miss., for Elvie L. I. Tutor, 44; Mrs. M. E. Carson, Ark., for F. F. Carson, 42; Mrs. Lonnie Tutor, Miss., for Elvie L. I. Tutor, 40; Eleanor Nichols, Vt., for Clara Josephine Nichols, 30; Lizzie Goheen, Ky., for Naoma Goheen, 28; Mrs. T. J. Thompson, Calif., for Mrs. S. V. Hughey, 24; Mrs. S. V. Hughey, Calif., for Own Wheel Chair, 22; Hiram F. Jowers, La., for Mrs. S. E. Whittington, 21; Mrs. D. J. Longfellow, Maine, for Mrs. Frank J. Libby, 21; Miss Lois Smithling, Calif., for Mrs. S. V. Hughey, 21; Mrs. Frances Johnson, W. Va., for Earl Johnson, 21; Mrs. N. R. Holland, Texas, for Mrs. M. J. Howard, 20; Mrs. W. J. Brooks, Calif., for Mrs. S. V. Hughey, 20; Mrs. W. Speights, Miss., for I. J. Polk, 20; Mrs. Herbert Read, Md., for Mrs. S. V. Hughey, 20; Mrs. Herbert Read, Md., for Mrs. S. V. Hughey, 20; Mrs. Herbert Read, Md., for Mrs. S. V. Hughey, 20; Mrs. Herbert Read, Md., for Mrs. S. V. Hughey, 20; Mrs. Herbert Read, Md., for Mrs. S. V. Hughey, 18; Mrs. Claude Wolfe, N. Dak, for I. J. Polk, 20; Mrs. Herbert Read, Md., for Mrs. S. V. Hughey, 18; Mrs. Claude Wolfe, N. Dak, for Mrs. S. V. Hughey, 18; Mrs. Calede Wolfe, N. Dak, for Mrs. S. V. Hughey, 15; Dudley C. Nichols, Vt., for Carl G. Jansen, 20; Rosa Evans, Okla., for Mrs. Adella Evans, 18; Mrs. Claude Wolfe, N. Dak, for Master Arnold De Vries, 16; Mrs. E. C. Mellinger, Calif., for Mrs. S. V. Hughey, 15; Dudley C. Nichols, Vt., for Clara Josephine Nichols, 15; P. W. Larne, Ala., for Henry S. Larne, 1

Infant Used as Live Subject in Domestic Science Department

Wishing to have a live subject to work with, girl students of the domestic science department of the hgh school at Appleton, Wis., have adopted a two-months-old baby from a poor family. The girls are kept busy feeding and dressing the baby, according to approved scientific methods.

The remedies and advice here given are intended only for simple cases; serious cases should be taken to your local doctor.

Address The Family Doctor, COMFORT, Augusta, Maine. Sign your true name and give your address. Name will not be published.

Miss J. L., Crossville, Ala.—Liver spots, moth spots, or the medical name, chloasma, are due to several causes; malaria, tuberculosis, so-called Addison's disease, of sisease, of the uterus, nervous disturbance, anemia and chlorosis (Green sickness). In your case it probably is due to malaria or possibly some liver trouble. Consult your local physician to determine the cause and prescribe the treatment accordingly.

P. W., Bynunville, Mo.—You probably have a neuritis of the shoulder. Try hot turpentine stoupes. Wet a flannel with hot water and drop a few drops of turpentine on the towel and apply to the parts.

a namel with not water and drop a few drops of the pentiae on the towel and apply to the parts.

Mrs. A. I. S., Portland, Ind.—Try drinking only one quart of skimmed milk every other day. Drink one glass in the morning, another at noon, another at four o'clock, and the last one at night. Let this be your only diet on alternate days. The rest of the time eat sparingly of green vegetables, drink plenty of water, and later report result as to reduction of weight.

Mrs. A. B., Belleville, Kansas.—The usual cause of obesity is the eating of starchy food, pastry, sweets of any kind, lack of sufficient exercise in the open air, and improper care of the bowels. In another part of this column we have given a diet of skim milk, to be used every other day, with directions. Consult this and after trying the skimmed milk diet, report result.

Mrss R. M., Reik, Neb.—If there is no physiological cause for your absence of menstruation you need not worry. Menses will return in due time.

Mrs. H. L. E., Cherokee, S. C.—If your goltre is

MRS. H. L. E., Cherokee, S. C.—If your goitre is due to nervousness, you should absolutely rest body and nerves. If it involves the entire gland, use ovarian extract under your doctor's advice and care. Surgery is the last resort. The ovarian extract with complete rest, is the best and latest treatment. The rest of your letter comes under another department, and will be answered, no doubt, there.

answered, no doubt, there.

Mrss C. M.—Your trouble is not the "change of life." You have probably a form of nervous indigestion. Outdoor exercise, horseback riding, any form of physical exercise would help you. Avoid sweets of all kinds and put yourself on a green vegetable diet; drink plenty of water. The discharge you mention is nothing and will be benefited by return to the normal.

C. M. Otter Pond Ky.—The hest way to remove

C. M., Otter Pond, Ky.—The best way to remove warts is by using, or having used, carbon dioxide snow. The next best way is the use of the actual cautery. Of course, both must be used by a competent physician.

S. R. R., Clarkwood, Texas.—It would be of no advantage to give you the symptoms of cancer of the stomach, as symptoms run into each other, and you would be sure you had cancer, if they were even hinted at. Your symptoms point to ulcer of the stomach. You should consult your local physician and be treated by him.

Mr. C. H., Guntown, Miss.—You probably have malaria, or some liver trouble. Take two compound cathartic pills at bedtime, once or twice a week. Eat no pastry, and let tea and coffee alone. Drink plenty of water, and get busy with some useful occupation.

MRS. H. D., Brighton, Iowa.—You are run down, and probably your heart trouble is due to this condition. Also you may have some local trouble that needs surgical attention, due to child bearing. You should consult some good physician and be examined to ascertain the true condition.

tain the true condition.

M. B., Brooksburg, Ind.—Compound nut-gall ointment is good for the piles, applied at night. This failing, have them removed by operation.

E. S. U., Ricardo, Texas.—Apply compound nut-gall ointment to the parts and keep the bowels free by using aromatic cascara, two teaspoonfuls at night.

Miss L. K., Herringford, Neb.—The lump referred to may be a tumor of some kind obstructing the lower bowel. As these lumps may be cancerous, it would be wise to have an examination at once.

Miss O. L., Windsor, Mo.—The ringing in your ears

Miss O. L., Windsor, Mo.—The ringing in your ears is probably of catarrhal origin. Your age has something to do with it. The trouble is probably incurable, although an ear specialist might relieve you and possibly cure the noise, by inflating the middle ear, and also employ other methods known to the ear specialist.

Mas. A. C., Rochester, New York.—Nervousness and worry are two great causes of premature grayness of the hair. Tonics for the nervous system, massage of the scalp, and the avoidance of so-called hair-restorers, will help you, and may cure the condition.

Miss D. P., Garretts Bend, W. Va.—Under the conditions you live in, it seems to us that any chang would be beneficial to you. Your work is causing you indigestion and your physical breakdown. Under conditions that exist, would advise marriage.

Mrs. C. W., Vinan City, Ind.—Laundry starch is not poisonous, but should not be eaten in the way you mention in your letter. Uncooked starch will at least cause indigestion of the worst type. Try to reason with your daughter, and have her given a nerve tonic by your local physician.

Miss M. M., Mt. Vernon, Ohio.—Try lotion of resorcin two per cent. in grain alcohol diluted one half with rose water. Apply at night, every other day only.

Mrs. C. R., Barnhardt, Texas.—If possible, take your husband to some good surgeen, have an X-ray made of the injury, and see if an operation directed to the restoration of the nerves, might be undertaken. If this is impossible, get a small battery and try electricity, with gentle massage, to the parts.

No attention will be given any inquiry which lacks the sender's full name and address, but we will print only initials if so requested.

O. J. H., Black River Falls, Wis.—On June 15, 1914, President Wilson signed a bill known as the "Panama Tolls Exemption Repeal Bill" whereby the clause in the Panama Canal Act of 1912 exempting American coastwise vessels from paying tolls was repealed. In the present traffic through the canal no very large sums are involved in this change. In 1916 the tolls collected from coastwise shipping totaled but $59,782.45. In the first six months of 1917, but nine U. S. coastwise vessels passed through the canal. The total revenue from tolls in 1916 was $3,677,695.15.

G. K., Sulphur Springs, Texas.—The Red Cross has uniform regulations to govern the enrollment of its nurses. An applicant must have had at least two years of training in a general hospital which includes the care of men. She must also be at least twenty-five and not over forty. Health, strength, and a good education are essential qualifications.

INDEBTED, Houston, Texas.—We do not think you made your question quite plain. A governor could hold office after impeachment if he was found not guilty of the impeachment charges brought against him by the legislature of his state. (2) We are sorry but COMFORT prefers not to furnish the names of matrimonial bureaus.

E. C., Kimball, Mont.—Read Comport's advertising columns if you have an idea you wish to patent and desire aid.

B. K., Neerlandia, Ala.—There is no duty charged upon presents sent from Canada to the United States at Christmas time.

B. K., Neerlandia, Ala.—There is no duty charged upon presents sent from Canada to the United States at Christmas time.

E. G., Phillipsburg, Mo.—See answer to G. K., Sulphur Springs, Texas. There would be nothing better to give your husband when he leaves for France than a completely outfitted "comfort kit" which you had made and filled with your own hands. We are sure that you can find many things that you may do to "help win the war" during your husband's absence at the front. There is work for all at this time.

F. J. P., Dillonvale O.—The rainfall in Arizona is very light and the Weather Bureau station at Yuma shows the lowest percentage of humidity in the United States. Farming, however, is successfully carried on by irrigation, which is necessary almost everywhere. In late years, as a result of government activities, much new land has been placed under irrigation. It is in Arizona that the great Roosevelt dam was constructed. This was dedicated in 1910 and forms a reservoir with a capacity sufficient to cover 2000 square miles with water a foot deep. Water has demonstrated that the soil of the state is remarkably fertile, and oranges, lemons, grape fruit, canteloupes, dates, etc., are grown with success, as well as every other kind of fruit or vegetable which will thrive in the temperate or semi-tropic zones. Particularly in the valley lands, the high temperatures and the sunshine aid in producing delicate fruits and vegetables. Alfalfa, grain and sugar beets are also grown, and dry farming has been carried on with success in some localities. It is an interesting fact that the state produces eighty per cent of all the ostriches raised in the United States. There are very large ostrich farms in the Salt River valley, where thousands of birds are raised each year. The mining of gold and copper is the principal industry of the state. The climate of Arizona, because of its warmth and dryness, has been considered a valuable aid in the recovery of those suffering from lung troubles. You would find the state ve

A. P., Weidman, Mich.—The first issue of COMFORT appeared in November, 1888.

SWISS LIVESTOCK PRICES.—Prices of livestock SWISS LIVESTOCK PRICES.—Prices of livestock in Switzerland are about double those of the United States, according to the November report of the American consul at Geneva. In the case of cows and calves the price is more than three times as great. Swiss livestock quotations on November 15, 1917, were: Oxen, each $230; bulls, each $170; cows, each $260; calves, each $180; young pigs, each $14; sheep, each $14; fat hogs, per pound 32 cents.

R. E. CHALMERS & CO., 538 So. Dearborn St., CHICAGO

LOOK YOUR BEST. Make sure of smooth white arms, face and neck in spite of sallowness, blotches, freckles, blackheads etc. If you want to be charming and attractive—Don't pay 50c but send 10c at once for sealed Package, which will transform your appearance instantly. Warranted.TOMET COMPOUND CO. Box 1927A,Boston, Mass.

Our Special Offer

W E shall send you a package of these beautiful, patriotic Post Cards—24 cards in all—if you will send us one one-year subscription (not your own), to COMFORT at 35 cents. Remember, it must not be your own subscription, but the subscription of some friend or neighbor. You will receive the cards by mall postpaid. If you want more than one package, you can have them by sending one one-year subscription (not your own), at 35 cents for each package wanted. Better send for at least two packages right away. You will need them. Premium No. 8271.

There are thousands of COMFORT homes from which son, other or husband has answered his country's call. To each these homes we want to send a package of these Post Cards, you have no near relatives in the service then you need use cards to send to your friends and acquaintances who

If you have no near relatives in the service then you need these cards to send to your friends and acquaintances who have gone.

Beautiful—inspiring—patriotic—they are just the thing to mail to soldiers anywhere. There are 24 cards in the package, every one different, but all carrying an appropriate message or tender words of greeting and remembrance to some soldier boy who is now fighting for you. You will be delighted with these cards—and so will the boy who receives them. The striking designs, showing President Wilson, the American Flags, Flags of the Allied Nations, Shields and other patriotic emblems, are all highly embossed in the most beautiful colors, while the verses of greeting, good wishes, etc., are cleverly worked into the designs in a most artistic manner.

The cards themselves are of regulation post card size—3½ to the designs in a most artistic manner.

We want to give a package of these cards to every COMFORT reader who has a friend or loved one fighting for Uncle Sam. You need them—they are the finest, most appropriate message to soldiers ever thought of. Nothing like them was ever seen before. They will be treasured for years as souvenirs of the great war. If you have no son, brother, husband or sweetheart "over there," some of your friends or neighbors have. Write to them! Send them letters, and one of these Patriotic Post Cards every now and them. Remember, they are fighting for you—all of us. Cheer them on to victory and everlasting peace for the whole world.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

The Emporium of Bargains and Opportunities

Pithy Little Advertisements that are Interesting, Instructive and Profitable to Read, for they put you wise to the newest and best in the market and keep you in touch with the world's progress.

AGENTS WANTED

Agents—Big Summer Seller. Something new—Concentrated Soft Drinks; just add water. Delicious drinks in a.jiffy. Popular for the home, picnics, parties, socials etc. Small packages; carry, in pocket. Enormous demand. Agents making $6 to $12 a day. Outfit free to workers. Just a postal today E. M. Seltman 4013 3rd St. Cincinnati. O.

Agents $40 a week selling guaranteed hos-lery for men, women and children. Must wear 12 months or replaced free. Agents having wonderful success. Thomas North Str., Dayton, Ohio.

$10 to $15 per day handling new household articles. Big war time sellers. All on spare time, Outst free. Territory going fast. Write quick. Duo Co., Dept. W. 40, Attica, N.Y.

Agents! Quick Sales! Big Profits! Out-fit Free! Cash or credit. Sales in every home for our beautiful Dress Goods, Hosiery, Under-wear, etc. National Importing & Mfg. Co., Dept. H 2, 425 Broadway, New York.

Sell Insyde Tyres, inner armour for auto tires double mileage, prevents punctures and blow-outs, big profits. Details Free. Am-erican Accessories Co., Dept. 1110, Cincinnati.

We Start You without a Dollar. Soaps, Extracts, Perfumes—ToiletGoods. Experience unnecessary. CarnationCo., 31 So. Main, St. Louis.

How Much Gasoline can you sell at 2c per gallon? World tests for three years to prove it. Secure exclusive rights for your county. "Carbonvoid," Box "G", Bradley Beach, N. J.

Agents. Sell rich looking 36x58 imported Rugs, $1 each; Carter, Tenn., sold 115 in 4 days, profit $57; you'can do same. Write for sample offer selling plan; exclusive territory. Sample rug by parcel post prepaid $8c. E. Condon, Importer, Stonington, Maine.

Agents Profits—Our plan beats anything ever before offered. Goods practically sell themselves. "Horoco,"131 Locust, St. Louis, Mo.

Ford Auto Free. Fourteen other grand gizes and hundreds of cash rewards. Some Issues and hundreds of cash rewards. Something for everybody who answers this ad. Twentry-five "Over There" post cards free. Address Auto Stevens 547 N. La Salle St., Chicago, Ill.

AGENTS WANTED

Agents—Pair Silk Hose Free, State size color, Beautiful line direct from mill. Good profits. Agents wanted. Write today. Triple-wear Mills, Dept. G, 1524 Chestnut St., Phila., Pa.

Agents Wanted—To advertise our goods by distributing free sample to consumer. 99 cents āh hour. Write for full particulars. Favori Chemical Co., 519 North St., Dayton, O.

Would You Like To Wear A Beautiful would you like to wear A Beautiful New Suit, made to your own measure Free, and make $35 to $50 every week? You can be the best dressed man in your town and earn a lot of extra money if you write at once for our beautiful samples and wonderful offer. The Progress Tailoring Co., Dept. 278, Chicago.

Photo Pillow Tops, Portraits, Frames, Sheet Pictures, Mcdallions, Patriotic Pictures, Pennants. Rejects credited. Prompt ship-ments; samples & cat. free to agents. 30 days credit. Jas. C. Bailey Co., Desk W-4, Chicago, Ill.

MALE HELP WANTED

Government Pays $900 to $1800 yearly. Prepare for coming "exams" under former Civil Service Examiner. New Book Free. Write Patterson Civil Service School, Box J-15, Rochester, N. Y.

HELP-MALE AND FEMALE

Earn $25 Weekly, writing for news papers, magazines. Experience unnecessary details Free. Press Syndicate, 461 St. Louis, Mo

HELP WANTED

Men and Women Wanted, 18 to 50, to fill thousands of vacancies and new positions in Government Service in Washington and else-where. Permanent, higher salaries, patriotic work, easy hours, paid vacations. Quick ap-pointments. Write for free Book RE, listing positions. Washington Civil Service School, 2004 Marden Bldg., Washington, D. C.

SHORT STORIES WANTED

Wanted – Stories, poems, etc. We pay on acceptance. Handwritten Mss. acceptable. Woman's Nat'l Magazine, Desk 355, Wash., D.C.

ROOTS, HERBS, ETC.

$5. a Day Gathering Evergreens, Roots and Herbs. Book and war prices free. Botan-cal—2, New Haven, Conn.

Golden Seal and 60 other plants used in making medicine, dyes, perfumes, etc. How to gather, high war prices and address of Buyers. Book postpaid only 20c. Ginseng Co., West Milan, N. H.

Cash Paid For Medicinal Roots, Barks, Herbs, etc. Easily gathered. Write for circular, Grund Co., Logan Station, Philadelphia, Pa.

FEMALE HELP WANTED

Wanted ten bright, capable ladies to travel, demonstrate and sell well known goods to established dealers. $25.00 to $50.00 per week; railroad fare paid; weekly advance for traveling expenses. Address at once. Good-rich Drug Company, Dept. $2, Omaha, Neb.

Girls-Women Wanted. Governm war positions. $100 month. List Prec. Fra lin Institute, Dept. S 9, Rochester, N. Y.

We Have Customers who will buy from you tea aprons and dust caps in dozen lots. They also want fancy work of all kinds—Embroid-ery, Crocheting and Tatting. Send 20c for pat-terns and prices. Returned if dissatisfied. Ken-wood Sales Shops, 6238 S. Park Ave., Chicago.

Start Dress designing business at home. $100 a month. Sample lessons free. Franklin Institute, Dept. S 350, Rochester, N. Y.

FURS AND TRAPPING

Big Money From Furs, or The Boy Trappers of Beaver Bend,—also secrets which professional pelt benters use in taking game. How to make baits and seents, capture skunk and civet without odor, pack skins for shipment, when to trap the prime hides, how to mark and care for steel traps, etc. Edited by an authority on the subject. The reading of this book, which will be sent Free, will bring dollars into the hands of every amateur pelt hunter. Write for it today. Address Comfort, Fur Dep't. Augusta, Maine.

PATENT ATTORNEYS

Patents. Write for List of Patent Buyers and Inventions Wanted. $1,000,000 in prizes offered for inventions. Send sketch for free opinion as to patentability. Our four books sent free. Patents advertised free. Victor J. Evans & Co., 641 Ninth, Washington, B. C.

Patents Promptly Procured. 1918 Edition Patent book free. High class service. Fees reasonable. Send aketch for actual search and report. George P. Kimmel, Patent Lawyer, 27-H Oriental Building, Washington, D. C.

Invent Something. Your Ideas May bring wealth. Send Postal for Free book. Tells what to invent and how to obtain a patent through our credit system. Talbert & Talbert, 4206 Talbert Building, Washington, D. C.

Millions Spent Annually for Ideas! Hundreds now wanted! Patent yours and pro-fit! Write today for free books—tell how to protect yourself, howeto invent, ideas wanted, how we help you sell, etc. 203, Patent Dept., American Industries, Inc., Washington, D. C.

Ideas Wanted—Manufacturers are writing for patents procured through me. Four books with hundreds of inventions wanted sent free. I help you market your invention. Advice Free. R. B. Owen, 18 Owen Ridg., Wash. D. C.

PHOTO FINISHING

Mail Us 10c with any size film for develop-ment and six velvet prints. Best material Skilled operators. Get our book. Roanoke Photo Finishing Co., 228 Bell Ave., Roanoke, Va.

Films developed free. High class work, perfect prints at 3 to 7c. We do the best work in the Photo City. Remit with your order and get returns same day. Bryans Drug House, Rochester, N. Y.

Any Size Kodak Film developed 10c, six prints Free with first roll; or send six nega-tives and 10c for trial. Ask for Bargain Price-list. Shea & Williams, 2075 E. Third St., Dayton, Ohio.

COINS AND STAMPS BOUGHT

Save all odd-looking money and bills ad send to for Large Illustrated Coin Circular. It may mean much profit to you. We pay cash for all rare coins and bills. Send now. Numismatic Bank, Dept. 6, Fort Worth, Texas.

STORY WRITERS WANTED

Authors:-Stories, poems, photo plays etc. are wanted for publication. Submit M==. Literary Bureau, C4, Hannibal, Mo.

TOILET ARTICLES

Freckles Positively Removed, by Dr. Berry's Freckle Ointment, or money back. By mail, 55c. Free Booklet. Dr. C. H. Berry Co., 2975 Michigan Ave., Chicago.

MICHIGAN FARM LAND

Land in Michigan's best counties. 16 to 83 A. Hardwood tracts. $15 to $30 per A. Essy payments. Good for grain, stock, poultry, truit. Big booklet free. Swigart Land. Co., Cl246 First Nat'l Bank Bidg., Chicago, Ill.

MODING PICTURE BUSINESS

$100 to $200 Profit Weekly. Complete loving Picture Outfit, furnished on easy pay-

SALESMEN WANTED

Salesman Wanted: Our salesmen are going to war and we are filling their places with women and men exempt from draft. Write today. McConnon & Company, Winona, Minn, 52 McConnon Bldg.

MOTION PICTURE PLAYS

Photoplay Ideas Wanted By 48 Com-panies. $25-$500 paid. Experience unnecessary; details Prec. Producers League, 311, St. Louis.

War-Winning Stogans

The Story the Service Flag Tells

By Frances L. Garside

THE service flag is not official. Official adoption of such an emblem has been discussed in Congress, but no action has been taken. Mothers who hang out a service flag with pride and wonder with fear what changes may be made to it by future events, will be interested in learning what this new emblem, which means so much to the world just now, really stands for.

so much to the world just now, really stands for.

The Adjutant General of the United States Army has indorsed as correct a memorandum by Lieutenant Colonel Nathan William MacChesney, Judge Advocate, N. A., Central Department, which gives the correct status of the service flag, and also gives it a "a "semi-official" place. He says:

"The service flag is owned by private parties who have patented the same, but its recognized by the government and the flying of it is encouraged. It has been decided that on these flags a blue star shall represent one in the military or naval service of the United States; a silver star one wounded or invalided home from over-seas, with a gold star superimposed for one who died as the result of such wound or disease, and a gold star for one who pays the supreme sacrifice while in action.

"Considerable thought has been given to the suggestion that a service flag pin with a gold star for a member of one's family killed in action be worn in lieu of mourning. We cannot control the people in this. We can only suggest that such emblems would be less depressing than a swathing in crepe, and represent a smaller outlay of money, a question very important just now. In England the wearing of mourning is forbidden, though it is generally seen on the Continent."

The idea of the service flag is that there shall be a star to represent each though it is generally tinent."

The idea of the service flag is that there shall be a star to represent each person from a family, place of business, club, or other entity serving with the colors. Sometimes the service flag is abused. Where the service flag is hung in the window of a home it should represent only members of the family from such immediate household, and not emploves, domestics, or otherwise. Where resent only members of the family from such immediate household, and not employes, domestics, or otherwise. Where it is hung from places of business it should represent employes going from such places of business, and where there is an expectation of return to the employment. The service flag should not be flown by buildings, hotels, etc., where the only relation is that of tenants.

Neither is a family entitled to a service flag because some member is engaged in civilian war work, however patriotic the motive. The essence of military service is that persons who wear the uniform subject themselves to be ordered anywhere without the right to refuse to go. Such conditions do not attach to any of the various war boards, commissions, civilian employments, etc., and under no circumstances should the persons in such employment be represented on service flags.

A service flag may be unfurled with a star for a husband, father, son or brother, even though such person did not actually leave from that household directly to go into service, but in case of more remote relationship they should actually be members of the household where the flag is displayed and should have left for the service direct from that household.

While physicians are non-combatants,

While physicians are non-combatants, they are entitled to representation on service flags and rolls of honor when they are serving as physicians in the army, navy, or Red Cross or Marine Corps Physicians of draft examining coards are not entitled to a star.

It is to the mother the service flag means the most It is the mother's service flag that has on it the most stars. It is the mother on whom the blunt of the war is falling, and she is bearing it

Comfort's Comicalities

"Jest for Fun"

"Then you cannot leave. I give you six hours to make up your mind as to what you will do."

And It Didn't Strike

Bulgaria's defection caused Spanish Consul Juan L. y Marti to say in Mobile:

"The Allies' diplomacy in the Balkans was slow. It reminds me of Smith.

"Smith's mother-in-law rushed to him in great excitement on his return from business one evening.

"Oh, John, she cried, 'that great, horrid, heavy grandfather's clock in the hall has just fallen with a dreadful crash on the very spot where I'd been standing only a moment before.

"Humph,' muttered Smith, 'I always said that clock was slow.' "—Louisville Herald.

What Saved Him

"Time I was out in Colorado," said the man with the ginger beard, "I was chased by the bloody Injuns into a cave, and had to stay there three months without anything to eat."

Here the man with the ginger beard looked around defiantly, expecting some one to doubt his assertion, but, as no one spoke, he was compelled to explain. "I s'pose I would ha' starved," he continued, "if it hadn't been fer my wife and family back East. Whenever I would git to thinkin' of them, a big lump would rise right up in my throat, and, by swallerin' that I kep' myself from starvin'."

German Soldier's Risks

The great risk a German soldier runs when taken prisoner is that he may lose his life when his countrymen bomb a Red Cross hospital.—Washington Star.

What is the difference between a side-Five cents' difference.

Might Have Taken a Nap

A stranger in an Indiana village, thought he might improve the time by attending service in the local church. At the conclusion of a lengthy talk, the minister announced that he should like to meet the board. The stranger, in company with several other persons proceeded to walk to the front of the church. The pastor, thinking there must be some misunderstanding, said to him: "I believe, sir, you are mistaken. This is just to be a meeting of the hoard."

board."
"Well," replied the visitor, "I have listened to your talk for more than an hour and if any one has been bored more than I have been, I should like to know who it is."—Leavenworth Times.

Rags and Bottles

Homer Rodeheaver, the musical direc-tor with an evangelist, said in a tem-perance meeting address at San Fran-cisco:

cisco:
"Once, on a visit to England, I noticed that the ragmen, instead of shouting
'Rags, bones, old iron,' as we all do, shouted 'Rags and bottles; rags and bottles.'

bottles."

"I asked an English ragman one day:

"Why do you yell rags and bottles especially? What's the point of it?"

"Well, sir,' he answered, 'the point of it is that my experience has shown me that wherever there's bottles there's bound to be rags."—Louisville Herald.

An Irish Tale

A certain Irishman and his wife were much given to wrangling and some of their solicitous neighbors secretly in-formed the parish priest and asked him to go and try to quiet the turbulent matrimonial waters. His reverence hastened to do so and, as he approached the house, his ears told him that an argument was in progress. When he quietly entered, the combatants faced him, abashed.

"My dear children." he hearn "argument" my near children," he began, "aren't you ashamed of yourself to be forever quarreling? Look at that dog and cat over there in the corner, eating off the same plate. Don't they get along nicely together?"

"They do in a long the same that they do in a long the same that they are the are they are the they are the are they are they are they are they are they are the are the are the are the are the a

"They do indeed, your rivirince," mumbled the Celt, "but faith they wouldn't if you tied them together the same as you did us."

Impetuous Swain

Impetuous Swain

They had been engaged to be married fifteen years and still he had not mustered courage enough to ask her to name the happy day. One evening he called in a peculiar frame of mind, and asked her to sing something tender and touching, something that would move him. She sat down at the piano and sang, "Darling, I Am Growing Old."—The Christian Herald.

Rubber Ones

"Say, do you know why that automo-bile does not run?"
"No. Why?"
"Because its wheels are tired."

What Teacher Said

"Teacher is interested in you, pa."
"How so?"
"Why, today, after she had told me seven times to sit down and behave myself, she said she wondered what sort of a father I had."

counter, a cheery, good-natured soul, said to him:

"You can have them mixed if you like."
"All right," said the boy, "you may put one or two cocoanuts in, if you please."

A Machinist

'My dog is a regular machinist."
'How's that?"

"Wby, I kicked him the other day and he made a bolt for the door."

"A man who employed a number of boys to pick raspberries was quite anxious to protect them against mosquitoes, so he had veils made to tie down around the neck. The boys were very grateful for his kindness until they found that there were no mosquitoes in that locality and also that they couldn't eat any berries with those veils on. The "protection" was of another sort.

Took Him Literally

As a steamer was leaving the harbor of Athens a well-dressed young passenger approached the captain, and, pointing to the distant hills, inquired:

"What is that white stuff on the hills, captain;"

That is snow, madam," replied the captain.
"Well," remarked the lady, "I thought so myself, but a gentleman just now told me it was Greece."

His College Idea

Robert was having a very successful career at college. He had scored the winning touchdown in the big game of the year, and was mentioned by the experts for the All-American team. But Robert's father was not satisfied.

"I'm afraid, my son," said he, "that you are not making good use of your time at college. I hear very unsatisfactory reports about your work."

"Gee whiz!" exclaimed Robert. "You must have been talking to one of the professors."

Exceeding Her Orders

"Ma! Ma!" bawled Freddie as the usual morning wash was going on. "Do my ears belong to my face or my neck?" "Why, what is the matter?" she asked.

"I want it decided now. Everytime you tell Mary to wash my face or my neck she washes my ears, too."

There's Always Hope

Barber—"Will you have anything on your face when I've finished!" Customer—"I don't know, but I hope you'll at least leave my nose."

Knew That Much

willie," asked the teacher of a new pupil, "do you know your alphabet?"

"Yes'm," answered Willie.

"Yes'm," answered Willie.

"Yes'm," answered Willie.

"Well, then," continued the teacher, "what letter comes after A?"

"All the rest of them," was the triumphant reply.

When Newton D. Baker, Secretary of War, was in France, he went into the trenches held by the American troops and paused at a listening post on the edge of No Man's Land. There he made the significant statement, "I'm at the frontier of freedomi"

The secretary was merely expressing the fact that the great war is a fight for freedom. That is our motto which has been embodied in the rythmic four-word cluster, "Freedom for all forever."

We say, "Back our boys with bonds," and the catch phrase helps us to see the need of lending our money to Uncle Sam. To some extent, more than many of us surmise, the war will be won with impelling slogans.

"I came, I saw, I conquered," affirmed Julius Cæsar.

"I will fight it out on this line if it takes all summer," General Grant stoutly declared.

"Remember the Maine," spread from the Canadian border to the Rio Grande.

And today the English, "Carry on," and the French people, recalling Verdun, snap out, "They shall not pass."

Printing Office on Wheels

A printer in whom the Wanderlust spirit shows itself in an up-to-date way is seeing the country in a motor car specially fitted up as a printing shop. He carries a 6x9 press, a cabinet of type, and all necessary material for executing a job. His car also has a housekeeping outsit, including icechest, kitchen cabinet, bed, table, etc., with running water from a tank. He works in a town till he gets tired, then motors to fresh fields with his outsit. His name is Robins, he started from San Francisco a year ago, and he expects to work East to New York some time, according to the "American Printer," which publishes a picture of this novel car.—Boston Advertiser.

The End Defined

By Ambassador Jusserand.

When will the end come? It can come only when the enemy understands, when he sees the evil he has caused and regrets it, when he is ashamed. The change must not be merely one on paper, one in the laws of his country, but one in his mind. mind.

One of the first restaurants in the East to exclude wheat products entirely from their bill of fare has been opened in Washington for the benefit of the employees of the Pood and Fuel Administrations. This case occupies the entire first, floor of the Food Administration women's club house at 1708 Eye Street, and has a service capacity for about 100 guests.

and has a service capacity for about 109 guests.

The cooking at the new cafe is done under the supervision of a home-economics expert, and while flour made from corp, rice, and potatoes alone is used, there is no lack in palatability or nutrition in the choice dishes of many varieties served here at nearly cost rates. While the restaurant is equipped to serve three meals a day to Food and Fuel employees alone, it is opening its doors during the lunch hour to those of other Government departments situated near by.

The Hyphenated Press

There is no excuse for enduring the continued publication in German of newspapers whose whole recent past demonstrates that so far as they dare they are seeking to strike down the United States and serve, not this country, but the German Empire. Let them publish in English or cease to publish at all.

—New York Tribune.

Room Full of Furnit

Send only $1.00 and we will ship you this handsome 6-Piece library Only $1.00 down, then $2.50 a month, or only $23.90 in all. A positively staggering value and one of the biggest bargains we have ever offered. Look at the massive set, clip the coupon below and have it shipped on approval. Then see for yourself what a beautiful set it is. If you do not like it, return it in 30 days and we will return your money. All you have to do is send the coupon with $1.00. This magnificent library set is not shown in our regular catalog. The value is so wonderful and the demand so great that there aren't enough to go around, so send today—sure. Either have set sent for you to see, or tell us to mail catalog.

This suberb six-piece library set is made of selected solid oak throughout, finished in rich, dull waxed, 6-Pieces

In suberb six-piece horary set is made of selected solid oak throughout, finished in fich, diff waxen, brown fumed oak. Large arm rocker and arm chair are 36 inches high, seats 19 x 19 inches. Sewing padded, seats upholstered in brown imitation Spanish leather. Library table has 94 x 34 inch top, with roomy magazine shelf below, and beautifully designed ends. Jardiniere stand measures 17 inches high, with 12 inch top. Clip the coupon below, and send it to us with $1.00, and we will ship the entire six pieces, subject to your approval. No C. O. D. Sent knocked down. Easy to set up. Shipping weight about 175 pounds. Money back if not pleased. Order by No. B5028TA. Send $1.00 with order; $2.50 monthly. Price, only $23.90. No discount for cash.

Shipped for only $1 down An amaz-

Down ing value. Positively a record-breaking bargain. Each piece is made of heavy gauge pressed sheet aluminum. It is not made of cast as the ordinary aluminum ware is, but of sheet aluminum of a better and heavier gauge than this price ever bought. Absolutely seamless. Will not crack, corrode, chip or peel. Heats quickly—polish can't wear off—just as easy to keep clean as glassware. Cooks and bakes foods more thoroughly than any other kitchenware made. Your for only $1.00 downs fully iberal offer. Send the coupon today—right now.

Everything in the Kitchen of Pure Aluminum—56 Pieces octagon design coffee percolator (2 pieces), 7 cup size; one roaster containing 10 pieces. Measures 10 1-2 inches wide and 6 inches high, (These 10 pieces have dozens of oses—egg poaching, custard baking, rice and cereal cooking, ct.) One 6 quart preserving kettle; 1 jelly cake pan (2 pieces); 2 pie pans; 2 bread pans; 1 stew pan and cover (2 pieces); 1 lip stewer (1 quart); 1 cake

While these special

Send $1.00 with order, $2.00 monthly. Price of 56 pieces, $18.25.

Straus & Schram [Inc.] W 35th St. Chicago, III. Enclosed find $1.00. Ship special advertised article marked X below, I am to have 30 days' free trial; If I keep the article I will pay you monthly payments. If not satisfied, I am to return the article within 30 days and you are to refund my money and any freight charges I paid. G-Piece Library Set, No. B5028TA Price $23.90 56-Piece Aluminum Kitchen Set, No. B5123A. Price $18.25

Address Post Office ... If you only want the Free Catalog, put X below: Formiture and Stores - Paints | Paints | Paints | Devicing | Men's, Women's and Children's Clothing

bargains last. Don't wait a day longer. Sit down today and send in the couFor a limited time only are Prices, as you know, on everyto tell just what day it will be Mail Coupon Today!

30 Days' Trial Free Bargain Catalog

Our guarantee protects you. If not perfectly satisfied, return the article at our ex-pense within 30 days and get your money back—also any freight you paid. Could any offer be fairer?

Send for it. Shows thousands of bargains in furniture, jewelry carpets, rugs, cur-tains, silverware, stoves, and ranges, women's, men's and children's wearing apparel. Send the coupon TODAY.

STRAUS & SCHRAM, (Inc.) Dept. C-304 CHICAGO

The Key to Happiness and Success in over a Million and a Quarter Homes

See Page 16 for Description of Patterns

Copyright, 1918 (Trade-Mark Registered), by W. H. Gannett, Publisher, Incorporated.

Table of Contents on Page 8

Subscribe Liberally to the Next Liberty Loan and Help to Make It a Victory Loan

HE three weeks campaign for subscriptions to the next Liberty Loan will begin September 28th, and the military situation in France has improved so astonishingly of late as to raise the hope that, if we do our duty here as faithfully and efficiently as our soldiers and those of our Allies are doing theirs, it will turn out a "Victory Loan," or in other words that the war will end victoriously for us before the time arrives for another war loan.

The Germans were uncomfortably, even dangerously near Paris and the Channel ports when, in the middle of July they launched their most recent drive designed and expected by them to be a crushing blow, but despite the most elaborate preparations and desperate attacks with enormous bodies of troops they gained but little ground during the first two days. Then General Foch, commander of the combined armies of the Allies, threw in his reserves and counter-attacked so effectively that along the entire battle front of more than fifty miles the Kaiser's men were obliged to fall back before the British, Italian, French and American armies.

This proved to be the beginning of a two weeks battle in which day by day the Allies drove the Germans, inflicting heavy losses in killed, wounded and prisoners and capturing hundreds of cannon, trench mortars and machine guns and large quantities of ammunition. So rapid was the retreat that vast quantities of food and other military stores would also have fallen into the hands of the victors had not the Germans burned them to avoid this result.

At the present writing (August sixth) the enemy has reached a strong position behind a river where he is making a stand and the battle is still raging. It is the first victory for the Allies in France since last fall, and, though not decisive of the war, it is a great victory and has turned the tide of battle which had been going against them ever since last March, and it is believed that the Germans are so weakened by it that they will not again be able to assume the offensive this summer or coming fall and probably never again during the war, although undoubtedly they will give us lots of hard fighting before they finally yield. How long before this will happen none can say but one can now safely predict final victory for the Allies. It is only a question of time with time all in favor of the Allies who are gaining strength continually by the accession of fifty thousand fresh American soldiers each week.

Early this spring the German forces largely outnumbered those of the Allies, and the Kaiser's hope of victory consisted in dealing a crushing blow before America could get sufficient troops over to France to turn the scale, and he wisely planned his campaign accordingly. His boasted plan was to have taken Paris in April and ended the war by May. Failing of this he has lost his opportunity. The American troops were there in sufficient force to take an important and conspicuous part in this battle, and they will be still stronger in the next and in each succeeding battle until the end—and the Kaiser and his advisers know it full well, but so long as the German peotheir leaders will keep on fighting desperately hoping against hope for a turn of luck in their favor.

How soon the war will end depends largely on the German people, on how soon they will wake to a realizing sense of the inevitable and refuse to make further useless sacrifices in a hopeless cause. Will they fight on until their country is invaded by a hostile army and they see one after another of their cities taken by the Allies, or will they seek to mitigate their doom by suing for an early peace? America is the determining factor in this world conflict, as they know, and much depends on the attitude disclosed by the American people in subscribing to the forthcoming Liberty Loan. If our people show indifference in this respect, if the loan goes hard, if they fail to subscribe fully, it will hearten the German people to prolong the war and will cost us a larger army in France, a larger toll of dead and wounded, heavier war taxes and a bigger war debt.

The recent victory has been at the sacrifice of life and limb of many of our brave soldiers. Will any American enjoying the comforts of home life fail to do his utmost to sustain our heroes on the battle front, to shorten the war for them, for our country and for humanity? Is any stay-athome base enough at this critical juncture to shirk his duty by failing to subscribe to this issue of Liberty Bonds to the limit of his ability? Buy all you can-for cash if you have it, or on the installment plan if you have no ready cash but can save and pay. If a fifty-dollar Liberty Bond is beyond your means buy War Savings Stamps to the limit even if it costs you some sacrifice to do it. What is your sacrifice of luxuries compared to that of the man who lives in the mud of the trenches and goes "over the top" in face of poison gas bombs and German machine guns?

Don't Send Perishable Articles to Our Soldiers

HE sending of fruit and other perishable foods to our soldiers in camp has become such a nuisance that, on complaint of the military authorities, the Post-Office Department has issued an order directing postmasters "to refuse to accept for mailing parcels containing perishable articles, especially fruit, addressed to military camps or cantonments, if there is reason to doubt that the contents will not be in perfect condition upon delivery to the addressee."

Postmasters at post offices to which are attached military branches report that large numbers of packages, many of them insured, containing fruit and other edibles, are received daily in such condition as to render the contents unfit for use, and because of the decayed or spoiled condition of the contents are not delivered to the addressee by the military authorities, but for sanitary reasons and to safeguard the health of the soldiers are destroyed. For the information of the public the order explains that: "It should be borne in mind that mail matter for the soldiers in these camps can not always be delivered to the addressee immediately upon arrival there as it comes in large quantities and must be separated into many units, and the time of the soldiers is largely taken up with their military duties. Furthermore, a large percentage of the mail is delayed by insufficient addresses and frequently it must be forwarded because of changes for military reasons in the location of the troops."

Government Takes Over the Cape Cod Canal

HAT some good may accrue from the wickedest acts of war is well illustrated by the recent raid on our coastwise shipping by German submarines which incidentally opened the eyes of our Government to a tardy recognition of the great strategic and commercial importance of the Cape Cod canal.

Cape Cod, on the Massachusetts coast, juts far out into the Atlantic Ocean and beyond it are long stretches of treacherous shoals and dangerous currents, a veritable ship's graveyard strewn with many wrecks and constituting the chief menace to coastwise commerce in New England waters. There is an immense ocean-borne commerce plying between eastern New England and ports to the south, especially between Boston and New York, all of which had to round Cape Cod, in coming and going, until four years ago when the opening of the Cape Cod canal provided a short cut between the waters of Massachusetts

Bay and Long Island Sound and enabled vessels of light draft (as large as the canal would accommodate) to shorten the voyage and avoid the danger attendant on navigation in rounding the Cape.

It has served its purpose to the limit of its capacity which is neither deep enough to float the larger vessels nor wide enough to admit of rapid transit. There is urgent need of deepening and widening the canal sufficiently to accommodate ships of the largest size and to expedite their passage. But this will require Government aid which we hope will now be forthcoming as it should have been long ago. It is no new project. for it was recommended by Washington more than a century ago and since then has been urged on the attention of Congress many times. The canal is seven miles long and cost twelve million dollars. It was constructed by private enterprise of public spirited citizens in the hope that the Government would appreciate its national importance, assume control or ownership and undertake its further development to a degree adequate to the needs of commerce and of national defense.

But all efforts to induce Government action failed until a German submarine came within sight of the shore and sunk an ocean tug and the four coal barges which she was towing round Cape Cod. This startling demonstration shocked the Government into taking immediate control of the canal with the avowed intention of making the improvements requisite to the safety and efficiency of our coastwise shipping. The projected deepening and widening of the canal, if ac-complished, will greatly facilitate the defensive operations of our navy. Our Government should buy the Cape Cod canal and proceed immediately to make it a first-class ship canal for commercial and war purposes and strongly fortify its approaches to protect it against enemy attacks. While we regret the loss of the tug and coal barges, which we can ill afford to spare under present conditions of scarcity of coal and need of ships, there is consolation in the knowledge that the sacrifice is not wholly in vain if it results in the proper handling of the Cape Cod canal proposition which is of incalculably more consequence than the control of the telegraph and telephone lines which the Government has recently taken over and made an adjunct of the Post-Office Department.

Scarcity of Kerosene

NNOUNCEMENT is made by the U.S. Fuel Administration of a scarcity of kerosene oil and that "the supply will run short next winter." So grave is the situation that the Director of Oil Conservation enjoins every user to be as sparing as possible in the consumption of this precious fuel even to the extent of reducing its use for lighting purposes to the lowest possible limit. "Don't allow a lamp, lantern, heater, or stove to burn a minute longer than is necessary. Don't light one you can do without. Don't use coal oil for cleaning purposes. Hot water will do the work," he says. This will be a sore disappointment to those who have fitted up to beat and cook with kerosene in place of coal.

Large sections of the country suffered severely last winter because of the general shortage of coal and the U. S. Fuel Administration has issued repeated warnings to prepare to meet a greater shortage of coal next winter, and has urged conservation by the most rigid economy by users. It behooves everybody in the wooded sections to lay in an ample supply of firewood to take the place of coal the coming winter. The war industries will have the first call on the scanty coal and oil supply.

COMFORT'S EDITOR.

COMFORT, PUBLISHED MONTHLY BY W. H. GANNETT, PUB., INC., AT AUGUSTA, MAINE.

Subscription price in United States and United States Possessions 35c a year; Canadian subscriptions 50c a year, foreign countries 75c a year. No premiums or prizes will be given on Canadian or toreign subscriptions. Please send your renewal just as soon as your subscription expires. We can not continue sending COMFORT to you unless you do. If you do not get your magazine by the 25th of the month write us and we will send you another copy free. Please notify us immediately in case you move, so that we can change your address and see that you do not miss a single copy. Remember that we must have your former address, as well as your new address to make the change. Be sure to send both. We do not supply back numbers.

Entered at the post office at Augusta, Maine as second-class mail matter. Copyright, 1918 (Trade-Mark Registered), by W. H. Gannett, Pub., Inc.

@ AROUND The HOME

War-Time Economies

Hand Made Cotton Bedroom Embroideries.

spite of the war and the vast amount of N spite of the war and the vast amount of knitting which must be done, some time and attention has to be given to making and keeping our homes attractive and comfortable. In doing any really necessary work of this sort however, one should plan to conserve their time, by omitting all fine attiches such as are required in elaborate embroideries, and materials, by substituting cotton cloths for linen and mercerized cottons for embroidery silks.

ton cloths for linen and mercerized cottons for embroidery silks.

As modernized patchwork fulfills both of these requirements it is constantly gaining in popularity. A bedroom decorated with fittings such as are here illustrated may be all of cotton but oh, so pretty if only of unbleached muslin. This being deeply cream toned, blends delightfully with the soft pinks, old blues, brown and greens of harmonizing shades.

The set illustrated which consists of bedspread and shams, bureau scarf and pincushion cover, table cloth, curtains and a pillow for maps is simple in design as the same motiff is used throughout.

The leaves and flowers may be cut from light weight sateen, one quarter inch being allowed on all edges for turning. Shrink all materials to be used, including lace and insertion before cutting.

To make good-looking patchwork it is only to be used, including lace and insertion before cutting.

To make good-looking patchwork it is only mecessary to cut the different motifs as carefully as possible and turn in the edges evenly. Fit in place and baste carefully, then buttonhole as shown with white mercerized floss.

Cut stems or any portion of a design which should be curved somewhat on the bias.

In this basket design which is shown so clearly in our illustration of the pillow, the large flowers are of a soft shade of shell pink, the two center flowers of deep sky blue and all the other smaller ones of light blue.

One or two shades of a clear bright green can be used to advantage, while a golden brown is best for the basket. The parallel cross lines simply being outlined with the same shade in cotton perle.

cotton perle.

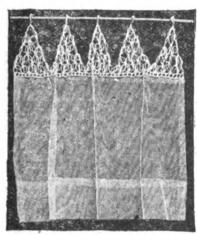

The effect when finished of this graceful little basket of gay flowers, is enough to enthuse any fancy work lover.

Bedspread

If full size unbleached sheeting is used for the spread the insertion may be omitted and the lace only used on the edge. The motifs with basket is placed in center of square below the pillows, while a group of the flowers and leaves decorate each corner.

These have the full size design on both ends. Bureau cover pincushion and table cloth each have smaller designs but of same coloring.

If curtains are also made to match somewhat as shown, they will add greatly to the attractiveness of the room as a whole. These need only be decorated in the lower inside corners, while a valance if used may have a group in the center, the two corners, or a running border as preferred. Pull backs which are again in vogue, may be made in keeping; if circular pieces, the colors of the flowers are drawn up, filled with cotton, sewed together and backed with a group of three-cornered pieces of green folded into leaf shapes. Attach them

CURTAIN WITH VANDYKE POINTS

Another suggestion which will rather add to the color scheme, as a whole, is to finish all edges with bias folds of either blue or pink sateen instead of using lace.

Besides the articles which have been mentioned, chair seats, cushions for window seats and even such minor details as laundry and other bags can all be made to carry out the color

Renovating Curtains

No room seems fully complete or homelike without curtains.

Thrifty housekeepers always make their own and in many cases it is their own and in many cases it is practical to even make them over. For windows on the street or from which the view is ugly half curtains for the lower sash are desirable. These illustrated show two methods which will result attractively and are result in making over curtains.

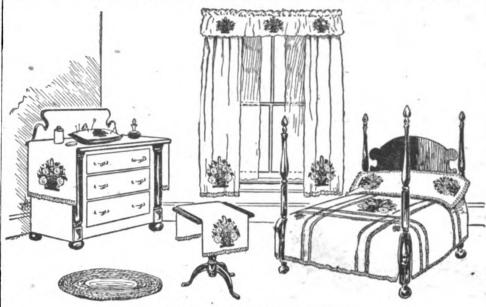

which will result attractively and are useful in making over curtains.

The vandyke points of knots are a good suggestion to lengthen out old material. These can be made separately and sewed on afterwards or one can begin by making one row of double crochet with a chain two between worked right into the material.

Then to decide on the width of the bottom of the points fold the material into equal parts, and across this width make one row of knot stitches as follows; draw out loop three-eighths of an inch, insert hook under back of this loop at the extreme end eighths of an inch, insert hook under back of this loop at the extreme end and make one single crochet draw up closely, then draw loop out same length as before, thread over hook, draw loop through, insert hook just under this loop and back of the long loop and make I s. c., now 1

s. c., in row of d. c. on edge of material, repeat 'skip 2, 1 d. c. in next st., repeat making 29 and turn at end of width of first point. In spaces, ch. 5, turn. each row graduate by making one less knot st. 2nd row.—1 sp., 27 blocks, 1 sp., ch. 5, turn.

BEDROOM SET WITH EMBROIDERIES SHOWN.

until point is reached, tip each point with small crochet covered brass rings, through which the rod can run.

The second curtain is a good idea for renovating hems with frayed edges. Cut through the hems equal distances apart so that when the corners are turned back they will just meet, cat-stitch the edges together and between the points sew tassels which may be made of cotming for curtains may be used.

SOFA PILLOW SHOWING PRINCIPAL MOTIF USED IN DECORATING THE BEDROOM SET.

Rose and Square Filet for Towel

This filet crochet border is an unusually pretty pattern and worked up of medium fine thread makes an insertion which can be used for any purpose where such work as this would be suitable. For trimming in towels use mercerized crochet cotton No. 30 and No. 12 steel 1 sp.

ton thread or little balls such as come on trim- | blks., 1 sp., 3 blks., 1 sp., 2 blks., 4 sps., 1 blk., 7th row.—1 sp., 1 blk., 5 sps., 1 blk., 1 sp., 2 blks., 2 sps., 1 blk., 8 sps., 1 blk., 4 sps., 1 blk., sp.

8th row.—1 sp., 1 blk., 4 sps., 8 blks., 1 sp., 1 blk., 4 sps., 1 blk., 6 sps., 1 blk., 1 sp.
9th row.—1 sp., 1 blk., 4 sps., 2 blks., 1 sp., 1 blk., 3 sps., 1 blk., 1 sp., 1 blk., 1 sps., 1 blk.,

PILLOW SHAM FOLDED OVER IN CENTER TO SHOW UP DECORATION ON END.

hook.

Begin with ch. 92 sts., turn.

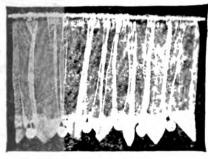

10th row.—1 sp., 1 blk., 3 sps., 3 blks., 3 sps., 2 blks., 1 sp., 1 blk., 1 sp., 1 blk., 2 sps., 1 blk., 2 sps., 1 blk., 2 sps., 3 blks., 3 sps.

Conducted By Mrs. Wheeler Wilkinson

11th row.—1 sp., 1 blk., 3 sps., 2 blks., 3 sps., 1 blk., 2 sps., 1 blk., 1 sp., 1 blk., 1 sp., 3 blks., 1 sp., 3 blks., 1 sp., 3 blks., 1 sp., 3 blks., 1 sp., 12th row.—1 sp., 1 blk., 4 sps., 2 blks., 1 sp., 2 blks., 2 sps., 1 blk., 1 sp., 1 blk., 1 sp., 1 blk., 1 sp., 1 blk., 6 sps., 1 blk., 1 sp., 1 blk., 6 sps., 1 blk., 6 sps., 1 blk., 6 sps., 1 blk., 4 sps., 2 blks., 1 sp., 1 blk., 2 sps., 2 blks., 3 sps., 2 blks., 8 sps., 1 blk., 1 sp.

blk., 2 sps., 2 blks., 0 sps., 2 blks., 2 sps., 3 blks., 1 sp., 1 blk., 4 sps., 2 blks., 2 sps., 3 blks., 1 sp., 1 blk., 2 sps., 3 blks., 3 sps., 1 blk., 1 sp., 1 blk., 3 sps., 2 blks., 3 sps., 1 blk., 2 sps., 2 blks., 2 sps., 4 blks., 3 sps., 1 blk., 1 sp., 2 blks., 2 sps., 4 blks., 3 sps., 1 blk., 1 sp., 1 blk., 2 sps., 3 blks., 2 sps., 2 blks., 1 sp., 2 blks., 9 sps., 1 blk., 1 sp., 2 blks., 1 sp., 3 blks., 1 sp., 2 blks., 1 sp., 2 blks., 1 sp., 3 blks., 1 sp., 2 blks., 1 sp., 3 blks., 1 sp., 3 blks., 1 sp., 5 blks.,

2 blks., 1 sp., 3 blks., 1 sp., 2 blks., 5 sps., 6 blks., 1 sp., 1 blk., 6 sps., 1 blk., 1 sp., 1 blk., 6 sps., 1 blk., 1 sp., 2 blks., 1 sp., 2 blks., 1 sp., 2 blks., 9 sps., 1 blk., 1 sp., 2 blks., 9 sps., 1 blk., 1 sp., 2 blks., 1 sp., 2 blks., 3 sps., 1 blk., 1 sp., 1 blk., 5 sps., 2 blks., 1 sp., 2 blks., 2 sps., 1 blk., 5 sps., 1 blk., 1 sp., 2 blks., 2 sps., 1 blk., 4 sps., 1 blk., 1 sp., 2 blks., 1 sp., 1 blk., 3 sps., 1 blk., 4 sps., 1 blk., 4 sps., 1 blk., 1 sp., 2 sps., 1 blk., 4 sps., 1 blk., 1 sp., 1 blk., 3 sps., 1 blk., 1 sp., 1 sp., 1 blk., 1 sp., 1

RENOVATED CURTAIN.

blk., 1 sp., 1 blk., 2 sps., 2 blks., 3 sps., 2 blks., 2 sps., 1 blk., 1 sp., 1 blk., 3 sps., 1 blk., 1 sp., 23rd row.—1 sp., 1 blk., 4 sps., 1 blk., 6 sps., 1 blk., 1 sp., 24th row.—1 sp., 1 blk., 6 sps., 1 blk., 1 sp., 1 blk., 5 sps., 1 blk., 1 sp., 1 blk., 3 sps., 1 blk., 1 sp., 1 blk., 1 sp., 25th row.—1 sp., 1 blk., 11 sps., 1 blk., 1 sp., 1 blk., 4 sps., 1 blk., 6 sps., 1 blk., 1 sp., 25th row.—1 sp., 1 blk., 5 sps., 1 blk., 1 sp., 27th row.—1 sp., 1 blk., 1 sps., 1 blk., 1 sp., 1 b blk., 1 sp., 1 blk., 0 spe., 1 blk., 5 sps., 1 blk., 1 sp.

29th row.—1 sp., 1 blk., 11 sps., 1 blk., 1 sp.,

29th row.—1 sp., 1 blk., 11 sps., 1 blk., 1 sp., 1 blk., 1sp.,

30th row.—

1 sp., 1 blk.,

4 sps., 8 blks.,

4 sps., 8 blks.,

4 sps., 8 blks.,

1 sp., 8 blks.,

1 sp., 8 blks.,

4 sps., 1 blk., 1 sp., 31st row.— 1 sp., 1 blk., 4 sps., 1 blk., 6 sps., 1 blk., 6 sps., 1 blk., 6 sps., 1 blk., 6 sps., 1 blk., 4 sps., 1 blk., 1 sp., 6 blks., 1 sp., 6 blks., 1 sp., 6 blks., 1 sp., 1 blk., 4 sps., 1 blk., 4 sps., 1 blk., 4 sps., 1 blk., 1 sp., 1 blk., 1 sp., 1 blk., 4 sps., 1

33rd row.—1 sp., 1 blk., 4 sps., *1 blk., 1 sp., 1 blk., 4 sps., re-peat from * twice more, then 1 blk., 1 sp. 34th row.—1 sp., 1 blk., 4 sps., twice, 1

sp., 1 blk., 4
sps., twice, 1
blk., 1 sp., 1 - FILET FOR TOWEL.
blk., 4 sps., twice then 1 blk., 1 sp.,
1 blk., 4 sps., repeat from *twice, 1 blk., 1 sp.,
1 blk., 4 sps., repeat from *twice, 1 blk., 1 sp.,
36th row.—Same as last.
37th row.—I sp., 1 blk., 4 sps., 1 blk., 1 sp.,
6 blks., 1 sp., 1 blk., 4 sps., 1 blk., 1 sp., 1 blk.,
4 sps., 1 blk., 1 sp.,
38th row.—I sp., 1 blk., 4 sps., 10
blks., 4 sps., 1 blk., 1 sp.,
1 blk., 4 sps., 1 blk., 4 sps.,
1 blk., 1 sp.,
39th row.—I sp., 1 blk., 4 sps., 1 blk.,
1 sp., 4 blk., 1 sp.,
1 sp., 1 blk., 1 sp.,
1 sp., 1 blk., 1 sp.,
1 sp., 1 blk., 1 sp.,
1 sp., 4 blk., 1 sp., 1 blk., 1 sp.,
1 sp., 4 blk., 1 sp., 1 blk., 1 sp.,
1 sp., 4 blk., 1 sp., 1 blk., 1 sp.,
1 sp., 4 blk., 1 sp., 1 blk., 1 sp.,
1 sp., 4 blk., 1 sp., 1 blk., 1 sp.,
1 sp., 4 blk., 1 sp., 1 blk., 1 sp.,
1 sp., 4 blk., 1 sp., 1 blk., 1 sp.,

Filet Initial Insert

Any initial can be worked in these squares which is especially pretty to mark individual towels. The letter P. is used in the towel shown. Ch. 62, turn.

1st row.—1 d. c. in 9th st., ch. 2, skip 2, repeat making 19 sps. in all.
2nd row.—1 sp., 17 blks., 1 sp.
3rd row.—1 sp., 1 blk., 15 sps., 1 blk.,

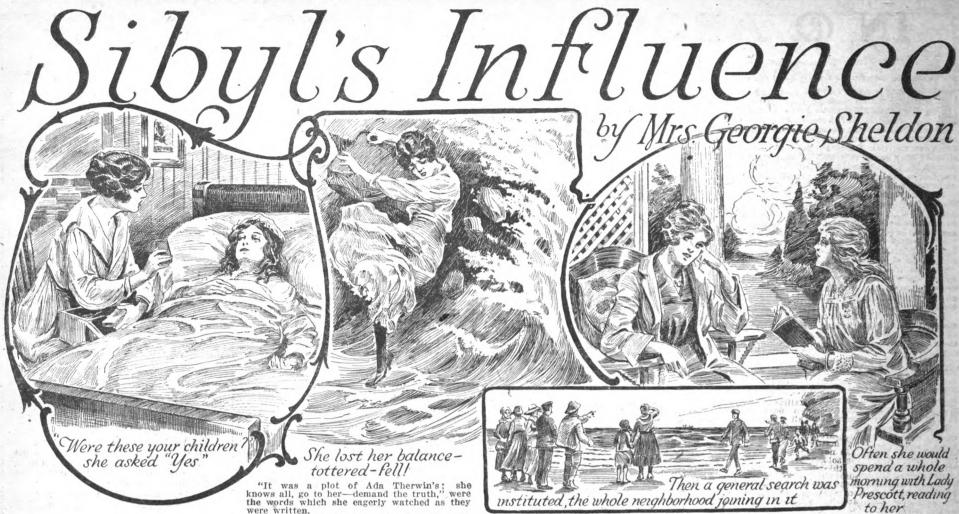

1 sp. 4th row.—Same as last. 5th row.—I sp., 1 blk., 7 sps., 1 blk., 7 sps., 1 blk., 7 sps., 1 blk., 6 sps., 3 blks., 6 sps., 1 blk., 1 sp. 7th row.—I sp., 1 blk., 5 sps., 2 blks., 1 sp., 2 blks., 5 sps., 1 blk., 1 sp.

8th row.—1 sp., 1 blk., 5 sps., 2 blks., 1 sp., 2 blks., 5 sps., 1 blk.,

9th row.—1 sp., 1 blk., 3 sps., 1 blk., 1 sp., 1 blk., 1 sp., 1 blk., 3 sps., 1 blk.,

1 sp., 1 blk., 1 sp., 1 blk., 3 sps., 1 blk.,
1 sp.
10th row.—1 sp., 1 blk., 3 sps., 3 blks., 1 sp., 1 blk., 1 sp., 3 blks., 3
sps., 1 blk., 1 sp.
11th row.—1 sp., 1 blk., 6 sps., 1 blk.,
1 sp., 1 blk., 6 sps., 1 blk., 1 sp.
12th row.—Same as 10th row.
13th row.—Same as 9th row.
And proceed to reverse the potter.

And proceed to reverse the patten.

Copyright renewed, 1908 by Mrs. Georgie Sheldon Downs.

Serial rights by W. H. Gannett, Pub., Inc.

Serial rights by W. H. Gannett, Pub., Inc.

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS.

Lady Prescott, wife of Sir Athelstone Prescott, and her son Raymond, stop at a miserable inn, in a little fishing village on Flamborough Head. They are attracted to a little girl, Sibyl, who waits on them, and determine to take the child away. They learn that a woman who had been in a railroad smashup and injured, leaves the child, and Mistress Sloan, for the consideration of thirty pounds, consents to let the child go. That night, Sibyl is awakened and overhears Jem and his wife talking over the terms of the bargain, and through a chink in the wall she detects the place where an invaluable trinket belonging to her is concealed. She traces three letters, "S. H. S.," and which convinces Lady Prescott that the gem is Sibyl's, and by it she may be restored to her own people. Five years later, her nineteenth birthday, Lady Prescott introduces her to society, where she meets Miss Ada Therwin, the adopted daughter of Count Egbert Shirley and the guest of General Maplewood. Miss Therwin refers to the ornament Sibyl wears, and to her surprise discovers the letters S. H. S. interwoven in the jewels. To the query if it is an heirioom, Sibyl says she supposes it belonged to her mother. Miss Therwin promises to call. Sibyl has a strange distrust for her. Scheming to estrange her from the Prescotts, she calls on Lady Frescott, Sibyl and Ray, and invites Sibyl to ride with her, and to further her plans, requests Robert to stop at the Widow Martin's, who does work for two orphan girls under her care at home. Sibyl's belief in Ada's work of charity arouses her interest, and, unsuspicious of her designs, Ada gains her confidence and the story of her early life. Arriving home, Ada plots the ruin of Sibyl and the winning of Raymond Prescott, Sibyl meets Mrs. Stillman, a widow and childless, who excites not only Sibyl's sympathy but her suspicions, when she hears the story of the railroad accident, the death of her little Sibyl and the resemblance Sibyl h SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS.

CHAPTER XXX.

"WAS HE THEIR FAPHER?"

HE early hours of the morning found the small household by the sea in direst confusion and distress.

There had been a sudden change for the worse in Mrs. Stillman's condition during the night, and the hastily summoned physician said she could only live a very little while.

She had had a shock which had paralyzed the whole of her left side, and rendered her almost speechless. Toward noon, however, she seemed to rally somewhat, and beckoned Sibyl to send the servants, and a neighbor, who had been called in during the night, from the room.

"Dying!" Mrs. Stillman gasped, looking pitifully up into her face and trying to make Sibyl understand that there was something she wished to say.

understand that there was something she wished to say.

"Do you mean that you have something you wish to tell me?" she asked.

Yes, the relieved look in her face told her that was what she wanted.

"Can you write it?"

She nodded, and Sibyl brought pencil and paper, holding the latter for her while she feebly traced the words:

"I have dome you a fearful wrong. Can you forgive?"

"I have dome you a fearful wrong. Can you forgive?"

"It was all forgiven long ago, dear mother; do not let it disturb you now," Sibyl returned, tearfully, thinking she referred to the old story. But the woman shook her head, and wrote:

"Not that. I have told you a falsehood. You are not my child."

Sibyl's heart stood still as her quick glance read these startling words; then bounded in her bosom like a thing of life, while for a moment it seemed as if her senses were slipping from her.

"Not your child! Why did you claim me then?" she gasped at last.

"It was a plot of Ada Therwin's; she knows all, go to her—demand the truth," were the words which she eagerly watched as they were written.

were written.

"Then I am not a child of—shame?" Oh, tell me!"

"No," the white lips formed, while a look of pain swept over the death-stricken face.

"Forgive me," Sibyl cried, remorsefully, as she saw the words had hurt her, "but are my parents living?"

"Forgive me," Sibyl cried, remorserully, as sue saw the words had hurt her, "but are my parents living?"

"Yes," Mrs. Stillman nodded, and, in an agony of suspense, Sibyl asked:

"Who are they?—who am I?"

The feeble fingers grasped the pencil once more, and tried to write, but she could not hold it; it fell from her hand and rolled upon the floor.

Sibyl picked it up and placed it again in her hand, and grew almost faint when she found how cold it had become.

Her waning strength refused her the power to form the words she so longed to write, and, with a look of despair, the dying woman turned her eyes up to the white, beautiful face bending over her, and feebly shook her head, signifying that she could not do it. Sibyl was in agony. Yet she thought that, perhaps, by a few well-directed questions, she might learn something more, and she knew by her companion's looks that she longed to tell her more regarding her history and that fearful plot against her.

"You say that all this was a plot?" she asked.
"Yes," Mrs. Stillman nodded.

"And Miss Therwin was concerned in it?"
"Yes."
"Does she know all my history?"
"Yes."

"Does she know all my history?"
"Yes."
"Is she in any way related to me?"
"Yes."

"Did she give you all the facts of my life as you related them to me?"

"And you knew nothing of them until then?"

"Do you know my parents personally?"

"Do you know my parents personally?"
"No."
"Are they honorable people?"
"Yes:" and the woman's eyes brightened suddenly, which Sibyl took to mean they were very respectable.
"How I wish you could write their name! Oh, if you only could!" she cried, in despairing tones. Two great tears gathered in the dimming eyes, and rolled slowly over the shrunken cheeks.
Sibyl took her own handkerchief, and wiped them tenderly away.
"I do not regret the past nine months," she went on, sweetly. "I shall never regret them: and I am even glad that God allowed this great sorrow, which I have endured, to come upon me, and sent me to you."

Ah! how those dark eyes chan; at this, from their look of helpless remorse. one of deep thankfulness and peace, and then turned slowly upward, as if she, too, would thank God for the comfort of that moment.

"Is your mind at rest now, mother?" Sibyl neled entreesely using the new which for many comfort of that moment.

"Is your mind at rest now, mother?" Sibyl asked, purposely using the name which, for many months, she had instinctively shrunk from speaking, and had never known why until this hour. She appeared to think a moment, and then turned her eyes wistfully toward a tiny trunk standing upon a case of drawers on the opposite side of the room.

Sibyl brought it to her bedside, turned the key, which was within the lock and opened it.

Sibyl brought it to her bedside, turned the key, which was within the lock, and opened it. It was filled with letters and papers, and contained also several photographs.

The letters were nearly all directed to "Judith Hoffman," and Sibyl wondered who she could be, and why they were there.

"Is this a person you wish any message sent to?" she asked.

"No"— the head feebly turned.

"Is she a friend or relative?"

"No," and she managed to lay her hand upon her breast, signifying that it was herself.

Sibyl drew a quick breath.

"Do you mean that it is yourself—that Judith Hoffman is your name?"

"Yes."

"And Mrs. Sylvia Henrietta Stillman is an assumed name, adopted to correspond with the initials belonging to the necklace? Was that a part of the plot?" the young girl asked, eagerly, it all flashing upon her in a moment.

"Yes."
"Is that my mother's real name?" she demanded, greatly excited.

"No."

"Are her initials really the same, and did the necklace once belong to her?"

"Yes."

"Yes."

The sorely tried girl sighed; she so longed to solve the perplexing mystery; then seeing the eyes wander again to the box, she asked if there was something more within it she wished to know about.

Mrs. Stillman signified that there was, and she began taking the other things out.

There were a good many photographs, and among them Sibyl found those of two children, a little boy and girl; and something in the face of the former struck her as being strangely familiar. She held them up.

"Were these your children?" she asked.

"Yes."

"Yes."
"And they are both dead?"

The invalid nodded, but turned her eyes anxiously again to the little trunk, and Sibyl knew there still was something else within yet to be revealed.

ly again to the little trunk, and Sibyl knew there still was something else within yet to be revealed.

One by one she took out every picture, and held them up to her, but without appearing to satisfy her, until she came to the very last one. It was a likeness of a young and very handsome man, having a profusion of light curling beard and hair.

This seemed to be what Mrs. Stillman wanted, and she glanced from it to the pictures of the children, which Sibyl held in her other hand. The little boy strongly resembled the man.

The young girl caught her breath quickly, and for a moment a mist obscured her sight.

"Who is it?" she asked, huskily, though her heart told her that the question was needless. Again the dark eyes turned from it to the children, and Sibyl, in a voice of horror, cried: "Was he—that man—their father?"

The woman nodded, and for an instant her eyes lighted with a gleam of their original fire; but it quickly faded, leaving them calm again. The old spirit of hate was exorcised forever.

Tenderly as a mother Sibyl ministered to the fast-failing woman, after which she sat down beside her, and softly sang some of the hymns which she knew she loved, and she was at last relieved and comforted to see her drop into a quiet, peaceful slumber.

Then, gathering up the scattered papers, letters, and pictures, she replaced them in the little trunk; but not without a shudder of horror as she recalled that one familiar, handsome face—a face that haunted her continually, and would continue to as long as she lived. It was the face of the Duc d'Aubigne.

CHAPTER XXXI.

DEAD.

It was all over at last, and Judith Hoffman

It was all over at last, and Judith Hoffman was dead!
Sibyl had written a second urgent appeal to Sir Athelstone as soon as the woman died, giving him some of the particulars, and begging him to come to her immediately, as she had very important information to communicate to him.

She waited three days, and there came no answer; and then, nearly heartbroken with her loneliness and this unaccountable neglect, Sibyl was obliged to follow the dead woman to her quiet grave alone.

The Duc d'Aubigne called immediately upom learning of Judith's death, to tender his services and condolence; but Sibyl, with a feeling of disgust and repulsion, refused, without assigning any reason, to see him, and he went away in no enviable frame of mind, but vowing to win her yet in spite of herself.

The day following Judith's burial (which was to be only temporary, since as soon as the authorities and the weather would permit for it was intensely hot, she was to be removed and laid beside her children). Sibyl, nearly ill with loneliness and grief, went out upon the veranda, as soon as the sun had set, to cool her aching brow and get a breath of fresh air from the sea. She sat there as the twilight came on, trying to think what was best to do in the future. She knew she could not remain there alone, notwithstanding that Sir Athelstone had taken the cottage for the summer, paying a high rent in advance.

She could not bring her mind to return to her friends in Dumfries, to claim their protection, the cottage for the summer, paying a high rent in advance.

She could not bring her mind to return to her friends in Dumfries, to claim their protection, after all the neglect of the past weeks, at least until she should hear from them. What this strange deportment on their part could mean she could not explain. It was entirely at variance with Lady Prescott's kind heart to treat any one thus, while she knew that Raymond had too much manliness to desert her in her hour of need, even though he had ceased to love her as he used to do.

"No," she murmured, wearily, "my letters must have miscarried, and yet it is very strange that a like fate should have happened to all of them. I could telegraph, but there is no office within miles and miles of Barmouth."

A sudden thought came to her, blanching her already hucless cheek still more.

Ada Therwin, was her deadly enemy for some unknown reason. Could it be that she had succeeded in alienating all the affection of her dear omes from her?

ceeded in alienating all the affection of her dear ones from her?

How could she have done it? What was her motive? Who could the girl be—in what way related to her, and how could she have learned her history so accurately?

It was all a miserable, tantalizing mystery, and it made Sibyl's heart turn sick with an uncontrollable desire to unravel it all.

Another thing that troubled her exceedingly was, while looking over Judith's belongings, to get them in order for packing away, she had not been able to find that necklace, with its peculiar clasp, which had done so much to prove to her the truth of the woman's statements, and which, since her recent discovery, she had hoped would even now aid her in finding her parents.

This much she knew—Judith had assured her that the necklace had belonged to her mother, and the initials upon the clasp were her very own. That was something to guide her, though the clew was very faint.

But what had become of it, and how came it in the woman's possession in the first place?

There Ada Therwin's agency must have been employed, Sibyl believed, and only through her could she hope to gain any light.

She now remembered Miss Therwin's strange behavior on the night of the birthday reception, and her eager questions concerning the ornament which she wore. It now came to her that she must have known of those initials before she saw them there, or she never could have traced them so readily and she gradually came to the conclusion that Ada had furnished Judith Hoffman with the rest of the necklace to prove her false story, and to carry out some deep-laid scheme of her own.

If such was the case, and the necklace could be found nowhere among Judith's possessions, then Ada must have taken it again into her possession before they left Dumfries, and with it the long-missing link, which was the only clew to her birth, and which, in her disgust, she had returned to the jewel case when Judith had taunted her with her shame.

With her head aching, her whole body hot and feverish, her heart heavy from neglect, loneliness, and sorrow, she arose, and throwing a light shawi over her shoulders, and loosely tying a hat upon her head, she wended her weary way to the beach, to take a last look at the sea, for tomorrow she had resolved to go away.

The ocean had grown dark and restless, somber shadows were settling over the land, and the low moaning of the wind, as it came sweeping over the wide waste of waters, seemed sighing a requiem for the dead whom she had just laid away.

But Sibyl had no fear of the settling shadows, and the very wind and waves neither of the

But Sibyl had no fear of the settling shadows, or of the rising wind and waves, neither of the lonely beach whither she was wending her solilonely beach whither she was wending her solitary way.

She reached, at length, the ledge of rocks where she came so often, and where the Duc d'Aubigne had first found her.

The ledge shelved out over the water some ten feet and she knew it was very deep beneath, but it could not harm her, she had been there so often, she was familiar with every inch of ground, and she was sure-footed.

The storm was coming nearer; she felt a sprinkle upon her cheek, but its timely and gentle admonition was unheeded.

She was thinking over all her past, going back to the time when she was a little child carried to that wretched inn in the arms of her nurse, and reviewing every step of the way until now, when she stood alone and more desolate than ever.

when she stood alone and more desolate than ever.

She had resolved that if the bitter report was true, and Ada had succeeded in weaning the hearts of Sir Athelstone's family from her, she could no longer accept the annuity which his bounty had bestowed upon her. She would never eat the bread of idleness and be dependent where she was no longer loved.

A vivid flash of lightning made a trail of light along the western horizon, and was reflected in the inky waters beneath.

A gust of wind at that instant swept by, tearing her hat from her head, and sweeping it out into the ocean.

She reached forth her hand to save it. She did not realize how very near she had come to the not realize how very near she had come to the brink of that dangerous cliff; she lost her balance—tottered—fell!

One moment of awful silence—a wild, despairing cry—a heavy splash, and the deep, dark hungry waves closed over their prey, hiding their dread secret beneath their sable folds!

CHAPTER XXXII.

THE SEARCH FOR SIRVL.

Morning broke in unclouded splendor, and without a suspicion of the tempest which had raged during the night.

Early dawn found a group of anxious, frightened watchers collected upon the beach, straining their eyes seaward, where the waves still ran high, and running hither and thither inconfusion and dismay; for it was feared that Sibyl Stillman had been drowned!

Then a general search was instituted, the whole heighborhood joining in it.

Almost the first thing that met their eyesight was a fine handkerchief clinging to a bush, and upon picking it up, they found upon its border the delicate monogram containing the initials "S. P." as all her clothing had been marked by Lady Prescott.

They clambered to the top of the ledge, and looked over the shelving rock into the abyss below.

white worsted shawl had caught, and was hanging upon the crags beneath, where, shel-tered from the wind, it had clung all the dis-mal night through.

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 10.)

Department is conducted solely for the use of COMFORT sisters, whereby they may give expression to their ideas relative to the home and home surroundings, and to all matters pertaining to themselves and families; as well as opening a way for personal correspondence between each other.

object is to extend a helping hand to COMFORT subscribers; to become coworkers with all who seek friendship, encouragement, sympathy or assistance through the interchange of ideas.

assistance through the interchange of ideas.

Any abuse of this privilege, such as inviting correspondence for the purpose of offering an article for sale, or undertaking to charge a sum of money for ideas, recipes or information mensioned in any letter appearing in this department, if reported, will result in the offender being denied the use of these columns.

Do not ask us to publish letters requesting money contributions or donations of any sort. Much as we sympathize with the suffering and unfortunate, it is impossible to do this as we would be flooded with similar requests.

Please write only on one side of the paper, and recipes

Please write only on one side of the paper, and recipes on a separate sheet.

Always give your correct and full name and address, very plainly written; otherwise your letter will receive no attention.

Address Mrs. Wheeler Wilkinson, Care Comfort, Augusta, Maine.

HEERFUL" of California sends with her letter a poem which will appeal to all our readers and awaken any slacker sisters (if there are any) to the fact that no matter what their pet hardship may be, it is as nothing compared with the hardships our brave soldier boys are encountering. The ordinary things of life that we have been wont to fuss over, fade into insignificance when we think of the greater inconveniences our boys are meeting with a smile, and surely if they are brave enough to face danger, and death, for us we should be brave enough to help them by showing an equal amount of courage in adding to their material comfort by giving generously and saving willingly. Ed.

WISCONSIN.

DEAR MRS. WILKINSON AND SISTERS:

I will drop in for a little chat but I must not be very noisy for I do not want to awaken my babies. I have four, the oldest is six and the youngest is one year old. I enjoy taking care of them and teaching, them to be good and do little things to help. They like to feel that they are helping mother even if they are somewhat of a bother. Mrs. Lindsay, perhaps you don't praise your little boy enough when he does help at home. Tell him he is a fine boy and thank him for what he does and he will be more willing to help next time. Perhaps other people pay him a few pennes and that is why he prefers to work for them rather than for you.

I help Hubby by doing my own work, washing, baking and sewing and work in the garden and he helps me by taking care of the children in the night. We cured our boy of thumb sucking when he was eighteen months old, by putting mittens on his hands and tying them in place and leaving them on all night and during them in place and leaving them on all night and during the day we watched him and told him he mustn't and in a week we had him cured.

I have three brothers in the war, the youngest is nineteen years old. I pray that I may see them again.

I am sending some little verses that I like.

A BUSY MOTHER OF FOUR.

After All

There are only three things That are really worth while— To be good, To do good, And always to smile.

Thought for the Day

Just to be tender, just to be true,
Just to be glad the whole day through,
Just to be merciful, just to be mild,
Just to be trustful as a child;
Just to be good and kind and sweet,
Just to be helped with willing feet,
Just to be cheery when things go wrong,
Just to drive sadness away with a song.

Friends New and Old

Make new friends, but keep the old? Those are silver, these are gold; New made friends, like new made wine, Age will mellow and refine; Friendships that have stood the test, Time and change, are surely best; Brow may wrinkle, hair turn grey, Friendship never owns decay; For 'mid old friends, kind and true, We once more our youth renew. But, alas, old friends must die, New friends must their place supply. Then cherish friendship in your breast New is good, but old is best. Make new friends, but keep the old; Those are silver, these are gold.

Busy Mother.—We are glad you were not too busy to take time to send us the helpful little poems.

To the Wisconsin sister who wanted to know who "Ed" was, that she had seen his name mentioned several times in the Sisters' Corner, I want to explain that it means "editor," or in other words, your humble servant, Mrs. Wilkinson.—Ed.

Versailles, Ind.

Dear Sisters:

In the press of interests in the last year we seem to have forgotten that we have some business on hand that should not remain unfinished any longer. I refer to the Uncle Charlie Home Fund. While the war has worked a hardship with some of us, there are many who are prospering as they never did before, and to these, especially, the Home Fund Sisters' appeal for help in completing the work. Help the fund by donations or by purchase of the Uncle Charlie books, either directly or through subscription to Comfort. There are no books more suitable as gifts for any occasion. A set of them and a subscription to Comfort makes an ideal wedding gift. Try it as I did and see the pleasure it gives. In the past few years I have been using them for Christmas gifts and in every case they were hailed with delight. Uncle Charlie's birthday (Sept. 25) is near—let's make it his Branner Birthday by "going over the top" with the full amount for that home. Don't wait for someone else. Let's see what "togetherism" will do—so come on, brothers and sisters, and do your bit for the fund!

Sincerely, Emma Stockinger. DEAR SISTERS :

Emma Stockinger.—I wondered if you had given up the fight and am glad to know you have not. Uncle Charlie needs all the backers he can get and appreciates your efforts to help him.—Ed.

DEAR MRS. WILKINSON AND SISTERS:

I have been a COMFORT reader for several years, but, like other sisters have neglected writing until I wanted like other sisters have neglected writing until I wanted help.

Mrs. J. H. Lindsay, I believe the lack of interest in the work in your Rip Van Winkle son is due to your nervous temperament. Be more patient and encouraging and remember a child is a child and not a grownup. Love is the theme of all things; this you must learn and teach your child accordingly.

Comfort Sisters' Recipes

Tegerables are baked roasted, fried or boiled and prepared for the table of boiled and prepared for the table method of cooking them is in boiling water. The simpler the methods of cooking and serving vegetables, the better. A properly grown and well-cooked vegetable will be palatable and readily digestible. Badly cooked, water-soaked vegetables very generally cause digestive disturbances. Nearly every yegetable may be cooked subtract-soaked vegetables very generally cause digestive disturbances. Nearly every vegetable may be cooked so that with plain bread it may form a palatable course by itself if it is desired to serve it in this manner.

All green vegetables, roots and tubers should be crisp and firm when put on to cook. If for are reason a vegetable has lost its firmness and are reason a vegetable has lost its firmness and are reason a vegetable with the vegetable will be only a matter of minutes, while old roots and tubers often require many hours. All vegetables should be thoroughly cleaned just before being put on to cook. If for an equil amount of tender celery; add about tendered down, in salted coid water, to which a few spoonfuls of vinegar has been added. If there are any worms or other forms of animal life in these vegetables, they will crawl out. To secure the most appetizing and palatable dishes, only fresh, tender vegetables, sheep will crawl out. To secure the most appetizing and palatable dishes, only fresh, tender vegetables should be cooked. If, however, green beans, peas, etc., have grown a little too old, a very small piece of baking soda added to the water in which they are boiled makes them more tender. Too much soding light of the proposed fine. The proposed fine will be soaked, light of the proposed fine will be soaked, light of the proposed fine will be soaked, light of the proposed fine. The proposed fine will be soaked to the water in which they are boiled makes them more tender. Too much soding light of the proposed fine will be soaked to the fine of the proposed fine will be soa

STUFFED TOMATOES.—Select large, smooth tomatoes and cut a slice from the stem end deep enough to go below stem. Remove the soft part, taking care not to go through the walls. Remove seeds, and add an equal amount of finely chopped boiled ham and bread

STUFFED TOMATOES.

Crumbs, and enough softened butter, pepper and sait to season. Fill each tomato with this mixture, heaping the centers, and cover top with buttered bread crumbs. Place in agate baking pan (do not use tin) in a hot oven and bake till crumbs are brown.

Green Tomato Relish.—Chop one peck of green tomatoes very fine and mix with one cupful sait. Let stand in a jar over night. In the morning drain off all the brine, and mix with the tomatoes ten onlons and five green peppers chopped fine; set on the stove and cover with good apple vinegar. Then add one cupful sugar, two tablespoons ground clinamon, one tablespoon each of allspice and black pepper. Cook about two hours. Put in a jar and add one fourth pound white mustard seed and one cupful grated horseradish. This will keep some time without scalding if kept in a cool place.

Tomato Mincement.—Chop one peck of green to-

TOMATO MINCEMEAT.—Chop one peck of green tomatoes fine, drain, and add to the chopped tomato four pounds brown sugar, two pounds seeded raisins, one pound currants, two tablespoons each of cinnamon, allspice, black pepper, salt and nutmeg. Boil two to three hours. When almost cold, add one cupful vinegar and, if you have it, one cupful good cider. This can hardly be told from genuine mincemeat.

BORDEAU SAUCE.—Four quarts cabbage put through the meat chopper, two quarts green tomatoes shaved fine, five onlons, two peppers chopped fine, two ounces white mustard seed, one half ounce celery seed, one half ounce allspice and one half ounce cloves, one pound brown sugar, one pound salt and one half gallon good vinegar. Boil twenty minutes and seal.—Sent in by BEATRICE SMITH, Cleveland, Va.

Sent in by Beatrice Smith, Cleveland, Va.

DILL PICKLES.—Dill pickles are made as follows: Take cucumbers three to five inches long, if not too thick; wash them well. Place a layer of grape leaves in the bottom of a crock or keg, then a layer of cucumbers, two or three apples (quartered without paring), a few bunches of green grapes or stalks of pieplant, two or three sliced onions, two handfuls of mixed whole spices and two or three handfuls of dill tops and seed. Repeat until the jar or keg is full, placing a layer of grape leaves on top. Dissolve one and one half pounds of sait in eight gallons of cold water. Pour this over until the pickles are all covered. Weight down with a clean board and stone and in two weeks they will be ready for use.—Mrs. A. M. DeWitt Seneca, Kans.

To Dry Sweet Corn.—Husk and silk as many ears

A. M. DeWITT Seneca, Rans.

To Dry Sweet Corn.—Husk and silk as many ears as wanted. With a sharp knife split the grains lengthwise, then cut from the cob, scraping the cob clean. Place the pan of cut corn in the oven and heat thoroughly. Then spread on white paper or cloth in the trays and place in the sun to dry. Before storing away, heat it hot in the oven and pack in lard palls or fruit cans. I use cracked ones for this purpose.

TO DRY GARDEN PEAS.—Shell and scald slightly and dry in the sun. Give same treatment as corn before putting away for the winter.—Mrs. C. F. RITCHEY, Center Point, Ark.

The editor has asked for suggestions about Mrs. H. of New York and I too feel like scolding her and would were she not so young. She says she wants to do something great to obtain public sentiment. Listen, dear, don't you know that life is what you make it. Why then make it miserable? You are fortunate in having been awarded an ideal home, a loving husband and a dear baby, all of which are Heaven's richest blessings and is there anything so "great" as being Wife and Mother in a Home? There is but one remedy for your condition and that is to exchange places with one who has not been fortunate enough to receive such blessings as yours and within a short time you would come to realize how foolish you had been in wishing to change your life's program. Better wake up to your present "greatness" and be contented. I am wondering if any of the sisters can give me advice in regard to cankered sore mouth. My mother, now at the age of 56, has suffered from this disease for several years, having as many as seven or eight of these large ulcers in her mouth at one time. She has consulted physicians who have advised beer as a temporary cure, stating that the yeast of which the beer is made would bring relief. During the time she was able to buy beer her mouth was entirely free from ulcers but since the State has been voted dry she is unable to get the beer and is suffering with sore mouth again. Some say this yeast is made from hops. Can any of the sisters give me a recipe for making the beer yeast or any other recipe that has been found to help those suffering from canker mouth. Any advice will be greatly appreciated.

I find much comfort in the bits of verse written in several of the sisters' letters. Here is a little motto will be greatly appreciated.

I find much comfort in the bits of verse written in several of the sisters' letters. Here is a little motto that I try to remember in case of the blues: "Never give up to despair; it is always darkest just before the dawn."

I have a little book in which I paste all COMFORT of salad.

CREAM SALAD DRESSING.—Work to a fine mash four hard-boiled egg yolks and season with a teaspoon of salt, one scant teaspoon of mustard and two dessert spoons of vinegar. When thoroughly blended, add one and one third cups of cream beaten stiff, a little at a time, till the whole mixture is smooth and stiff, and lastly add a pinch of cayenne pepper.

STRING BEANS PICKLED.—Gather beans before frost comes, string and put them into a keg or wooden tub sand cover with brine. To make brine, to one gallon of water, bolling hot, add three pounds of salt and let the brine cool. When cold test it with an egg. If the egg floats, the brine will keep anything you wish to put in it. Then pour this over your beans. It is best to make the brine in one gallon quantities at a time, until you have enough to entirely cover the beans.—Miss Flora L. Panne, Irwin, Va.

Chow-Chow.—Chop one peck of green tomatoes,

Chow-Chow.—Chop one peck of green tomatoes, three large heads of cabbage, six small red peppers (seeds removed), salt to taste. Mix well and gat in large stone lar and cover with vinegar, not too strong. This is fine with meat and can be used in two or three days after it is made.—Mis. L. B., New Meadows, Idaho.

Idaho.

TOMATO VINEGAR.—If you have ripe tomatoes that are too soft to can you can make excellent tomato vinegar from them. Squeeze juice from tomatoes and to each gallon add one half pound sugar. To make it quickly, expose a large surface of the juice to the sum. If put in buckets or tubs with mosquito netting over top to keep out flies and dirt, and placed in the sun, in a short time you will have good vinegar. Small quantities may be poured into bottles, which should be left uncorked and set in the sun or behind the stove.—Miss Floaa L. Payne, Irwin, Va.

SPICED PICKLED BEETS.—Cook beets in usual way and when ready to peel, have vinegar spiced and sweetened. Put the beets in this and set on stove to come to a boil.—Mes. Jno. Hanlin, Denton, Md.

Canned Corn.—One cup each sugar and salt and CANNED CORN.—One cup each sugar and salt and water to nine cups of corn. Put on fire and from time it begins to simmer, boil fifteen minutes. Put in glass cans and seal. Tried and true.

RIUBARD CONSERVE.—Seven pounds rhubarb, five pounds of sugar, two pounds of raisins and three oranges. Put in a warm oven until the juice starts and then put it on the back of the stove where it will simmer. It burns easily.—A COMFORT READER, Allegany, N. Y.

Allegany, N. Y.

MOCK MINCR MEAT.—One peck green tomates, one half peck apples, five pounds of sugar, one cup of suct, one cup of result, one cup of suct, one cup of contains, one tablespoon of salt, one teaspoon of cloves, cinnamon and nutmeg, two pounds of raisins, two pounds of currants. Chop the tomatoes and boil one and one half hour, then chop the apples, add other ingredients and boil one half hour.—Mrs. C. A. E., Idaho.

BOILED CAULIFLOWER.—Boil cauliflower in salted water until tender. Lift from the kettle and put on a platter, surround with toasted points and decorate with parsley. Turn off most of the water, leaving about a half cup in the kettle. Add to this a piece of butter the size of a walnut, one half cup of milk into which a level tablespoon of four has been rubbed, and serve hot.—MARY H. NORTHEND, Salem, Mass.

BOILED CAULIFLOWER.

thoroughly. Then spread on white paper or cloth in the trays and place in the sun to dry. Before storing away, heat it hot in the oven and pack in lard palls are fruit cans. I use cracked ones for this purpose. To Dry Ganden Peas.—Shell and scald slightly and try in the sun. Give same treatment as corn before putting away for the winter.—Mrs. C. F. Ritchey, Center Point, Ark.

Chow-Chow.—One dozen cucumbers, two heads cabbage, two dozen green tomatoes, one half dozen green peppers, four onions; chop together fine, cover with

The Interpreter

In relations between peoples speaking different languages, especially when such peoples are joined as allies, competent interpreters are requisite for intelligent co-operation.

Qualifications for an interpreter consist largely in a correct knowledge of the language, the different points of view, and the mental habits of each people to whom he acts as interpreter.

With its news bureaus, its advertising offices, and its circulation all over the world, The Christian Science Monitor is able to gather and express correct knowledge of all peoples, and all viewpoints, and, speaking the language of Principle understandable to all peoples—it is the interpreter of those ideals toward which the world is being so rapidly impelled today.

Intelligent co-operation in the exposition and solution of the world's menacing problems can be extended by encouraging the reading and cir-culation of this daily interpreter.

The Christian Science Monitor, 3c a copy, is on general sale throughout the world at news stands, hotels and Christian Science reading rooms. Yearly subscription by mail anywhere in the world, $9.00, or one month trial subscription for 75c. Single copy sent on receipt of a 3c stamp.

THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE PUBLISHING SOCIETY

Sole publishers of all authorized Christian Science literature.

recipes, remedies, etc., and many times have found it very valuable.

Mrs. Wilkinson, you surely will be rewarded for the national love you have brought about among the sisters.

With best wishes to all,

MRS. C. F.

With best wishes to all,

With best wishes to all,

KEWANNA, IND.

Dear Comfort Sisters:

As I have read the Sisters' Corner for quite a while and received so much good from it and so many hints on raising little folks, I thought possibly some one would like to read a letter from this part of the good old United States.

I have a question to ask the sisters and would like to hear from all who could give me advice. My George, and, of course, to me he is the best, has Army fever. He feels that he would like to enlist and go "over there" and fight for Uncle Sam and Old Glory. Don't you think if he is brave enough to leave three little ones and his wife and go over there and face danger, and perhaps death, as you know he will, that I ought to be brave and let him go? One thought comforts me and that is that he will not forget us or think less of us. And I know I am not the only wife to give her loved one for this most just cause. I had rather see him willing than sit back and take a slacker's chair. Some one has to farm, and that is what we are doing, but still-he says it is better to let some one farm that had rather do that than go to war. I had an acquaintance tell me yesterday that if she had a husband and he didn't think enough of her to stay and help take care of her and the little folks that she would be glad to get rid of him. That went clear in to my heart.

I have three little girls, one, two and four years old, so you see I never have to look around for work. I did all my own work from the time they were two weeks old and I raise chickens and a garden and try to do my bit in all ways.

I'll describe myself and then you can tell why I do so much. I am twenty-one years old, five and one half feet tall and weigh 175 pounds. I have dark brown hair and eyes and at present am very tanned but usually I am rather fair with rosy cheeks.

I'm letter is printed I would like to receive letters from any of the sisters who care to write and to exchange dress patterns for girls up to five years.

Yours lovingly, to all

CHILLICOTHE, MO.

DEAR SISTERS:
How many of you ever wrote your second letter to COMPORT? Well, you see I like you real well for this is my second letter. The last time I visited you was about five years ago when I was a girl of sixteen summers. This time I am a married woman. Shall I tell you the name of the friend that brought my husband into my life? It was no other than COMPORT. Among the hundred or so letters that came in answer (CONTINUED ON PAGE 11.)

An Oak Rocker like this usually sells for $8 to $10 at stores. We give it with a $10 purchase of Foods, Soaps, etc., as the saving you make by dealing direct with the great Larkin Factories.

Send for it today. Shows the 600 Larkin Products and the hundreds of useful Premiums given with them. Every transaction guaranteed satisfactory or money refunded.

How to Save Money

By taking your Premium-value in the form of extra Products you get Larkin Foods, Soaps, etc., for half price. Just think what this will save you!

Larkitt Co. Buffalo, Chicago, Peoria

Please send me Catalog No. 76.

G. P. 384 _____

Yet that dream had made her wake up. wish I'd never seen you! Mrs. Murralj walked slowly toward Regent St. I dare say you do-Lady Levallion!" Sir Thomas dived into his pockets.

CHAPTER XXXVI.

A MOUSE-HOLE.

ELL," said Allington grimly,
"you ruined a fine theory for me last night with your wire. I thought for a solid hour that I could put my fingers on the man who killed Levallion." killed Levallion."

The two were strolling up and down the open lawn at Levallion Castle. Perhaps Mr. Allington made a guess as to what had deferred Adrian Gordon's arrival till three in the afternoon, but he said nothing. The face of the new Lord Levallion, who in a few more days would be plain Adrian Gordon once more, did not encourage comment.

comment.
"You did mean you thought it could be the cook?" he cried, standing still in the autumn cook?" he cried, standing still in the autumn sunshine.

"I did. But"—he flicked the ash from his cigar significantly—"it all went like that."
"What put it into your head at all?" drearily.
"A boot-boy. The only servant who was not called at the inquest. And he told Sir Thomas' tale of the beating, and the subsequent tender care of Monsieur Carrousel in finding his protege a new place.

a new place.

"That set me thinking," he continued. "I went down to the housekeeper's room last night when the house was quiet, and I found it led into the still-room."

"I don't see much in that," interrupting him.

down to the housekeeper's room last night when the house was quiet, and I found it led into the still-room."

"I don't see much in that," interrupting him. "We all know that. It's to keep the still-room under her eye. That's all. There's no second door from the still-room."

"Isn't there?" said Allington quietly. "Did it never strike amy one that a portion of those shelves in that room covers a door, that opens, shelves and all, into the 'boothole' under the kitchen stairs. I confess last night that with that discovery, and the carting off of the boot-boy, I felt jubilant. But it was all rubbish. The housekeeper had a letter from the boy I thought the cook had made away with, to say he liked his new place which Monsieur Carrousel had found for him. Something Square it was dated, and postmarked Paddington."

"It's all one what it was postmarked," Gordon returned dully. "It wasn't Carrousel I saw last night; and I agree with you that the boot-boy Business was all bons fide enough. A clever Frenchman might pound a stupid boy to a jelly from exasperation, and then turn round and be kind to him."

"Who did you see last night?" curiously. "I suppose you've been playing detective on Mrs. Murray, eh?"

Adrian nodded.

"I don't know why," he said, "for she was in Boulogne all summer. Couldn't have been down here at all. But I took lodgings opposite and lay doggo to watch her. Much I got! No one went into her house except her lawyers in that case of hers," as indifferently as if it concerned him not at all and did not spell ruin, "till last night, when I saw a man go up her steps. Something about him startled me, his back looked familiar: I don't know why, but I could have sworn I'd seen him down here. Yet I knew he was none of the house party. He went in, and I ran out and wired to you. But before your answer came I knew I'd made an ass of myself. I'd just got back to my door when I saw the fellow come out, and it was no one I'd ever seen in my life. I saw his face quite plainly as he lit a cigar. If I'd seen it like th a pal of Hester's."

Allington nodded. He was as disappointed as a dog that has discovered an empty rat-hole.

"What do you think of doing now?" he said.

"The detectives are quite hopeless of finding Sir Thomas' mysterious man and woman, I may tell you. That woman who levanted from the bungalow was their first thought, but she has apparently fallen off the earth. As for the man"—snapping his fingers—"after pouncing on twenty innocent young farmers, they have given him up. Unless—"He stopped awkwardly. Somehow he could not say to Adrian Gordon that he had yet to prove he was not himself that man. Not that Allington thought so, but there was no doubt the police did.

"Unless he turns up, directly under their noses" and the said.

Allington thought so, but there was no count the police did.

"Unless he turns up, directly under their noses," said Adrian coolly. But Allington could make no guess at what he meant.

"What do you think of doing?" he repeated. "Go back to town, and—" he hesitated. "Look here, Allington, you don't think this business of Hester Murray's looks queer bang on top of Levallion's death, do you?"

"No." unwillingly. "She'd be afraid to try it—in that case. In any case, you say you know she was in Boulogne."

"No," unwillingly. "She'd be afraid to try it—in that case. In any case, you say you know she was in Boulogne."

"I suppose I do. She gave me an address of a pension there, and I wrote. It was all straight enough. Hello! here's Tommy!" with annoyance.
He had not wanted to see Tommy. The boy's eyes were too clear, even a lie untold might be written in Gordon's face, he thought vexedly.

"Hello! where've you been?" he said uncomfortably, and then stopped short.

"My God, Tommy! what is it?" he cried, the dreadful look on the boy's face meaning only one thing to him. Ravenel was guilty, and her brother had found it out!

Mas Was

"Don't speak to me!" said the boy hoarsely; "let me think. I've been—and I thought it might mean something, but—it can't!"

Wherever he had been he had been running, and his face was white and red in streaks. Allington pulled him down on a garden bench.

"Get your breath," he said, but he was afraid, too.

At the two pale faces the boy suddenly laughed out hysterically.

"I've made a fool of myself," he said. "I thought I'd found something. Look here. I went over to the farm where—you know the Umbrella died?" incoherently.

"She didn't know enything!" gried Allington.

over to the farm where—you know the Umbrella died?" incoherently.

"She didn't know anything!" cried Allington.
"I turned the farmer's wife inside out. I suppose you mean by the Umbrella the woman who be found?"

"I don't know what she pose you mean by the Umbrella the woman who wrote those letters to Lady Levallion that can't be found?"

"I don't know what she knew," said Tommy sharply. "And we never will. I went out toward the station to see if Gordon had come down by the two-twenty, and he hadn't. Coming home I met Mrs. Ward, the farmer's wife, and she asked me what she was to do with the Umbrella's old bonnet or something, but she really stopped me to know if any of us would pay for the Umbrella's board. It seemed she stayed a week there, and Ravenel hadn't sent her enough money to pay for that and her funeral. I don't know! Anyhow, I strolled up with old Mother Ward to see just what the Umbrella had left in the way of clothes, and to view the undertaker's bill for myself. For old Ward's a beast. There were some old rags of clothes with nothing in the pockets, and I said you'd pay the undertaker,' turning to Allington. "I was staring round the place and I saw a piece of paper, just an edge, sticking out between the floor and the wall. I hooked it out, and there was a mouse-hole behind it; the mice had dragged the thing in there. "Old Mother Ward gave a yell. Said the Umbrella had held that thing in her hand, till she died, and she'd wondered what had become of it. I thought—oh! I don't know what I thought," miserably; "but it isn't any good. Here's the thing, and it doesn't mean anything."

"It's a torn telegram," said Allington, peering over Gordon's shoulder as he snatched the paper. "Nothing." said Tommy, "only 1 pound, or something."

Adrian Gordon, like a man in a dream, stared at the dirty, mouse-eaten thing he held. It might over Gordon's shoulder as he snatched the paper.

"What's that on the back of it?"

"Nothing," said Tommy, "only 1 pound, or something."

Adrian Gordon, like a man in a dream, stared at the dirty, mouse-eaten thing he held. It might be meaningless enough to Tommy and Allington, but to him.

"By——!" he said, below his breath, "Hester!"

"What do you mean?" cried Allington, startled. "Look!" grimly, his eyes as hard as Levallion's had ever been.

And Allington made out the tattered telegram.

"Wire descript—— Bocage. Imme——" the address was eaten away, there was no signature.

"I don't see what you mean!" he exclaimed. Gordon pulled from his pocket that letter from Pension Bocage concerning Mrs. Murray.

"Now do you understand?" he cried. "She was in Boulogne all summer—according to that. Yet the man who wrote it wired to her to describe herself. The meaning's clear enough. Wire description to Bocage immediately,' that's how the telegram ran. It was Hester Murray, Tommy saw that night—and she dropped it."

"But how could the woman who died come by it?" said Allington doubtingly.

"You never knew her!" he cried. "She was always creeping and crawling round. You bet she saw that man and woman the night I did, and that was what she wanted to tell Ravenel. Oh, if she hadn't died!" he caught his breath. "She had sharp ears, the Umbrella. She may have heard every word they said. And now we'll never know."

"Now, on the contrary, we've the only clue we've ever had," Gordon returned. "You're a fool, Tommy!" staring at the reverse of the telegram, "with your "I pound! It's 'I found' written on the back of it, and something else I can't make out. But even without it, we've enough for—Hester Murray," savagely.

Sir Thomas dived into his pockets.

"Whoever the woman was" he cried, hunting vigorously, "I've got something belonging to her. You didn't know that when Jacobs went for the man that night he tore the woman's cloak, did it ever since."

He laid in Allington's hand a scrap of black satin, with a torn bit of chinchilla

Adrian stared at him.

"Why, in heaven's name!" he said blankly,
"didn't you show that at the inquest?"

"Because I'm not a fool," returned Sir Thomas.
"The room was full of men. How did I know any of 'em hadn't been drinking champagne in the moonlight with a lady, and would go off and tell her she'd been seen looking in windows. Besides, then, mind you, I thought it was you I, saw on the rock, and I didn't care who it was with you, because I'd proved it wasn't my sister."
Adrian winced.
"I can't say much for your eyesight!" he cried, with sarcasm. "Last night, Allington says you were quite ready to think the man was Carrousel."

The words cut.

The words cut. "I never said it was Carousel I saw on the rock that night," said Tommy, suddenly very white and quiet. "I never thought it. He's got a beard. But I'll tell you this much: If you'll find the woman who owns that cloak, and give me time—I'll find the man!"

"Time's just what we haven't got. And I don't believe you'd know the man if you fell over him," unbelievingly.
"I mightn't," said Tommy, composedly. "But Jacobs would."

And neither man believed him.

And neither man believed him.

CHAPTER XXXVII. A GRAY-LINED CLOAK.

"I'm going to win!" said Hester Murray to herself, breathlessly. "Oh, I'm going to win!"

For her case had been taken up by the cleverest barrister in London, and, as he showed it to her, faultlessly dovetailed together, there was not a flaw in it. Maurice Davidge, even, who, for his own reasons, had posed this ten years back as John Davidge, was back in London, and in self-defense had chosen to stand his chance for false impersonation and misappropriation of money rather than take John Davidge's sins on his shoulders.

For John Davidge's father had had excellent cause to pension off his son. A long-gone-by agrarian riot and murder in Ireland had been John Davidge's work, and by a queer chain of circumstances had come home to him now.

Maurice, to save his neck, which he had ignorantly ventured in London was glad enough to have Hester Murray corroborate his tale. And, indeed, there was no doubt about his identity. Witness after witness cropped up to establish that, and the death and burial of the true John Davidge, who had lived long enough to make Hester's marriage to Murray null and void, and died just in time to legalize her union with Levallion.

But it was queer that, as she looked at her lawyer's triumphant, confident letter, a shiver shook her; the shiver old women call footsteps on your grave. She got up and drank some brandy, nearly neat. At the bungalow she had got into the way of keeping her heart up with spirits, but she would break that off now. Yet she took another glass before her shivering-fit would pass.

"It was that dream!" she said to herself. "It nustrum me I wish I knew what it meant.

she took another glass before her shivering-fit would pass.
"It was that dream!" she said to herself. "It unstrung me. I wish I knew what it meant. But dreams"—the brandy was warming her now—"are rubbish! Only thoughts, after all."
Yet that dream had make her wake up, crying out till Adrian—that Adrian who had Levallion's blood in him—came to her from the next room.
"What's the matter?" he cried, a bonny figure in the half-light, with his ruffled head and his tumbled nightgown.
"I dreamed I was on a swing!" She caught him to her.

tumbled nightgown.

"I dreamed I was on a swing!" She caught him to her.

"That wasn't anything," climbing into her bed.

"No, of course not." But she did not tell the child her whole dream. There was she, 'Hester Murray, sitting on a swing that hung high over the heads of a great crowd of people. In front of her, so that, as she swung, she must touch it, was a flower-covered platform. On it she saw herself—yes, her very self—in widow's weeds, holding her boy by the hand, among a group of people who were crying: "Long live Lord Levallion!" cheering for the new heir.

The swing began to move forward and something made her look over her shoulder. Behind her, precisely as far away as the flower-decked platform, so that as she swung back she must touch him, stood the dead Levallion in his grave-clothes. He smiled, that smile that had cut her many a time, and pointed. At his right hand was the gallows, and a hangman with a black mask.

The swing flew through the air, touched the never heard every word they said. And now we'll never know."

"Now, on the contrary, we've the only clue we've ever had," Gordon returned. "You're a fool, Tommy!" staring at the reverse of the felegram, "with your 'I pound!" It's 'I found witten on the back of it, and something else I tan't make out. But even without it, we've mough for—Hester Murray," savagely.

Sir Thomas dived into his pockets.

"Whoever the woman was" he cried, hunting rigorously, "I've got something belonging to her. fou didn't know that when Jacobs went for the nan that night he tore the woman's cloak, did no? And—oh! here it is!" gladly. "I've had tever since."

He laid in Allington's hand a scrap of black atin, with a torn bit of chinchilla hanging to it. Adrian stared at him.

"Why in heaven's name!" he said blankly, 'didn't you show that at the inquest?"

"Because I'm not a fool," returned Sir Thomas. "The room was full of men. How did I know ny of 'em hadn't been drinking champagne im he moonlight with a lady, and would go of and ell her she'd been seen looking in windows. Bedides, then, mind you, I thought it was you I aw on the rock, and I didn't care who it was rith you, because I'd proved it wasn't my sister."

"Adrian winced.

"I can't say much for your eyesight!" he ried, with sarcasm. "Last night, Allington says ou were quite ready to think the man was sarrouse!" The smine, and populated. At his right hand was the gallows, and a hangman with a black mask.

The round; the reverse of the the platform. The dreamer tried to jump to it, and wast the gallows, and a hangman with a black mask.

The round ske was tied by a cord. Back, back went the swing flow through the air, touched the platform. The dreamer tried to jump to it, and wast tied by a cord. Back, back went the swing flow a flow as tied by a cord. Back, back went the swing flow are tried to jump to it, and wast the swing flow are tried to jump to it, and wast tied by a cord. Back, back went the swing flow are tried to jump to it, and wast tied by a cord. Back back went the

But she was too late at the hospital, or too something. The hall porter informed her that the house surgeon was busy at an operation, and —having vainly expected a tip at her previous visits—could get her no information on the case visits she inquired about, except that the man was she inquired about, except that the alive.

Mrs. Murray walked slowly toward Regent Street, that the lights and the crowd might cheer her. At Berry's she went in and had dinner, with reckless extravagance. There was nothing to to home for tonight, and it would pass the in go nome for, tonight, and it would pass the time.

It had been five o'clock when she started; it was nearer ten than nine when she got back to Starr Street, her causeless apprehension utterly gone, and her small, dainty face quite gay.

A gentleman is waiting to see you, madam!"
The landlady was in the entry as Mrs. Murray's latch-key let her in. There was no secret about her being the Mrs. Murray whose case had electrified London, and the future Countess of Levallion had everything she chose to ask for in the squalid lodgings.

"What gentleman?" The door half-closed, the latch-key half-way to her pocket, Hester stood.

"I couldn't say. I think he was here yesterday."

"I couldn't say.
terday."

"Oh, yes!" with a little relieved laugh. "My lawyer." And she went into the sitting-room with her oddly boyish step suitably adjusted to smoothness. The door slipped from her hand and banged.

lawyer." And she went into the sitting-room with her oddly boyish step suitably adjusted to smoothness. The door slipped from her hand and banged.

A tall man, clean-shaven, except for a heavy dark mustache, was pacing irritably up and down the room. His plain blue serge was exquisitely cut, but oddly narrow in the chest, as if it had been made for some other man.

"How dare you come here?" she said, her clear voice low with fury. "It's enough to ruin me." He shrugged his shoulders.

"You talk nonsense. Have I no sense? If I run any risk it is because you were out. Did I not say," angrily, "stay in, stay in, stay in," His uplifted hand seemed to threaten her, for she cowered under it. "For you, there is no risk at all."

"You said last night you could not come again. That there was risk. As she looked at him, her dream came back to her, though he had not been in it, and her voice came harsh and sudden.

"What brings you, and where have you been?" His hand fell on her slight shoulder.

"Last night was last night!" he said. "It's none- of your business where I've been, but I don't mind telling you. Down at Levallion."

"Well?" she said, as if it were no news to her.

"If I hadn't gone it would not have been well-for you," he said. "Though I don't know. Did you do"—curiously—"what I told you to?"

"I couldn't," carelessly. "I've had no chance."

"What!" savagely.

"I couldn't do it in daylight!" she cried. "I don't see how I can do it at all. There's always some one looking at me. If that's what you mean, you were a fool to come here! The thing is safer here than anywhere; it doesn't mater in any case.

"Get it," ordered the man, and his face had grown ten years older. "Since you can't make yourself-safe. I must. Go!"

"I won't do anything in the dark," she said. How do I know what you want it for—other people may trust you, I don't."

His hands opened and shut, as if for one second it was hard work to keep them off her, though he loved her in his way.

"You can trust me—better than yourself," he said, close to he "They'd nothing of yours?" she gasped.

"No," softly, but his nails were hurting her shoulder. "But they had of yours. Had you no sense—did you not know that accursed dog tore your cloak that night in the wood?"

"I never looked at it!" she said wildly.

"Look now, then; for they had a piece of it in their hands, May the devil burn them for not showing it at the inquest! I'd have—and now you've got it still! Even though I told you to take no chances, to get rid of it if you had to burn this house down."

"They can't think of me," hardily. "I was in Boulogne."

"How do I know whom they think of?" with sudden fury. "They have gone back for some reason to the woman they could not trace. I hear from people that all this time Captain Gordon has been in London. What brought him back today to look at that black-and-gray rag? If I had not gone done, the police might have fitted it to your cloak."

"How dared you come, with Gordon there?" she broke in furiously. "You should have watched

"How dared you come, with Gordon there?" she broke in furiously. "You should have watched him. He—"

"He is there, and not here—that is why I came." And as if her slowness, her distrust, maddened him, he shook her viciously. "Get the cloak!" he cried, "and I'll save you yet. The police may be on you tomorrow. You will only have me and my field-glass to thank if they do not find it."

not find it."

"If they do, I didn't do—it," she said, and then ran, for his eyes were full of murder.

"Take it!" she gasped, coming back again, throwing down a black satin cloak, lined with chinchilla. "I wish I'd never seen you!"

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 8.)

SALTING, PICKLING, FERMENTING

GREEN VEGETABLES FOR WINTER

By Violet Marsh

Is Your Family Living up to the Pledge You Have Signed?

UGAR Economy is a necessity. Before the war, France, Belgium and Italy produced their own sugar, and England obtained the most of hers from Germany. Today our Allies need sugar. The battle lines and enemy territory now include much of their sugar land, so that more and more they are turning to us and our sources of supply. We must continue cut-ting down our own consumption. At first this was not easy, for we, in the past, have used more sugar than any other people. But now, with this definite knowledge of the reason for sugar conservation, there has been a noble response in helping solve the world problem of how to more evenly divide the world's sugar.

In many homes sweet desserts are a thing of the past. Less or no sugar is used in tea and coffee. Cakes are not frosted, fruits and cereals are eaten without sugar, and the daughters of the house are becoming experts in making sugarless confections. The use of cane, corn and maple syrups, honey, molasses, and fruit syrups are being better understood and more appreciated.

Every housekeeper is anxious to build up safe reserves of fruit and vegetables for winter and a good provider takes justifiable pride in well-filled shelves. To such women the present allowance of sugar and the high price and scarcity of jars will not allow of a safe margin unless backed up by generous supplies of bottled fruit juices and salted or fermented vegetables.

England has adopted a method of preserving fruit without sugar, known as "pulping," that is employed both commercially and in the homes. This process is described on this page. The English housewife who has to be very careful of sugar makes up pulp into jam one jar at a time as required for immediate use.

Fermentation and Salting

The use of salt in preserving vegetables for

Salting without Fermentation

Preserving cabbage, string beans and greens for winter use by salting is a method which has long been used. To do this, the vegetables should be washed, drained and weighed. The amount of salt needed will be one fourth of the weight of the vegetables. Kegs or crocks make satisfactory containers. Put a layer of vegetables about an inch thick on the bottom of the container. Cover this with salt. Continue making alternate layers of vegetables and salt until the container. is almost filled. The salt should be evenly distributed so that it will not be necessary to use more salt than the quantity required in proportion to the vegetables used. Cover the surface with a cloth and a board or glazed plate. Place a weight on these and set aside in a cool place. If sufficient liquor to cover the vegetables has not been extracted by the next day, pour in enough strong brine (one pound of salt to two quarts of water) to cover surface around the cover. The top layer of vegetables should be kept under the brine to prevent molding. There will be some bubbling at first. As soon as this stops, set the container where it will not be disturbed until ready for use. Seal by pouring very hot paraffin on the surface.

WITH BRINE AND VINEGAR.—This method is used for cucumbers, string beans, green tomatoes, beets, corn and peas, as these vegetables do not contain enough water for a good brine using only salt. Wash the vegetables and put in a crock or other container, filling to within three or four inches of the top. Pour over them a brine made by adding to every four quarts of water used one half pint of vinegar and three quarters of a cup of salt. They must be well covered with the brine and the amount of brine needed will be about one half the volume of the material to be fermented, which is to be kept pressed down by a wooden cover or glazed plate, weighted, as described in the next recipe; also follow directions as to removal of scum. When fermentation is complete, the container should be sealed by pouring over a layer of hot paraffin nearly half an inch thick to prevent a scum forming.

To Ferment Cucumbers.—Unless the cucumbers are from your own own own a layer of hot paraffin rearing half an inch thick to prevent a scum forming.

balf an inch thick to prevent a scum forming.

To Ferment Cucumbers,—Unless the cucumbers are from your own garden, wash them carefully. Pack them in a keg, barrel or crock, leaving space at the top for the cover. Cover them with a brine made by adding to every four quarts of water used one half pint of vinegar and three quarters of a cup of salt. The amount of brine needed will be one half the volume of the material to be fermented. Place a wooden cover or glazed plate on top of the contents and press it down by weighting it with a stone or other weight, to keep the cucumbers under the brine. Fermentation will require from eight to ten days in warm weather, and from two to four weeks in cool weather. It is complete when bubbles cease to rise when the container is lightly tapped or jarred. When this stage is reached, remove any scum which may have collected, pour hot paraffin over the cover and around the weight and store in a cool place.

Green Tomatoes.—The process is the same as GREEN TOMATOES .- The process is the same as that for cucumbers.

BEETS AND STRING BEANS.—Remove the strings from beans. Beets should be washed thoroughly and packed whole. Spices may be added, as with cucumbers, but may be omitted if the vegetables are to be freshened by soaking when they are to be used. The method is the same as with

COOKING AND SERVING .- When required for use remove the vegetables from the brine and soak them in clear cold water for several hours, with one or two changes of water. They may then be cooked as fresh vegetables, with at least one change of water while cooking.

If cooked without soaking, fermented dande-lions, spinach, kale and other greens will have flavor similar to that of greens in their fresh state.

Fermented corn should be soaked several hours, with three or four changes of water. During the cooking also there should be one change of water. The corn may then be used in chowder, pudding, omelet, fritters or waffles.

Salted string beans should be soaked to remove the salt and then prepared and served as fresh beans are prepared and served. Fermented string beans may be cooked without soaking and served as the fresh beans are served. Young and tender string beans may be eaten raw.

SAUERKRAUT —The outside leaves of the cab-served as the fresh beans are served. Young and tender string beans may be eaten raw.

SAUERKRAUT.—The outside leaves of the cabbage should be removed, the core cut crosswise several times and shredded very finely with the rest of the cabbage. Either summer growth or fall cabbage may be used. Immediately pack into a barrel, keg or tub, which is perfectly clean, or into an earthen-ware crock holding four or five gallons. The smaller containers are recommended for household use. While packing, distribute salt as uniformly as possible, using one pound of salt to forty pounds of cabbage. Sprinkle a little salt in the container and put in a layer of three or four inches of shredded cabbage and then pack down with a wooden utensil like a potato masher. Repeat with salt, cabbage and packing until the container is full or the shredded cabbage is all used. Press the cabbage down as tightly as possible and apply a cloth and then a glazed plate or a board cover which will go inside the holder. If using a wooden cover, select wood free from pitch, such as basswood. On top of this cover place stones or other weights (using flint or granite and avoiding the use of limestone or sandstone). These weights serve to force the brine above the cover.

Allow fermentation to proceed for ten days or two weeks, if the room is warm. In a cellar force the brine above the cover.

Allow fermentation to proceed for ten days or two weeks, if the room is warm. In a cellar or other cool place, three to five weeks may be required. Skim off the film which forms when fermentation starts and repeat this daily if necessary to keep this film from becoming scum. When gas bubbles cease to arise, if container is tapped or jarred, the fermentation is complete. If there is a scum, it should be removed. As a final step pour melted parafin over the brine until it forms a layer from one pour melted parafin o a layer from one quarter to one half inch thick to prevent the formation of scum, which occurs if the weather is warm or the storage place is not well cooled. This is not not necessary unless not necessary unless the kraut is to be kept a long time. The kraut may be

SIMPLE DEVICE FOR STRAINING FRUIT JUICES.

CANNED SAUERKRAUT.—Fill jars, adjust rubbers and partly seal. Sterilize one hundred and twen-try minutes in hot water bath, or sixty minutes in steam pressure outfit at five to ten pounds

Pickling Vegetables

Pickling is an important branch of home preparedness for the winter months. Pickles have little food value, but they give a flavor to a meal which is liked by many. They should not be given to children.

In pickling vegetables they are usually soaked over night in a brine for the purpose of removing the water from the vegetable and so prevent weakening of the vinegar. Alum is harmful to the human stomach and should not be used to make pickles crisp. Pickles will be firm if not cooked too long or at too high a temperature. Pickles put into crocks should be well covered with vinegar to prevent moulding.

Cucumber Pickles.—Soak in brine made of CUCUMBER PICKLES .- Soak in brine made of CUCUMBER PICKLES.—Soak in brine made of one cup of salt to two quarts of water, for a day and night. Remove from brine, rinse in cold water and drain. Cover with vinegar, add one tablespoon of brown sugar, some stick cinnamon, and cloves to every quart of vinegar used; bring to a boil and pack in jars. For sweet pickles use one cup of sugar to one quart of vinegar.

PICKLED CABBAGE AND CELERY .- Two quarts of chopped cabbage, two quarts of chopped calery, one cup of sugar, one quarter of a cup of salt, one quarter of a cup of salt, one quarter of a cup of mustard seed, and three quarter of good vinegar. Cook all together until the cabbage is tender. Keep in stone crock.

Chow-chow,—Chop fine with a knife or run through a coarse food-chopper, one fourth peck of green tomatoes, one fourth peck of small onions, three cauliflowers, three cucumbers, six large red peppers and one fourth peck of yellow string beans. Place in a brine made by dissolving one pound of salt in five pints of water and let set over night. In the morning bring the brine, with the vegetables still in it, to a boil and keep boiling five minutes.

In a separate vessel bring one gallon of cider vinegar to a boil. With a little water make a paste of one fourth pound of ground mustard, one fourth ounce of turmeric, one cup of brown sugar and two level tablespoons of flour. Put this paste, with a half ounce of celery seed, in the vinegar and boil until it begins to thicken. Now take the vegetables up, drain off the brine, put the vegetables in another saucepan, and pour the boiling vinegar mixture over them. Mix well, put in jars, and seal while hot. This chow-chow is best when about the consistency of thick cream. If very much water is left in the vegetables in the form of brine, it will be too thin. In this case, use more flour and thicken it. Instead of the cauliflower, an equal part of celery or cabbage may be substituted.

Tomato Catsur.—Cook one peck of red, ripe tomatoes in a preserving kettle until thoroughly stead of the cauliflower, an equal part of celery or cabbage may be substituted.

Tomato Catsup.—Cook one peck of red, ripe tomatoes in a preserving kettle until thoroughly done. Mash through a fine strainer to remove skins and seeds. Add to this eight level tablespoons of salt and one level tablespoon of cayenne pepper. Into a bag put two level tablespoons of black pepper, six level tablespoons of mustard, one level tablespoon of clinamon, one level tablespoon of uground allspice and one level tablespoon of cloves. The and put bag of spice into tomatoes and rapidly boil until it thickens, then add one quart of vinegar and continue boiling until a teaspoon placed in a saucer will not give off any water. Remove the bag containing spices, put the catsup in jars or bottles, and seal or cork while hot. If paraffin is convenient, melt a small quantity in a saucepan, insert the bottle of catsup and dip the cork and upper part of the bottle in it.

Cucumber Catsup.—Grate and drain well seven large cucumbers; add six grated onions, one pint of strong vinegar, three tablespoons of pepper and two tablespoons of salt. Mix and seal.

Bottled Fruit Juices without Sugar

This process is very simple and lightens the labor of saving the perishables. The juice of berries, cherries, apples, pears, plums and peaches may be bottled in season. They make delightful summer drinks and sherbets or they may be combined with fresh fruits in making gelatine desserts, or the foundation for pudding sauces. These juices may be made into jelly in winter as needed, or combined with dried fruits in making preserves.

as needed, or combined with dried fruits in making preserves.

Save All Bottles, as any size will do for fruit juices, while the medium-sized ones will answer for catsup, and the wide-mouthed ones can be used for marmalades and pickles.

Wash bottles, place side-down in vessel and cover with cold water. Bring to a boil and boil fifteen minutes. Drain bottles on cloth and they are ready to fill. Sterilize corks by boiling with the bottles.

TO PREPARE FRUIT.—Cut and crush large fruits.

To Prepare Fruit.—Cut and crush large fruits, stem grapes, and use berries as received. Heat slowly to the simmering point. The flavor will be finer if the fruit is not allowed to boil. Strain fruit through cloth bag and allow the juice to stand in a cool place to settle. Fill bottles to within one and one half inch of the top. Put in corks tightly and set bottles on rack in a boiler, or tie down the corks and lay bottles on side with enough water to cover them. A screen at the bottom of the boller will prevent breaking. Heat the water to the simmering point (180 degrees) and keep at this point 30 minutes, Remove the bottles, stand on end and dry the cork with towel. When nearly cold, with a sharp knife cut off cork even with top of bottle and dip top of bottle into dish of hot paraffin or sealing wax.

A sealing wax may be made by melting together equal parts of rosin and beeswax. To Prepare Fruit.—Cut and crush large fruits,

Pulping Fruit

Pulping Fruit

Pack sterilized jars full of fruit, add no water, place rubbers and caps in position, and fill pan with water up to the shoulders of the jars. Place pan on fire and bring water to the simmering point and keep it at this point half an hour. Remove jars, and then, one from the other, replace rubbers and caps, and put the bottles back in the pan and bring them up to the simmering point again for another five minutes. Take them out one at a time and screw down the tops. Invert to cool. Wrap in paper to prevent bleaching and store in a dry cool place.

Note.—The foregoing illustrations and many of the recipes are taken from the interesting and instructive Home Canning and Drying Manual recently copyrighted and issued by the National War Garden Commission, to whose courtesy we are indebted for the privilege of reproducing them here. The manual contains many other illustrations and recipes and much other valuable information. A copy of this manual and of the Commission's Manual on War Vegetable Gardening with directions for Home Storage of Vegetables will be seat free to any one on application, provided postage is enclosed, two cents for either manuals. We advise our readers to write at once to the National War-Garden Commission, Maryland Building, Washington, D. C., for a copy of both manuals. Don't send to Comfort: we have note to distribution.—Editor.

Birds in the Trenches

HEN the enemy's shot and shell breaks the telephone line that runs shoulder-high in the trenches, or wrecks a telephone exchange, the advanced troops must find some other means of communication with the headquarters. It is a matter of the utmost importance, and the last resort in emergencies of this kind is the homing pigeon.

Every company has its own quota of pigeons, carried in reed cages on a soldier's back. At the headquarters in a specially constructed cote are the birds' mates; when they are released, they fly straight for home. Their speed, almost a mile a minute, is wonderful.

According to the records of the French army, ninety-seven per cent of the messages carried by pigeons are delivered. When you consider that the birds must pass through the most intense artillery fire and that many of the German soldiers have shotguns for winging the feathered workers of the Allies, their efficiency is marvelous.

The message must not burden the bird, so it is written on rice paper, rolled up and deposited in a tiny aluminum container attached to one of its legs. Each pigeon usually carries two messages, its own and a copy of the one sent on the preceding bird. Nothing short of death, capture or a broken wing will stop him.

Thousands of these couriers watch and wait in trench and dugout, ready at all times to speed precious notes to headquarters. Many soldiers owe their lives to the timely aid of these feathered flyers. When all other kinds of communication are useless, the pigeon wings his way home and summons help.

The Belgians are the leading pigeon fanciers of the world, and in their army "pigeon intel-flyers. When all other kinds of communication are useless, the pigeon wings his way home and summons help.

The Belgians are the leading pigeon fanciers of the world, and in their army "pigeon intelligence" has been brought to the highest degree of development. At their front they have no birds which could not, if the occasion arose, fly a distance of five hundred miles in a single day.

War is an ugly thing but a German peace is glier,—Russian farmers are producing German You'll find them all in Philipsborn's new 236 page Book of Wartime Styles for Fall and Winter-2,000 from which to choose!

Mrs. Vernon Castle, America's Supreme Style Authority is sponsor for these "New Styles that save the Dollars." Their loveliness will delight you. Their economy will astonish you. Don't miss this money-saving opportunity. Send now for your copy of this great War Style Book

This is the first and last announcement. Our issue is limited. Mail coupon or a postal today.

IX6615-This charming model combines—(1) latest styles, (2) splendid quality, (3) lowest price. Self-color Geor-gette sleeves, beautifully fin-ished Satin Messaline collar. Skirt has deep shirrings, pouch patch pockets. Colors: New Lib-erty Blue, Black or rich shades of Plum. Sizes: Bust 32 to 44, Skirt length 39 to 41, Price, Prep'd, $7.98

War Bargains!

Here are Samples of 2,000 Bargain Offers: COATS, 54.98 and up 1918. S. 3.69 and Children's garments at actonishingly low prices.

Money Back if not delighted with the quality style and big saving. Send gou pon or postal at once for big 236 page Book of War Styles— FREE POSTPAID.

Don't Delaythe edition is limited

We Prepay all Changes right to your door

.. We Syste" OHV

Cubby Bear Ends a Dispute By Lena B. Ellingwood

Copyright, 1918, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher, Inc.

Y house is all spoiled!" wailed Wollie Woodchuck; "my house is spoiled, and with my broken leg, how can I ever make another?" Sad and hopeless, Wollie Woodchuck wiped away the tears as they rolled one after another down his fat cheeks.

Cubby Bear and Chirpy Chipmunk watched him pityingly.

Cubby Bear and Chirpy Chipmunk watched him pityingly.

"I am sorry," said Cubby Bear.

"It is not your fault," said Wollie Woodchuck.

"You did all you could to help me when the big tree was blown down. The earth around my doorway moved so I thought an earthquake had come. As I was scrambling out through the moving earth and upturned roots, the tree fell across me, breaking my leg and half burying me. But all this you know—you, who bound up my leg and brought me to your home to rest."

"Cheerily-cheerily-cheer-up!" Robbie Reddie suddenly burst out singing from a near-by tree.

"It is all very well for him to sing cheer-up," said Wollie, gloomily. "He will fly away to a warm country when the winter comes. But as for me, I shall have to lie down on the cold ground and starve, and be buried by the snow-flakes!"

Robbie Reddie flew away gaily, as if he had flakes!"

Robbie Reddie flew away gaily, as if he had not a care in the world, and Cubby Bear said to Wollie: "No, no; you have many friends to help you, your leg will get well, and you can stay with Mamma Bruin and me as long as you like."

like."

It was not long before Robbie Reddie came flying back, and with him Redtop Woodpecker. Then Shinyblack Crow came sailing along on his broad, black wings.

"Caw, Wollie Woodchuck, caw!" he called. "Your other friends are on the way here."

Then Racky Coon came trotting up, dragging his little sled, followed by Busy Beaver and Molie Muskrat. A rattle of wheels was heard, and Bunny Rabbit came in sight, wheeling his Baby Bunnies in their little cart.

Dr. Squilly Porcupine and Mr. Wise Owl came together, and last came Tillie Turtle, slowly and silently.

"Wollie Woodchuck," said Mr. Wise Owl, solemnly, "we have been called together by Robbie Reddie to see what can be done for you. Left to yourself," he added severely, "you would only wope and meep!"

Wollie's fees flyshed angeling "You would be the flyshed angeling".

wope and meep!"
Wollie's face flushed angrily. "I never woped in my life," he said, "and what you mean by meeping, I do not know!"
"What I meant to say," explained Mr. Wise Owl, sternly was mope and weep! It was merely a little blunder!"
"Oh express we " exist weep!

a little blunder!"
"Oh, excuse me!" said Wollie Woodchuck.
"Now," went on Mr. Wise Owl, "has anyone a plan for helping this poor animal whose home was spoiled and whose leg was broken by the falling tree in the big storm?"
"I have undertaken to cure his broken leg," said Dr. Squilly, who was already busy with bandages.
"The heart thing for the

"MY HOUSE IS ALL SPOILED!" WAILED WOLLIE WOODCHUCK, "AND WITH MY BROKEN LEG, HOW CAN I EVER MAKE ANOTHER?"

said Dr. Squilly, who was already busy with bandages.

"The best thing for the rest of us to do," said Shinyblack Crow, "is to make him a new house."

"Yes, yes!" said Molly Muskrat. We will all help. Find a nice, deep hole under the bank of the Big Brook—"

"Too wet!" interrupted Shinyblack Crow. "Get together a nice lot of sticks for a nest, then look for a high tree with stout limbs—"

"No, no, no!" cried Racky Coon. "A deep, warm hollow in an old tree-trunk is the best place for a home, because—"

"You are the first one to speak sensibly," said Mr. Wise Owl. "That is my own plan, and I know of a tree not far from my own—"

Tillie Turtle was shaking with giggles. She nudged Slimy Snail, who stood near her.

"Hear them talk!" she chuckled. "The best and I will go to that place you speak of, and start making your new house. I am strong, and can dig fast."

"Oh, will you?" asked Wollie, joyfully.
"I can help, too, though I am so small," of fered Chirpy.
So they started off unnoticed by the group of

So they started off, unnoticed by the group of eager talkers.

Cubby Bear drew Wollie Woodchuck along on Racky Coon's sled, and Chirpy Chipmunk capered merrily about.

nouse all my life, and was, pernaps, too lazy to change."

Cubby Bear and little Chirpy went to work with a will, and even Wollie Woodchuck helped a little in throwing out the soil the others loosened.

"I know just how long my house will be" loosened.

"I know just how long my house will be," said Wollie. "Look, my back door will be over there by that big rock. I must have two doors—then if Rover Dog ever finds one, and tries to get in after me, I can slip out at the other." When the new house was large enough so that Chirpy Chipmunk, Cubby Bear and Wollie Woodchuck were all inside it, Chirpy ran out to look about.

Chirpy Chipmunk, Cubby Bear and Wollie Woodchuck were all inside it, Chirpy ran out to look about.

"The bushes hide your doorway beautifully, Wollie Woodchuck!" he called. "No one would ever know it was there."

"This will do for today," said Cubby Bear.

"Tomorrow we will do a little more, and then we will get the others to help with your house-keeping things. This corner will be a good place for your bed. Come now, get on the sled and we will go back again."

As they neared the spot in the forest where they had left their friends some hours before, they heard a confused murmur of voices. Dr. Squilly's was the first one to be heard plainly. "Now, I know of a safe, cozy nook among some rocks," he was saying, "where with very little repair work, Wollie Woodchuck would be very comfortable. I don't object to your hollow trees—"

"I should say not, indeed!" hooted Mr. Wise Owl, who had shouted himself hoarse. "It is little repair work, Wollie Woodchuck would be very comfortable. I don't object to your hollow trees——"

"I should say not, indeed!" hooted Mr. Wise Owl, who had shouted himself hoarse. "It is the best——"

"The most san-i-ta-ry place in the world," interrupted Shinyblack Crow, shrilly, hopping up and down, "is a nest of sticks in a high tree——"

"A house carried on your own back——" droned Tillie Turtle and Slimy Snail.

"Just under the edge of the bank, where the cool water flows past——" Molly Muskrat was saying to Busy Beaver.

"If that empty nest was only large enough!" mourned Robbie Reddie.

Here Wollie Woodchuck, limping on three paws, burst in among them. His face was shining with pleasure, and one would hardly have known him for the sorrowful little animal of a few hours before.

"I am no longer without a home!" he cried. "Cubby Bear has made me a fine new house to live in! You must all come to visit me there." "Yes," joined in Chirpy Chipmunk, "we have made him a house at the edge of the big pasture, where he will have Little Lambkin and Kiddie Goat for neighbors."

The little forest people stared, astonished. "Well, well!" said 'Shinyblack Crow at last, smoothing his rumpled feathers, "good little Cubby Bear did the right thing to do, while we wasted the day in angry disputing. Give him three cheers!"

"But Chirpy Chipmunk helped," said Cubby Bear.

So they started off, unnoticed by the group of ager talkers.

Cubby Bear drew Wollie Woodchuck along on tacky Coon's sled, and Chirpy Chipmunk capered taker Coon's sled, and Chirpy Chipmunk capered said Mr. Wise Owl, and flapping his great wings, he led the cheers, which were given heartily, not a voice being silent.

The Girl He Loved

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 6.)

"I dare say you do—Lady Levallion!" he said, sardonically. "Hester Murray told another story. Good night, and thank me you dare to sleep."

But when he was gone she had no thought of sleep. For two days she had loved the man who had just gone out; and now she hated him, because she knew she would never get rid of him till she died. She ran to the window to see where he had gone; stared out; dropped the half-raised blind and staggered, more than started back to the middle of the room, as if the quiet street had been the pit of hell.

"The dream!" she thought wildly. "But I've time!" Something took her at the throat. The man held everything in his hands, her money, her position, her.—. But it was not being Countess of Levallion that was in her thoughts as she ran from the room, but life—bare life—that garbled lie could take away from her.

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

"Hold on," said a quick voice, in the dark, and Adrian Gordon stopped short; "I'm coming, too." For after a comfortable dinner in Monsieur Carrousel's best manner he had strolled out, os-

"I'm coming, all the same," obstinately; "and I can't leave Jacobs behind. Carrousel might pour boiling water on him or something. Don't hurry so! You want to catch the express, not the slow train that goes first. Oh, Gordon!" wretchedly, "don't you see I must be doing something? You can't leave me behind to hatch out rot about a cook and a boot-boy."

"Come on, then," weakening; and in silence

tensibly to take a walk, really to go as hard as he could to the station and catch the first train for Starr Street.

"There's no sense in your coming," he said sharply, and Sir Thomas returned no answer.

"And you can't bring Jacobs. He'll be a nuisance."

"I'm coming, all the same," obstinately; "and I can't leave Jacobs behind. Carrousel might pour boiling water on him or something. Don't they had been some ten minutes out of the station. "I'tere's the slow train now!" he said, after they had been some ten minutes out of the station. "It stops here to pick up some carriages wretchedly, "don't you see I must be doing something." You can't leave me behind to hatch out spoke.

"Glad we did not strike it," said Adrian, for
(CONTINUED ON PAGE 18.)

CONTENTS

Editorial In and Around the Home Conducted by Mrs. Wheeler Wilkinson Wheeler Wilkinson Sibyl's Influence (continued) Mrs. Georgie Sheldon Comfort Sisters' Corner and Recipes The Girl He Loved (continued) Adelaide Stirling Salting, Pickling, Fermenting Green Vegetables for Winter. Violet Marsh Birds in the Trenches Cubby Bear Ends a Dispute Lena B, Ellingwood Comfort's League of Cousins Uncle Charlie Giving Your Boy a Start in Life Charles Francis Reed The Peetty Cirle' Club. Katherine Booth The Pretty Girls' Club Katherine Booth Joins Hands of American and Canadian Women -Poultry Farming for Women Mrs. Kate V. St. Out of Her Travail Myra Williams Jarrell Furniture that can be Made from Barrels Priscilla Brown Brown Sammy Receives Best Pay Home Dressmaking Hints Geneva Gladding Description of Patterns Illustrated on Title Page The Boy Trappers of Beaver Bend Veterinary Information Manners and Looks Information Bureau Talks with Girls Home Lawyer The Escaped Convict Jane Hart Three Wheel Chairs in August Family Doctor Family Doctor How Three Big Men Made Good Oarl Schuz The Emporium of Bargains and Opportunities Comfort's Comicalities

All Subscriptions Cut Off At Expiration

The Government requires all newspaper and magazine subscriptions to be cut short off on date of expiration, unless the subscription is renewed and paid for. Not even one copy can be sent, after expiration, until the subscription is renewed. If the number over your name on the wrapper on this magazine is 359, or any less number, it means that this is the last copy of COMFORT you will receive until you renew. Renew today.

OCTOBER COMFORT

our Harvest Number, will be fully up to standard in quality and interest. It will contain the final installment of "The Girl He Loved," which brings this story to its thrilling and pathetic close, to be followed in November by the first part of our splendid new serial "What She Lived For."

Some Special Features for October

"His Goddess of the Harvest" A delightful romance of farm and city life with a message that should be taken to heart by those inclined to let romance and ambition get the best of common sense.

"Little Children on the Farm" Practical and exceedingly valuable advice on the rearing of young children, telling how to make the most of the advantages of rural surroundings for the children.

"What I Did with Ten Cents' Worth of Dye" Tells the wonderful possibilities for economy and utility in reconstructing your wardrobe by the judicious use of a Food Preparedness for Winter Will tell how to make the most of the last fruits of garden and orchard and how best to prepare, store and keep them for winter use.

If the number over your name on the wrapper on this magazine is 359, or any less number, it means that you will not receive October COMFORT unless you renew your subscription at once. See notice in left-hand column.

Send 50 cents today for a two-year renewal and make sure not to miss October COMFORT. Use coupon below.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES: 35 cents a year, 70 cents for three years, 50 cents for a TWO-YEAR lewal, in U. S. and Cuba. (In Canada 50 cents a year.)

SUBSCRIPTION COUPON FOR RENEWAL OR EXTENSION ONLY Publisher of COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.
I enclose cents for renewal and extension of my subscription full years from	,
Date
Post Office Street and No. :
2. F. D. No Box No State, September, 1918.	,

Crumbs of Comfort

Must is a king's word. Men are as the time is. Malice does not forget. Much never costs little. Necessity can break iron. Much meat, much maladies. Money speaks every tongue. A beaten path is a safe one. New honors change manners. Without a motive, life is dreary. Mountaineers are always freemen. He that can be patient may win all. A man apt to promise apt to forget. Great men should not have great faults. Cheerfulness is the heart's fair weather. Idle causes can yield active consequences. Love can keep out more cold than a cloak. Where there is shame, there is always fear. In living for another we live best for ourselves. One cannot travel within and stand still without.

Flattery's trap is selfishness, and its bait is praise. The strength of the effort is the measure of the result. Much will always be wanting to him who much desires. Friendship may end in love, but never love in friendship. Sincerity is impossible unless it pervade the whole being. Beasts can weep when they suffer, but they cannot

In giving, spare the poor the shame of holding out a If you cannot have the best, make the best of what you

Unless a man works, he cannot find out what he is able Greet not with anger he who knocks at the door of Who dares conclude that love applied to life is a chimera?

Man is an imperishable leaf on the evergreen Tree of Existence. Suspicion is an early lesson taught in the school of experience.

A man can never have the hearts of others but by giving his own.

The harnessing of electricity was once but an idea in the mind of a man.

Every mind has its influence on another, and no man is free but when alone. We could live with exceeding quiet if the words "mine" and "thine" were taken away.

CONDUCTED BY UNCLE CHARLIE

ADDRESS all letters to COMFORT. Augusta, Maine. See Instructions at the close of this Department.

OP up onto my lap, for I want to give you a good hug. A few months ago I felt more like spanking than hugging you, for you seemed utterly indifferent to the tremendous issues involved in this dreadful war. Now, however, that our boys are on the firing line and are going over the top, you are at last becoming war conscious, and when I print a letter from a slacker or a traitor, it is a joy and delight to note how you, who were once singing "I didn't raise my boy to be a soldier," and "I iam too proud to fight," go after these spies, seditionists, copperheads and enemies of our native land with a club. I have gathered a few facts that may still further feed the fires of your patriotism and open your eyes to the way you have been letting your country slip into the hands of the Kaiser and his horde of murderous Huns.

Lafayette Young, one-time senator of Iowa,

Lafayette Young, one-time senator of Iowa, says: "In more than one thousand schools in Iowa and other Western states the day's session is closed with the singing of Deutchland Uber Alles (Germany Over All), and Die Wacht Am Rhein (The Watch on the Rhine)."

Rhein (The Watch on the Rhine)."

The Huns have published a book showing views of fifty great German cities—cities which in their minds at least are already incorporated in the German Empire. Among these are Milwaukee, Chicago, St. Louis, Cincinnati, and a number of other well-known places dear to the American heart. If that does not make your patriotic blood boil, then that blood must already have turned to noodle soup and your head be sprouting frankfurters and weinerwurst. In Fort Wayne, Indiana, last year, $14,672 was spent for teaching German language and literature, while only $108 was spent for teaching English and citizenship to immigrants. In Columbus, Ohio, $16,000 was spent on German language and literature and not a red cent for teaching English and citizenship to immigrants. In Philadelphia, $70,000 went for German instruction as against $11,000 on English and the duties of the embryo citizen. on English and the duties of the embryo citizen. The German language is now being thrown out of our schools because nearly every German textbook glorifies Germany and Kaiserism and is a part of Germany's propaganda, which seeks to poison the world, to exalt everything that is German and to damn everything that isn't.

Germany at Brest Litovsk made a fake treaty with what remained of once mighty Russia. Trotzky whose real name is Braunstein, a Russian Jew, an anarchist camouflaging as a social-

Trotzky whose real name is Braunstein, a Russian Jew, an anarchist camouflaging as a socialist, a German agent, the best friend the Kaiser ever had (with the possible exception of his infamous pal, Lenine, another anarchist in the employ of Germany) made Russia impotent and converted it into a veritable hell. These two worthless tyrants are now handing Russia to Germany piece by piece as fast as the Kaiser's troops can gobble it. These two men will go down in history as having—next to the Kaiser—brought more woe, misery, shame and degradaconverted it into a veritable hell. These two worthiese tyrants are now handing Russia to troops can gobble it. These two mer will go down in history as having—next to the Kaiser—brought more woe, misery, shame and degradation of the control of t their socialism and hopped over to the side of the socialist imperialists, who are out to knife all humanity. That little incident ought to prove to you, and especially to you American socialists, that German socialism is a humbug and a fraud, that the only way to bring Germany to her senses is to give her a thorough and drastic thrashing.

Here is something else for you pacifists, copperheads, sapheads, conscientious objectors and ignorant religious maniacs who read the Bible upside down. The Kaiser recently, after viewing devastated Belgium and the ruined sections of northern France, got quite sentimental and thanked his old war-and-murder god that, owing to thorough preparedness and the docility and stupidity of his people, the German Fatherland had been spared the frightful devastation and horrors that had been wrought on poor, bleeding Belgium and northern France. The Kaiser knew that if he put his military machine in order no one could hurt him, his six sons, or any section of his empire. While he was making Germany safe for autocracy, and perfecting every human cog in his military machine, we were shricking, "We are too proud to fight," "I didn't raise my boy to be a soldier," and other craven drivel. We were doing our best to make our country defenceless, jeopardizing freedom, liberty and democracy and everything our fathers have fought for, and doing all in our power to make our beloved land an easy victim for the blood-thirsty Hun. You see the Kaiser knows his business. He knows how to protect the hellish things for which he stands. Unless we are to go down into the dust, we must be equally ready at all times to defend the noble ideals on which this nation is reared. If right will not protect itself from wrong, liberty from despotism, freedom from slavery, democracy from autocracy, then we had better close up shop, go out of business and become worms of the dust, fit only for fertilizer and to lick the heels of the Prussian conqueror. Choose ye this day whether you will serve and live under the domination of your Prussian master, the Beast of Berlin, and be a slave and a chunk of cannon fodder or enjoy freedom and liberty under the stars and stripes with your good old Uncle Sam. This is my fifty-fifth birthday message to you, and with it goes my heart's best love and the hope that we shall all live many years to see kings and tyrants ban

Don't forget that Uncle Charlie's four wonderful books may still be had. Start in at once to obtain them—they cost you no money, only a very little time and effort—and keep at it until you have the entire set. The book of Poems is beautifully bound in ribbed silk stiff covers; the Story Book is bound in two styles, the one in ribbed silk stiff covers like the Poems, the other in paper covers; the Song Book is bound only in heavy paper covers, and the Picture Book in handsome stiff covers. Poems or the Story Book in ribbed silk covers, either one for a club of three subscriptions; the Song Book or the Story Book in handsome paper covers or the Picture Book in pretty stiff covers for a club of only two subscriptions. These four books are a library of endless joy and merriment, the best medicine to drive away the blues and the best Christmas gifts in the world.

My picture book, too, has started a deluge of inquiries. Is silly the Goat way develves in

DEAR UNGLE CHARLIE:

I am a girl fifteen years old, five feet seven inches tall, brown eyes and brown hair. I certainly do enjoy reading the cousins' letters and your replies. We are trying to do our bit to win the war. We raised our own meat this year, but only eat meat twice a week, butter every day and biscuits once a day, and you bet the biscuits taste good, as I am not fond of corn pone. I have a sister working for the Red Cross. She has knitted several sweaters for the soldier boys. I have one brother in the army, he is at Camp Wheeler, Macon, Ga. I must not forget to tell you about my chickens. I have thirty large ones, and eight small ones two weeks old, and three hens sitting on seventeen eggs. We have plenty of eggs to teat and sell also. We eat them instead of meat. Good by,

DBAR UNGLE CHARLIE:

I am a boy sixteen years old, five feet three inches tall, fair complexion. I enjoy farm life very much. Sugariand is twenty-three miles from Houston and is surrounded by the best farming land in Texas, and has as nice a school as can be found. I was profunded to the tenth grade. Maybe you people in Maine can't tell the war is on but if you ever came down lacre you would soon find there is a war. We don't use flour any more. We eat corn bread three times a day. The saloons are being closed and are going to stay closed. I am a full blooded American. Wish I was old enough to get Kaiser Bill. I sure enjoy your war talks and have the same war views that you have. We are faced by the greatest menace that ever confronted this nation. Like many other people I would be glad to have peace but I do not want peace until the German power is completely broken, so that they will never be able again to cause trouble to any nation. This is my idea and I know you will agree with me, for this is the only way we can gain everlasting peace.

Your nephew,

RAYMON ALLEN

agree with me, for this is the only way we can gain everlasting peace.

Your nephew,
RATMON ALLEN

Raymon, if all the people in this country had your sense and vision and your point of view about this war (which is absolutely the only correct and sane way to look at the whole proposition), those who are trying to steer us through this terrible crisis would be greatly heartened and the Kaiser would be packing his grip, preparatory to liking to the tall grass with his friends, Jeremiah O'Leary, Herr Berger and a few other visionaries and fanatics, half of whom, consciously or unconsciously, are doing their best to put the Kaiser in the White House, while the balance want to turn this country into a Bolsheviki slaughter-house and bug-house, on the Russian model. The world would be very glad to live at peace with the German people, but unfortunately, Germany's rulers, and Germany's people for that matter, have embarked on a career of war and conquest that they openly boast will never stop until the world lies prostrate at their feet. There is no room in the world for the American idea and the Prussian idea. One or the other must go under. If we were to sit around a table and try and talk peace with Germany's rulers, whatever peace pact was signed would amount to nothing. Germany regards all treaties and compacts as mere scraps of paper to be torn up or discarded when it suits her purpose. Germany has cut such words as honor, truth, righteousness, decency, morality, justice, kindness, pity and love out of her dictionary. Germany today is a pirate mation and she is determined to make all other nations walk the plank and drown in a sea of blood. Those she permits to live she will make her slaves. What Germany has done to Russia, after signing a treaty of peace with her, which she never intended to keep and has not kept, has opened the eyes of even the most fanatical pro-German to the menace of Kaiserism and filled all decent humans with horror and loathing. As long as the Kaiser's armies are victorious, his people wil believe they are a superior race whis to subjugate and rule the world.

LITTLE VALLEY, N. Y.

DEAR UNCLE CHARLIE:

I have come to ask you about a very important question. If you were me would you choise to be and actress or a dancer. Write and tell me a long story about actor's life. How long do you have to study actor or actress's life? Please tell me all about life behind and on the stage. I am five feet two inches tall, weigh ninety-one pounds, light complexion and am fourteen years old. Write and tell me where there is a place for people to learn to be actors. Please tell me the address of the ferm. Donothy Schultz. DEAR UNCLE CHARLIE:

is a place for people to learn to be actors. Please tell me the address of the ferm. Donothy Schultz.

Dorothy, before I could decide whether your talents run to agting or to dancing, I would have to have you examined by an expert. It would be necessary to open your head to see if you had dramatic talent, and if there was nothing doing in your top story, the next thing to do would be to excavate your feet in order to discover whether or not you had any chance of making a hit in the terpsichorean line. The movie picture business, I deeply regret to say, has ruined the legitimate drama. Everybody should, if possible, try to be an actor or actress just now, for actors never eat, and if we all stop eating there will be just that much more food to send to our Allies and soldier boys in Europe. Life on the stage used to be worth while because people had a delightful habit of throwing eggs at actors they did not like and so many of the poor souls did get a little nourishment once in a while. Now, however, that everybody is Hooverizing, no matter how rotten an actor's performance may be, he can't draw even a single egg. In front of the scenes you talk airily about millions, champagne, castles, yachts and automobiles. Behind the scenes you ponder sadly o'er the fact that you owe your landlady fifty dollars for rent and wonder if you can get your trunk down the fire escape without her holding you up when you are half way down. A lot of frauds set boob traps for simps who want to become "and actor or and actress" and promise for a certain sum to transform all who put up the price into histrionic stars of the most luminous variety. The slick,

REAL BARGAINS on Every Page of this FREE Style Book Money Back If Not Pleased ay All Transportation 3Piece Economy Set Only $189 Outfit consists of apron Outfit consists of apron dress, bit appron and eap made of good quality gingham plaid percale trimmed with harmonising plain percale. Sleeve ruffles, yoke effect, belt, pocket tops and band neatly bound. The plain colored bit apron has patch pocket. Also edged with wide binding. Colors—Blue plaid with bitte triumplay or pink pisid with with the plain with which was not belt to be the plain with the plain with plain with plain with plain with the plain modium and high. During color wanted. Order by No. 12 FE266. $1.89

NOW Send for the String region in Women's and Minee' Crats and guits 84 46 to $40.95. Dresses $1.80 to $24.05. String region in Women's and Minee' Crats and 50.15.05. Women's Minee' Crats and the String region in Women's Minee' Crats and String region in the String region in t 12 F/E/286 CHICAGO MAIL ORDER COMPANY guys who work these boob traps generally land in jail. If you want to study the life of "and actor or and actress," go into the office of a theatrical agent and see the gaunt, sad-faced crowds who haunt these places day in and day

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 19.)

Giving Your Boy a Start in Life

By Charles Francis Reed

Copyright, 1918, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher, Inc.

NE of these days I'm going to take the whole morning and fix up these rooms." It was cleaning day and all the bedrooms on the first floor had been thoroughly swept and dusted. Late in the afternoon after the other work had been done, mother and the servant had neither the time nor the energy to properly arrange the two attic bedrooms that were commonly called "the boys' rooms."

Mary, tired as she was

Mary, tired as she was, could not help but own as she looked in at the open door of the frown as she first bedroom,

"Are we going to have a cold supper?" she asked quickly.

asked quickly.

"Why, yes, we always do on Fridays."

"And do you suppose that Mr. Green will mind if he doesn't get it till quarter past six tonight?"

"Why do you ask such funny questions? Here, let me have that broom,—at least we have to do a little sweeping and dusting."

"Well, I asked it because I thought if you didn't mind, I'd do a little work up in these two rooms." Mary said, as she handed her mistress the broom. "We ought to make these rooms kind of nice for the boys, or pretty soon they will find out that they are not nice, and they won't come home any more than they have to."

It was a long speech for Mary, and Mrs. Green looked at her sharply. Then, too, she had suggested something that was terrifying.

"Mary, what do you mean—they won't come home?"

gested something that was terrifying.

"Mary, what do you mean—they won't come home?"

"Just what I say, ma'am. I've had six brothers of my own—the spare room empty, but three of them sleeping in one bed some of the time—and they went away as soon as they could."

Mrs. Green said nothing. As she moved the furniture and gathered up the dust in small heaps, she was thinking seriously. She had always tried to be a good mother to her boys, but she had never thought that boys required the same care as did her daughters. A new light had come to her, and together the two women spent an hour working vigorously. Twice Mrs. Green went down-stairs and returned with her arms full of pictures, and once she sent Mary to bring up an extra rug, and a couch cover.

When they had finished, the rooms were bright and cheerful. Mrs. Green had taken one of her favorite pictures from the wall—"The Horse Fair." by Rosa Bonheur—but she did not begrudge the empty space, for she knew that her youngest son was fond of the picture, and up there in the small rooms a great truth had come to her—that her boys needed to learn the love of home if she were to keep them always with her. When she was down-stairs helping with the belated supper, she glanced quickly at Mary, but there seemed nothing about the squat, strong figure that would sugkest that she was a heaven-sent messenger—as Mrs. Green imagined her.

There are many of us who are Mrs. Green and who need some small jolt to awaken us to one of the greatest truths,—that we must play fair with our boys if they are going to be all that we have always dreamed that they would be. One of the most important things in starting your boy right is to see that he has the proper home environment. It is not sufficient that you give him enough to eat and clothes to cover his body, or even that you send him to church and to school. Hundreds of boys who have had this training have come to bad endings. Almost any day it is possible to pick up a newspaper and reen exemplary has come to grief and been sentenc been exemplary has come to grief and been setember to some term of imprisonment. You shudder when you think of the possibility of it being as on a fair chance. If you don't encourage in the state of the problems of even a lower nature.

A boy's room is just as important as the dainty pink place that your daughter calls hers. A growing boy needs plenty of light and air, and he should have it. He should have a comfortable bed, and the pictures on the wall should inspire him.

A boy's room should be a place where hean bring his friends. There should be several easy-chairs, so that on rainy afternoons Billy and Tommy can curl up and read. Another piece of furniture that is always a source of pleasure is a desk. There is something man-like about a desk—something that gives a boy the sense of being as successful as his father. In it he will struggle with the problems of learning. A boy who has and to do his lessons all over the house, being constantly interrupted to ask if his book is resting on sister's embroidery, or if he has seen anything of grandmother's thimble, will never be able to do them thoroughly. These interruptions tend to lessen the powers of concentration, a most necessary asset in the business which will enable him to display his talents.

It may be hard in a small town for your boy to do just the work that will be pleasing for using till it almost always possible for him to follow his own bent small town for your bing the first line of business that he takes up, do not believe that you have been nurturing a failure. The rolling stone may gather no moss, but the boy who changes his line of work several times during the first few years of his business man. If he does not like his work several business man. If he does not like his work several business man. If he does not like his work several business man. If he does not like his work several business man. If he does not like his work several business man. If he does not like his work several the contrary may be a very successful business man. If he d clothing, it will become a habit that he will never lose.

A most essential part of your boy's training is to see that he understands the value of the truth. Too many mothers will tell their children to tell the book-agent or the visitor she does not wish to see that she is "not at home." It is only a small slip, and often an unconscious one, yet it plants a dangerous seed. It is far better to tell the truth, to have the boy say that mother is home but cannot see Mrs. Smith just at this minute. Mrs. Smith will understand, and the boy will have had no had example. It will only be necessary to tell your boy that if he tells an untruth he will be looked down on by his friends, and you will have the desired result. Don't say that if he is found out telling a lie he will be looked down on, but that if he tells an untruth his conscience will make him suffer. Pick out some one boy whom you know your son respects, and ask him if he would like to lose the friendship because the other boy knows Billy cannot be trusted. This will have the desired effect better than any threat of punishment.

One of the things that your boy should learn as early as possible is the true value of money.

"Mother, can I have ten cents to buy some marbles?"

Common plea, one that any boy may be capable of, and almost instinctively the money is handed to the young one. This is not a good method, for it cannot teach the value of money. It is much better to make the child perform the most trivial duty and receive the money as payment for service rendered. If this is done they will not only know what it means to have spending money, but learn to experience the joy that comes from earning—the joy of possessing.

Give every child as much education as you can possibly afford. There is a tendency among boys of fourteen or fifteen to leave school and try to work. They are fascinated by the fact that they have a few dollars pocket money. The parents who can possibly afford to keep their son at school for a few years longer but who instead allow him to g

Soft felt to petect the Porn and keep the wax from spreadings Rubber adhefuse which forces the plants on The Scientific Way to End Corns THE Blue-jay plaster is a scientist's invention. It is made by the makers of B&B surgical dressings, used by physicians and hospitals every-So you may be sure that this is the right way to treat a corn. The corn is ended by a bit of wax, which is cen-tered on the corn. It cannot spread. While the wax is acting, a pad protects the corn. So all pain ceases when the plaster is applied. A band wraps the toe snugly and fastens itself. With this comfortable dressing one forgets the corn, and the plaster can't become displaced. The pain stops instantly. Then the bit of wax gently undermines the corn. In two days it lifts out. Only rare corns need a second application. Let Blue-jay prove itself tonight. You will never again merely pare a corn, or treat it in the old, crude Blue=jay For Corns of his senses after learning the tragic story.

Stops Pain Instantly-Ends Corns Completely Large Package 25c at Druggists-Small Package Discontinued BAUER & BLACK Makers of Surgical Chicago, New York, Toronto

For several weeks he had been greatly disappointed and troubled regarding Sibyl's letters. There had been a restraint and coldness in their tone which told him that something was wrong. Her letters came regularly once a week, until within the last three weeks he had only received one, but they were not like Sibyl, and he had resolved that just as soon as he could bring the duties which his father had imposed upon him into some kind of shape, he would follow his mother to Barmouth, and see for himself what the trouble was with his darling.

"Oh! if I could only have gone to her before. If I might have seen her but just once more!" he cried, in a voice of despair, after his mother had told him of Sibyl's sad fate, and Lady Prescott could only weep with him—there could be no comfort that she could give him.

Sad though her own heart was, and filled with grief, she could but bow in submission, beneath the blow, and say, "it is well," knowing, as she did, that Sir Athelstone would never countenance her marriage with her son.

Miss Therwin, whom they believed so lovely, sympathized most deeply with them in their-great affliction, and came often as a privileged friend to cheer and comfort her ladyship.

But way down in her cruel, evil heart, how she exulted and gloried over the relentless fate which seemed to have deprived this household of their loved one, and had also blotted out of existence the only rival she had ever had or feared in her life. She had never hoped for any victory so complete as this. All that could ever do her harm had been removed from her path, since Judith, too, was dead.

She had been terribly alarmed upon receiving her letter, declaring her intention of confessing the whole to Sibyl. For several days she had feared that Sibyl would return, denounce her, and resume at once all her former relations with the Prescott family.

She did not believe that Judith was dying, or nearly as ill as her letter seemed to indicate, and it was therefore a great; s home.

They were going, she wrote, to Ventnor—a watering-place in the Isle of Wight—to spend the hottest months, and desired her to accompany them. She closed by saying she thought she had prolonged her visit to Mrs. Maplewood as long as propriety would allow, and hoped she would return immediately.

But the crafty young woman had no notion of complying with this request.

She deemed her own plans altogether too important, and prevailed upon her friend to write, asking the countess to spare her at least until portant, and prevailed upon her friend to write, asking the countess to spare her at least until fall, as they were planning a short tour on the Continent, and desired her company.

They had arranged to start on their trip by the first of September, and Ada, by much maneuvering, and many suggestions to Sir Athelstone regarding his wife's sadness and failing health, had at last succeeded in prevailing upon Lady Prescott and Raymond to accompany them.

The countess, of course, could not refuse the earnest appeal of Mrs. Maplewood, especially as Ada also appeared so reluctant to return; and, with a sigh of disappointment over the girl's utter selfishness, she gave her consent, and forwarded a handsome remittance, and the early fall found the aristocratic party among the Alps of Switzerland.

CHAPTER XXXIII,

ADA'S ARTFUL SPEECH.

"She was very beautiful, and as pure and good as an augel. I love to think of her, but I know how very hard it must be for you to bear it."

know how very hard it must be for you to bear it."

The above tribute, with the added words of sympathy, were spoken by Miss Ada Therwin, as, on a bright, beautiful day in October, she and Raymond Prescott stood together on the shore of Lake Geneva, and looked over the pure, bright blue waters, so noted for their beauty and clearness the world over.

By some means, best, known to Miss Therwin, perhaps, she and Raymond had become separated from the rest of the party, and, wandering down by the water, their conversation turned, as it always did, upon the one absorbing topic—Sibyl. Raymond had remarked to his companion that the sea, or any large body of water, always made him think of her, and that henceforth he would have double cause to be reminded of her, since the sea had swallowed her from his sight forever.

"She was more beautiful to me than all the world beside," he had said, passionately; and Miss Therwin, with sweetness on her tongue, but with bitter hate for the fair girl in her heart, had replied as recorded above.

"She was to have been my wife if she had lived," he asserted, with a white, pained face, and ignoring the fact that Sibyl had told him over and over again that "it could never be."

Ada started slightly.

"She would have been a true and lovely wife, and—"

She hesitated purposely, and dropped her eyes to be the fair that better the text but her better the text better the sea that the street the sea that the se

Ada started slightly.

"She would have been a true and lovely wife, and—"

She hesitated purposely, and dropped her eyes to hide the fire that had leaped into them at his confession.

"Well?" he said.

"And it was very noble in you to be so faithful to her after all that happened."

She said it softly, as if she almost reverenced him for it.

"After all that happened! What do you mean?" he asked.

"I mean after her mother was found, and you knew all her sad history," Ada replied gently.

"How did you know about it?" he demanded, his lips quivering slightly. "I thought it was a secret, confided to our family alone."

"I was very intimate with Sibyl, you know, during those sad days; and once, when I went to see her, I overheard a conversation between her and her mother which betrayed their secret. I have never spoken of it to any one before, I assure you. I have always wanted to tell you how I admired you for your fidelity."

"Thank you," Raymond said, his face lighting all over for an instant. "I do not deserve the admiration of any one for the course which I should have adopted immediately, if I could have prevailed upon Sibyl to become my wife—the gain would have been all on my side, even though the whole world had scorned me for the act, for I should have been the happiest of men. But, Miss Therwin, it is refreshing to find that there is one woman in the world who can be truly kind to another in adversity. I admire you for that."

that."
But if he could have known the thoughts of her heart at that moment, he would have recoiled in horror from her.
"I have always blamed myself," Raymond went on, becoming more confidential, "for not going to her immediately after her letters became so strange and unlike herself. Two or three times I might have gone, by making a little extra effort, but something interposed. and I put it off."

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 17.)

Sibyl's Influence

*(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 4.)

A silent horror fell upon the crowd when this became known.

Everybody believed that the hapless girl had

Everybody believed that the hapless girl had come down to the spot, and losing her balance had fallen into the depths and been drowned. Boats were immediately launched and sent out in all directions, while men, women and children gathered in little groups upon the beach, and talked in whispers of the tragic event, as they waited for the return of the boats and what they should bring with them.

All the weary day through the boats cruised along the shore, and even put out into the waters, but no ghastly sight—no white, upturned face greeted the watchful eyes of those who manned them.

Another and yet another decrease.

Another and yet another day was passed in the same way, and with the same result, excepting that on the third morning one boat came in, bringing a torn and water-soaked hat, trimmed with pale-blue ribbons, while some one else, at some distance above the crags, had picked up a lainty little slipper.

Both hat and slipper had "belowed to Miss."

dainty little slipper.

Both hat and slipper had "belonged to Miss Sibyl," Edizabeth, the servant, asserted, with wild sobs and tears, and not a doubt now remained in any mind as to the sad fate of the beautiful girl while whispers of sharks and their rapacious jaws began to be circulated to account for the body not having been found.

Sir Athelstone Prescott's address was obtained from Elizabeth, and a horseman dispatched to the nearest telegraph station, with a message notifying him of the sad calamity.

The telegram reached the doctor safely, and threw him into the greatest consternation and distress.

the received the message on Friday.
On the Monday following, Lady Prescott had planned to go down to Barmouth to spend a month with Sibyl and her mother, and Raymond, if he could leave, had determined to follow her later.

Sir Athelstone did not communicate his fearful news to either his wife or son; but telling them that he had received a most imperative summons away, and requesting Lady Prescott to postpone her departure until his return, he set out in hot haste for Barmouth.

summons away, and requesting Lady Prescott to postpone her departure until his return, he set out in hot haste for Barmouth.

It was over two hundred miles from Dumfries to Barmouth, and it took the sad-hearted doctor many hours to reach that little town, so cozily situated between the mountains and the sea.

His one great object, in sending Sibyl so far away, had been to prevent Raymond from going ofter to see her, which he knew he would de if she were within easy reach; but when he arrived at the cottage, and learned all the sad news awaiting him there, his conscience smote him for allowing the young and delicate girl to go so far away from help and friends.

His amazement knew no bounds when he discovered that Mrs. Stillman had been dead over a week, and learned from Elizabeth that Sibyl had at least written him five times during the two weeks preceding her mother's death.

There was some mystery here that he could not fathom!

There was some mystery here that he could not fathom!

The kind-hearted man nearly broke down beneath this heavy blow, and shrank in keenest pain from the task of carrying the fearful story home to Raymond and his mother.

He spent three days in vain inquiries, and in again searching all along the coast, hoping against hope, even at that late day, that he might find the body of the girl whom he had so tenderly loved, and give it Christian burial. But it was of no avail, and gloomy and sorrow-stricken, he returned to Dumfries to tell his sad tale, taking with him all that had belonged to both Sibyl and Mrs. Stillman.

Raymond, for a long time, was like one bereft

30 New Fall Styles

Why pay more than $3 for your new Fall shoes? Send for our Style Book and see why we can offer you choice of 30 styles at $3. By specializing on one price and selling direct from factory to you we can give remarkable values at this low price.

13.5

New Style Book Free

Even if you expected to pay $4 to $6 for Fall shoes, send for the 5tyle Book and see what $3 buys direct from factory. See 30 models of shoes—styles shown in best stores at much more than our prices. We guarantee perfect $t, long wear and complete satisfaction. Send postal today for our Style Book of Women's and Misses' Shoes for Fall, Address

The Bond Shoe Makers Dept. 179, Cincinnati, Ohio

Nadine Face Powder

(In Green Boxes Only)

Keeps The Complexion Beautiful

Soft and velvety. Money back if not entirely pleased. Nadine is pure and harmless. Adheres Prevents sunburn and return of discolorations. A million delighted users prove its value. Popular tints: Flesh, Pink, Brunette, White. 50c. by toilet counters or mail. Dept. A. C.

National Toilet Company, Paris, Tenn., U. S. A.

KILL THE HAIR ROOT

My method is the only way to prevent the hair from growing again. Easy, palnless, harmless. No scars. Booklet free. Write today. enclosing 2 stamps. We teach beauty culture.

D. J. MAHLER, 3489-I, Mahler Park, PROVIDENCE, R. I.

Mrs. Coulter.—So Comport played the role of Cupid in your life? I am very glad it was the means of bringing you happiness and I wish you and your minister husband a long, useful and happy life,—Ed.

JOLIET, ILL.

DEAR MES. WILKINSON AND SISTERS:

I have never ventured to write before but am going to try my luck. First of all I want to ask if Sunshine, Paint Rock, Ala., will write to me. Her letter interested me and I would be pleased to hear from her. Well sisters, like almost every one cles I am deeply interested in Red Cross work and am knitting and doing other work at the Red Cross rooms.

I agree with Happy Heart. I also believe in giving to charity and think the sacrifice is hers as much as it is her husband's. I am not yet married but from what I know of men, too many think all is theirs and that wifey should have, give and do as they say, while it should be 50-50.

Greetings to all,

LUBENE HANSON.

The Pretty Girls' Club

Conducted by Katherine Booth

Habits to Avoid

HAT is your pet habit, Polly? And yours, Molly mine? And yours, Peg-gy with the big black eyes? All of us have habits—some of them are pleasant ones to possess, but others, alas! we have acquired to the detriment of our appearance and the lessening of our personal charm. Let us take stock and

Let us take stock and see what kind of habits ours are. Do you, for instance, hook one arm around the chairback when you sit down, thus throwing your shoulders out of line and, if persisted in, eventually perhaps rendering one permanently higher than the other. It is not a pretty way to sit, as you can see for yourself if you will try the position just once before your mirror—so make up your mind to rid yourself of this habit for good and all.

Try sitting well back in your chair, so the end of the spine touches the very bottom of the chairback, and either lean gracefully back or sit up with the spine straight. If the chair has arms, you may let one of yours lie along its surface, or the hands may rest easily in the lap; but whatever you do, do not adopt any position which elevates one shoulder way above the other.

Another bad habit in see what kind of habits one.shoulder way above the other.

Another bad habit in sitting, to which I imagine many of my girls may be prone, is that of winding one leg around the other, very much as the stripes go around a barber pole. How many of you do that? Stop it at once! It is most ungraceful. Our grandmothers were not privileged to were not privileged to cross even their ankles, let alone their knees, TILTING THE BODY BACKWARD RESULTS IN AN UNGRACEFUL STANDING POSITION.

cross even their ankles, BACKWARD RESULTS let alone their knees, IN AN UNGRACEFUL but in these freer modered with the standing position, ered quite permissible to cross the knees. Do not forget, however, that there is always a right and, a wrong way to do everything, and the girl who crosses her knees so that her stocking is visible to the knee is being neither attractive nor well bred. In crossing the knee, keep the upper foot pointed down, and above all things do not keep it moving as if you were running a sewing-machine—a bad habit I find many people have.

Standing is another fruitful source of unloveliness. You all know the girl who rests all her weight on one foot, thus making one hip higher than the other, and the other girl who stands heavily on her heels and so tilts her body backwards. In standing, rest evenly on both feet, with the weight resting on the balls. Raise the chest and drop the shoulders, and you will find that, quite without knowing it, you have assumed a graceful and comfortable standing position.

stined a graceful and comfortable standing position.

Watch for your other personal habits—that of slumping in your chair, that of constantly pushing your hairpins in and out (dress your hair before you appear in public, then let it alone), of playing with the brooch at your neck, or your rings, or the buckle at your waist; of tapping your fingers on the chair-arm, or rocking like mad in the rocking-chair to which you inevitably steer your course.

And when you have demonstrated where you offend, take up a campaign of reform at once. We all like to be attractive and we can only achieve this result by avoiding the little unpleasant habits so easily acquired. I want every one of my girls to be just as pretty and graceful, good to look upon and pleasant to be with, as lies within her power. Don't disappoint me, will you?

Answers to Questions

Babies Sleep

After Cuticura

All druggists; Soap 25, Ointment 25 and 50, Talcum 25.

Sample each free of "Outicura, Dept B, Boston"

Comfort Sisters' Corner (Continued Prome Page 1).

Comfort Sisters' Corner (Continued Prome Page 2).

That may account for your cheeks not being as rosy as you would like them. You need to reduce in weight. The best way to do this will be to cut out many sweets from your diet—all candy, cake, preserves and such sweet things—and take a good deal of exercise, both in the open air and in your bedfore the ministry. I didn't dream that I would ever be his wife when I began writing to him but I am glad I wrote the other letter to Comport for my husband is a good man. My only regret is that I can't be with him now; he is in the service of Uncle San and I am hoping that before many months have passed I will be, too. I am taking a business course now and want to take the civil service examination in order to help. I think it is the duty of the women to help in every way they can. How many of the sisters are Red Cross workers? I was before I started school. I worked three afternoons a week and am sorry I cannot give as much time as that now. I want to do all I can to save our soldiers for even our all is a very little bit compared with what is being done for us. I think we should rally to the cause and give our time and our money. Then come the other organizations which are aiding our boys. I think we should give liberally to all of these.

May God bless each and every one and help us to give our soldiers the aid they need.

With sisterly love, Mas. Roy Coulter.

Mrs. Coulter.—So Comport played the role of the full state of the plant of the plan riction.

Rose.—I am sorry that it is against the rules of this department to answer letters by mail, because that deprives so many people of the opportunity of benefitting by the answer given. About those moles, I should look well to my diet, and see that I ate plenty of fruit and green vegetables, because they act on the eliminative tract and help to keep the blood pure, and that is what you need. See that your bowels move freely once a day—this does not mean to take cathartics indiscriminately, but to regulate your diet so that Nature will take care of this function. Plenty of fruit and lots of water to drink will adjust conditions of this kind. Spinnach is an excellent vegetable to eat or greens of any kind; and prunes soaked over night, then cooked slowly for a long time are excellent to eat once daily. A glass of orange juice is good for you, and apples are very beneficial. Moles are rather dangerous to meddle with. The electric needle is the safe way of disposing of them, and even then only a skilled operator should be employed. If you have a large flesh mole, you can tie a thread tight have most a tracked that the safe way of disposing of them, and even then only a skilled operator should be employed. If you have a large flesh mole, you can tie a thread tight have most at the details and the safe way of disposing of them.

have me? I would like to stay with you. I will leave my name with Mrs. Wilkinson.
With love and best wishes,
LIEZIE.

Lizzie.—Even with seven children I don't be-lieve your mother has one to spare and I feel sure she needs you. Fourteen-year-old girls can be such a help to their mothers if they want to be and can really make themselves indispensable. Think it/over, Lizzie. I like your real name much better though.—Ed. TENNESSEE.

DEAR MES. WILKINSON AND SESTERS:

Will you admit a little troubled sister into your circle? I will describe myself first. I am four feet, ten inches tail, weigh 110 pounds and am rather dark complexioned and have dark brown eyes and hair. I am fourteen years old.

Do any of the sisters know of a place where I could get a home? My mother is a widow with six children beside myself. Mrs. Gaester, you said something in your letter about wanting a girl. Would you like to friends, gotten through Comport.

around the base of it, and after a short period it will turn black and later drop off. You can also use salicylic acid, moistening it with alcohol or glycerine and bind on the mole for half an hour. Wait a couple of days and repeat the treatment, wait a couple more days and repeat a third time. Sometimes in disposing of a mole a small scar is left. I thuk I should let mine alone—a great many people think they are rather desirable, as they make the surrounding skin look whiter. Just be careful that the rest of your skin is white, and follow my directions about your general diet, and I think you will find the moles becoming less and less noticeable. Read also my directions to "Eleanor" in regard to exercise and circulation. Be sure to keep your own circulation in good order and you will find that your moles do not increase, I am sure.

DAISY.—A great many people like to wash the face

DAISY.—A great many people like to wash the face in butternilk, but I am not a great believer in its efficacy. I think it does a great deal more good to the complexion if taken internally, so if you have plenty of butternilk on hand drink a couple of glasses a day. If you are below weight, the sweet milk will be still better for you and will cause you to gain. I do not think butternilk will cause hair to grow on the face. You ask me whether I advise trying to remove superfluous hair. Yes, by the electric needle if on the face, or by the use of peroxide and ammonia, dampening the hairy spots one day with peroxide, the next day with ammonia, until the hair both bleaches and falls out. This latter treatment takes some time, but it is harmless. If the skin gets irritated, stop the treatment for a few days, and apply a soothing lotton or cream. Do not use a depliatory on the face, as the hair inevitably comes back. A depilatory is all right to remove hair from under the arms, because even though you have to repeat the treatment at regular intervals, no special harm is done—but the face is a different matter.

Mas. P. J.—Here's our same old question—how to apply the peroxide and amponing freatment.

Mas. P. J.—Here's our same old question—how to poly the peroxide and ammonia treatment. See an-intervals, no special harm is done—but the face is a different matter.

MES. P. J.—Here's our same old question—how to apply the peroxide and ammonia treatment. See answer to 'Daisy.'' I am sorry I cannot tell you how long it will take to remove the hair, because it varies with different people. Some hair is very strong and some has not much vitality. It is a slow sprocess, however, but the result to be gained is worth the amount of patience it takes.

DAISY.—You do not tell me how old you are, so I do not know whether your wrinkles are the result of bad facial habits or are coming with added years. If the former, you must at once study your facial expression and find out what it is you do which produces the wrinkles. You say they are in the forehead, so you may have a habit of frowning, or of knitting the brows. You may worry easily, and if you do your forehead will surely show it. So, in such case, the first thing to do is to get after your mental attitude, and resolve not to worry but to take everything sweetly, pleasantly and be always good-natured. Try looking worried in front of your mirror, then dismiss your worries and relax your brow and see how soon the wrinkles will fade away. In the meantime, if you have already produced the wrinkles, get to work at them every night and if 'possible one other time during the day. You will need a jar of good cold cream. Dip the fingers in and smear the forehead lightly. Then with the first finger of each hand, start at the top of any verticle wrinkles, beginning at the top of the forehead, and rubbing back and forth across the wrinkles over and over again until you have reached the bridge of the none fiesh you have horizontal wrinkles, the kind which run from temple to temple, or in that direction if not all the way, rub up and down—and rub across such wrinkles, beginning at one end and gradually working your way to the other. You should massage for about ten minutes to the other. You should massage for about ten minutes at the more fiesh you have the tighter your sk strenuous. I answered a question in regard to freekles last month and said if they were summer freekles, not to bother with them now but wait until winter, as taking them off would leave the skin sensitive to the sun and probably produce a new crop of freekles. Take them off in winter when there is nothing to bring them back, and then try to toughen your skin in preparation for next summer. Read my answer of last month.

DON'T HOOK YOUR ARM AROUND THE CHAIR BACK.

Address all letters containing questions to KATHERINE BOOTH, CATE COMPORT,
AUGUSTA, MAINE.

I want to tell you about my girls. Blanche had hertonsils and adenoids removed nearly a year ago and she isn't the same child now. It did her a lot of good and I would advise the mother of a sickly child to have it done. Alice, my baby, four yeas old, is a case. She runs away so much I have tied her up but it doesn't do any good. Can some one advise me? She is saucy also and if I start to punish her she says something cute or does something that amuses me and I fail in my punishment. Some will say I am a fine mother to be governed by a child but novertheless, Alice is boss.

I will try and answer all letters received.

Wishing long life to COMFORT and all its staff, I remain,

(CONTINUED BY BLANCE.

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 13.)

Send Only With Coupon

and we will ship you this

Pure Silk Dressy Frock

This smart frock is made of the This smart frock is made of the finest grade of silk taffeta or satin. The fancy shaped lapels of self material have overlaid white collar of silk crepe dechine prettily hemstitched. The waist part is made in circular Eton effect extending around in novel butterfly belt effect in back. The lapels and waist front are elaborately embroidered with silk and gold colored threads. Dress can be had with self colored georgette sleeves having silk cuffs or all silk sleeves. Mention choice. Skirt is made with fullness in both front and back. This is a copy of a regular $25.00 dress had produced to sell at this special price. Furnished in sizes $4 to 44 and Misseu $16 to 20. Colors, Navy Bloe, Flum. Copenhagen, Black or Silver Grey. Be sure to give Bust, Belt, Hip and Length measurements, also style of sleeve and color wanted.

Orderby No. B42, Georgette Sleeves No. B43, Silk Sleeves Only $1.00 down, $2.70 monthly. Price, $16.95.

Six Months To Pay

Order this bargain on our liberal credit No need to pay all down to get the you want to wear. We trust honest people no matter where they live. Buy the easy way! Sond today for this offering and see for yourself what a big advan-tage it is to use your credit with us. Act at once,

Mail Coupon

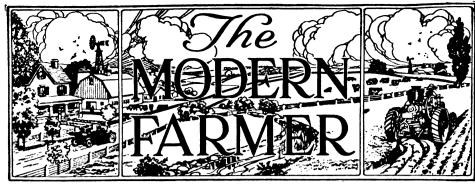

NOW! Thousands will be sending in for this bargain. It will be first come first served, Mail er before pro-

Elmer Richards Co. w. 35th 51. Chicago

.. as first pay Please and the No. B-42 Georgette Slowes Ladies Frock No. B-43 Silk Sleevas

If I am not estimied with the Ladies' Frock, I can return It and get my paymont back. Otherwise, I will pay $2.70 a month and it self for.

If you want the Sargain Bulletin, which is Free, put X here

Preparing Seed Corn for Next Year

IGHT now is the time to prepare seed corn for next spring's planting. Begin by selecting it from the standing stalks in the field. Pick only good ears from good, strong leafy stalks. Do not take ears that grow too high or too low on the stalk, but just about right for easy husking. Don't select ears with too strong or too weak shanks. They should be easily removed by hand, but not so easily that they will break off and be lost if cut with a corn harvester. Field selection is important because next year's crop will partake of the nature of the plants from which this year's seed is selected. "Like always produces like."

will partials because next year's crop will partials of the nature of the plants from the will partials of the nature of the plants from two produces like."

Hit White Grabs Now

British Seed*

When seed has been thus selected it should be carefully dred before storing. The farmed profit is not proved to the carefully dred before storing. The farmed profit is not proved to the carefully dred before storing. The farmed profit is not proved to the carefully dred before storing. The farmed profit is not proved to the carefully dred before storing. The farmed profit is not proved to the carefully dred before storing. The farmed profit is not proved to the carefully dred before storing. The storing of the Lit this story of the less mature the corn of the common story beautiful that the careful that the careful to the careful that the carefu

Pacters Making for Good Prices

Any article produced on the farm to sell well must show well—that is, it must have good appearance. It must also possess quality or ability to please the palate of the customer. It must reach the market early—or out of season so as to take advantage of an unsatisfied demand. Sometimes late products command the best prices. This is almost always true in the case of strawberries in the Northern markets.

Again, it must possess either keeping qualities or be so handled as to keep well for some time. Few customers will be found for either fruit or vegetables on the verge of decay.

Appearance.—We are all attracted by nice looking things to eat. We often go to the market and bring home something that we never intended to buy, because it pleased the eye. When the desire for a thing has been aroused, price is always a secondary consideration. We can beat our competitors easier by offering a superior looking article than we can by offering a cheaper one. Every one who prepares stuff for market should make it look just as attractive as he can. All vegetables should be scrupulously clean and tied in neat bundles or made up in tasty packages all of the same size and kind. The vegetables themselves should be graded so that all those in a single package are of the same size. Fruits and potatoes should be graded for the same reason. Study appearance and make everything look "awfully good to eat."

Time of Marketino.—The time of marketing is most important. While earliness is important, it is not so important as it is to avoid large competition. If you can get your stuff to the same kind, then you in a sense become master of the supply. It may be early in the season, or early in the day, or after your sometitors are all sold out, as in the case with the late strawberries already mentioned. In any case, it is a poor time to offer stuff on the market when everybody else is selling. The prudent farmer studies the market and plans in advance to strike the market at the most favorable time. It is of and small and poor ones thrown out.

Ripe onions should be dried, topped and sorted and placed in bushel boxes made of slats for handling. They should never be pulled, packed and marketed the same day except for immediate consumption.

Beans should be cleaned, dried and sorted before being placed on the market. Dirty, rusty, moldy or split beans always look bad and spoil the price, besides they do not keep well.

Dirty vegetables are always a drug on the market. In the first place, the customer does not want to buy dirt, and in the next place, dirty vegetables do not please the eye or tempt the palate.

Tomato Blight and Ret

Tomatoes are afficted with several diseases. The two most troublesome classes are the blights and the rots. Of the blights there are two classes, those spread by spores and those spread by germs. For the latter kind there is no remedy. Spore Spread Blights.—Tiny dustlike particles called spores are blown from one diseased plant to another. They settle on the leaves and set up a growth there which usually appears in the form of rusty brown or dark gray spots. The leaves thus affected turn yellow and die. While this class of blights are very destructive, they can be controlled by use of sprays—the standard Bordeaux Mixture—often described in these columns can be used with good results. Spray plants once every ten days. Since this disease is carried over in the soil, tomatoes should not be planted on the same ground oftener than once in three years.

Blights Caused by Germs.—The germs cause.

not be planted on the same ground oftener than once in three years.

BLIGHTS CAUSED BY GERMS.—The germs causing this disease enter the plants through wounds made by insects or injury to roots in transplanting. The disease does not become evident until plant is nearly full grown, when it becomes suddenly wlited. A stem cut across shows a dark brown ring. There is no way to keep this disease in check except by using the utmost care. Diseased plants should be destroyed. No tomatoes should be grown on same soil for at least three years. Be very careful in transplanting. It will do no good to spray.

Tomaté Ret

There are several kinds of rot—black rot, stem end rot, brown spot, soft rot and blossom end rot, all of which are pretty well described by their names. Most of these are helped by the Bordeaux Mixture spray. As a rule, tomatoes affected with rot should be staked up so that the fruit does not come in contact with the soil. All diseased fruit should be picked at once and destroyed.

Keeping Up the Milk Flow market it is often necessary to keep the produce for a time. Again, the grocer or purchaser needs to keep the product before it is finally used. Fruits and vegetables should be selected in the first place because of their superior keeping qualities. They should be so handled as to keep well. Care in picking and packing is of utmost importance.

Good and Poor Practices in Handling.—Apples should never be shaken from trees but picked by hand and placed in baskets so that they may be rolled—not poured or dropped into the barrels. This prevents bruising, and bruised apples will not keep. The same practice should be followed in handling plums, peaches and pears. Cherries should be picked with the stems left on if they are expected to keep over twenty-four hours.

Potatoes should not be cut or bruised in digging or handling. It is always better to place them in sacks in the field and market them in sacks where small lots are handled. They should be picked before being placed in the sacks chosen and fed to good cows. It never pays to feed a "boarder."

FEED ROOTS, PUMPKINS AND SILAGE.—While it is a little early to open the silo, this should be done if the cows are shrinking in milk and there is nothing else to feed. Pumpkins are splendid and rutabagas and sugar beets are equally good to maintain the flow of milk. The dairy herd should not be allowed to drop off in milk flow, for if this once occurs this cannot be regained again until the cows freshen for next year.

The World Wants Fat

Ever since the first year of the big war Germany has suffered for fat. Fat-producing animals were killed off for food and it has since been impossible to increase the supply.

WE MUST PRODUCE FAT.—This country will soon find herself in the same condition. High prices of pork have drained the hogs off the farms. We have cut down our breeding stock. We must increase our number of meat animals. Fortunately, pigs multiply rapidly. Our pork supply for this year is fixed, but we can have a greatly increased supply for next year if we make our plans now.

Save Good Brood Sows.—The best females should be selected now for breeding purposes. Plans should be made to have the little pigs come early in April. A six-months-old pig makes best and cheapest meat. April pigs will be ready for market in October. They can be carried over summer on pasture with a very little milk and be fed by using a self feeder. Dried blood tankage and oil meal will take the place of milk to a large extent. After the new crop of corn is ripe, they can be finished in a month on new corn and be ready for market in October or early November. If we plan now to raise more pork next year, we will be in little danger of a shortage of fat.

Soy Beans Again

Silage Should be Kept Moist.—The sliage should be cut about in lengths of not more than one inch. It should be solidly packed down so as to exclude all air. This is much more difficult with ripe than it is with green corn. This may be the reason why many farmers prefer to use green corn for filling the silo. Green corn packs easily because it contains so much water. Ripe corn can be made to pack just as easily if water is added while filling the silo. There is little danger of using too much water. This water will fill up the poor spaces in the sliage, exclude the air, assist in packing and help to preserve the silage.

Silage Must Be Well Packed.—Silage should be packed down solidly around the walls on the SILAGE MUST BE WELL PACKED.—Silage should be packed down solidly around the walls on the outside. It does not settle so readily along the wall as it does in the center, therefore more packing is needed here. The silage falls into the middle of the silo as it comes from the machine. This assists in packing. One cannot be too careful in packing silage. It will never be packed too much.

If these few directions are carefully followed, a very high quality of silage can be made from fully ripe corn.

Please Wear this Suit &

Made to fit you. Act as our Agent.

YOUR CLOTHES FREE AND BIG PROFITS Send name and address for this great new offer, selection of fine samples and latest styles to choose from. All other tailoring agents write too. Send now, today, to BANNER TAILORING Dept 972, Chicago, ILL.

WORLD'S BEST SHOE VALUES

More than a million satisfied cus-tomers named our shoes "The World's Greatest." Don't buy your shoes unti-you get our 1918 shoe book. It shows a complete line of styles, lasts and leathevery purpose, no me requirements. Saves y

SHOE BARGAINS For Men, Women, Boye and Giris Our new 1918 Scientific Footwest Catalog shows how to save 20% to 40% on shoes for the whole fam-ity. Catalog FREE on request.

Bell-ans

Absolutely Removes Indigestion. Druggists refund money if it fails. 25c

plant (flag) is annoying. R. H., Hueysville, Ky. A.—Large willows have to be kept girdled (barked) from the ground up two or more feet, and then will die down, if the ground is not kept too wet. First drain the willow-covered ground, then cut them short off and afterwards strip down the bark of stumes and do not allow a green sprout to thrive. (2) We know of no other way than to pasture unringed hose on the calamus patch, or to dig up and destroy the roots. Draining will also help.

War Joins Hands of American and Canadian Women

packing is needed here. The silage falls into the middle of the silo as it comes from the machine. This assists in packing. One cannot be too careful in packing silage. It will never be packed too much.

If these few directions are carefully followed, a very high quality of silage can be made from fully ripe corn.

Through the sejumns of this department subscribers may have free savies from the eminent specialists and experts of our Agricultural Staff on questions relating to farming, live steek and dairylag.

Address Modern Parmer, COMFORT, Augusta, Maine. Sign your true name and give your address. Name will not be published.

Questions and Answers

TREATMENT FOR SMOKED MEAT.—Please tell me how to treat smoked meat to prevent it from spoiling. The files and little black bugs cause ours to spoil at once although we sail it six or eight weeks before smoking; then, after sufficient smoking, wrap it in cloth. This year we put borax on it, yet the peats got on it.

A.—After smoking, make a paste of vinegar and cayenne pepper and coat the hams with this paste. Then slip the meat in a tight paper sack, an old flour sack is good, and tie up tight so that files and other insects can't get in. Keep these pests out and you will have no trouble. Store in a cool, dry place.

TOMATO BLIGHT.—Please give me remedy for tomato blight. Would appreciate any advice you can offer on this subject. Mess. E. T. S., Ansted, W. Va.

A.—There are so many kinds of tomato blight that the forms to blight the files and other on this subject. Mess. E. T. S., Ansted, W. Va.

will have no trouble. Store in a cool, dry place.

TOMATO BLIGHT.—Please give me remedy for tormato blight. Would appreciate any advice you can offer on this subject. Mrs. E. T. S., Ansted, W. Vs..

A.—There are so many kinds of tomato blight that we cannot tell best means of control of the kind with which you are troubled. See article on Tomato Blight in another column of Modern Farmer in this issue.

KILLING WILLOWS.—Please tell me how to kill out a patch of willow bushes. I can't kill the willows out of my bottom land. (2) How can I kill out a patch of calamus? The large tuberous root of this Feather-proof Ticking. Sold on money-back guarantee. DO NOT BUY from anyone at any price, until you get the BOOK OF TRUTH, our big, new catalog mailed FREE. Write a post card TODAY.

Agents Wanted Everywhere. MAKE BIG MONEY.
American Feather & Pillow Co., Desk 250, Nashville, Tem-

BY KATE V. SAINT MAUR.

to Insure Having Strong Chicks Next Year

REEDERS should be selected in the fall while the marks of the year's production are evident and may be used for a guide. This, of course, eliminates the pullet from the breeding pen. Let the first year be for eggs only, then select the best birds, and keep then as long as there is reasonable production, and a goodly number of strong, healthy chicks can be produced each year.

when the first year by for exist only, the best of the first year by for exist only, the best of the first year by for exist only, the best of the first year by for exist only, the best of the first year by for exist only, the best of the first year by for exist only, the best of the first year by for exist only, the best of year of the year of year of Heas will consume during the winter about one ton per one hundred birds. Cabbage or aprouted outs are also very satisfactory. The green food problem may be greatly simplified by using clover hay or at least part clover hay for litter. Where clover is home grown, it is not an expensive form of litter, as the heas recover all the food value in the leaves, and the stalks are even better than straw. A fresh grass and clover sod, is, of course, the best source of summer green food.

Sour skim milk seems to be the most satisfactory single food that we have for poultry of all ages. When fed to breeding stock during the winter, better egg production, higher fertility, higher hatchability, and stronger chicks may be expected. Results will warrant paying at least one cent and sometimes two cents per quart for the breeding stock.

winter, better exc production, higher fertility, higher hatchability, and stronger chicks may be expected. Results will warrant paying at least one cent and sometimes two cents per quart for The whole object in caring for the breeding stock during the winter is the production of strong, healthy chicks. Remove from the breeding stock during the winter. The campaign in the production of strong, healthy chicks. Remove from the breeding payed to the production of strong, the production of strong the winter. The campaign is made to the production of strong and the strong step of the again of many care and the production of strong and the strong step of the strong shelp, so the case of the strong shelp, so the strong shelp, so the case of the strong shelp, so the strong shel be such that the sun may reach every part of the house at some time during the day, and provide an abundance of ventilation without drafts in all kinds of weather. Sunshine is the best disinfectant, and fresh air the best tonic. Do not crowd breeding stock: allow four square feet of floor space or over to each bird. Allow the breeding stock to run out of doors wery day in the year, but make the house so much more comfortable that they will not care to go out in bad weather. Clean litter in the houses, and a sheltered run outside, will encourage exercise.

Feed for the breeding stock need not be so different from that for the laying stock, except that the protein in the mash may be reduced, and a large proportion of whole grain fed. The ration should be quite bulky and rather low in beef scrap. The method of feeding is quite as important as the kind of food used. Scatter the grain in clean, dry litter, and keep the mash always before the birds. Use every possible means to encourage the birds. Use every possible means to encourage the birds. Use every possible means to encourage the birds to work.

Green food in some form is necessary every day in the year. Mangels are perhaps the most convenient and the cheapest form of green feed.

Yours in faith and love,

BLACKWATER, Mo.

This morning the thought came to me—how many for sonsider what we write in our letters to our friends? What is a real letter? What is the kind of roceive? Does it pay to put a three-cent stanp on a lot of nonsense when we have said nothing of the creeded a word of faith and comfort they need it now and if ever our friends ever we needed to get down to real Christianity we need to get down to real Christianity we need to faith and comfort they need it now and disappoint we need to four war froubles. If you are said and disappointment on the faces of our friends, with the protein in the mash may be reduced, and a large proportion of feeding is quite as important as the kind of food used. Scatter the grain in clean, dry litter, and keep the mas

DEAR COMPORT SISTERS:

I, too, have been thinking of writing to this corner but like many of the others, waited until I needed help. How many of the sisters have a deaf child? My little boy, four years old, is deaf and we are very foolish about him. I talk to him just as much as though he could hear so he will learn lip reading. Will some of the sisters having a deaf child in an oral school, please write to me. I want to place him in a school by the time he is six but I do not want to send him to the sign school. I want him to learn to talk. Please help me.

Mas. C. B. WOMACK.

IDANO.

DEAR MRS. WIDKINSON AND SISTERS:
May an unknown sister step in for a few minutes?

SEND US YOUR Old Carpets Rupe and Old Clothing relain the wool in them by our species of cleaning, combing, carding, a pinning. Then we dye it and weave no Velvety Rugs plain, fancy or Oriental patterning color you want, day size—the equit the high-priced store rugs.

IDABO.

DRAW SISTERS:

I have been inspired to write by reading Lula's letter.

Lula, don't you think that you cheated your husband when you married him and that you are still cheating him in the game of life every day that you letter and meant everything that you wrote. I certainly don't wonder that your life is empty. A woman who will deliberately marry a man without one spark of affect the first of the state of the

Why Hens Won't Lay

P. J. Kelly, the Minnesota Poultry Expert. To Kelly Bldg., Minneapolis, Minn., has published a book, "The Tale of a Lasy Hen." It tells why the hens won't lay and how to make them lay every day. Mr. Kelly will mail the book free to anyone who will write him.

POULTRY AND PIGEONS FOR PROFIT Foy's big book trais all about it Ce tains many colored plates an ency-lopedia of poutry information, poutry houses, feeding for eags, etc. Written by a man who arous. Sent for 5 cents. Low prices, towls and eggs. FRANK FOY, BOX 6, OLINTON, 10WA.

and have never seen N. Y. C., let me tell you, stay on your nice little farms. I only wish the time would come when I shall have the opportunity of living on one.

This city life is one hustle—bustle to get shoved and pushed around in the subways is one of the advantages. I go through this process twice a day, quite clough for a little girl, for I am five feet, four inches tall and weigh only ninety-cight pounds. Twenty-two years old, am a blonde with brown eyes. A Christian also, for even in this great hig city I find time to go to church and Sunday school.

Do let me hear from some of you, I would be more than pleased. With love to all the sisters,
I remain,-tovingly,

(Miss) LOUISE A. BLUMENDERO.

DEAR MRS. Withkinson and Sisters:

May an unknown sister step in for a few minutes?

May an unknown sister step in for a few minutes?

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 23.)

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 23.)

Calory; Pure white; or the Jamesa Versie Mortis all gold finish which looks like brees, Guaranteed Spring Splendidly made unless, Angle Halt Inbric secure atool bands. Furtened to angle 27 colled springs. To St bed. Comfortable Mattress wilder overlar of clean, fine cetten on top and adon. Cleanly attended and lemity officed. Best greate of testing.

*

- are

Portable Brilliant Oil Heater

Arteraft stove, different from anything you ever new. Handsome at sided stream-line design. Workmanning materials and healing capacity materials and healing capacity materials. serum and nearing capacity makis lin-beauty. A score of grainsive patent of fea-tures make it simpler to operate, cleaner, edories; gives 10 per cent more best per gallon of cill. Fractically made in one solid piece; no parts to break, come loose or te-stick out and exter on furniture or clothes, Waight only 15 pounds so a child can carry it around the house.

Recommended by the Government The U. S. Paul Administration outperfees the statement that it considers the use of oil heaters a year important help in the necessary caving of oils for war purposes.

No. NB6178 Bed only. 51.00 with lot. $6.87 No. NB6179 Bed suring and matteres, $1.00 No.PDX9670 Store only. 51 with let-$7.95 No. 6180 Pro With Line. Hat $22.95

All sent on 30 days free loan. 1129 W. 35th St., Chicago

No matter where you live or what salary you carn we bring you new home comforts without waiting. We open your account when we mail you our Bargaia Book. You don't need to sak for credit. We never embarrass you by writing to your friends, employers or neighbors. We haven't any collectors. We take our payments just about as you get your money. If you like the one bargain displayed here, let us show you soon others. A posteard brings our book.

Credit Without Asking — Year to Pay

For going on 53 years we have been National Headquarters for household bargains. A million families have traded-here—many of them your own neighbors. You can easily find out all shout us just by asking. They never pay cash—they pay almost as they please—taking about a year on all purchases. We loan selections for a month before even asking for an order.

Biggest of All Books

Our famous Home Lovers Bargain Book is now ready. In spite of the abortage of all kinds of materials, it is the biggest catalog and shows the greatest savings in our history. It measures 11 inches by 15 inches—nearly twice as big as other mail order catalogs. Many things like carpets, very, draperies, lineisums, blankets and comforters are shown in being select. It costs us, with the mailing, about $1.00 a copy. It's free to you for the asking.

Pay Later On

Ask for FREE Copy Today-Tomorrow May Be Too Late ipiegel Man Stem 6

Out of Her Travail

By Myra Williams Jarrell

Copyright, 1918, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher, Inc.

T ain't as if you was needed, Stevie," Mrs. Simmons' voice was high-pitched and quavering, "for there's surely enough young fellows without you." "Now, Mother, what if all the other fellows' mothers talked that way? "There'd be the older men, Stevie." They're the ones as ought to go. Their lives are pretty near through, and they'd ought to go, and leave the flower of the land, them that's got to make the future for the country." Her tone was that of one repeating an aphorism she had made her own.

own.

"It's the fellows that are going to fight who are going to make the future of this country. Mother, and I'm going to be one of them."

"But, Stevie, you ain't of draft age yet. If the war keeps on, as folks say it must, they'll get you next year. Better wait, honey. That will give you another year of schooling. I want that you should get an education, Stevie. Your father and I planned and saved for that from the time we knew you was coming. We'd not had a chance ourselves, and we wanted that you should. It wasn't easy to save. Your father's shoulders got a little more bowed every year.

The boy was twisting his hat in his hands, and his face expressed regret and pain, mixed with determination. He was a comely lad, straight and strong and tall. His eyes, a dark hazel, dark-lashed, his features almost classic in their perfection.

"I know Mother" he cried "I've known, yague-dark-lashed, his leatures among perfection.

"I know, Mother," he cried, "I've known, vaguely, always, that you and Father had made tremendous sacrifices for me, and I've wanted to show you that—I—knew."

"You have, Stevie, you've been a good boy,—such a comfort,—especially since your father died. And that's one reason I,—I—just—can't—let—you—go!"

show you that—I—knew."

"You have, Stevie, you've been a good boy,—such a comfort,—especially since your father died. And that's one reason I.—I—just—can't—let—you—go!"

Her shoulders drooped, and the tears slowly trickled down her wrinkled cheeks.

"Oh,—there,—Mother." He put his arm awkwardly around her bowed form.

"You won't go, will you, Stevie? You'll stay with me, won't you? I'll be all alone if you go." She reached up with tremulous fingers, and smoothed his dark hair.

"Katherine will be near you."

"Oh, but Katherine is nothing to me, not much, any way,—just a neighbor, and she can't take your place, Stevie."

"You make it hard for me, Mother." The protest burst from his lips, and shaking off the hands that would have held him, he jumped to his feet, and began to pace the floor.

His mother fell to weeping, not noisily,—not with absolute abandon, but hopelessly, drearily.

The boy paused by the window. Outside, the breath of Spring made lovely the view. The apple tree was bursting with blossom, prodigal with its fragrance. The robins, which had nested there since his early boyhood, were busily preparing the nest for the oncoming family, the mother bird fussing with the male over the placing of the straw, while underneath was the deep chirp of maternal contentment.

Beyond the stretch of trees a little way off, was the stream where he had learned to swim, and which even now glinted like a silver thread between the foliage.

All was peace and quietude. Suddenly the war seemed far off, not a part of his experience or of his time. Within the little sitting-room, his mother's weeping had subsided into choking sighs. Across the yard, and into the next one, where as a child he had made mud pies and played keep house, he caught the filtr of a pink skirt near the big rosebush. He drew a deep sigh.

Here, in this quiet little place, where he knew even the town dogs, life was sweet and peaceful and uneventful. Over There,—his ear caught the sound of martial music. From the window he could look across to the town

a duty to my country
I owe you."
"But your education, Stevie. Your Father and

"No red-blooded fellow is going to stay at home for an education. I'm not anyway. Why, the experience over there will be worth more than all the college education in the world. Besides, the fellow that don't go, is going to spend all the rest of his life explaining WHY he stayed at home!"

"We didn't have to get into this" complement all the rest of his life explaining with he stayed at home!"

"We didn't have to get into this," complained his mother. "I voted for Wilson because he'd kep' us out of war. It wasn't our fight."

"Oh, Mother, let's don't hash that all over again! I can't seem to make you understand that it's the fight of everybody and every nation, that believes in the right of the individual, and the common laws of decency and humanity!"

"But it's not your fight, anyway, Stevie, 'not till next year. Oh, say you'll wait! Don't go now! How'll I ever stand it!"

"You'll stand it just like thousands of other mothers are standing it," he told her shortly. The next day he told her gently that he had enlisted, and would have to stay at the Fair Grounds, which had been converted into a temporary camp, until the company was ordered elsewhere.

Grounds, which had been converted into a temporary camp, until the company was ordered elsewhere.

Her heart nearly stopped beating, but the tears seemed dried. A dull apathy seized her, an apathy which gave place occasionally to bursts of resentment toward the President, toward the Government, and toward the Allies,—all of the sources that had contributed to her misery.

The little town awoke to the fact that it was an integral part of the great whole. Sectionalism died overnight, and from its death-throes was born Nationalism, which later grew and expanded, and developed into Internationalism.

Men who had had petty differences in the past, met and clasped hands, and discussed the war and its probable effect upon the world, commercially and spiritually.

A Chapter of the Red Cross was organized, and there, at first, until the plans had become concrete and efficiency the watchword, so that it became a business, just like any other wellorganized business, the women mingled tears with work, as the talk went on, about "My Boy," for scarcely a family in the town but had been touched in some close way.

Mrs. Simmons held herself aloof from it all,—aloof from her neighbors and friends. Stevie was at home a short time each day, looking handsome and soldierly in his uniform. But there seemed to be no common grounds upon which they could meet. She never asked him a question about his military duties, and he vouch-safed no information. She would ask if he had enough blankets to keep him warm, and if he got enough to eat. There were always cookies and doughnuts and ples for him when he came, which he devoured with a boy's voracious appetite.

He usually took time to sit at the piano and round out a firm of he for the street of the forest the street of Mrs. Simmons held herself aloof from it all,—aloof from her neighbors and friends. Stevie was at home a short time each day, looking handsome and soldierly in his uniform. But there seemed to be no common grounds upon which they could meet. She never asked him a question about his military duties, and he vouch safed no information. She would ask if he had enough blankets to keep him warm, and if he got enough to eat. There were always cookies and doughnuts and pies for him when he came, which he devoured with a boy's voracious appetite.

He usually took time to sit at the piano and pound out a few of his favorite tunes, before going back to camp, and sometimes, in his lusty young voice, to sing "Keep the Home Fires Burning."

The camp was only a few blocks distant, and in the early dawn, when she heard reveille, she she knew.

One day she overheard a conversation between two women about a young fellow in the town who had not enlisted. "He invited my Emily to the picture show the other night," confided one of them, "but she told him coolly that she didn't like the color and cut of his clothes."

"Did you know that the two Jimkins boys had enlisted?" asked the other.

"No, you don't say so. That's pretty hard on their mother. Neither one's old enough to be drafted. How does she take it?"

"Oh, she's proud of them. Says she can stand to serve their country."

"That's the right spirit," and the other one sighed. "I don't know whether I could be that brave or not, if I had a son."

Mrs. Simmons listened dully. TwO sons! How would it feel to divide the anxiety? But, then,

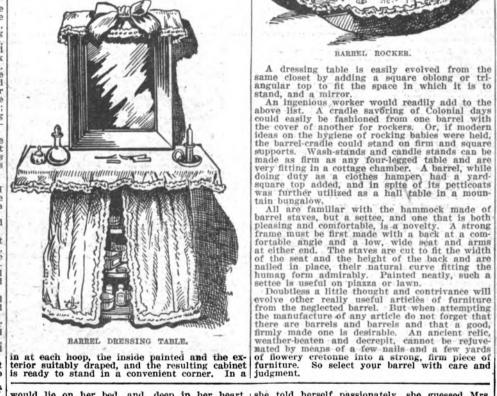

By Priscilla Brown

Copyright, 1918, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher, Inc.

SURPRISING number of pieces of very useful furniture can be made from the barrel that has been put out in the barr or woodshed because you could not think of anything else to do with it and hated to throw it away. Besides the straight, and if the truth must be told, rather uncomfortable chair and the round stand that writers on household subjects have described for years, an ingenious person can manufacture the nicest sort of little sewing chair with rockers, a unique divan and a really elaborate looking dressing-table that would delight the heart of any young girl, as well as several other useful things.

The rockers of the chair are constructed from the halves of the cover of the barrel, the bottom being needed of course to hold the staves in place. When such a chair is covered with chintz it is very attractive indeed. (See illustration.) The divan is made by cutting two barrels off as for the old-fashioned barrel chair and connecting them with a board which supports a cushion. Across the back, a board is run from the two upright portions making a low back. When this is cushioned and suitably covered, the humble origin of this piece of furniture is very hard to detect. (See illustration in heading.)

A corner cupboard or cabinet can be evolved from the frame of another barrel. The staves are removed from nearly one half leaving the top, bottom and hoops intact. Shelves are put Doubtless, the same scene was being enacted in countless dozens of homes, but that fact made in countless dozens of homes, but that fact made in no easier for her.

Then came the day, the day she had dreaded with a dread unspeakable, when the boys were to leave for the distant training camp, to undergo a few months of hard, intensive drilling, before embarking on the Great Adventure.

She had heard it rumored that they were soon to leave. Wherever she went nothing else was talked of but the war and "Our Boys." She stayed at home as closely as possible, but being one of the old-fashioned women who believed in going to market, she sometimes ran onto people she knew.

One day she overheard a conversation between kitchen the drapery might be omitted and the closet be used for pots and pans. With a drop curtain it would make a convenient catch-all for the living-room, while mounted on a cheese-box pedestal it would do duty as a china cabinet.

BARREL ROCKER.

A dressing table is easily evolved from the same closet by adding a square oblong or triangular top to fit the space in which it is to stand, and a mirror.

An ingenious worker would readily add to the above list. A cradle savoring of Colonial days could easily be fashioned from one barrel with the cover of another for rockers. Or, if modern ideas on the hygiene of rocking babies were held, the barrel-cradle could stand on firm and square supports. Wash-stands and candle stands can be made as firm as any four-legged table and are very fitting in a cottage chamber. A barrel, while doing duty as a clothes hamper, had a yard-square top added, and in spite of its petticoats was further utilized as a hall table in a mountain bungalow.

All are familiar with the hammock made of would lie on her bed, and, deep in her heart, curse the man whom she considered had taken her boy away from her.

And again at night, when taps was sounded, she would sit by her window and strain her eyes in the darkness toward the place where her treasure was,—picturing him to herself, sleeping on a cot, rolled in a blanket, in a tent, while, in the room next to hers, was his soft, comfortable bed.

Sometimes she would go into his room, and slip down on her knees by the bed, and touch the pillow where his dear head had been wont to lie. "Oh, my God," she would murmur, with dry lips, "how can I stand it, how can I stand it!"

Doubtless, the same scene was being enacted in countless dozens of homes, but that fact made it no easier for her.

Then came the day, the day she had dreaded with a dread unspeakable, when the boys were to leave for the distant training camp, to undergo a few months of hard, intensive drilling, before embarking on the Great Adventure.

"Is it—tomorrow?" she almost whispered the up, his shoulders square, in his eyes.

"Is it—tomorrow?" she almost whispered the

Yes, Mother.'

words.

"Yes, Mother."

He sat down beside her, and was silent a few minutes. "You know," he finally began, "that I have gone into this thing because I could not do anything else and keep my self-respect. Would you have me ashamed of myself?"

She made no answer. "I—it would be easier for me if you'd just say once that you thought I was right.—If you'd just smile at me once, the way some of the other fellows' mothers smile at them. I think—I think I'd fight better."

"I don't want you to fight!" The words were mearly shrieked. "I don't want you to go over there and get killed or maimed or crippled! I want you to stay at home with me! If President Wilson had done what he—"

"Stop!" She looked up bewildered at the harshness of his tone. It wasn't her boy, her Stevie, speaking like that. "I won't have you saying things of that sort. You're unpatriotic. Besides, you'll get yourself into trouble. They'll accuse you of being pro-German,—may even arrest you. They're doing it every day."

"But I AIN'T pro-German. I hate the Germans,—they began all this trouble!"

"Then for Heaven's sake, don't criticize your President."

"He's not my President. I only voted for him because he promised—"

"There you go again! I don't want to get riled up tonight. Please, PLEASE, Mother, try to get right about this thing, for my sake!"

His tone had changed again. It held the pleading note of the little boy,—HER little boy. She turned away that he might not see her tears, the first that had come to her eyes in weeks, as she murmured, "I'll try, Stevie."

"That's a good mother." He bent and brushed her cheek with his fresh young lips, "I'm going to run up to my room a minute, to gather up a picture or two, yours—and—Katherine's."

That night, as she sat in the dusk by her window and listened to taps for the last time, she had the feeling that in the house next door another listener heard. She sighed. "Maybe she thinks she feels bad, but she can't know. Nobody but a mother REALLY knows!"

The next morning she joined the crowd that made for the railroad station. The whole town seemed to have turned out to tell the boys good by, and wish them God-speed.

On her arm was a huge market basket, bulging with good things for her boy. Other mothers passed her, some with tearful eyes, all with quivering lips. On all sides of her she heard, "My boy this," and "My boy that."

A group of boys and girls from Stevie's college drove by in an automobile, laughing and chattering! Her heart steeled toward them, and she thought, "How can they be gay, when Stevie is going to war?"

And somewhat to her own surprise she found herself thinking, as she looked at the young fellows, "Why aren't YOU in the uniform of your country?"

At the station, a jostling, partly hysterical and partly solemn crowd awaited the coming of the boys.

Soon the sound of martial music was heard,—and of marching feet.

At the station, a jostling, partly hysterical and partly solemn crowd awaited the coming of the boys.

Soon the sound of martial music was heard,—and of marching feet.

Oh, who that has heard the sound can ever forget! While life lasts it will echo and re-echo in the heart of every mother of soldiers!

A woman's voice beside her dropped into the regular rhythm of the sound. "Oh, I ENVY you, Mrs. Simmons! How proud you must be to have a splendid young son with the ideals that make him want to follow his flag, into danger, if need be!"

She looked at the speaker without replying But into her heart was being born a new and wonderful thrill, unlike any emotion she had ever experienced. The band was playing the National hymn, and the flag, HIS flag, that he was following, and HER flag, proudly floated in the breeze, as the sound of the marching feet drew nearer.

The crowd burst into loud hurrahs, as the soldiers turned the corner of the station platform, and broke ranks, to find their loved ones before entering the waiting coaches that were to bear them away.

She looked around for Stevie. Katherine, and some of his other girl friends, were grouped to gether, grasping the hand of one boy after another as he passed, but Katherine's eyes, she noted, were searching, as were her own, for the one particularly dear.

She felt a touch on her arm, and turned to find Stevie looking down into her face, apprehension, dread, and a sweet seriousness on his own.

"It's all right, Stevie," she managed, just as the young people swooned down on him.

hension, dread, and a sweet seriousness on ms own.

"It's all right, Stevie," she managed, just as the young people swooped down on him.

She stood by, patiently holding the market basket until he took it away from her. He talked and laughed with the young folks, but always his glance came back to her, to assure himself that it really WAS all right with her. A man stopped, and wrung Stevie's hand. "God bless you, lad," he murmured huskily, and then, to her, he commented, "Oh, you brave mothers! You are the army back of the army. Our boys could not keep up with their morale, without you."

You are the army back of the army. Our boy could not keep up with their morale, without you."

He passed on. She looked again at Stevie, and met the serious, questioning look in his sweet eyes, the eyes of the little boy she had tended and cared for and never failed, until now, in his most trying hour. "Give me strength, dear Father," her heart cried. But her boy did not know, for she smiled, and he was content.

The order was given to fall in and go aboard. Stevie hastily told his girl friends good by. He looked into Katherine's eyes, long enough to read the answer to the question in his, the answer, "Yes, I will wait," and then he turned to his mother.

She kissed him, She put her tremulous hands up to his smooth young cheeks. She smiled and whispered, "It's all right, Stevie. You'd ought to your country needs you. Don't worry about me. I'll get along. Good by—"

Stevie leaned from the car window and wavel, as the train pulled out. His mother stood when he had left her, and waved to him, and smiled. She turned to go home. HOME! She knew that the house was empty now. She knew that she would have to bear it to see the music on the piano, where he had left it, only the evening before. She knew that she would have to hers, to see the pillow where his head had lain. "O Father, give me strength, give me courage," she whispered.

The woman who had spoken to her as she had listened to the sound of marching feet was beside her, frankly wiping the tears from her eyet. "Oh, you wonderful woman," she cried, "how proud you must be, to be the mother of a soldier?"

Then the thrill which had so recently been born to her, out of the travail of her soul, spoke in the simple words,—"Yes, I AM proud to have a boy to serve his country!"

Sammy Receives Best Pay

Sammy Receives Best Pay

HE best-paid soldiers in the world to day are our khaki-clad fellows in the trenches of the French front.

When an American soldier is in his own country, he gets a monthly figure of thirty dollars. When he is "over there" in foreign service, he is rewarded by extra pay, and therefore gets approximately thirty-five pay, and therefore gets approximately thirty-five.

Tommy Atkins is his nearest rival, for Great pritain pays its privates more generously that any other European government. However, Tommy's $8.50 a month is less than a fourth of Sammy's thirty-five.

The French infantryman or pollu with his motto, "They Shall Not Pass," does his fighting on a monetary basis of five cents a day. Italy, ranking in generosity next to Great Britain, give its fighting men a monthly minimum allowance of $5.83, which is a sixth of Sammy's sharp.

The Central Powers are poor paymasters. The German boche wars on a wage of $1.65 per month, which much more than doubles the Austriant minimum of 92 cents. The pay of a single Sammy is sixteen cents more than the combined allowances of ten Germans, ten Austrians and a dozen Turks.

The Entente are royal paymasters with a range of thirty-five dollars for the American soldier to a dollar and a half for the French poilu: Sammy's princely pay is thirty-four cents more than the total of two Englishmen, two Italians and four French poilus.

The best-paid soldier in the world wears khall and a grin, follows Old Glory wherever she goes, and fights like a demon. His appearance on the field has heartened the brave soldiers of our Allies, and with his help they will teach the Kaise to spell d-e-f-e-a-t.

Circumstances are beyond the control of man-but his conduct is in his own power.—Disrace

The Style Question
Answered by Specialists

WITH this book of New York Styles you will be able to make your selection from thousands of the latest and most approved styles—exclusive models originated in New York, now the fashion center of the world.

This is the day of the specialist. Today it requires the constant attention of the specialist to secure maximum results. This is especially true of wearing apparel merchandise. And this is why the new Fall and Winter Fashion Catalog of the Charles William Stores will enjoy greater prestige as the standard for style merchandise of quality sold at economy prices.

The Charles William Stores is a group of forty-eight specialty stores, each store having its individual manager, who for years has made a specialty of one line of merchandise. The merchandise selected by twenty-one of these specialty managers is shown in our new Style Book.

Because of the advantages that these specialty managers enjoy in having first choice in America's greatest market, in knowing the tastes of the American public and in getting the low prices which are possible only because they buy for over two million American families, you will be amazed at the splendid values we are able to give you in spite of difficult market conditions.

Free

Write for your Copy of this Catalog To-Day

Dresses $3.65 to $15.00
$1798

Styles to Please

The American Woman

of Articles Selected by Specialists in Men's

The only styles which The Charles William Stores feature are the practical, up-to-date styles which meet the needs of the American woman.

There is style in fabric as well as in design, and there are fabrics for style as well as wear. To get garments made of the right fabric is today often more difficult than to get garments made to correct style. The specialty managers of

The Charles William Stores are quickly aware of the trend in fabric as well as in design by being in constant touch with the markets, so are able to purchase large stocks of cloth before the growing style demand has made them high priced. 409 Pages of The Latest New York Styles

> 40 Pages In Actual Colors

> > Coats $798

$3950

Blouses 98c to $7.48

Nearly 100 Specially Priced Models

The Lowest Prices Consistent With Quality

> Economy both of time and money is the aim of the nation. Economy applied to wearing an plied to wearing apparel is developed to the fullest degree on every page of our Style Book.

This season you will want to examine carefully our entire line, for now more than ever before you will appreciate the opportunity of selecting from our catalog ready to wear garments at prices that represent a real saving.

Send for this free Style Book today and let it guide you not only to better styles, but to greater convenience and greater saving.

MAIL THE COUPON TODAY

Charles William Stores New York

A Sign Sign

Our Fashion Book

only coats which represent the latest in New

Home Dressmaking Hints

Forecasts for Fall Fashions

Pattern Descriptions ALL PATTERNS 15c. EACH Unless Other Price Is Stated.

1415.—Boys' Blouse Suit with Straight Trousers and with or without shaped band. White linen, with blue linen for trimming is here shown. The blouse has a simple coat closing, and a rolled collar, with low neck opening. The trousers are made with side closing.

Cut in four sizes; three, four, five and six years. It requires two yards for the blouse and one and one eighth yard of 27-inch material for the trousers for a three-year size.

2192.—Dress for Elderly Ladles. This style is lovely for satin, silk, crepe, gabardine, serge and broadcloth. The fronts are finished with vest portions.

Cut in seven sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust measure. It requires six and one eighth yards of 36-inch material for a 36-inch eighth yards of 36-inch material for a size.

2205.—A Practical Work Garment. This will be ideal for khaki, percale, chambray, gingham, linen or lawn.

Cut in four sizes; small, 32-34 inches bust measure; medium, 36-38; large, 40-42, and extra large, 44-46. Size medium requires six and one eighth yards of 36-inch material.

2212.—An Ever-Popular Model. Khaki cloth, serge, cheviot, mixed suiting, linene, drill, gingham, voile, repp and poplin are nice for this model.

serge, cheviot, mixed suiting, linene, drill, gingham, voile, repp and poplin are nice for this model.

Cut in four sizes; eight, 10, 12 and 14 years. Size 12 requires three and one half yards of 44-inch material.

2281.—A Neat House Dress. The model here portrayed has reversible fronts, and may be made with the sleeve in wrist or elbow length. Linen, khaki, drill, percale, lawn, dimity, cashmere and flannelette may be employed, but the wash fabrics are most satisfactory for service and laundering. Cut in seven sizes; 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust measure. Size 38 requires six and one half yards of 44-inch material.

2317 Waist; 2313 Skirt.—A Good Costume for General Wear. The Waist Pattern (2317) is cut in seven sizes; 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust measure.

The Skirt Pattern (2313) in seven sizes; 22, 24, 26, 28, 30, 32 and 34 inches waist measure. A medium size will require for skirt and waist five and five eighths yards of 44-inch material.

2339.—A Stylish Gown. Satin, serge or velvet will be good for this model. The vest, cuffs and collar could be of contrasting material, or embroidered in pretty colors.

Cut in seven sizes; 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust measure. Size 38 requires seven and one fourth yards of 36-inch material.

2359.—A Simple, Practical Model. The front closing makes adjustment easy. The sleeve may be in either of the two lengths portrayed. The dress is a one-piece model, with the fullness confined under the belt.

Cut in seven sizes; 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust measure. Size 38 requires six yards of 36-inch material.

2359.—A Simple, Practical Model. The front closing makes adjustment easy. The sleeve may be in either of the two lengths portrayed. The dress is a one-piece model, with the fullness confined under the belt.

Cut in seven sizes; 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust measure. Size 38 requires six yards of 36-inch material.

fined under the belt.

Cut in seven sizes; 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust measure. Size 38 requires six yards of 36-inch material.

2414.—A Popular Model. The smart belt, with pockets combined, will be found of much use. The sleeve may be finished in wrist or elbow length. This style makes a splendid "service" uniform. It is suitable for khaki, galatea, gingham, linen, drill or percale.

Cut in seven sizes; 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust measure. Size 38 requires six and three fourths yards of 36-inch material.

2472.—A Very Practical Set of Undergarments. Here we have a comfortable underwaist, a very practical bloomers' pattern and a two-piece petticoat. The pattern comprises all three styles, and is cut in six sizes; two, four, six, eight, 10 and 12 years. Size eight requires for the waist, seven eighths yard; for the bloomers, one and three fourths yard; for the petticoat, one and five eighths yard of 36-inch material.

2515.—Here is a Simple, Comfortable Coat Style. It is easy to develop and good for satin, silk, pique, as well as cloth, serge, mixtures, plush, velvet and other cloakings. The fronts are lapped at the closing.

Cut in five sizes; six, eight, 10, 12 and 14 years. Size 12 will require three and three fourths yards of 36-inch material.

2520.—A Very Attractive Model. This is nice for linen, gingham and other cotton fabrics, also for serge, jersey cloth, gabardine, voile, crepe, satin, silk and velvet. The belt is separate and for linen, gingham and other cotton fabrics; also for serge, jersey cloth, gabardine, voile, crepe, satin, silk and velvet. The belt is separate and may be omitted.

may be omitted.

Cut in seven sizes; 22, 24, 26, 28, 30, 32 and 34 inches waist measure. Size 24 requires three and seven eighths yards of 44-inch material.

2521.—A New Shirt Waist. For a simple tallored style, this model is ideal. It slips over the head. The sleeve may be in wrist or elbow leaveth.

the head. The sleeve may be in wrist or elbow length.

Cut in seven sizes; 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust measure. Size 38 requires three yards of 27-inch material.

2523.—A Pretty Combination. Soft batiste, dimity, lawn, crepe, silk and washable satin may be used to make a pretty and dainty garment. Cambric, nainsook and longcloth are stronger and give better service. Flouncing may be used for the flounce on the petticoat.

Cut in seven sizes; 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust measure. Size 38 will require four and seven eighths yard of 36-inch material.

2526.—A Neat Apron Dress to be Slipped Over the Head, or Closed at the Back. This style is nice for gingham, jean, chambray, lawn, sateen, or alpaca. It is cut in kimono style, and low at the throat, where it may be finished with or without a collar, in sailor style.

USE THE COUPON

Special Offers. For one one-year subscription (not ye mail you any one Pattern free. Or for a club of two one-year su scriptions at 35 cants each we will mail you any three patterns free. The cash price of each pattern is 15 conts unless a different price stated. Be sure to order by number and give size or age wanted.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine,

inches bust measure. Size medium requires four and one eighth yards of 36-inch material for the gown. The cap requires seven eighths yard.

2531.—Here is a Simple but Pleasing Model. Suitable for gingham, seersucker, chambray, percale, gabardine, serge, velvet and silk.

Cut in four sizes; six, eight, 10 and 12 years. Size 12 requires three and one fourth yards of 44-inch material.

2532.—A Practical "Cover All" Style. For

10 Cents a Day Pays
for This Symphonola

Plays all records, Victor, Columbia, Edison, Pathe, Little Wonder, Emerson. Take a year to pay, after 30 days' trial. Compare its tone for clearness, volume, with more costly instruments. Return at our expense if it fails to make good. Ask today for the Beautifully Illustrated Symphonola Book FREE
Shows this and other Symphonola Styles sold on easy payments.
Symphonola Records
Get our list of the latest song, dance, popular clear sounding, full toned disc records. Playable on any Phonograph.

Lattkin Ca. Desk SCT 918, Buffalo, N. Y. Buffalo, N. Y. Larkin Co. Desk SCT 918, developed in serge and satin, gabardine and taffeta, gingham and organdy.

The Waist Pattern (2539) is cut in seven sizes; 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust measure. The Skirt Pattern (2527) in seven sizes; 22, 24, 26, 28, 30, 32 and 34 inches waist measure. For a medium size the entire dress will require eight and one half yards of 36-inch material. Two separate patterns, 15 cents for each pattern.

will require eight and one half yards of 36-inch material. Two separate patterns, 15 cents for each pattern.

2540.—A Dainty Dress. Just the style for soft crepe, satin, charmeuse, voile, marquisette, batiste, gabardine and taffeta. The sleeve may be finished in wrist or elbow length.

Cut in three sizes; 16, 18 and 20 years. Size 16 requires five and five eighths yards of 36-inch material.

2543.—Simplicity and Grace are Combined in This Model. The waist closes at the left side of the vest, under the broad collar.

Cut in six sizes; 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. Size 38 requires five and five eighths yards of 44-inch material.

2545.—A Pretty and Practical Set of Dress and Slip for an Infant. The dress may be of voile, batiste, dimity, lawn, nainsook or silk, with trimming of lace or embrodery. The slip may be of cambric, nainsook, longcloth, lawn or batiste.

The Pattern is in one size. The dress requires trimming of lace or embroidery. The ship may be of cambric, nainsook, longcloth, lawn or batiste.

The Pattern is in one size. The dress requires three and three fourths yards of 36-inch material. The slip two and one fourth yards.

2546.—A Set of Useful Bags. These models may be of cretonne, silk, velvet, ribbon, crepe, denim or satin. No. 2 would make a good laundry bag.

Patterns are cut in one size. No. 1 will require one and one eighth yard. No. 2 will require one and three fourths yard. No. 3 will require three fourths yard of 36-inch material.

2558.—Here is Some "Practical Equipment" for Home Defence Against Dust and Soil. The apronand cap may be made of the same material, percale, seersucker, gingham, sateen, khaki or alpaca.

Cut in four sizes; small, 32-34; medium, 36-38; large, 40-42, and extra large, 44-46 inches bust measure. Size medium requires three and one fourth yards of 36-inch material for the apron and seven eighths yard for the cap.

2559.—A New and Stylish Dress for the Growing Girl. This model is good for gabardine, silk, velvet, checked suiting, gingham, repp and poplin. Cut in four sizes; eight, 10, 12 and 14 years. Size 10 requires five yards of 36-inch material.

2561.—A Pretty Coat for a Little Miss. This is a fine model for velvet, silk, Bedford cord, cashmere, corduroy, serge, broadcloth, bengaline or faille.

Cut in five sizes; one, to, three, four and five

Cut in five sizes; one, to, three, four and five years. Size four will require three yards of 40-inch material.

ALL PATTERNS 15c. EACH Unless Other Price Is Stated.

Description of Patterns Illustrated on Title Page

HIS surely is an age of feminine activi-

HIS surely is an age of feminine activities.

Women who before the war were painfully idle, are now busy in many lines of conservation, and it is indeed a time of home industries, home dressmaking, home keeping and shome working.

The woman engaged in Red Cross work may be comfortably equipped with a one-piece dress and cap of linen, drill, or gingham or seersucker, made in regulation nurse style with substantial pockets, or, if she prefers a loose-fitting model. There is every variety with or without yokes and collars, and short or long sleeves.

Many women are becoming strong and rosy from working in the garden and vegetable patches, and they will find their labor lightened if suitably clad for the work. Bloomers, knickerbockers, overalls or trousers are practical garden garments, worn with a smock or belted blouse. A good idea is to have pockets in the blouse.

Even the small boy and girl can do their "bit" in conservation, for many willing hands make labor light. Rompers and overalls make good play and work dresses for little folks.

Of course all work and no play would soon dull our faculties, and Fashion does not neglect the social side of life, though all entertaining is modified.

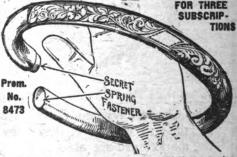

The bride of today is proud to wear a simple

Is modified.

The bride of today is proud to wear a simple dress of perhaps inexpensive material, and the growing girl who perhaps wears her first party frock will like it quite well in simple volle, dimity or Swiss, with frill of dainty lace or ruffles of material.

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 17.)

Gold Finish Bracelet

THIS Round Bracelet with artistic engraving and unique Spring Fastening is the most attractive pattern we have seen this season. Not too large but large enough and as it is perfectly round, it fits well and becomes all ages. There is a demand for bracelets of enormous size, but this style is medium large and nearly three inches in diameter; we consider it a beautiful pattern. This bracelet is the very lates style so you will want one while fashionable, and as we guarantee fit and wear, you need not hesitate to order.

Club Offer. Comport at 35 cents each, we will send you this Bracelet free by Parcel Post prepaid.

Premium No. 8473.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

THE COUNTY OF THE COUNTY OF THE COUNTY OF THE COUNTY OF COUNTY OF COUNTY OF COUNTY OF COUNTY OF THE ame small Name Mame small Nam

Sibyl's Influence

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 10.)

Ah! if he could but have known that his father had feared this, and had shrewdly interposed the little something which had detained him at home, he would have rebelled even more than he had feared this, and had shrewdly interposed the little something which had detained him at home, he would have rebelled even more than he did.

"But you heard from her often, I suppose," suggested Ada innocently.

"Yes, quite regularly, until the week or two before Mrs. Stillman's death, although mother's letters from her dropped off unaccountably, and father never received a word, although the servant at the cottage said she had written to him a number of times. There is something very strange about it all," Raymond said, gloomily, "but nothing so strange to me as the coolness and reserve which characterized all her letters to me after the first three or four weeks—they were so different from Sibyl's usual frank, open manner of writing."

"I had the impression, Mr. Prescott, that Sibyl was always very reserved," Ada said.

"Not to me," he answered, quickly, "at least, not after we came to an understanding. She was very shy before that, but afterward, all that my heart could desire, though I admit she had a reticent, stately bearing toward those with whom she was slightly acquainted."

"And you never observed anything of this reserve toward you until she left you to go to Barmouth; you are sure there was nothing of it while she lived in Algeria street?" Miss Therwin asked, thoughtfully.

"No, there was nothing of the kind beyond her steady refusal to become my wife, but I think I could have overcome that in time."

"Strange! You do not suppose—"

Miss Therwin began bravely enough, but stopped suddenly, seemingly covered with confusion.

"Well, what am I to suppose?" he asked, turning to look at her.

"Excuse me—nothing. This is a very delicate subject for any one to discuss with you, and I should never have presumed to say what I have already said had you not so freely given me your confidence. But what you have just told me about Sibyl's letters and her unaccountable reserve, suggested a train of thought, which, perhaps, it would be very unwise to speak of, for you have my deepest sympathies, and I would not

"If you please, I wish you would tell me just your thought—if there is anything that will ex-plain the mystery, I want to know it," he said, plain the mystery, I want to know it," he said, decidedly.

"Really, I would prefer not to say any more about it—I ought not to tell you. I have no desire to wound you with only surmisings, which, perhaps, are entirely at fault," Ada returned, in evident distress.

"But I insist, if you will allow me to use the word," Raymond answered, persistently.

"Well, an explanation of what seems so strange to you has suggested itself to me, although there may not be the least foundation for it. You are aware, of course, that I know something of the circumstances of Sibyl's adoption into your family, and I know that she always looked up to you with the greatest admiration and reverence.

"I have an idea" she went on "that when you

"I have an idea," she went on, "that when you returned from abroad she still thought there could be no one like you in the world—you had been the means of rescuing her from her miserable life at Flamborough Head, giving her every advantage—" been the means of rescuing her from her miserable life at Flamborough Head, giving her every advantage—"

"Miss Therwin, how did you learn all this about Sibyl? We never have mentioned where we found her, nor aught else regarding her adoption," Raymond interrupted, in surprise.

"Mrs. Stillman told me about it after she found I had overheard that conversation which I have mentioned before. But I have respected the secret, and it has never passed my lips till now," Ada explained, her color rising, for she saw that he was greatly disturbed.

"Well, go on," he said, a little impatiently. "She had never been much into society, consequently had met but very few gentlemen, and when she first consented to be your wife, she believed she really loved you with all her heart, and should be perfectly happy with you as long as she lived. I was afraid I should pain you," Ada said, stopping suddenly, and speaking remorsefully, as she saw him start and grow very white.

"No—no; go on. I would know all your suspicions now," he returned, with some sternness of manner.

"No—no; go on. I would know all your sus-picions now," he returned, with some sternness

"No—no; go on. I would know all your suspicions now," he returned, with some sternness of manner.

"Well, then, when she went away from you to Barmouth. I have thought it was just possible she may have met some one else who pleased her, and then discovered that the sentiment she had hitherto entertained for you had been purely gratitude, instead of love, and that is why her letters grew so cold and reserved. You were considerably older than she, you know, and she might have met some one nearer her own age who attracted her."

"Miss Therwin, do you know that if what you say is true, you have taken one of my strong pillars—yea, my strongest—from under me?" Raymond exclaimed, in a hoarse, pained voice, and turning upon her a face so white and set that for a moment she was almost frightened. "Forgive me! I told you it would be better for me not to say it. It is only a suspicion, however. Do not allow it to make your faith waver for an instant, for I would not cause you a moment of pain," Ada said, entreatingly.

"Why should I fear," he said, with a slight smile of scorn. "I know that what you suspect cannot be true. Sibyl was always as pure and open as the day. The very sensitiveness and conscientiousness of which you have just spoken, would have led her to confess it to me in the very beginning if her heart had turned from me to another. No, no; I must still have the comfort of believing that she loved me alone, and was true to me until the very end. Oh, Sibyl!"

He stretched out his arms as if he longed to infold her then with a suick-drawn breath that

Was true to me and a sif he longed to the stretched out his arms as if he longed to the stretched out his arms as if he longed to the stretched out his arms as if he longed to

He stretched out his arms as if he longed to infold her, then, with a quick-drawn breath, that was almost a sob, he folded them tight across his heaving chest, as if to crush the rebellion within.

"What are you two children talking about so gravely?" asked a voice behind them, and the next instant Lady Prescott stood beside them. Both turned to greet her, and Ada, slipping her hand affectionately within her arm, answered, sadly:

"We were talking of Sibyl, dear Lady Prescott. I cannot be reconciled—I can hardly believe that she is gone even now," and two bright tears trickled over her cheeks while she spoke. Lady Prescott's face grew sorrowful, but she Lady Prescott's face grew sorrowful, but she in the monthly installments of make you a present of the complete story in book form. You show the should be prescotted and the prescott store the monthly installments of make you a present of the complete story in book form. You should be prescotted to the contract of the complete story in book form. You should be prescotted to the complete story in book form. You should be prescotted to the complete story in book form. You should be prescotted to the complete story in book form. You should be prescotted to the complete story in book form. You should be prescotted to the complete story in book form. You should be prescotted to the complete story in book form. You should be prescotted to the complete story in book form. You should be prescotted to the complete story in book form. You should be prescotted to the complete story in book of the same decided to the prescotted to the complete story in the following the prescotted to the complete story in the cape may be worn separately, the coat collar serving as a collar made no reply, as others of their party, joined them at that moment, while Raymond, turning abruptly away, went a little farther down the shore to regain command of himself.

For Miss Therwin's shot had been a telling one, notwithstanding Raymond's proud assertion that he knew Sibyl had been true to him as long as she had lived.

He became moody and silent, he withdrew himself as much as possible from all companionship, he could not rest night or day, and at last hetoo, grew to fear that perhaps after all Sibyl might have mistaken gratitude for love.

As soon as they returned from their tour upon the Continent, he made a secret trip to Barmouth, to visit the places where she had been last, and to make some indirect inquiries as to the way in which she had spent her time and with whom.

He interviewed some fishermen regarding the sad fate of the "young lady who had been drowned there during the summer." All were high in their praises of the "beautiful leddy, who went for a walk every day, and the fine gentleman along with her."

He went to the little cottage and visited every room, sat in the chair where she had last sat, touched the plano from which her fingers had brought forth sounds of melody and praise. He plucked some withered leaves and buds from the climbing rosebush that had shaded the window in her own pleasant room, and picked up a card which lay upon the floor that doubtless had last been in her own white hands.

But he started back with blanching cheek and throbbing heart, when, on turning it over, he read in bold, clear characters the words:

"Miss Sibyl Stillman, with the compliments of a friend."

There had been a "friend," then, and judging from the handwriting that friend had been a man.

Who was he, and where was he now? How had he been affected by the young girl's death.

There had been a "friend," then, and judging from the handwriting that friend had been a man.

Who was he, and where was he now? How had he been affected by the young girl's death, and if he had been a lover, why had he not presented himself when Sir Athelstone came down to the place?

Raymond sought the woman who had charge of the house and questioned her.

"Yes," she said, "Miss Sibyl had often had a companion during her walks—a tall, slim, lighthaired gentleman, with blue eyes, and a great yellow mustache; he used often to come to the house and read to her and listen to her music, and he always brought her beautiful flowers, fruits, books and music, and if she was any judge of such things, he had thought a heap of the beautiful lady. No, she had never heard his name, though he had often come to the kitchen door to bring fish and game, but once or twice in passing through the hall she had heard Miss Sibyl call him 'my lord.'"

Had Miss Stillman appeared happy and contented?" Raymond asked, with darkening brow and firm, set lips.

"No, she could not say that she had been over and above hampy after the first two or three tented?" Raymond asked, with darkening brow and firm, set lips.

"No, she could not say that she had been over and above happy after the first two or three weeks; she had seemed as if something weighed to her mind, and was pale and sad most of the time, but she had been faithful as an angel to her mother, deeming no attention too hard or wearisome to bestow upon her, and she was that kind and gracious to the servants, that there was not one but worshipped the very ground she walked on."

It took Raymond several days to find out all this, but he had come with the determination to learn everything he could, and he did not to learn everything he could, and he did not to learn everything he could, and he did not to the last degree of endurance by what he heard.

The last day of his stay he went once more to that fatal ledge which had been her favorite resort, and here alone, and screened from all observation, he gave way to the mighty grief that mastered him.

Some one younger and more attractive than himself had won the love that would have made that mastered him.

Some one younger and more attractive than himself had won the love that would have made earth like heaven to him, and her sensitive heart had reproached her for the unintentional wrong she had done him in engaging herself to him, and then discovering, after all, that she had not really loved him.

He did not blame her—he knew she was truth itself but he grieved that she had not trusted him enough to tell him all about it, when he would gladly have suffered almost any torture rather than that she should be unhappy.

TO BE CONTINUED.

Description of Patterns Illustrated on Title Page (CONTINUED FROM PAGE 16.)

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 16.)

School girls may be comfortably clad in wash dresses, and amply protected in cold weather by warm undergarments and a warm outer wrap. For this latter there is nothing so suitable as a cape coat, of cheviot or wool mixtures, or of some pile fabrics, corduroy or serge too could be used, but should be lined for warmth.

1270.—Childs' Overalls. These little overalls or rompers are equally suitable for boys or girls, and allow of perfect freedom of motion while at play. The garment fastens on the shoulders and is supplied with pockets enough to suit even the small boy.

Cut in four sizes; four, six, eight and 10 years. It requires two and one eighth yards of 36-inch material for a six-year size. This model is appropriate for denim, gingham and khaki.

2203.—This style makes a splendid work dress. It has simple lines and is easy to develop. The pockets may be omitted. Linen, khaki, gingham, chambray, drill, seersucker and percale may be used for its development.

Cut in seven sizes; 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires six and one fourth yards of 44-inch material, with three fourths yard of 27-inch material for the cap. The skirt measures about two and three eighths yards at the foot.

2355.—This style will make a splendid house dress, a good "uniform" for canning or a com-

2355.—This style will make a splendid house

CHABOOK OF A THOUSAND STYLES MARGINA LANES ADAMS CO. This Is My Famous Book Mail Postcard for Free Copy You have probably often wished that you had all the money necessary to have the pretty things you like to wear. My plan comes nearest to turning your wishes into reality. Shopping from it is a real pleasure and paying for things is not even a slight hardship. Notice how easy it is to order the dress I show you here. All you have to do is give me your measurements and color desired and send $1.00 with your letter. It is just the same way when you want anything from my Style Book. So don't fail to ask for it today.

Send $100

This stunning silk poplin dress is just a sample of Martha Lane Adams' wonderful new styles and values. It will be sent you prepaid on approval for $1.00 with your letter, You may order from this paper. If pleased, spread the cost over many months, If notsatisfied, send it back at my expense and have your $1.00 returned.

Tailored in

Tailored in Silk Poplin

Exceedingly good quality and splendidly woven. Makes up beautifully and will give the very best of wear. The all wool knit collar is extremely fashionable. Waist part is bloused with pretty girdle belt trimmed with buttons in front and extending to a slight empire back. Box pleat in front. Skirt is gathered beneath belt. Deep tuck near the bottom.

$1.00 With Order $1.85 Monthly

Colors: Burgundy, gray, brown, green navy blue, copenhagen blue or black, Slaces to fit misses 14, 16 and 18 years; ladies' sizee, 52 to 44 bust measure. Laryer sizes cost one-fifth more. No. E40700. Price. prepaid$9.98.

$100,000 New Free Style Book -1001 Economy Prize Styles

Martha Lane Adams has been known for more than a quarter of a century as America's foremost expert on styles and clothing values for women. Her latest book is now ready. It brings the best fashions of the season at the very lowest prices. It allows you to wear and enjoy the pretty things you need while paying. Everything is sent prepaid on approval. No waiting or delay.

Credit Without Asking

With my Style Book will come a certificate opening your account. I prefer that you don't pay cash. When you want anything from me, you simply tell me to send it on approval. I divide the cost into small sums coming a month apart. Several months are allowed to pay.

Save One-Fourth

I accomplish this saving because I I accomplish this saving because I buy for a half million women at one time. I never get anything from middlemen. I buy exclusively with mills and makers. I have no salesmen or collectors, no store expense or end of the season left-overs, Most of my materials were bought months ago—long before prices went so high, Guaranteed Satisfaction

I send all selections on approval for free try-on. If anything is wrong I prefer to have you return it. I prepay delivery to you and stand the cost of return if you send anything back, so a trial here costs you nothing.

Ask Now

I never have enough Style Books to go around. Thousands of women are disappointed every season by waiting too long. Tell me to send your copy at once. It shows approved economy styles in women's and children's wear.

Suits, coats, dresses, waists, skirts, hats, shoes, lin-gerie, furs, underwear, children's wear, watches, dia-monds, jewelry, etc., and 300 kinds of piece goods.

MARTHA LANE ADAMS, 3620 Mosprat St., CHICAGO

Cut in four sizes; small. 32-34; medium, 36-38; large, 40-42; and extra large, 44-46 inches bust measure. Size medium will require five and one half yards of 54-inch material. 2517.—Here is a model easy to develop and easy to adjust. Skirt and waist portions are in one piece. The sleeve may be made in wrist or elbow length. Gingham, khaki, galatea, percale, seersucker and chambray are good for this design. Cut in seven sizes; 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and inches bust measure. Size 38 requires five

Cut in seven sizes; 34, 50, 50, 40, 42, 41 and 46 inches bust measure. Size 38 requires five and one half yards of 36-inch material. The dress measures about two and one half yards and one half yards of 30-inch material. The dress measures about two and one half yards at the foot 2533.—Dotted Swiss, dimity or organdy could be used for this dainty garment. It also is nice for batiste, lawn, voile, silk and crepe. Lace embroidery or feather stitching will form a suitable trimming.

Cut in five sizes; four, six, eight, 10 and 12 years. Size 10 will require three and three eighths yards of 44-inch material.

2541 Blouse; 2462 Skirt.—Pattern 2541, a pretty blouse in smock style, and Pattern 2462 a two-piece suit are here combined. This style is nice for bordered goods, for voile, foulard, taffeta, serge, gabardine, Jersey cloth and satin.

The blouse is cut in seven sizes; 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust measure. The skirt is cut in seven sizes; 22, 24, 26, 28, 30, 32 and 34 inches waist measure. For a medium size it will require about seven yards of 36-inch material for the entire dress. The skirt measures about one and seven eighths yard at the foot. 2551.—Cheviot, tweed, broadcloth; wool mixtures, serge and beaver are good materials for garments of this style. The model is double breasted and cut in logse box style.

Cut in five sizes; six, eight, 10, 12 and 14 years. Size 12 requires four and one fourth yards of 40-inch material.

ITALY HAS THREE MEATLESS DAYS.—So grave has the food situation become in Italy that three meatless days a week have been in effect since May 15th. Although the Italian people live largely on bread and macaroni, their consumption of grain has also been cut down. It is now about 25 per cent. less than last year.

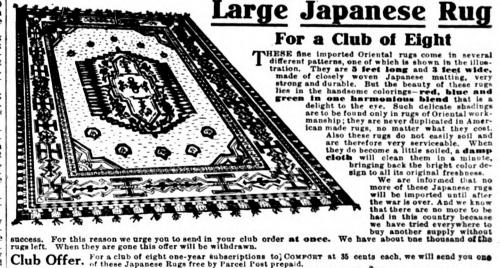

Write for booklet and full particulars. No obligations where, Write today—NOW. AMERICAN SCHOOL OF CORRESPONDENCE Dept. H 3046.

ALL THESE FREE gueronteed quality and 3 Gold plated | Nings. All given FREE for selling only 16 Jewelry Novelties at 10c. each. Write telay. COLUMBIA NOVELTY CO. DEPT, 173 EAST BOSTON, MASS.

Club Offer. For a club of eight one-year subscriptions to Comport at 35 cents each, we will send you one Club Offer. for these Japanese Rugs free by Parcel Post prepaid.

Premium No. 7518.

Address COMPORT, Augusta, Maine.

1 1/2 Year's Satisfaction or Money Back NO EXTRAS—WE PAY EXPRESS No strings to this offer. Not a penny extra for anything. We even prepay all postage and express. FREE GOLD PIN Classy lapel pin free with your first order to show

MONEY Cash Profits

CHICAGO TAILORS ASSOCIATION . C-406, 515 So. Franklin St., CHICAGO

Raise Hares for Us Immense profits easily and quickly made. We furnish stock and pay $2.00 each and expressage when three months old. Con-tracts, booklet, etc., 10c. Nothing free.

THIS AIR RIFLE our Jawelry at 10c. each. Write for Jewelry today.

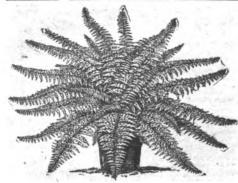

100 BEAUTIFUL POSTCARDS AND PICTURES 10C

CARDS, Dice, Magic Goods, Novelties, Catalog Free, D. M. SMYTHE Co., Newark, Mo.

CHARLIE'S

Four Beautiful Ferns

PREMIUM NO. 6112

Given For Two Subscriptions

OF all indoor foliage plants, none give more lasting pleasure and satisfaction than these popular house ferns. They need but little care and live indefinitely, growing larger and more beautiful year by year. The collection offered you here comprise four of the largest, handsomest varieties ever grown for house culture. They are the Asparagus Plumouss or "Lace" fern, the Hoosevelt, the Hoosen or "Fountain" fern and the Whitmani or "Ostrich plume" fern. They will thrive in any dwelling room near a window and require almost mo attention except a little sprinkling of water now and then. These ferns are guaranteed to be absolutely free from all injurious insects or diseases which destroy foliage plants of this type, and they will be packed carefully and malled to you by Parcel Post so that you will be sure to receive them in just as good condition as though they were freesh from the greenhouse. We are able to illustrate only one variety, "The Hoosevelt," but remember you get all all four ferms free on this offer.

offer.

Club Offer. For two one-year subscriptions to Club Offer. COMFORT at 35 cents each, we will send you by Parcel Post prepaid the above described collection of four beautisful ferms each of them a strong, healthy, well-rooted plant rendy to pot and guaranteed to grow and develop into a fine specimen beauty. Premium No. 6112.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

The Boy Trappers of Beaver Bend

Copyright, 1918, by W. H. Gannett, Pub., Inc.

CHAPTER I.

SETTING STARTED.

ACK Wallace and I had decided to trap!
A touch of winter was in the air; the dry leaves were heaped in piles and gave forth a rustle when stirred by the wind.
Fur was beginning to prime and I had explored the small streams in search of dens and signs. With tracks a-plenty there were prospects of a good catch, but since we never had made a set, we were somewhat puzzled as to the best methods to employ.

Jack was a neighbor boy, just sixteen. I was younger. The Wallace farm adjoined ours. On these we were going to test our skill with skunk, mink, raccoon, muskrat and the various fur bearers.

bearers.

"I got three traps," my companion announced, exhibiting them. "Could you get some?"

"A few," was the reply. "Father found seven in the shed. They are rusty——"

"Let's get some of the rust off so they will work."

With a piece of brick and kerosene we so on had our outfit working as well as could be expected. Two of the traps would not work, but having no money, we had to make the best of things. In fact we felt sure we would get some fur and then later buy what we needed.

About mid-October we made our first sets. They were along a creek at holes in the bank where signs were numerous.

"Huh!" Jack grunted, With a piece of brick soon had the skin on a board and hanging in the barn.

Six more pelts were captured that week. We worried, however, over the traps that had been sprung but which had nothing in them. That Sunday, however, Jack came running over with an article he found in a magazine, showing how to take the yrarious animals and market their furs to advantage. "It's just what we need," he said, "for it tells the reason why so many of our traps are empty. In the first place, all muskrat sets ought to be in about three inches of water so as to catch by the hind legs. They are stronger and longer than the front ones. Further, it gives a list of baits for each animal. At says here that for muskrat decoys we ought to use apples, carrots and turnips. You can bet I am glad Aunt Jane subscribes to "Comfort" and has the old issues. I will look them all up and then we are bound to have better luck."

"You're right," I agreed. "If we only had these sooner, we would have caught more fur."

We also learned that a bit of white paper or cloth would often draw the muskrat when all other lures failed. This is because the animals are inquisitive.

were for muskrat. Later we found out that mink often visit the various dens in search of food and the one we had taken simply blundered into the trap. Not long afterward we caught another also which the local dealer pronounced as "cottom."

"What's cottom?" we asked.

"That," said the buyer, "is a grade of mink with the under hair white or nearly so. If you dip the pelt in water you can more readily see. You will notice," he continued, "that the fur looks almost white and the tips black—a sort of a spotted effect. Other mink show a dark brown, as a rule, when tested as I have explained."

Ice had formed on the creek, not thick, but strong enough to prevent the animals getting into our traps when set at the foot of slides. Again, we obtained information from an old pelt hunter who said we should put a small bag of coarse salt under each set, for this would prevent freezing unless the weather was very cold. When we tried it, the plan worked successfully and we got several more skins.

By this time the muskrats became wary—or at least they seemed that way to us. With unbaited traps we caught very few. However, by using some small apples, we succeeded in taking eleven. Our method was to select a place not too deep and where the current proved strong enough, so that the ice would not bother. Then, on sticks inclined slightly, we put the decoy just above the water. The vegetables, of course, were guarded by steel traps.

As the season advanced we had to make most of our sets in deen

"Yes," was the reply. "Only where shall we sell?"
"In the village, if we wish, to Sam Wolf. He buys furs, but he doesn't pay very much. Let's pick out one of the advertisers in "COMFORT' and give him a trial."
"Good," was my answer.
Accordingly, we hurried home and from the publication selected a concern which from their talk certainly seemed to be fair and liberal. We sewed the pelts in a gunny sack, after having put our name and address inside the package, together with the number of skins and kind. Then we wrote the dealer and asked him to send a check.

Exactly three days afterwards, the returns a list of baits for each animal. It says here that for muskrat decoys we ought to use apples, carrots and turnips. You can bet I am glad Aunt Jane subscribes to "Comfort" and has the old issues. I will look them all up and then we are bound to have better luck."

"You're right," I agreed. "If we only had these sooner, we would have caught more fur."
We also learned that a bit of white paper or cloth would often draw the muskrat when all other lures failed. This is because the animals are inquisitive.

The days passed. The number of skins increased rapidly.

A couple of weeks after we placed our first traps, we took a large mink. We did not understand why this happened, since all our sets.

Exactly three days afterwards, the returns Exactly three days afterwards, the returns came in.

Exactly three days afterwards, the returns came in.

Exactly three days afterwards, the returns came in.

With trembling fingers, Wallace opened the letter. It contained several dollars more than we actually expected and more than we should have received from our local dealer. "Now for the hardware store and some traps," I shouted. "Come on."

We lived about a mile and a half from town, but the distance soon was covered. There we selected a dozen and a half Number Ones and six "jumps" of the same size. The merchant gladly cashed our check and gave us the remainder. This Jack and I divided before starting home. The money jingling in our pockets made pleasant music as we tramped across the fields.

To be continued.

The Girl He Loved

(continued prom page 8.)

the sake of saying something, for five minutes more or less would make a difference in the night's work. But they lost it, for at Paddington a short man in shooting-clothes hailed Gordon loudly from a waiting-room.

"My dear chap!" he cried effusively, "where have you been?"

"How are you?" said Adrian hurriedly. "I've been—you heard about Leyallion?"

"If forgot," the man returned awkwardly. "But I wanted to see you. Come here a second," and he drew the reluctant Adrian into the cloak-room.

"Hang him!" said Tommy, dragging Jacobs after them by his chain. "Now we'll be all night."

For he knew well enough who the man was. A certain distinguished general who could not be shaken off till he had his say.

Sir Thomas stared and fretted at the cloak-room window. Not that he had any business in Starr Street, but it was a comfort to be even following a cheddent All to even be dealed down.

"Is that Mrs. Murray's room?" said Tommy, dragging found of a man.

"It's that Mrs. Murray's room?" said Tommy, for said the street down, Adrian caught him back.

"Want," he muttered. "Come over opposite." There on the blind opposite they saw a shadow, dwarfed, ridiculous, but still the shadow of a man.

"It's that Mrs. Murray's room?" said Tommy, "is that Mrs. Murray's room?" said Tommy man.

"Is' that Mrs. Murray's room?" said Tommy, and Gordon nodded.

"Wait," he said; "she isn't there."

For the man had come to the window, and as he fumbled with the blind it snapped out of his hand and flew up. The next second he dragged it down again, but Tommy had seen him.

"It's the man I saw on the-rock!" he cried trembling.

"It's the man I saw on the remaining trembling.

"And it's my man of last night," grimly. "Some town friend of Hester's who'd been in the country on an errand she dared not do. So much for you and your cook, Tommy!"

"Aren't you going to do anything?" impatiently.

"How do I know?" white to the lips, "The man we want. Come on."

But he had no need to urge it. Adrian was out of the cloak-room as fast as he could go. The general, being a sensible man in the main, said nothing. Merely stepped to the door and beheld the vanishing figures of Captain Gordon, a boy and a dog, running down the empty platform. For, whoever the man had been, he was gone.

At the street corner the two stared every way in the dull gaslight. There was plenty of footpassengers, and among them the man was lost. Mr. Jacobs stood waving his long white tail, his

With a piece of brick and kerosene we also could be expected. Two of the trape was well as could be expected. Two of the trape was well as could be expected. Two of the trape was the two parts and the later buy what we needed to make the best of things. In fact we feit and then later buy what we needed was the parts of the was the w

Filled

5 Years

For A Club Of Three

THE most popular lady's rings worn today are these beautiful birthstone rings. Not only is it considered lucky to wear one of them but they are now and always will be exceedingly stylish. We are able to illustrate only three of the rings but there are twelve in all—a different stone for each month of the year and of course you should wear the stone that is symbolical of the month you were born. The following is a list of the twelve rings, names of the stones, the month to which one applies and its symbol.

No. 8023. January. The Garnet. Symbol of

one applies and its symbol.

No. 8023. January, The Garnet, Symbol of Power.

No. 8033. February, The Amethyst, Symbol of Pure Love.

No. 8043. March, The Bloodstone, Symbol of Courage.

8053. April, The Diamond, Symbol of Purity.

8093. May, The Emerald, Symbol of Immortality.

June, The Agate, Symbol of Health and 8083. July, The Ruby, Symbol of Charity. 8093. August, The Sardony, Symbol of Hap piness.

No. 8103. September, The Sapphire, Symbol of Constancy.
No. 8113. October, The Opal. Symbol of Hope.
No. 8123. November, The Topaz, Symbol of Priendship.
No. 8133. December, The Turquoise, Symbol of Prosperity.

Prosperity.

Friendship.

No. 8133. December, The Turquoise, Symbol of Prosperity.

Each ring is guaranteed genuine 12-Karat gold filled which looks exactly like solid gold and will wear for years. In fact we absolutely guarantee each ring for at least five years. The rings themselves are perfectly piain, the stones are solitaires and perfect imitations of the real gems. The setting of each ring is the ever popular "Tiffany" style. As a Christmas, Birthday or all-theyear-round gift for wife, mother, sweetheart or sister nothing could be more appropriate and acceptable than one of these beautiful guaranteed rings set with the birthstone of the person to whom it is given. And not only the women and girls but men and boys as well are now wearing them.

Please do not class these rings with the cheap "electro-plated" rings that turn brassy after they have been worn a month or two. Remember that every one of them is guaranteed to be 12-Karat gold filled and positively warranted for five years. If you want a handsome birthstone ring for yourself or some dear friend or relative you will make no mistake in taking advantage of this offer at once. When ordering be sure to specify the size and number of ring wanted. You can easily tell just what size ring you wear by following the directions at the right.

4 H 5 0 around the shound the shen drawn the paper vill indicate a perfect fit.

I wanted to see you. Come here a second," and he drew the reluctant Adrian into the cloakroom.

"Hang him!" said Tommy, dragging Jacobs after them by his chain. "Now we'll be all night."

For he knew well enough who the man was. A certain distinguished general who could not be shaken off till he had his say.

Sir Thomas stared and fretted at the cloakroom window. Not that he had any business in Starr Street, but it was a comfort to be even following a shadow. All at once he ducked down, rushed across the room to Adrian. "Come on," he said, in a savage whisper, for he had seen what he never hoped to see on earth. Out of an incoming train had stepped that very man whom he had seen on that rock in the moonlight, whom Jacobs had frightened into unseemly skips and yells. Tall, dark-mustached, leisurely, with a curiously square line of shaven cheek and chin, the man had paused against a lamp-post, as Tommy had seen him against the moon.

"Come on!" he cried, oblivious of the stout general. "I've seen him."

"Who?" blankly.

"How do I know?" white to the lips, "The man we want. Come on."

But he had no need to urge it. Adrian was out of the cloak-room as fast as he could go. The general, being a sensible man in the main, said nothing. Merely stepped to the door and beheld the vanishing figures of Captain Gordon, a boy and a dog, running down the empty platform. For, whoever the man had been, he was gone.

War Thrift Stamps!

How You Can Help Your Country-And Save Money Too—Without Expense To Yourself!

D O you want to help win the war but feel financially unable to buy Liberty Bonds or War Thrift Stamps?
Here then is your opportunity to do your bit and yet not invest a cent of your own money. COMFORT is willing to buy 25-Cent War Thrift Stamps and give them to you in place of a premium or cash commission. By following our easy plan you will soon have enough Stamps to fill a Thrift Card. Then you can start all over again and fill another Card—and so on. In this way you can without expense to yourself, help furnish your Country with the money it needs in order to feed, clothe, arm and equip our soldiers and sailors and win this righteous war in defense of American honor and the cause of democracy throughout the world.

Thrift Stamps—What Are They?

United States 25-Cent War Thrift Stamps

United States 25-Cent War Thrift Stamps are the best investment in the World. They are the equivalent of War Savings Stamps, also called "little baby bonds," which—like Liberty Bonds—have behind them the entire resources of the United States.

These Thrift Stamps themselves bear no interest, but they can be exchanged for the larger War-Savings Stamps which do bear interest. When you have filled your Thrift Card with sixteen 25-Cent Thrift Stamps, you are to surrender it to any post office, bank or other authorized agency, pay a few cents in cash—19 cents in August. 20 cents in September, and so on, adding 1 cent each month—and receive in return a $5 War-Savings Stamps. With this stamp you will also receive a War-Savings Certificate, containing spaces for twenty of these $5 War-Savings Stamps. If you should fill the twenty spaces with $5 War-Savings Stamps before October 1, 1918, the cost to you—if you bought the stamps—would be $$4.00, and on Jan. 1, 1923, the Government will pay you $100—a net profit of $16.00. In other words your War-Savings Stamps—which you get in exchange for your 25-Cent Thrift Stamps—will bear 4 per cent. Interest, compounded quarterly, Please understand, however, that you are not obliged to fill your War-Savings you in interest. You actually have until Jan. 1, 1919, to purchase the stamps. But of course the sooner you secure them the more you will gain in interest on your investment. Therefore it's up to you to fill your Thrift Cards with 25-Cent Thrift Stamps as soon as possible, in order to exchange them for the larger $5 War-Savings Stamps that pay you 4 per cent, interest, compounded quarterly, from Jan. 2, 1918.

You Can Help Win The War By Starting A Thrift Card Today!

Every 25-Cent Thrift Stamp which you buy, or secure free on this offer, strikes a blow at our enemies and hastens the victorious ending of the war. And at the same time you are investing money in the best and safest security in the world. We consider it our duty to describe this War-Savings Thrift Plan to our subscribers and offer the Thrift Stamps to our club-raisers instead of premiums or cash commission. We have made our offer as liberal as we possibly can in order to make it easy for all to earn the stamps, By accepting our offer you can obtain all the 25-Cent Thrift Stamps you want without paying any money yourself. We shall buy the Stamps and give them to you in return for subscriptions to COMFORT.

Here Is Our Offer!

For two one-year subscriptions to COM-FORT at 35 cents each, we will send you one 25-Cent War Thrift Stamp and a Thrift Card free and prepaid. (Premium No. 8662.) For three one-year subscriptions we will send you two Stamps and a Thrift Card. (Premium No. 7883.) For ten one-year subscriptions we will 7883.) For ten one-year subscriptions we will send you seven Stamps and a Thrift Card. (Premium No. 73610.)

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Subscribers are invited to write to this department asking for any information desired relative to the treatment of animal troubles. Questions will be answered in these columns free by an eminent veterinarian. Describe the trouble fully, sign full name and give your address; direct all correspondence to the Veterinary Department, COMFORT, Augusta, Maine. No attention will be given any inquiry which lacks the sender's full name and address, but we will print enly initials if so requested.

CATARRH.—Please advise me about my cow. She has a young calf two weeks old. She breathes hard and there is a discharge from her nose at times. She gives about three gallons of milk a day. A. S. A.—Tuberculosis may be present and as it makes the milk dangerous for animals and is incurable and contagious, you should have the tuberculin test applied by a veterinarian. It will decide the matter reliably and inside of 48 hours and will not harm the cow if she happens to be free of the disease.

COW if she happens to be free of the disease.

UNSOUND HOCK.—I have a large steer ox that has a knot on his hind leg on the hock joint. It is soft and in working him it seems to swell up and get sore enough to make him limp.

A.—The condition is the same as that which is called bog spavin and thoroughpin in a horse, and rest is necessary while lameness is present. Apply a proprietary absorbent according to directions given by the maker. You can buy it at a drug store. If that does not suffice, blister the part with a cantharides blister, which you can obtain from a veterinarian or druggist.

Tuberculous —Will you give me sayiog about my which you can obtain from a veterinarian or druggist.

Tuberculosis.—Will you give me advice about my cow? Size is thin, although on good pasture. She coughs, and it seems to be down deep. If you suspect tuberculosis, who can make the tuberculin test? There is no veterinarian within twelve miles of here. F. McK.

A.—You might as well kill the cow, as tuberculosis probably is present, and if not there is some other chronic, incurable cause of cough and thin condition, so that the cow is unfit for milk production or beef. If you have a herd of cattle, arrange with the state veterinarian for a tuberculin test of all the animals.

veterinarian for a tuberculin test of all the animals. FISTULA.—I saw a cure for fistula in COMFORT. I have a five-year-old horse that has fistula in the right shoulder. It came from a collar bruise. I blistered it and it broke, discharging pus. I am asking you to send me a cure.

A. S. A.—We do not supply veterinary medicines. A fistula remedy can be bought at the drug store, or better still, have the local graduate veterinarian see the case, as an operation may be necessary before applying the remedy.

BLOOD IN MILK.—I have a half Jersey cow, four years old. Her second calf is three months old, and she gives three gallons of milk a day. For the last week she has given bloody milk out of her left front teat. She appears to be all right. What is the cause, and is it safe to use the milk? Her udder is not sore or swollen, but there is something like a large vein in the teat about an inch from the udder.

A.—A growth in the duct of the teat bleeds from irritation at milking time and unless the growth can be removed by a surgeon it would be best to dry off the milk secretion in that quarter. The milk from the sound quarters is safe for use.

SIOK SÖW.—I have a sow with a litter of pier that the sound quarters is safe for use.

SICK SÖW.—I have a sow with a litter of pigs that are two weeks old. She wouldn't eat, at first, and gave nothing to the pigs. She got better and began to eat and milk came for the pigs. After two or three days she became deaf and staggered. Her tongue projects from her mouth and she coughs a little.

MRS. O. W.

A.—Better wean the pigs and allow the sow the run of a patch of clover or other green pasture. See that the nostrils are clear, if necessary injecting sweet oil or liquid vaseline. We fear, however, that the sow may have tuberculosis, which is common in swine, and incurable.

and incurable.

COUGH.—I have a four-year-old cow that has a cough. She looks well and is giving two gallons of milk each day. Do you think that she may have tuberculosis? How can I find out? There is no veterinarian in my neighborhood. Is it dangerous to use the milk? (2) I have a hog that coughs all the time and looks bad.

Mas. H. C.

A.—Cough merely is a symptom of irritation and that may be due to any one of a large number of different causes. When a cow has a chronic cough she should be tested with tuberculin, as tuberculosis may be the cause, and the disease is incurable and contagious and makes the milk unsafe for animals or man. As there is no veterinarian in the district, ask the veterinarian of the state agricultural experiment station to tell you of some one who can apply the test. (2) Meanwhile, slaughter the coughing hog and if you find yellow nodules or pus pockets in the lungs or other internal organs, tuberculosis no doubt is present and may have been contracted from the cow if the hog was fed on her milk.

FISTULA OF JAW.—I have a mare four years old last

BLOOD IN MILK.—I have a helfer that freshened, with her first calf, about four months ago. Two or three weeks ago she began to give bloody milk out of the two front teats, when the milking was nearly done. About three weeks ago she slipped and fell on a bridge. It didn't seem to hurt her any.

J. L. C. A.—The injury no doubt caused rupture of small blood vessels in the udder, and recovery should soon take place. Bathe the udders with cold water two or three times a day and milk gently. If bleeding persists, mix one level teaspoonful of powdered copperas and three of salt in the feed each night.

Negrous.—I have a collie dog. Before a rain and nd three of sait in the feed each night.

Nervous.—I have a collie dog. Before a rain and he day it rains she pants and runs up and down the com, following wherever I go. When there is thunder and lightning she wants to jump on some one's ap. When she hears a firecracker she runs away, also then she hears a mouse-trap close.

A.—Make the dog live a natural outdoor life in the pen where he belongs. Do not mollycoddle him in he house, but he probably is ruined by panipering low and there is no remedy in such cases.

Wonne,—What will bill kidney worms in hogs? I now and there is no remedy in such cases.

Worms.—What will kill kidney worms in hogs? I have a pig about eight months old that began to be weak in the hind parts and does not grow and is now passing what is called kidney worms. Mrs. R. B. W. A.—Kidney worms do not cause weakness of the loins or paralysis of the hind quarters, as commonly supposed. Those conditions usually are due to rickets or to constipation from overfeeding, stuffing on corn, and lack of exercise. Hogs should advise you to make one dram of powdered sulphate of iron (copperas) in the slop each morning for five consecutive days, for each 100 pounds of body weight of hog. Allow the hog free range on green pasture and also feed slop, omitting cotton-seed meal, which is poisonous to hogs when freely fed for a long time.

Comfort's League of Cousins

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 9.)

out from dawn to dark, from month to month, until in despair they give up the job and go to washing dishes. If you wash dishes you have three meals a day and you won't be obliged to dye your hair at thirty or be thrown on the scrap heap at thirty-five as being too old for your job. The stage, with a few exceptions, wants only youth. After the bloom of youth has commenced to rub off, the actress can go to the devil if those to whom she has to look for employment have not already thrust her there. The dramatic art is a beautiful one, but the vilest wretches who walk the earth use it to defile it and degrade the young, the beautiful and the gifted who seek the stage as a means of obtaining an honest livelihood and as a medium for the expression of the talent that is within them. Dorothy, stay on the farm.

MILLERTON, ORLA

Dear Uncle Charlie:

How I do enjoy your war talks and humor. I am a teacher in the public schools of Oklahoma, and we are doing our bit for Uncle Sam and the great cause of humanity. We have organized a school district consul of defense and everyone has signed the loyalty pledge. I'm going to read your Comfort war articles at our meetings. We have raised funds for the Hed Cross, and have a collection box in the schoolroom for the poor starving children of Belgium. Our children contribute liberally and are deeply stirred by the pictures of these starving little ones which appead deeply to their sympathies. We have a loyalty constitution signed by every child in school prominently displayed. Most everyone here is observing meatless and wheatless days even though they are not short of food. I'm going to work on the farm when school is out. Should like to knit a sweater out of barbed wire for the Kaiser, charge it with gas and electricity and put it on him some cold morning. With best wishes and deep sympathy, from

Delmer, your letter warmed the cockles of my

Delmer, your letter warmed the cockles of my heart. Thank God, there is one spot in the country where patriotism reigns and treason hides its craven head. It is such a relief to find there is one little section of the land where the people are not wholly desirous of handing over their homes to be burned and their women to be raped by Prussian beasts. I don't quite understand what you mean by a district consul of defense, but if that is an improvement on a council of defense, by all means go ahead and make the machine or the organization whiz until you turn out patriots by the thousand. You have a lot of socialists in Oklahoma. Tell them Uncle Charlie says they are to put their patriotism and Americanism above their socialism, until the war is won. It is no good planning for a cooperative commonwealth or an industrial paradise until the worst foe of liberty, socialism and democracy the world has ever known—the Kaiser—is chained up or hanged. His own people will never depose him. Get rid of Prussianism and you can have any kind of world you want, but you can't build industrial democracies under the muzzles of German guns. Russia tried if and now lies impotent and bleeding beneath the Kaiser's heel. Impress this fact on your scholars or they in the near future will be just as hungry. the muzzles of German guns. Russia tried it and now lies impotent and bleeding beneath the Kaiser's heel. Impress this fact on your scholars or they in the near future will be just as hungry, helpless, wretched and diseased as are the poor, helpless, bopeless, starved and outraged children of bleeding Belgium. Good for you, Delmar, work on that farm and work with a will, or next winter our boys in France will be starving. The food problem is a terrible one, but, alas, not until the last loaf is gone will the nation wake up to the fact that the farmer is more important in winning the war than even the soldier. I too would like to put a barbed wire sweater on the Kaiser. I hate to give pain even to an insect, hate to take the life of the lowliest creeping thing, but when I think of a man, or rather a wretch, who has willfully and wantonly without cause or reason, sent millions of helpless humans to death and made millions more suffer horrible tortures, gassing them, blinding them, maiming them, outraging them, merely to satisfy his imperial ambitions and blasphemously doing it all in the name of God, then I say a barbed wire sweater is too good for such an inhuman fiend. Every time the devil thinks of the Kaiser, he blushes for shame.

FOSTER, MO.

DEAR UNCLE CHARLIE:

Do you let old maids of twenty enter your circle? I've been reading letters from the cousins and your witty answers for years. I am living on a farm of 125 acres. My sister and I keep house for our father and brother. Papa bought us girls a plano. I cannot play by note, but I can play anything I can sing. Papa also bought a car this spring. I am going to learn to run it. The first trip I take may be up a telephone pole or in a ditch. I am nearly five feet six inches tall and weigh one hundred and twenty pounds; dark complexion, dark hair and blue eyes and like candy. I've been a telephone operator in two different towns and also do lots of drawing and painting.

Your Niece, HAZEL L. CARE.

test. (2) Meanwhile, staughter the coughing hog and if you find yellow nodules or pus pockets in the lungs or other internal organs, tuberculosis he doubt is present and may have been contracted from the cow if the hog was fed on her milk.

Firstula of Jaw.—I have a mare four years old last spring. She has bad teeth and the jaw bone seems to have been fractured in some way. She has a lump festered and runner upper jaw, the right side being and the jaw healed?

A.—Home treatment will do no good in with a case, but a trained surgeon possibly may be able to rendy the condition by extracting diseased molar teeth and trephining into the sinuses for removal of pus. One always should examine such cases carefully, especially if there is a chronic discharge from the nostrils, as glanders may be present, in which case the horse would have to be destroyed.

Mythical Disease.—What causes the disease among cows commonly called "hollow tail?" (2) Does cotton-seed meal cause cows to nearly go blind when fed just before they freshen, and can the sight be restored?

Mythical Disease.—Bellef in it, in hellow horn and in the signs of the zodiac, is merely a matter of superstition and ignorance. (2) Cotton-seed meals and hulls fed as a well-nigh exclusive ration for 100 days or more generally cause lameness or paralysis and a bloodelect condition of the eyes. Recovery may take place gradually when the animal is properly fed.

BLOOD IN MILK.—I have a helfer that freshened, with her first calf, about four months ago. Two three weeks ago she began to give bloody milk out of the two front tests, when the milking was nearly done. About three weeks ago she slipped and fell on a bridge. It didn't seem to hurt her any.

J. C. A.—The injury no doubt caused rupture of small lood vessels in the udder, and recovery should soon the sease of the two front tests, when the milking was nearly done. About three weeks ago she began to give bloody milk out of the tempton of a dich as the didner of the police. Yes have a defined to the mind the sight

TRINITY, KY.

DEAR UNCLE CHARLIE:

I have been reading your letters in Comfort and think you are right in a way, and I believe the Allies and America are nearer being right than the Germans, but I believe we are all wrong. Sin started every war that history speaks of, and I believe if we had leadership like Washington and Lincoln, and our leaders would pray as they did and depend on god and not the big guns, we would win don't you? I have a cousin in France, but never expect to see him again but am praying for his soul all the time. I don't think it is right for the government to allow playing cards, novels and story books to be sent to the soldiers, do you? Well Uncle, I never knew much and can't express what I do know. I love America and want her to win. Surely god rules and right wins.

FROM A READER. DEAR UNCLE CHARLIE:

17 Cents a Day Pays

Symphonic Pianos Also Player Pianos and Grands

instruments in actual colors. Please state whether interested in the Symphonic Plano, the Symphonic Player Plano (which any-one can play) or the Symphonic Baby GRAND. Write now for your Catalog.

Larkin Co. Desk PCT 918, Buffalo, N. Y.

informed mind to the nutty house in less than a week. The woods are full of such "religious" fanatics as the writer, and the more ignorant they are, the more morbid, fanatical and unhealthy their thoughts, or rather delusions, become. It is exceedingly patriotic and kind of the writer, who, like all of her breed, is too cowardly to sign her name, to admit that America has more of justice and right on her side than Germany, but if you asked her what her beliefs were based on, she could not tell you. If Lincoln and Washington were alive and engineering this war with prayer instead of big guns she thinks everything would be all right. Sometime or somewhere she evidently heard that Lincoln and Washington prayed to God for help against their enemies, but she ignores the vital fact that

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 22.)

Wrist Watch Bracelet FRE

PATRIOTIC PIN FREE
Set with Rubles, Pearls and Sapphire to make colors Red, White and Blue.
A fine gold filled pin, warranted 3 years. Just send 15c. to help pay advertising.
AUCTION CO., DEPT. 601, Attlebere, Mass.

THIS AIR RIFLE SEREE for selling 15 sets Patriotic Postcards at 10 cts. a set. Rifle first-class in every way. When sold return our $1.50 and we will send rifle. BLUINE MFG. CO., 504 MILL ST., COMCORD JCT., MASS.

FIBRE-LITE Limbs Easy Payments—On Mature's Work. State Stump Length Above or Salow Rise. FREE STURE WORMAN CO. 307 Andrew Building. SAMPLE. WORMAN CO. MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

Pair Of Turkish Towels

Premium No. 8503 For A Club Of Three

AFTER bathing there is nothing quite as fine as a good rub down with a Turkish towel, in fact it is the best towel for all purposes, whether for the bathor guestrom or guestr Club Offer. For three one-year subscriptions to COMFORT at 35 cents each, we will send you one pair (2) of these towels free by Parcel Post prepaid. Premium No. 8562.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maire.

F. K. BARSON, Edison Ph ograph Dist 1848 Edison Blk. Chicago

LEARN PIANO

This Interesting Free Book

A STORY or POEM of INTEREST? We want MSS, of all kinds for our new magazine. We pay cash on acceptance. Handwritten MSS, acceptable. Send us something you have written and let us examine it for publication. Kindly enclose postage for return if not used. Address Woman's National Magazine, Dept. 5, Washington, D. C.

CASH & OLD FALSE TEETH Don't matter if broken. We pay up to $35.00 per set, also dold, silver and platinum. Send by parcel post, and received ash by return mail. Will return goods if price is unsatisfactory. Mazer's Tooth Specialty, Dept. 30, 2007 S. 5th St. Phila. Pa.

SELL 24 AM. FLAG PINS AT 10c Send no money. When sold send $2.40 and we'll send stem-set watch or keep 75c for your trouble. Write today. CLARE WATCH CO., Dept. 18 CHICAGO, ILL.

Cordonnet dilko Crochet !!!

Three Protected Crochet

Cordonne Silko

Tatting Cotton

For A Club Of Three!

THIS offer is for the woman and girl who loves her crocheting and insists upon having the best of everything to work with. In this outfit we give you any desired quantity of Dexter Cordonnette "Silko" crochet and tatting cotton, and three of the highest grade crochet needles. There is no better crochet and tatting cotton than Dexter "Silko"—a fact already known to thousands of our women readers. It is made of the best-Sea Island cotton with a twist that makes it lie flat, is highly mercerized and actually improves with washing. It is smooth to the fingers and will not kink. With Dexter "Silko," crocheting is more easily done—and the finished pieces are far more beautiful and useful than if made with cheaper grade cotton. Dexter "Silko" for crocheting comes in all the popular colors—white, ecru, pink, rose pink, light pieces are far more beautiful and useful than if made with cheaper grade cotton. Dexter "Silko" for orocheting comes in all the popular colors—white, ecru, pink, rose pink, light blue, delph blue, king blue, sapphire and sea green, and in sizes 3, 10, 30, 50 and 70. The tatting-cotton comes in the same colors and of the size always used for this work.

The three steel crochet needles are the finest made, 5 inches long, nickel plated, perfectly formed and balanced, with dattened finger hold, and a nickel cap that alips on over the end, protecting it when not in use. This cap also prevents the sharp point from doing any damage when carried in the pocket, handbag or work basket. We give you three different sizes of needles—8, 10 and 12.

We believe that our crochet workers will appreciate this offer, as it means a considerable saving to be able to secure such an outfit as this without expense. We shall send you the complete outfit, also additional quantities of the crochet and tatting cotton on the terms of the following special offers.

Offer No. 8563. For three one-year subratories each, we shall send you the crochet needles, one ball of Dexter "Silko" crochet ectton and three balls of Dexter "Silko" tatting cotton free by parcel post prepaid. Please be sure to give color and size united. Framium Re. 8563.

Offer No. 8251. We shall furnish you with extra balls of the crochet Offer No. 8251. We shall furnish you with not not the rate of the balls of the created cotton at the rate of the balls for one one-year subscription (not you own) to COMFORT at 35 cents, sent by parcel post prepaid. Please be sure to give color and size wanted. Fremlum No. 8251.

Offer No. 8261. We shall furnish you with varia hard of four halls for one one-year subscription (not your own) at 35 cents, sent by parcel post prepaid. Please be sure to mention color wanted. Fremlum No. 8261.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

"Firtue itself offends when coupled with forbid-ding manners."—Bishop Middleton.

Through the columns of this department free information pertaining to Etiquette, Personal Appearance and kindred subjects will be given in answer to questions by our subscribers, but not more than two questions the same month by any one subscriber. Address Etiquette Editor, COMFORT, Augusta, Maine, and give your own full name and address. Name will not be published.

Brown Eyes, Big Sandy, Mont.—We do not think you should hang a service flag in your window because of a soldier boy that you have known for a year. Just write him a nice cheerful letter once in a while, and honor him by working at home to aid him and his comrades who are fighting for all of us.

rades who are fighting for all of us.

E. M., Powder Springs, Ga.—It was certainly the part of your soldier acquaintance to ask if he might write to you. However you need not have snubbed him and spoken so "plainly" that you made him angry. He probably meant well and sinned only through ignorance of better ways. (2) If you find that married women like you better than do girls of your own age, it must be because you have older and more sedate ways than the young people of your neighborhood. Do not worry unless you really lack friends.

C. N., Rome, Ga.—If your escort gets you a glass of water, you should thank him and drink it. It is not necessary to ask him if he cares to drink first.

Brown Eyes and Bluee Eyes. Martinsville, Ind.—

BROWN EYES AND BLUE EYES, Martinsville, Ind.—
Here are two rebellious Hoosier girls who are anxious to get to be eighteen so that they may go with the boys as much as they like. We are going to say to these girls that if they are wise they will do just as their fathers want them to—before they are eighteen and afterwards, too.

BLUE EYES, Plum Branch, S. C.—We believe that this girl you write about cares more for you than she will admit. Jealousy is generally a most certain sign of love.

M. V., Rock, Mich.—A young man who put his arms around you would not be taking as great a liberty as if he kissed you. A girl that values her self-respect and the respect of the best sort of men will permit no such familiarities except after she has become engaged to the one man that has a right to her affection. affection come engaged to the one man that has a right to her affection.

F. J. A., Anthon, Ia.—Soft-boiled eggs may be broken for eating into a glass or china egg-cup, and can be served on the table by placing them—folded in a napkin—in any sort of a small dish. The English eat eggs by removing with a knife the shell from the small end of the egg, and then consume the contents by means of a small egg-spoon. But this last method is an art that requires practice. (2) It is generally best to make your own selection of food when lunching or dining with a man, but if you wish, you may say: "Order whatever you think is good."

RUBYLIPPED RUTH, Cogswell, N. Dak.—We think it would be an easy matter for you to hint to this long-visiting young man that your parents would prefer to have him not stay so long. If he is the right sort he will take it in good part. Nine hours is certainly too long a time for a North Dakota boy to spend in idde dalliance in these busy times. (2) Wearing mourning for a year would be a sufficient token of love and respect in the case you mention.

BLybe Eyrss, Fentuss, Va.—A girl should not ask a young man to call upon the occasion of being introduced to him. Later on, or when leaving him she might say: "I would be glad to have you come and see me some time."

L. M. C., Lebanon, N. H.—Once more we say that

L. M. C., Lebanon, N. H.—Once more we say that there should be no kissing before becoming engaged. A girl should not cheapen herself in this way and allow boys to have liberties they are only too willing to take. (2) Most certainly a girl of sixteen should not write to an unknown soldier of forty-five or any other age, nor should she receive attention from any man against her mother's wishes.

man against her mother's wishes.

I. S., College Park, Ga.—Here is another foolish girl—this one is fifteen—writing about kissing and getting married. The thing for you to marry, my dear girl, is a spelling book.

B. H., Brays, Mo.—We think you are wasting time with this young man that has paid attention to you for two years without a hint of marriage. Try a bit of coolness toward him, and encourage the calls of some other Brays boy.

E. M., Bartlesfield, Okla.—Your letter is a very some other Brays boy.

E. M., Bartlesfield, Okla.—Your letter is a very sensible one, and you were right in not attempting to wear mourning for a long period when you could not bear the expense of a new wardrobe because of being self-supporting. Opinion is becoming more liberal each year upon the question of mourning. Surely anyone you had loved would not want you to suffer want-or even inconvenience—in order to show conventional sorrow before the public.

GIEL OF SUNNY IDAHO Cascade Matter as a very sensible that the control of the control Sorrow before the public.

GIBL OF SUNNY IDAHO, Cascade, Idaho.—You are well rid of the attentions of any young man who becomes angry and leaves you when you refused permission to kiss you. You are sensible in refusing to cheapen yourself in this way, and some day the right man will come along who will appreciate your stand.

Two Chums, Island City, Ore.—Why do you "go" with these young men when your parents object? They should do more than "object," and should make you keep away from men older than yourselves—and men who kiss you at every opportunity. Remember you are but schoolgirls yet, and it is only foolish to talk about "proposals."

I. M., Drumright, Okla.—You should not correspond with a soldier boy whom you have never met. (2) No you cannot be engaged to one man and receive attentions from another. This does not mean that you must not be on friendly terms with any other may while your flance is away, but it does mean that you must be careful and do nothing that would cause of an that you must be careful and do nothing that would cause of-fense to the man you expect to marry, or give rise to gossip among those only too ready to talk about your mistakes.

Solution and tents and ten

BROWN-EYED JENNIE, Ida Grove, Iowa.—When you have gone to a party with a young man, it is your part to suggest the time for returning home. (2) A young man who is calling at your house should know when to leave without suggestion from you.

The Girl He Loved

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 18.)

Tommy clutched his jaws frantically. "Quiet!" he said, through his teeth. On his hands and knees he crawled till he could crawl no farther. A reeking, moldy wall enclosed the landing, and the very silence of death was round landing, and the very silence of death was round him.

He knew perfectly that it was in houses like this that men were murdered, but he never moved to grope his way to the stairs again. The dog panted in his arms, stiffening fiercely. Suddenly there came a footstep, in his very ear where he crouched against the wall. A man was moving softly on the other side of the partition, and before he could think a door opened back on him, almost crushing him, and if it had been forward it would have taken more than Jacobs to save Tommy Annesley. A man came out, without any bundle, stood while he closed and locked the door. A candle was burning inside, and the light of it shone on him as he deliberately pushed the door to. The next instant, in the pitch-dark, Jacobs sprang, silent as death, and well-nigh as strong.

Down the rickety stairs the two flew, like to

What 15° will You from Nation's Capital

Washington, the home of the Pathfinder, is the nerve-center of civilization; history is being made at this world capital. The Pathfinder's illustrated weekly review gives you a clear, impartial and correct diagnosis of public affairs laring these strenuous, epoch-making days. In the pathfinder is pour, and the pathfinder is pour, who is some the Pathfinder is yours. If you would appreciate a paper which puts everything clearly, fairly, briefly—here it is. Send Se to show that you might like such a paper, and we will send the Pathfinder is pour, fairly, briefly—here it is. Send the Pathfinder is yours. If you would appreciate a paper which puts everything clearly, fairly, briefly—here it is. Send the Pathfinder is your your washington, D. C.

some horrible dream. Twice Jacobs lost his hold and got it again. In any other house the people would have swarmed out of every room, but in Bethnal Court lived human wolves, in by day and out by night. With a wild spring the man reached the open door into the court, slipped with a crash on the slimy stones outside; Tommy, tearing down, flew head over heels over him; Jacobs—but the boy knew no more.

And Adrian Gordon stood at that minute in Starr Street, knowing not which way to turn. Tommy and Jacobs were gone, Heaven knew where—and Hester Murray's rooms held no one. She was gone, and he knew she would never come back again. Gone in the clothes she wore, taking her child with her, thinking only of bare life. Warned, somehow, for if she had ever owned that cloak she had taken it with her.

"Better give it up, sir," said the detective—whom he had lost everything by waiting to get; "they've given you the slip."

Gordon stared at him as if he did not see him.

"We've got to find the boy," he said. "There, was a man in there; he must have followed him."

But though all night long the two walked the

But though all night long the two walked the streets, haunted police-stations, asked questions, they found not a single trace of Tommy and Mr.

they found not a single base of Jacobs.

At Sunrise Gordon stood alone on a street corner, for the much-tried detective had struck. He had lost Tommy, had lost Hester and probably that cloak whose useless shred he held in his hands; had probably let slip in his stupidity the only chance he had ever had of saving Ravenel. He shivered in the morning air. For there was a girl in Valehampton Jail who had borne enough. How was she to bear this?

A policeman in plain clothes tapped his shoulder; another, as by a miracle, sprang up in front of him.

of him.

He was arrested as accessory before the fact to the murder of Lord Levallion.

CHAPTER XXXIX.

MR. JACOBS.

MR. JACOBS.

A sound of running feet, a shrill whistle, was what Sir Thomas Annesley dreamed of where he lay on the greasy cobblestones after his somersault; and then a strong hand on his collar that was real, and jerked him into consciousness. A policeman was bending over him and had Jacobs by his chain.

"Hi, sir!" he cried, "do you know your dog's nearly killed a man?"

Tommy stared at him, and saw no one but the policeman, the quivering Jacobs. After everything, had the man got away?

"You've let him go!" he exclaimed, and between his fall and anger turned sick. "Why didn't you come before? I never saw one policeman all the way here."

It is said that every man has his price; it is certain he has his weakness. The policeman's happened to be bull-terriers. A flying glimpse of this one and his master tearing along streets where a well-dressed boy seldom came and a well-bred dog only too often, had sent him after them, though he had not seen they were following any one. In Bethnal Court he came on them. The dog standing over a man who lay on his face, the boy a crumpled heap on the stones.

Policeman Garrety, being a dog-fancier first and an officer afterward, took the chain that trailed behind Jacobs.

The dog never even growled, but came quietly to him as he was ordered.

"That's queer," the man said to himself. "There ain't no 'vicious-dog' business here. That young sprig must have set him on!" He roused Sir Thomas with a less gentle hand than he had laid on Mr. Jacobs. And the boy's first words were angrily, unconsciously authoritative.

"Why on earth couldn't you keep him? Here's everything wasted," he cried. "Go and look for him, quick."

The man laughed.

"I haven't far to go," he said. "You're a bit knocked out still. There's the man," with a to it, dizzy and sick.

"He isn't dead, is he?" he said sharply, not taking in a word of what the policeman was saying. "I don't want him to die; I want him alive."

The policeman looked at the man on the stones. Six feet in his stockings, girthed like a pony, and this slim-legged kid was coolly remarking that he "wanted him alive."

"He's that, right enough," he observed. "It's French Pete, and he's only knocked out. You'd better tell me what it all means, sir! I've whisted for another man, and the ambulance to take him away," significantly. For if he owned a valuable bull-terrier he would not run the risk of having him destroyed as dangerous on account of carrion like the man on the ground.

"It's who?" said Tommy.

"French Pete!" sharply. If the boy was foolenough to stay, it was his own fault if he lost the dog. Mr. Garrety, for all his uniform, pined to lay hands on him himself.

"Let me see his face," cried Tommy thickly, and as the man turned the unconsclous head in the light of a pocket lantern, Sir Thomas gurgled unintelligibly in his throat.

It was the, man he had seen in the wood, the man he had followed from Mrs. Murray's—and ever since the policeman had called him by a strange name he had been mad with fear that Jacobs had pinned some other man. But this was he. Looked at closely, he was dark-haired, square-chinned, and blue with constant shaving; oddly like a gentleman in the pallor of his faint. The policeman,—on his knees, went through French Pete's pockets with accustomed fingers. "Look!" he said, and held up something. "That's the sort of man he is! Now, what in the world had you to do with him?"

The boy stared, snatched at the dusky object that lay in an immaculate handkerchief, held it to the face on Policeman Garrety's arm.

"It's him!" he screamed.

For the mystery lay before him of who had worn Adrian Gordon's clothes.

He turned wildly on the astounded policeman, "Go upstairs," he cried; "up to the very top. He left a parcel up there: that's why I followed him. It's am." but he said en

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 21.)

CAR GIVEN

FARM LIFE

THINK of the fun you can have pitching your tents and lining up your soldiers for dress parade, setting up your Airdome, your Red Cross Hospital, Mess Hall and Kitchen, drawing up your Armored Car, running out your Monoplane and your Ambulance with the Red Cross Nurse and Stretcher Bearers, and last but not least letting "Old Glory" wave majestically from the top of the tall flag pole. Can you imagine any better fun than this?

And listen! Cutting out and putting together all the different parts of this wonderful miniature War Camp is just as much fun as playing with it afterward. Here is what the camp contains and you can see for yourself that it is completenothing is missing.

WHAT THE CAMP CONTAINS

WHAT THE CAMP CONTAINS

what the camp contains

2 pieces Scenery (Trees, Bushes, etc., that form the background of the Camp), 3 Soldiers' Tents, 1 Officers' Tent, 1 Red Cross Hospital, 1 Mess Hall, 1 Kitchen or Cook Shack, 1 Airdome, 1
Monoplane Flying Machine, 1 Armored Car, 1 Red Cross Ambulance, 2 Field Artillery Cannon, 1
American Flag on Pole, 1 Standard (base of pole),
2 Lines of Soldiers (8 soldiers in each line), 1
Line of 6 Soldiers, 4 Officers, 1 Officer on horseback, 3 Officers in a group, 4 Sentries, 1 Cook, 1 Aviator, 3 Red Cross Nurses, 2 Red Cross Doctors with Stretchers.

All these different pieces that go to make up your War Camp or Cantonment are printed in natural life-like colors on thick heavy cardboard.
Full directions tell you how to cut out each piece and put it together. No glue or paste is necessary. Then you can arrange the different pieces to suit yourself on the ground plan which is

Your children are true Americans and you want to bring them up as such. All things of a military nature are now uppermost in their youthful minds—and it is well that they should be for it teaches them their first lessons in patriotism, and fosters their natural love of country. They will dance for joy at sight of this new Military Camp, for to them it will be a realization of all their childish hopes and fancies in which they see themselves as "soldlers of Uncle Sam" with uniforms, guns, helmets and all, going forth to defend their country against a common foe. It will cost you nothing to place this fascinating patriotic War Camp in the hands of your little ones and their shouts of joy when they receive it will a thousand times repay you for the slight effort you put forth to obtain it. We will send you this complete Military Camp just as illustrated and described upon the terms of the following CLUB OFFER. For two one-year subscriptions to COMFORT at 35 cents each we will send you this Wonderful Military Camp free by parcel post prepaid. Premium No. 9012.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

The Girl He Loved

(CONTINUED PROM PAGE 20.)

She fumbled in her pocket, found a match, lit it.

"It's him!" she cried, with fierce rejoicing. "and I hope he's dead."

She looked at the senseless boy beside him in his gentleman's clothes, at the dog that ran from her to him and licked his face.

"There's been queer work here!" she thought soberly, for French Pete's torn clothes told their tale. "But they sha'n't find out and kill Jack. They're cruel hard on dogs in London and he wasn't muzzled. They'd take him for that alone."

She was a strong woman; she lifted the boy easily enough, called the dog in a whisper, and went into the house. But not far. A footstep, too well-shod to belong to any of the inmates, caught her ears. She laid the boy flat under the stairs, crawled in beside him with the dog in her arms. After what seemed an hour, the heavy footsteps clumped down over her head and went out. Even then she dared not move. It would take all she knew to get this boy up to her room without having to be quick.

Outside in the court, Policeman Garrety stood dumbfounded. Boy and dog had vanished, but that he had half-expected, and whatever he had found upstairs it was not what he had been told was there. But French Pete, who had lain like a log, was gone, too.

was there. But French Pete, who had lain like a log, was gone, too.

He stumped away, beside the useless ambulance, and was only sure he had not dreamed the whole thing because of a parcel he held under him arm.

CHAPTER XL.

AT THE HINGES OF DEATH.

"Adrian and I! I and Adrian!"

Lady controlled reason to look like a dead women because the concept of the control of the cont

at the window, had to confess that Levallion had assured him that he was mistaken. And in the absence of Sir Thomas Annesley there was no one to prove that woman in the wood had not been Lady Levallion herself. She had certainly left the drawing-room.

The terms on which the prisoners were left no room for doubt; indeed, they had openly discussed the death of Lord Levallion—one of them had made no bones about speaking of poison. And the winding up of the matter was this: In the wood at night the two had arranged matters. Captain Gordon had come down from London unknown to any one but Lady Levallion, had poisoned with laurel water given him by her a bottle of Eau de Vie Magique which he had brought with him—for such another bottle had been found in his London rooms—and had been frightened by Sir Thomas' dog into going away without these two incriminating bottles found in Lady Levallion's bedroom. The prosecution did not mean to say that the guilty pair had foreseen that that night would give them their opportunity—merely that one being put into their hands they had made use of it. Probably Captain Gordon had come merely to see his cousin's wife clandestinely, but that the two had been overcome by temptation could not be doubted.

No one but Lady Levallion could have placed those bottles in her bedroom, as no servant had been away from the others during the evening, and no one of the guests but Lady Gwendolen Brook—who had cleared herself by being able to relate the exact words of a quarrel between Lord and Lady Levallion in the lower hall, a quarrel of which Lacy was also cognizant.

Surely no intelligent juror could doubt which way the evidence tended. As for bringing in an innocent woman like Mrs. Murray, the prosecution had nothing but contempt for so far-fetched a story. If Sir Thomas Annesley had a plece of the cloak which Captain Gordon, on no evidence whatever, supposed to be Mrs. Murray's, with all the had excellent reason to stay away, and the had been reason to those countless eyes that lost not one line in the flanguage of the period of the range of those countless eyes that lost not one line in the flanguage of the period of the reason of those countless eyes that lost not one line in the flanguage of the period of the reason of these countless eyes that lost not one line in the flanguage of the period of the reason of the search of the reason of these countless eyes that lost not one line in the flanguage of the period of the reason of the search of the search of the reason of the search o t's Yours No Extra Charges of any kind-all the latest fancy styles, golf bottoms, belt loops, pearl buttons - EVERYTHING EARN $40 to $60 a WEEK in you easiest thing in the world.

Write at once and get this new big offer. Even if you are an agent for another tailoring house, be sure and write for this new and most liberal offer ever made. Don't Wait! Don't Delay! WASHINGTON TAILORING CO., Dept. 408 Ch

Eagle Watch Co., Dept. 36, East Boston, Ma

clothes, and I was afraid for my Jack if they found him. I looked at the boy that was lying on the ground in a faint, and I felt kindly toward him because Jack seemed to love him—and I said to myself he shouldn't get into no trouble either. So I took them up to my room—after waiting a while, because I heard some one up there, and if I'd known all I do now I'd have come out that second—and there they've been ever since. First Towers was like to die, but Sir Thomas worked over him night and day."

"Towers!" Adrian Gordon's face grew like that of a man who sees a hope dawning, very faint and far, but still hope. Ravenel never looked up. She knew nothing about the boot-boy.

"And then?" came a question.

"Well, it wasn't till yesterday that we got Towers to talk, and then we'd never nearly got here at all," grimly. "Sir Thomas had no money, but I'd skxpence, and when he was going out to wire to you that he'd found out Towers, why we couldn't get out! Archer'd put some dodge on my door so he could open it from outside, and it had got out of order. We couldn't get the door open, and kicking was no good, for it opened inside. Nobody heard us yelling, for there was a row in the house downstairs. And that really let us out, for Garrety was there professionally"—calmly—"and he heard me shouting 'Help!' and come and knocked the door in. So here we comes this morning. It wouldn't have been any use to let strangers and police know we was there before, for Towers was frightened, and wouldn't talk. But he isn't now." And Towers, (CONTINUED ON PAGE 24.)

Over The Top-And At The Germans—Nuxated Iron Helps Give Men The Strength, Power and Courage

Ass't Judge Advocate General, Richard R. Kenney, Former U. S. Senator Says That With-The Sustaining Tonic of Nuxated Iron He Has Had No Occasion To Weaken Under The Most Strenuous Army Duties.

Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly physician of Bellevue Hospital, (Outdoor Dept.) New York and the Westchester County Hospital, says: "What every soldier most needs is tremendous "stay-there" strength, power and endurance with nerves of steel and blood of iron. To help produce this result there is nothing in my experience which I have found so vauable as organic iron—Nuxated Iron myself and prescribed it for my patients, and I can truthfully say that it excels any preparation I have ever used for building up delicate, nervous, rundown folks and increasing the red-blood corpuscles, thereby enriching and fortifying the blood against the ravages of disease. Contrary to general opinion, lack of iron in the blood does not contract the sum of the sum o time while taking iron in the proper form. And this after they had in some cases been going on for months without getting benefit from anything. Manufacturer's Note: Nuxated Iron, which is prescribed and recommended above, is not a secret remedy but one which is well known to druggists everywhere, Unlike the older inorganic iron products, it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make them black nor upset the stomach. The manufacturers guarantee successful and entrely satisfactory results to every purchaser or they will refund the money. It is dispensed by all good druggists and general stores.—Advertisement.

PHYSICIANS: SPECIAL TO

Doctor, when you want to prescribe a true tonic, strength and blood builder, one that helps put vim and renewed energy into the veins of the weak, infirm, run-down and aged-try Nuxated Iron. If you have been using the old forms of metalic iron, without success; if you have had patients complaining of discolored teeth, upset stomachs, hardened, tied-up secretions, etc., from the use of metalic iron, again we suggest, try Nuxated Iron. It is highly endorsed by such physicians as Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly Physician of Bellevue Hospital, (Outdoor Dept.) New York and the Westchester County Hospital; Dr. A. J. Newman, late Police Surgeon of the City of Chicago and former House Surgeon, Jefferson Park Hospital, Chicago; Dr. Ferdinand King, New York Physician and Medical Author; Dr. T. Alphonsus Wallace, a physician of many years experience in this country and abroad, and others. In most cases physicians direct the use of two five-grain tablets three times per day after meals. Nuxated Iron will be furnished by any druggist on an absolute guarantee of success or money refunded.

A. S., Kensington, Ga.—We do not understand your asking if "it is possible for a girl to work her way through high school." No charge is made for attendance at any high school with which this department is familiar. Nashville and Memphis and other cities in Tennessee have splendid schools which you might attend. It would be necessary for you to live in one of the cities having a public high school, and the only question would be getting employment afternoons or evenings to earn your board and clothes, which should not be difficult in these times.

A. R., Kenbridge, Va.—It is so simple a matter and costs so little to obtain a copyright, that we advise you to protect your play in this manner. Write to the Librarian of Congress, Washington, D. C., asking for an application for copyright, which will be sent you promptly. The cost of a copyright is but one dollar.

MRS. E. W. J., Bigelow, Mo.—Books for the reading of the blind can only be procured in the larger cities. Write to the editor of Outlook for the Blind, 962 Franklin Ave, Columbus, O. Send a stamped and addressed envelope when you write.

VIRGINIA; Bedford City, Va.—The words "tout a vous" are French, and might be translated "entirely yours."

H. D. S., Monroe, N. C.—Write Madero Bros., 115 Broadway, New York City, regarding the green and

H. D. S., Monroe, N. C.—Write Madero Bros., 115 Broadway, New York City, regarding the green and dried herbs you wish to sell.

Broadway, New York City, regarding the green and dried herbs you wish to sell.

E. C., Mo.—It is not a good practice to submit the same manuscript to several magazines at the same time. It is not necessary to send a letter with your story—simply type on the heading of your manuscript: "Submitted by —" and give your name and address. Be sure you enclose sufficient return postage. Articles submitted to Comfort or to any other magazine are simply addressed to the editor. We suggest that you send for a sample copy of "The Editor." This is a magazine for literary workers, and it is published at Ridgewood, N. J.

Lone Star Subscriber, Paris, Texas.—The organization you have in mind is the Society of Mayflower Descendants. Address the secretary, Chandler Smith, at 44 East 23rd St., New York City.

L. W., Belvidere, N. C.—There are all sorts of people in the world, but the kind called trolls do not exist except in Icelandic folklore. According to these old tales, the trolls were misshapen dwarfs who dwelt in hills and mountains underground, and were sometimes called "hill people." They were great thieves, and had an especial trick of stealing young children and substituting their own offspring—a trick which parents found most disconcerting. However, though the trolls were clever and strong, in all the stories of Iceland they were always outwitted in the end by man, and every stolen child eventually restored. The trolls were peculiarly sensitive to noise, and a good big racket would easily scare—them off. We sare certain there are no trolls among the Alleghanies.

Interested, Washington, Ga.—W. J. Curtis, Piqua, Ky., buys arrow heads and other Indian relics. We know of no market for "silver paper."

INTERESTED, Washington, Ga.—W. J. Curtis, Piqua Ky., buys arrow heads and other Indian relics. We know of no market for "silver paper."

M. W., Hertel, Wis.—We are very sure that there are no "orthopedic sanitariums" that are maintained by state taxes. However, any good hospital could furnish you with treatment for your trouble. You might obtain information by writing to W. E. Fitch, Editor of "Pediatrics," Elmira, N. Y. If there are any free "orthopedic sanitariums," Mr. Fitch will know about them. Enclose a stamped envelope for reply when you write.

An Unanswerable Argument

The poor relation had not been invited to the formal function at the great house, but he went to the door in spite of that oversight, "Where's your card?" inquired the first gentleman in waiting.

'Haven't got any," responded the poor relation meekly.

"Nobody can get in without a card."

"Well, I'm nobody," murmured the poor relation, but the first gentleman in waiting could not gracp the delicate humor of it, and the poor relation was turned away from the inhospitable door—Exchange.

UNCLE CHARLIE'S LIFE & IN PICTURES

Uncle Charlie's Picture Book Good as a Visit to His Home

Visit Unce Charlie in his famous chicken coop and see how he lives and works. Big, beautiful, full page, half-tone cuts equal to photographs, that show Uncle Charlie and his charming assistants Maria and the Goat in every phase of their busy lives. See Uncle Charlie stiting in a chair for first time in nineteen years, and get a peep at his big son, nother, school and church, and see him as an actor playing many parts. A beautiparts. A beauti-ful, intensely interesting, ar-tistic book 9 i-4 by 71-4 inches, free for two subs. at 35c. each—seventy cents in all. UNDLE CHARLIES STORY BOOK Uncle Charlie's Story Book

Story Book

Full of the most delightful stories ever written. You will laugh one minute and cry the next as you read these entrancing stories of Uncle Charlie's life. Read how Maria and Billy the Goat met Uncle Charlie's and English of Uncle Charlie's end of Uncle Charlie's life. Read how Maria and Billy the Goat met Uncle Charlie's each—one dollar and five cents in all.

Also bound in heavy fancy blue paper covers for only two subs at 35c. each—seventy cents in all. Ideablythday presents. COMPORT'S greatest premium bargains. Work for them today. Secure one or both of these superb souvenirs of this remarkable man who devotes his time and talents to the service of humanity.

Note. Full particulars of how to secure Uncle Charlie's splendid poems and song book will be found at the end of the League of Cousins Department.

Comfort's League of Cousins

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 19.)

Comfort's League of Cousins

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 19.)

all the while they used all the guns, big and little, that they could get hold of. The German ambassador to Great Britain admits that the Kaiser in starting this war sinned against the Holy Ghost. As for depending on God and dispensing with guns and soldiers, this is exactly what the Kaiser would love to have us do, and it is this kind of talk that makes these "religious" fanatics so dangerous, and forces our government to send some of them to the pen for twenty years. If the Kaiser, whose troops have slain thousands of priests, nuns, ministers and innocent children, sunk ten hospital ships and aided the Turks to wipe out a million and a half Armenian Christians, could convert us all into a lot of morbid, religious, peace-at-any-price maniacs and get us to scrap our guns, he would have the war won in ten minutes, the United States wiped out of existence, and realize all the devilish ambitions of himself and his blood-thirsty Huns. It is time the writer realized that God Almighty helps only those who help themselves, and he has no use for "religious" loafers who want Him to shoulder their responsibilities and do their fighting for them. God's ways are beyond the understanding of mortals, but in the end they work for righteousness, but God expects you to do your part in fighting evil and making righteousness possible. Here are a few burning words from a sermon-by one of New York's best known Baptist ministers: "That prophet of God who cries peace, peace, when there is no peace, is before God a liar. I say the prophet who evades these moral and spiritual problems (problems raised by the war) is a traitor to his country and is guilty of treason both to God and the people he serves. As for the minister of Christ who has no conviction in these matters he will answer to God for his cowardice when the day of revelation comes, at the Bar of Eternal Justice." If we could win this war with prayer alone, we would do it. We tried and tried in vain, now we must fight wh

Comfort's League of Cousins

The League of Gousins was founded as a means of bringing the scattered members of GOMFORT'S immense circle of readers into one big. happy family. Its aim is to promets a feeling of kinship and relationship among all readers.

feeling of kinship and relationship among all readers.

Membership is restricted to COMFORT subscribers and costs forty cents, only five cents more than the regular, subscription to COMFORT which is included. The forty cents makes you a member of the League and gives you an attractive League button with the letters "C. L. O. C.," a handsome certificate of membership with your name in grossed thereon, and the privilege of having your name in the letter list, also a paid-in-advance subscription to COMFORT. You continue a League member as long as you keep up your subscription to COMFORT. There are no annual dues, so after you have once joined all you have to do to keep in good standing is to keep your subscription to COMFORT.

How to become a Member

How to become a Member

Send forty cents to COMFORT'S Subscription Department, Augusta Maine with your request to be admitted into COMFORT'S LEAGUE OF COUSINS, and you will at once receive the League button and your membership certificats and number; you will also receive COMFORT for one year if you are a neady a subscriber; but if you are already a subscriber; but if you are already a subscriber your subscription will be renewed or extended one full year beyond date of expiration.

The League numbering over forty thousand members, undoubtedly is the greatest society of young people on earth.

Address all letters to COMFORT, Augusta, Maine, and they will promptly reach the head of the department for which they are intended.

League Shut-in and Mercy Work for September

"Inasmuch as ye have done it unto the least of these ye have done it unto Me."

Written references from postmaster and physician must positively accompany all appeals from shut-ins. Appeals unaccompanied by written references will be destroyed.

snut-ins. Appeals unaccompanied by written references will be destroyed.

Mrs. Catherine Fraisure, Lulu, Florida. Shutin for ter years. Widow, sixty years of age. Dependent on charity for support. Send her some help. Nathaniel M. Love, Stanfield, N. C. Thirty years of age. Helpless from rheumatism for ten years. Highly recommended. Send him a dime shower. Mrs. Stokeley Martin, Sanville, Va. Widow with three small children. Sick and poor. Remember her. Mrs. Lucy Webster, Quebeck, Tenn. Shut-in. Sick, aged and needy. Send her some of the sympathy that buys bread. Mrs. Ethel White, Oneida, Ark. Thirty-five years of age. Paralyzed one side. Needy and worthy. Well recommended. Do not forget her. Mrs. Rosella Daniel, Lassiter, N. C. Has only one arm. Widow with three small children. Needs second-hand clothing and any financial help you can send her. Mrs. Jennie Agee, R. R. 1, Box 35, Spencer, Va. Invalid. Needy and worthy. Send her some cheer. Mrs. Fürley Mollett, Davisport, Ky. Seventy years of age. Blind for ten years. Needy, sad and worthy case. Open your hearts and pocketbooks and give her a boost. Miss Edna L. Welch, 418 Washington St., Quincy, Ill. Helpless cripple. Alone in the world. Would appreciate cheery letters. Dortha Grigg, Glen Allen, Ala. Invalid. Lovely character. Would appreciate cheery letters and financial assistance. Miss Mary A. Fish, 60 Brooklin St., Warsaw, N. Y. Invalid. Alone in the world. Would appreciate cheery letters.

Invalid. Alone in the world, cheery letters.

The poor souls whose names are listed above are in too desperate need to care for anything but substantial financial aid. Sympathy and cash make a splendid combination, but sympathy without cash cuts no icicles. Do to others as you would have them do to you.

Lovingly yours,

Uncle Charlie

Read Uncle Charlie's Poems Around the Fireside

The long winter nights are upon us and the best fireside companion is a copy of Uncle Charlie's Poems. You will laugh, scream and yell if you peruse its uproariously funny pages. This 160-page lilac silk cloth bound volume contains the best recitations in the world, also a deeply interesting sketch of Uncle Charlie's life, and splendid pictures of him dictating his monthly talks to Maria. The finest gift in the world. Get your copy now. It will drive away the blues. This superb book free for a club of only three one-year subscriptions to COMFORT at thirty-five cents each.

Uncle Charlie's Song Book Is Just Grand.

So our readers say with almost monotonous regularity. It contains twenty-eight of the dandiest songs ever written, coon songs, sacred songs, sentimental and story ballads. Full music for voice and piano. Five dollars' worth of music for only two one-year subscriptions to Comfort at thirty-five cents each. A gorgeous song folio with superb cover on which appear some splendid pictures of Uncle Charlie at various stages of his career. Both volumes free for a club of five. Work for them today.

ITALIAN PENALTY FOR HOARDING .- Any person in Italy who purchases foodstuffs or goods of common or large consumption and lays in supplies greater than the normal or ordinary needs of the family and dependents, is punishable by a fine of from $4 to $190, or by imprisonment for a month, and the goods are confiscated.

FREE THESE

Secret Locket and Neck Chain, Pendant and Neck Chain, imitation Wrist Watch with adjustable leather strap and buckle and these Four lovely Rings. ALL Given FREE to anyone for selling only 12 of our Jewelry Novelties A. C. Dale Mfg. Co., Providence, R. I.

Sugar

"Sugar panic, sugar famine, sugar scandal"—common terms in the strenuous times of war, and among the most important questions of the day. Yet sugar has been in common use, as an article of food, for less than two hundred years.
Sugar was known in India in very remote times, and was first introduced into England about the year 1300. It was known in China before 1650, and its use had spread to South America and the West Indies by 1500. In all these years, however, it was used only in medicine and as an article of luxury in the homes of the very wealthy. As the use of tea and coffee increased, sugar came into wider use and by 1800 it had become a staple article of food.

Beet sugar was discovered in Germany in 1747, and in 1801 the first beet sugar factory was established. In 1909-10 nearly seven million tons of beet sugar were produced throughout the world, while the production of cane sugar was nearly eleven million tons.

while the production of cane sugar was nearly eleven million tons.

In India, sugar is also made from certain species of palms. It is all known as palm sugar, and is chiefly consumed by the natives as maple sugar is in this country.

A Half-Century Job

It will take 53 years to make a complete survey of the waters of Alaska, California, Washington and Oregon, according to estimates made by Superintendent Jones of the United States coast and geodetic survey, based on progress made with the present facilities,

WONDERFUL PHONOGRAPH

our New Style E. D. L. Phonogramithout the horn. It is a perfect

PLAYS ANY DISC RECORD Both lateral and ver inches. This machine will give you more entertainment than anything you ever owned. Strong, durable, No parts to get out of order.

Send No Money Just your name, and we will send you special offer at 25c each. Send us the $6 you collect and for your trouble we will send this new improved E. D. L. Phonograph and a selection of 6 records, free for your trouble. You can dispose of pictures and earn this great machine in a few hours.

ures and earn this great machine in a few hours.

E. D. LIFE, 337 W. Madison St., 9T5, Chicago

BOYS! BOYS! GIRLS, TOO!

$1,000

CULVER RACER AUTO "FIRST GRAND PRIZE"

But a Real Casoline Automobile

BUILT LIKE THE BIC RACERS

bearing 20x2 clinch rim, Tires--Culver non-skid. Clutch--Foot pedal, b.-b. Pressed ch.steel. metal spider. Wheels--Wire inter. ball-

This fine little automobile is built especially for boys and girls. You can learn to run it in an hour's time. No complicated parts to get out of order and is perfectly safe for a child of 8 years. This little Culver Racer will do anything a full-sized car will do because it is built in proportion to a big car. Have been giving these little automobiles away for several years, and they are giving the very best of satisfaction. The Culver Racer not only affords a world of pleasure for boys and girls but is also a real necessity. You can run errands, take things to market, go after the mail and just do anything with a Culver Racer—all you have to do is to crank it, jump in and go—further information and complete specifications will be sent you. Some girl or boy is going to be the proud owner of this fine Culver Racer at the close of this club—why not YOU—solve the puzzle below and get in on the ground floor.

Second Grand Prize Value $100.00

Here I am—I am wondering what nice little boy or girl will be my master at the close of this club. My name is "Ned". I am 4-years old and about 40 inches high; I am real black with four white feet and some white in my mane and tail. We do not show a very good picture of "Ned" but he is a mighty pretty little pony and loves nice Boys and Girls and wants a good home. We gave "Ned's" little brother away last month to a nice-little girl just 8 years old, and I just wish you could know how easily she won him. Don't fail to join my club—solve the puzzle below and write TODAY.

How Many Words Can You Make?

This puzzle is a sure prize winner—absolutely everyone in this club wins. It is not hard either—just a little ingenuity and skill. The puzzle is to get as many words as possible out of the letters' herewith given. Use only the list given, and only as many times as they appear in this ad. For instance, the letter Y appears three times, so in all your words you must not use Y more than three times. If you use Y twice in one word, and once in another, you cannot use Y in any other word as you have already used it as many times as it appears in this advertisement. It is not necessary that you use all the letters. The puzzle looks easy and simple, but if you can make as many as 12 or 15 words, send in your list at once, as the person winning first prize may not have more than that many.

A $50 in Gold.

ANOEOYRS TFLMIMRA OOAINMTO MOFIAEBL YAPBINOH GNOSAAOT TAACRBOY ARMNANTW

17-Jewel Elgin Watch 20-year case. 17-Jewel Elgin Watch 20 year case. 15-Jewel Elgin Watch 20 year case.

15-Jewel Elgin Watch 20 year case. 9. 7-Jewel Elgin Watch 20 year case. 10. 7-Jewel Elgin Watch 20 year case. 11. 31x41 Folding Eastman Kodak.

12. 31x41 Folding Eastman Kodak. 13. 34x44 Folding Eastman Kodak. 14. Ladies' or Gents' Fine Wrist Watch

15. $5.00 in Gold.

$50 in Gold.

OUR OFFER We are the largest magazine publishers in the West, and are conducting this big "Everybody Wins" word building contest in connection with a big introductory and advertising campaign, whereby we will give away 15 grand prizes as listed in this advertisement, and we want to send you sample copies and full particulars as to how to become a member of this contest club and be a sure winner. We give 100 votes in this contest for each word you make. To the person having the most votes at the close of the club, we will give the Culver Racer Automobile first prize, value $250.00; to the second highest we will give the Shetland Pony "Ned" second prize value $10.00; to the third highest $75.00 in gold, and so on until we have awarded the 15 grand prizes as listed in this adv.

Notice: Every new member this month also receives as listed in this adv.

FILLED SIGNET RING GUARANTEED FOR 5 YEARS FREE AND POSTPAID,
JUST FOR PROMPTNESS. Anyone may enter this club, and there was never a better offer made especially to boys and girls. Please bear in mind there is absolutely no chance to lose; POSITIVELY EVERY CLUB MEMBER WINS. If there should be a tile between two or more club members for any of the prizes, each tying club member will receive prize tied for. Get an early start—send in your list TODAY.

BILLY FRENCH, Mgr., 707 Capper Bldg., Topeka, Kan.

Home Cure for BLEEDING, SPONGY AND SORE GUMS (PYORRHEA) By a Doctor and Dentist who Suffered Years

"SAVE YOUR TEETH"

years we were troubled with bleeding, sore and may gums, pus pockets and loose teeth commonly own as pyorrhea and we would like every sufferer many form of mouth disease no matter how long adding to write for our little book which tells in simple guage all about troubles of the mouth, their preventions and how we cured ourselves in our own homes hout pain or discomfort.

Pyorrhea is disgusting and usually leads to and causes

Fit yourself for the joys of living by having a clean mouth and preserve your natural teeth. You should look to your gums now and write us today.

SEND NO MONEY_Just Name and Address

DR. WILSON, M. D. or DR. DIXON, D. D. S. Suite 401A, So West Genesee St., Buffalo, N. Y.

Sales Agent $1200
We want one exclusive representative in every county. The position is worth $100 a Year in every county. The position is worth $100 a year frain you. Write us, the largest mfr's of we train you. Write us, the largest mfr's of we train you. Write us, the largest mfr's of we train you. Write us, the largest mfr's of we train you. Write us, the largest mfr's of we train you.

If You Are A Woman Who Loves Crochet And Tatting Here Is A Set Of Books You Will Be Delighted To Own!

Crochet And Tatting Here is A Set

Of Books You Will Be Delighted To Own!

A NY ONE of these books alone is a veritable treasure house of the newest, most beautiful designs. The seven books combined form a complete library in which you will find any pattern in crocheting and tatting you could possibly ask for. You will fairly revel in the many handsome designs shown. There are edgings, beadings, insertions and laces for every conceivable use. The fillustrations are actual photographs of the finished work and show every thread so plainly that they are almost as good to work from as the directions themselves. The directions are adapted for either beginner or expert. They tell stitch by stitch how each pattern is worked, also the quantity and size of material required and the correct sizes of hooks to be used. Following is a description of each book. They are 8 by 10 1-2 inchese in size with the exception of Volume I which is 91-4 by 12 inchess. Please order by numbers.

Volume 1 Crocheted yokes for combinations envelopes, nightgowns, corset covers, etc.—fiftees all different, exquisite designs.

Volume 2 Handsome crocheted edgings and insertions suitable for handkerchiefs, underwear, dresses and a multitude of other uses,—thirty-three different designs.

Volume 3 Eighteen lovely designs in Cluny insertions and laces for centerpleces, library scarfs, boudoir caps, corset cover yokes, plane scarfs, curtains, chemises, envelopes of combination suite.

Volume 4 Twenty-five handsome designs in sertions and laces for centerpleces, chirty-three different designs in novelty aprons and collars.

Volume 5 Twenty-five designs in novelty crochet, including mile-a-minute and clover leaf crocheted yokes, portion caps, unique edges and insertions for serving trays; novelty
aprons and collars.

Volume 6 Maltese and Irish crochet,—a varied and beautiful assortment of tatted handkerchlef edges, edgings and insertions for serving trays; novelty aprons and collars.

Volume 7 Thirty-two designs in tatting, maltese a n braid laces. E advise you to order all seven of these splendid books before the assortment is broken. If how-WE advise you to order all seven of these splendid books before the assortment is broken. If however, the sever you do not care for the whole library at this time we have arranged the following special offers which give you the opportunity to secure any three books or the entire seven books. When ordering please be very careful to state the desired number of each book.

Offer No. 8011. For one one-year subscription (not your own) to Comport at 35 cents we will send you any two books free by parcel post prepaid. He sure to mention numbers of books wanted.

Offer No. 8552. For two one-year subscriptions to Comfort at 35 cents each, we will send you any four books free by parcel post prepaid. He sure to mention numbers of books wanted.

offer No. 8013. For three 1-year subscriptions at 35 cents each we will send you the complete library just as described above—seven volumes in all, handsomely bound, printed on high-grade paper and containing nearly 200 beautiful photographic illustrations of all that is new and pretty in crochet and tatting designs with complete directions for working. When ordering please be sure to mention number of each book wanted.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Conducted by Cousin Marion

In writing this department always sign your true name and give your address; if not, your let-ter will receive no attention. Name [will not be published.

ESPITE knitting and war gardens and farming and all the other things loyal, patriotic girls have been doing this summer, I hope you have taken a little time for play and that every one of you has a supply of happiness stored away in your Memory Box, enough to last all through the fall and winter, for it is September already and there is a long, cold winter ahead of us. Here's something to remember for another summer in case your supply of happiness is small this year: "All who joy would win must share it,—happiness was born a twin." In order to be happy ourselves we must make others happy and now I'll cheer myself up by helping you girls with your summer love affairs.

Anxious Girlie, N. C.—Complete your high school course before entering business college and don't stop studying then if you want to be successful. There are hundreds of ordinary stenographers in the world today, but you want to be more than just "ordinary," don't you?

you?

BLUE BELL, Montana.—Your penmanship is above the average, but I question your mentality. When a thirteen-year-old girl tells me she is so much in love with a fifty-year-old man and thinks about him so much that she forgets everything her mother tells her to do, I really don't know what to think about her. If Methusekah were alive today I suppose you'd lose your senses entirely over him. Think about your studies for a few years and by that time you will know more than you do now.

DESPERATE Paducah Ky.—Don't index your father.

DESPERATE, Paducah, Ky.—Don't judge your father too harshly. He has your welfare at heart and is acting as he thinks best for your own interests. You might explain your own side of the question to him and in the meantime don't take too serious a view of the matter. When you are a little older, doubtless he will allow you more freedom.

he will allow you more freedom.

SEGO LALY, Salt Lake City, Utah.—Bathing at beaches in't considered improper, so suit yourself about giving it up. It is rather unusual to object to a man because he has money, and your father shouldn't regard that as a fault—provided it is honest money. Your letter shows remarkable intelligence and you have done extremely well in the way of educating yourself, but don't regard as "plebian" people who haven't had the advantages of a college education. There is some good' in everyone and—"kind hearts are more than cornets,"—and diplomas, with all due apologies to Tennyson.

to Tennyson.

GREY BYES, Va.—You should have signed yourself "Greedy Grey Eyes." I'm glad all my girls aren't like you. I'd scold more than I do now if they were. Your fiance doesn't like to have you receive attentions from other men while he is in France, but you say you write to him every day and think he "had orter be satisfied." What if you do write to him every day? That is the very least you can do when he is risking his life every day for you. And to make matters worse, you say there is a married man always "hanging around" ready to take you to "picknics." Of course his wife is always hanging around with him, or don't you accord her any more consideration than you do your soldier sweetheart? If you must have a "feller" in the absence of your fiance, can't you find an unmarred man?

BOBEY B., Va.—Your sweetheart carried out his an unmarred man?

BOBBY B., Va.—Your sweetheart carried out his part of the agreement when he tried to enlist and isn't to blame because he couldn't pass the examination, and now it is up to you to carry out your promise of not writing to the French soldier. Haven't you you some unattached girl friead that will take him off your hands for you?

MAN HATER, N. C.—Don't hate men, my dear, just don't notice them for a few years. Tell the boy to buy Thrift Stamps with his money instead of sending you candy and stationery.

GOLDEN LOCKS, N. C.—Only fourteen years old.

buy Thrift Stamps with his money instead of sending you candy and stationery.

GOLDEN LOOKS, N. C.—Only fourteen years old, pretty and can dance, swim, row, drive a car and play the plano, yet is tired of such a monotonous life but can't withdraw from society because the boys say they will lose all their enjoyment. That doesn't sound at all monotonous to me, but if you want some new thrills you might try flying or, possibly, if you went to work at seven or eight dollars a week, the way hundreds of girls are obliged to, you'd be so busy trying to make that sum cover board, room, clothing and incidentals, that you wouldn't have time to worry about the monotony of your present life. Why not try war work for a change? Hay rides may be proper enough but they must be uncomfortable if one is afficted with hay fever, but 1.30 A. M. is too late for fourteen-year-old girl to be out on any kind of a ride. BILLIS, N. C.—You were not to blame because there wasn't enough gasoline but you were too blame for going. You are too young for such amusements and your mother should spare tme from her social duties to give you a mother's care.

ALMOST DISCOURAGED, Ark.—Why not have a real almost Discouraged, Ark.—Why not have a real heart-to-heart talk with friend husband and let him understand that you are not obliged to stay with him and be mistreated by him or his people, for surely you can earn your own living. Don't be a doormat and the chances are he will think all the more of you when he realizes that there is danger of losing you. If you don't want to leave him, and feel that you can't live away from him, why stay there and be just as patient and good as you can and perhaps in time he will realize what a treasure he possesses and treat you accordingly.

PUNY NOSE, Iowa.—Don't feel badly because you don't understand me—you are not the only one who doesn't. No, a sixten-year-old girl shouldn't "go" with a boy of twenty-four or any other age, but most of them do in spite of my advice to the contrary. How much should a girl flirt with a boy and could she go too far? If a girl doesn't flirt, there can be no danger of her carrying it too far, so don't flirt, but if you must, don't do it by winking.

AMETTOME Ft. Valley, Ga.—Why worry because you

Amerrious, Ft. Valley, Ga.—Why worry because you see no way to get a college education? Since you are only twelve years old now, you should devote all your energy into getting a high school education and trust to luck and hard work for the college education when it is time for it. Lots of nice things can happen in four years.

MINE AND IRE, La.—Say that again, please. I don't think I understood it the first time. Do I think it wrong for eighteen-year-old girls to wear rompers? No, it isn't wrong, but it isn't being done this year and people will surely talk if you do. Sure you don't mean overalls?

overalis?

E. W., West Terre Haut, Ind.—From the tone of your letter I think your husband is justified in being jealous, though he shouldn't be cruel and call you "awful names." Stop thinking about this man whom you think loves you and be a better wife and mother.

B. P., Ky.—Thanks for your kind words. They are a rarity. Why wait until Christmas to get married? Better make it Thanksgiving, or earlier, for delays, particularly in war times, are dangerous. But don't get married unless you feel sure he is the one man in the world for you.

It wasn't necessary to scold very much this month, for you were unusually sensible and I'm just as proud of you as though I were your truly own

COUSTN MARTON.

"No father. No town. Germans blow it to Hellie," was the reply of a Russian, making out a questionnaire with the assistance of the Portland, Me., legal advisory board, to a query as to his father's name and place of residence in Russia.

Comfort Sisters' Corner

(CONTINUED PROM PAGE 18.)

CONTINUED PROM PAGE 12.)

COMFORT dinner. One day in each week we have what we call our "COMFORT dinner," all the dishes being made from recipes in COMFORT. Try it some time and see for yourself if it isn't good. One day last summer we had a "COMFORT picnio," eating only things made from recipes in the paper.

Don't you think the little poem, "Today," which Mrs. Wilkinson let us read, was just fine? It is always today, so let's read it again.

I love COMFORT and anxiously await the fifteenth of the month for then I know I will receive my copy.

"Let us not think of the darkness for it will come without thought. But let us think of all things good; it may make the darkness seem less dark."

COMFORT'S FRIEND.

DEAR MRS. WILKINSON:

I have read COMFORT since I was a child and now that I am in trouble I am going to the sisters for

I have been married twice and have two children I have been married twice and have two children, a boy and a girl, by my first marriage. My mother keeps them with her all the time. I work out at public work and my husband objects to my helping clothe the children. He says I ought to help him. I clothe myself and pay all the small bills so I think I do my part. He is cross all the time so you can understand that I am not very happy. He says if I don't stop spending my money for other people, meaning my people, I have got to give up my position and you know what that would mean to me.

Give me a little advice if you please. What would you do?

WORRIED WIFE.

WORRIED WIFE.

Frankfort, N. Y.

Dear Mes. Wilkinson and Comfort Sisters:

I am making a cook book from the sisters' recipes and think it will be a good one when I get it done. Is anyone else doing the same?

Now for my bit. To the sisters who have children troubled with constipation and find it hard or inadvisable to give them physic, try this: Take one pound of figs and five cents' worth of senna leaves, put in chopping bowl together and chop up fine. Then make them into balls about the size of marbles and give one or two at night. My little boy, twenty months old, cries for it as he does for candy. It is pleasant for grownups as well. Of course some need more than others but that can be determined by the individual. Here's another. If food burns on your pet enamel stew pan, just put a plentiful amount of wood ashes in it and cover with water. Put it on the stove and let it boil a few minutes. When it is washed you will be pleased to see how nice it comes off without scraping and will be as clean as ever comes off without scraping and will be as clean as ever comes off without scraping and will be as clean as ever comes off without scraping the raw pumpkin or putting it through the food chopper, the fine cutter. Make in the usual way. You will find they have as good, if not better, flavor than stewed pumpkin.

Wishing Mrs. Wilkinson and all the sisters the best of luck,

Bewelcome, Miss.

BEWELCOME, MISS.

DEAR MRS. WILKINSON AND SISTERS:

I have taken COMFORT over twenty-two years and I expect to take it as long as I live and can get the money. I enjoy the sisters' letters, and I cannot say enough for Uncle Charlie. I think he is the most wonderful man I ever knew of.

Lonely Old Maid, please write and give me your address.

derful man I ever knew of.

Lonely Old Maid, please write and give me your address.

Mrs. Gaestet, of Washington, if you want to adopt a child, go to Jackson, Miss., and you will find any kind and size you want. There are two Orphans' Homes in that city and both are full, and the children are so glad to get a home with some good woman who would be a mother to them. I have raised nine children and have three in Heaven and I went to a Home and got a little girl. I wanted one four years old but falled to get her correct age before I left with her so when I had kept her a while I wrote to the Supf. and he said she was seven years old. I had kept her so long that I didn't want to let her go. She is very industrious and does everything well.

Mrs. Mattie Sellers, your letter was fine. I have a boy in the navy on the ship Carolina. He is a long ways from home and my prayer is that he may return to me safely.

With best wishes to all and Mrs. Wilkinson, I will come again.

MRS. O. F. FORMAN.

DEAR SISTERS:
Having taken Comfort for a number of years and not noticing a letter from Dixon, Ill., thought I would not noticing a letter from Dixon, III., thought I would write one.

Dixon is a town of twelve thousand inhabitants and is situated on Rock River. It has several large factories, namely, shoe, wire screen, milk, and a large plow factory.

I would like to ask a question of the Kansas sisters. Can any of you give me any information about the plant called "Carpenter's Square"? Please answer through Comfort.

I am sixty-three years old and the mother of eleven children.

children.
God bless the mothers and babies.
Mas. James Devine.

DEAR TROUBLED WIFE OF KENTUCKY, IN JANUARY NUM-

DEAR TROUBLED WIFE OF KENTUCKY, IN JANUARY NUMTHER OF COMPORT:

I don't think you foolish or silly for craving your husband's affection. All of us enjoy being treated affectionately by the one that is the very nearest and dearest to us of anyone else in the world, or, at least, if you are foolish for wanting your husband to pet you, I am foolish too, and Hubby is also, for we are "happy though married" sixteen years.

Sometimes I think some men seem to consider that a marriage certificate is a sort of paid up policy of appiness, that the courtship days were those of paying premiums of compliments, cheerfulness, courtesy, conyour sideration and chivalry, and that marriage cuts off all premiums of loverlike attentions. But the best way in matrimony is takeep on paying premiums. Many firstticlass matrimonial policies lapse just because of the sustore is little danger in overtelling this story. It is to the wine of life and inspiration to one hungering and thirsting for the little tenderness of affection.
There are more people on this great earth hungering for sweetness, tenderness and words of appreciation than are starving for bread. Continued courtship after marriage preserves the lover in the husband and the sweetheart in the wife but courtship cannot be played at by one person. Like a quarrel, it requires two to make it a success. It is not the wife alone who needs
the gracious sweetness of concentrated comradeship, for husbands, who are built on the right lines, have the same hunger for loving kindness. Here is a bit of Verset are more people on the played at hy one person. Like a quarrel, it requires two to make it a success. It is not the wife alone who needs
the gracious sweetness of concentrated comradeship, for husbands, who are built on the right lines, have the same hunger for loving kindness. Here is a bit of "Home's not merely roof and room,

It needs something to endear it.
Home is where the heart can bloom,
Where there's some kind lips to cheer it.

"What is home with none to meet, None to welcome, none to greet us. Home is sweet and only sweet When there's one we love to meet us."

BOSA BOHANNON.

DEAR COMFORT SISTERS:

After reading "China's" letter I thought I would write. Please don't think every young married girl leads a life like your own. I was married when seventeen and for two years have been one of the happiest girls alive. We have had a severe sorrow, for we lost our little baby when she was a couple of months old but I know "God doeth all things well" and in time I shall meet her again, so I am trying to be happy just the same. I have a sister who was not married until she was twenty-five and she is very unhappy.

not married until she was twenty-five and she is very unhappy.

Troubled Wife, as to petting, hubby loves you just the same but he doesn't think about the petting. I found that out and it hurt very much at first but one day I stopped my share of petting entirely, even going out of his way when I thought he would want to pet me, but that lasted only a day and a half and he then insisted on petting me. Since then I don't pet him so much and find that is the best way.

As to mother-in-laws, I have the most loving and wonderful one there is. All her "in-laws" worship her.

Send for Money-Saving Plan and Free Catalog Under no circumstances can you afford to buy or consider other organ until you have our money-saving proposition. alf-century's manufacturing experience, our financially str

W. W. KIMBALL CO., 305-6 Kimball Hall, Chicago Please send me FREE your 1918 Organ Catalog, factory distribut-ng prices and the Nation's Home Songs with words and music FREE

AGENTS: $40 A WEEK

For men, women and children, as styles colors and fancy stripes, includ-ing the finest line of silk hose. Any man or woman can sell this wonderful line of hoslery at less than store prices. GUARANTEED ONE YEAR Must A prospect in every home, sell dosen pair to one family, pest orders will make you Wear or Replaced

Thomas Hosiery Co., 8730 Elk St., Dayton, O. FREE STEEL SHOE BOOK SAVES M. M. Ruthstein, Vice-President Address: STEEL SOLE SHOE CO.

WEAR A SERVICE FLAG PIN with a star for each member of your family fighting on land or sea. Red, white and blue enamel on silver plate 25c each, $2.50 dozen. Sterling 45c each, $4.50 dozen. Catalog FREE of No. 469 Grammar and High School class pins and rings. METAL ARTS CO., 71 Scuth Avenue, Rochester, N. Y.

kiddies. Send them to me for a visit this summer, will you?

How many of the sisters have a back-yard flower garden? I'd much rather have my flowers where I can see them every minute. One cannot have the blues ocasily with flowers around.

HAPPY WIFE.

DEAR COMPORT SISTERS:

I have just finished reading Troubled Wife's letter.
She thinks if only her husband would whisper sweet nothings to her she would be happier. I should prefer judging by his actions.

Now for my story, husband and I have been married thirteen years and have five, bright, healthy

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 24.)

Fine Shaggy Teddy Bear

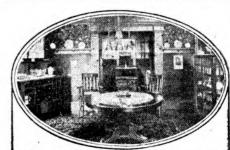

FOR A CLUB OF FOUR!

EVERY little boy and girl wants a Teddy Bear and here is an opportunity for every father or mother who reads COMFORT to get one without expense. "Teddy" looks exactly as you see him in the pieture above. He is a shaggy fellow, 10 inches tail, made of brown plush, paws lined with felt, carefully sitched and finished and his head, arms and legs are jointed in such a manner that you can place him in almost any position. He will stand up, sit up, stand on his head, go on all four feet, in fact, you can make him assume all kinds of positions that are so comical and lifelike that it makes the children scream with delight just to look at him. "Teddy" is so well made that no matter how roughly be is handled he cannot become broken and with ordinary care should last for years. We will send you "Teddy" free if you will accept the following special Club Offor. For four one-year subscriptions to Club Offer. For four one-year subscriptions to COMFORT at 35 cents each, we will send you this Teddy Bear free by Parcel Post prepaid. Premiums No. 7804.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Ex-

Furnish 2 to 3 Rooms For 17 Cents a Day

Now you may furnish anew one room, or a whole home on the most convenient terms imaginable. Take two years to pay for furnishings bought on this new Factory-to-Family Plan. Payments as low as 17c a day. 800 Larkin Home Furnishings

on Easy Monthly Payments

ompare quality and price of Larkin Furnishings with furnishings offered by others. Our quality is the highest. Our low Factory-to-Family prices will save you many dollars. Before buying your Furnishings this season learn about this offer.

This Big 104-Page Book FREE
Larkin Book of Better Homes welp thousands this season to "Bettermes." Your copy sent FREE no the asking.

Larkitt Co. Desk FCT918Buffalo, N.Y.

Boys and Girls

for Sending Us Your Name and Address.

We will immediately send you 20 of the most wonderfully patriotic pic-tures ever published in beautiful colors, size 16 x 20 inches.

Everyone Diffferent

People are wild about them.
Everybody buys them. You sell them in a Jiffy at 20 cants at 20,00 you get for the other 10 is all yours. ACT QUICK!

We now pay as high as $25.50 a set (broken out once—onsh by return mail. We hold package 5 to UNITED STATES SMELTING WORKS, Inc.
324 Goldsmith Bidg. Milwaukee, Wis-

Let us send this fine Razor for 30 days free trial. When satisfied after using, send $1.56 or return razor. Order Today. JONES MFG. CO. Dept. 948, CHICAGO, ILL.

LOOK YOUR BEST. Make sure of smooth white arms, face and neck in spite of sallowness, blotches, freckles, blackheads etc. If you want to be charming and attractive—Don't pay 50c but send 10c at once for sealed Package, which will transform your appearance instantly. Warranted.TOILET COMPOUND CO. Sex 1927A, Beston, Mass.

wanted.

3173 Jan. Garnet, Symbol of Power.

3183 Feb. Amethyst, Symbol of Pure Love.

3193 March Aquamarine, Symbol of Courage

3203 April Diamond, Symbol of Purity.

3213 May Bernald, Symbol of Purity.

3223 July Ruby, Symbol of Long Life.

3233 July Ruby, Symbol of Constancy.

3243 Aug. Peridet, Symbol of Happinee.

3253 Sept. Saphire, Symbol of Constancy.

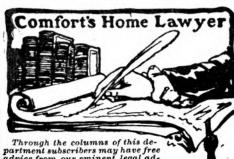

3263 Oct. Opal, Symbol of Hope.

3273 Nov. Topax, Symbol of Priendship.

3283 Dec. Turquoise, Symbol of Prosperity.

3284 All of the above named stones are softtaires and are the most perfect and beautiful imitation real gems that we have ever seen. Following is our free offer.

CLUB OFFER. For only three one-year sub-cents each, we will send you a Birthstone Pendant and Chain free by Parcel Post prepaid. Be sure to mention number of stone wanted.

Through the columns of this department subscribers may have free advice from our eminent legal adviser on all questions of law except divorce matters.

Address Home Lawyer, COMFORT, Augusta, Maine. Sign your true name and give your address. Name will not be published.

G. D. B., Maine.—Under the laws of your state, we are of the opinion that upon the death of a married man, leaving no will, and having a surviving widow and children, his widow would receive one third of his personal estate, absolutely, in addition to certain other small allowances; we think that if the money you mention was turned over by the wife to her husband it would now be difficult to establish a claim for repayment, but if the money or the property purchased with the money was kept in the wife's name, such property would not belong to the husband.

W. A. B., Nebraska.—Under the laws of your state, we are of the opinion, that upon the death of a married man, leaving no will and one child, the widow would receive some small allowances of the personal property, and in addition thereto one fourth of the balance of the personal property and one fourth of the real estate if she is not the parent of the child, and one half of both the balance of the personal property and of the real property if she is the parent of the child.

child.

MRS. L. J., Kansas.—Under the laws of Oklahoma, we are of the opinion, that the signature of the wife is not necessary for the sale of property belonging to the husband.

MRS. A. E. B., California.—We do not think the claim, of the doctor, that the man you mention was cured, would relieve his employer from compensation payments, in a case where it is apparent that the man was not cured; your statements would indicate that the doctor was wrong in pronouncing him cured, and if such is the case, we think the man should immediately prosecute his claim for further compensation payments.

mediately prosecute his claim for further compensation payments.

L. W., Texas.—Under the laws of your state, we are of the opinion that where divorces are declared, the court exercises very general jurisdiction over the property and children, but cannot compel divestiture of title to real estate; we think there is no limitation in your state of a testator's right to disinherit children by will, but he cannot disinherit his widow of her one half interest in the community property, which includes such as is purchased or acquired by onerous title during marriage, but does not include such as was owned by the testator at the time of marriage nor such as has been acquired by the husband has the management of the community property nor such as has been acquired by inheritance or gift either before or after marriage; we think the husband has the management of the community property during marriage, and may dispose of the same without the wife's consent.

M. T., Arkansas.—Under the laws of your state, we are of the opinion that in case of the divorce or separation of the parents, the custody of the children is a question to be decided by the courts; that the intestacy inheritance rights of the children are not affected by the divorce or separation of the parents; that the intestacy inheritance rights of the children are not affected by the divorce or separation of the parents; that of marriage, except that the court may allow the wife reasonable allmony, and except that if the divorce is procured at the wife's instance she is entitled to one third of the husband's personalty absolutely, and to one third of the husband's personalty absolutely, and to one third of the husband's personalty absolutely, of the man you mention during the lifetime of absolutely, and to one third of his lands for life.

J. H. M., Missouri.—We do not think the remarriage, of the man you mention during the lifetime of his wife, from whom he was not divorced, would affect the validity of his first marriage, and we are of the opinion that the first wife is his only legal wife; he is liable to punishment for the second marriage.

Mrs. O. D., Missouri.—Under the laws of Kansas, we are of the opinion, that if the land you mention belonged to the man you mention, his children acquired no interest in the property upon the death of their mother, and he could convey good title to same without their signature.

Mrs. M. H., Texas.—Under the laws of your state.

without their signature.

MRS. M. H., Texas.—Under the laws of your state, we are of the opinion that upon the death of your father, without a will, your mother would only be entitled to her intestacy rights in his separate property and her community rights in their community property; we do not think she can legally dispose of your interest in his real estate unless same was disposed of during your minority by the proper court proceeding, or unless the sale of the real estate was necessary for the payment of the debts of the estate.

J. K., Wisconsin.—Under the laws of your state, we are of the opinion that the rate of compensation fixed for total disability is sixty-five per cent of the average weekly earnings, to continue during such disability.

ability.

A. G. L., Michigan.—We are of the opinion that the age at which a valid marriage can be contracted, without the parents' consent, is eighteen years for both males and females in Michigan, and twenty-one for males, and eighteen for females in Montana.

WORMS.—Dissolve a small piece of assafetida in alcohol and give a few drops in water twice a day or in the evening. It will expel the worms.

I. B. L., Arkansaw, Wis.

Give You Both

In This

Beautiful Rolled-Gold Pendant!

ONE of the most styments. Women and thouse and the work and chain in preference while those who can aftenow that all who refer stronger for our approval by the Birthstone Pendang and Chain in preference while those who can aftenow that all who refer really delighted prettiest designs we assortment submitted largest jewelry manustate. One day walked in and asked the girls, there is the birthstone ring ford it wear both. The prettiest designs we assortment submitted becervith will with it. It is one of the prettiest designs we assortment submitted because the prettiest designs we have the prettiest designs we have the prettiest designs we have been considered by the prettiest designs we have the prettiest designs we have been considered by the prettiest designs we have the prettiest designs while the prettiest designs we have the prettiest designs we have the prettiest designs while the prettiest designs we have the prettiest designs while the prettiest designs while the prettiest designs while the prettiest designs while the prettiest design

OSAGE CITY, R. R. 3, KANS.

DEAR MRS. WILKINSON AND SISTERS:

I have been enjoying the Sisters' Corner for a number of years and it occurs to me that I have been selfish in enjoying it all and offering no contribution to the general good. I would certainly be glad to help in any way I could.

I have no problems, no sorrows to discuss. I have reached middle-aged serenity and an abiding faith in the loving, All-wise Father who rules the Universe. My experience has been that the turning point comes to the most hopeless sorrow if we can only have patience to wait for it.

I am a farmer's wife, trying to do my bit to help feed the world. I was born in a large city and grew up in various large cities so have had experience in both rural and city life. The ideal place, in my thought, to bring up children, is the large college town. However, most of us must do the best we can right where we are. If a family is large enough to furnish entertainment and amusement within itself, I would advocate the country. Nothing is more tragical than a lonesome woman on an isolated farm.

To those who are able to give a child a good home and loving care I would certainly advocate the adopting of one. Our lassic is six years old. We have had ther five years. The little half-starved baby, with crooked legs and without hair or teeth was not promising. The little Miss of six is all that could be desired. All of earth's riches could not buy her. I would advise taking a young baby rather than an older child. I will gladly answer any questions regarding her adoption.

her adoption.

I wish Steppy would write again to Comfort or to me, 'personally. I should like to know how she is getting on with her girls by this time.

I wish I could find some lonely, discouraged young mother with a girl under six whom I could help. My small girl grows so fast and I have no relations to whom I can hand down her clothes. I can give them away, of course, but I want a more personal touch, some one whom I can 'mother.'

There is another woman whom I would like to find—a lonely old lady with a loving heart, who would like home folks in a family of three in the country. No heavy work for her to do but just to help a little about the house and be company for me and 'Grandma' to my small girl. Would make her comfortable in every way. (Methodist preferred.)*

I have very few relatives left and my heart goes out in deepest sympathy to those who are longing for 'the touch of a vanished hand, and the sound of a voice that is still.' These are the saddest days the world has known and we ought to do all we can to comfort each other.

I was born in Ohio but a great deal of my life has been spent on trains and in California. I was an Evangelist in the Methodist Church previous to my marriage, twelve years ago. After such an experience, farm life leaves quite a lot to be desired even though my situation may be very comfortable so far as physical needs are concerned.

I cannot promise letters to all but hope to find a few kindred spirits.

HORNICK, IOWA.

DEAR COMFORT SISTERS:

Troubled Wife, of Kentucky, do not whip your little boy until you have tried every other way to make him mind. I, too, have a little boy four years old and a baby girl four months old. I have been married five years. Here is the way I correct my boy. I never whip him unless other methods fail. I talk to him and tell him why he should do as I say and if he asks why he should do so, I never say, "Because I said so." Is that an explanation as to why he should mind. Remember your child's mind is as small as his body and it takes longer for them to understand. Be patient with him. You say you have always been used to petting. Try a little of it on your child; he will like petting as well as you do. How many times a day do your children ask a little favor of you and you say, "I haven't time," or "not now," or "in a minute:" always some excuse. If you want your child to mind you I say to mind him once in a while.

May I ask a favor of the sisters? Have any of you directions for yokes for children's dresses in crochet? If so, will you send them to Comport for publication, as I would like to make some for my little girl.

Best Ways of Doing Things Around The Home

Cook green pea pods with the peas and you will find that the taste is much improved.

In making cakes or seasoning vegetables, try using cream instead of butter or meat drippings. It adds to their flavor.

Paint or varnish can be removed from the hands by applying grease or kerosene and then washing in warm water and soap.

A few drops of lemon juice added to a dish of cream will make it whip more quickly.—Mus. R. R. Golden Grand Marsh, Wis.

Rub pure lard on the heads of small chicks to kill head lice.

MES. BEETIE COLLINS, Ranger, R. R. 4, TELAS.

If there are ants in your refrigerator, place a small dish, or glass fruit jar lid, filled with kerosene under each foot of the refrigerator, and it will keep the ants

When nickel parts of the stoves become tarnished, dissolve a little lye in hot water and rub it over tarnished parts. Rinse with clear, warm water and dry with a soft cloth.—Mrs. L. B., New Meadows, Idaho. A few drops of red ink added to a pail of water makes a delightful "last" water in which to rinse flesh colored georgette crepe or silk waists that have lost their freshness. Red crepe paper may be used equally Save all your pieces of dry bread and put to soak in milk over night. In the morning make a pancake batter as usual and use the bread crumbs. It requires less flour. I use one third oatmeal or corn-meal.

MRS. W. H. Tokio, N. D.

To preserve eggs for winter, try putting them in oats. First a layer of oats and then place the eggs so they will not come in contact with each other or the box they are placed in. When the box is filled, nail the cover on and change the position of the box every week. Keep them in a cool place. I kept mine in the cellar nearly a year.

LORETTA A. GOSSWEILER, Dodge, N. Dak.

Requests

How to make candied citron

Song, "Bonnie Bunch of Roses." MRS. S. M. PEDIN, 1712 Mechanic St., GALVESTON, TEX.

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 25.)

Moving Picture Tie-Up RELIABLE TAILORING CO. 345 S. Peoria St., Chicago, III.

New Plan

All Worsted Serge

Pants Made to Order

Wonderful The greatest plan events thought of for high cla

EAL SUBMARINE, runs under water, dives, shoots torpedo, has ropeller, motor, steering rudder, automatic torpede gus. Gives resiling 25 sets Patriotic Post Cards at 10 cents a st Writz LUNER MFG. CO., 505 Mill St., CONCORD JUNCTION, MASS.

FREE Scientific Gem. Rivale diamond. Clade white, brilliant, flashing, deceives expected. Free examination. Write for bookiet today. Mich. Ave., Chicago white and weak from what had nearly wrecked his brain, stood up before the court.

The Girl He Loved

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 21.)

Carrousel glared at him. But the eyes he had once obeyed dumbly had lost their power. The boot-boy quivered, but he spoke:

"I was the boot-boy," he began timidly. "I did the cook's errands. He told me——"

"He lies!" yelled Carrousel, shaking his fist. "I beat and beat him because he was a llar, and lazy."

"You have not heard the lie yet," said the judge, coldly. "Another word, and you leave."

"He can't hurt me, can he?" cried Towers, pitifully. "Sir Thomas said he couldn't."

"He can't touch you. Go on," said the lawyer kindly.

"He can't touch you. Go on," said the lawyer kindly.

"He told me to pick some laurel leaves, bunches of them. He said they were to decorate the table. But I heard some one in the still-room while I was cleaning boots, and I looked in. He was chopping them up and making something. He didn't know there was a door in the boothole till I creaked it and he saw me. Then Sir Thomas' dog was poisoned, and I said to the cook that perhaps he'd got what he was making. For everybody knows laurel-water is poison."

A thrill ran through the court as he described the preparation of that devilish decoction of prussic acid that every one thought Lady Levallion had made. But Towers did not see.

TO BE CONTINUED.

Read The Whole Story Now!

FORT. Augusta, Maine.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine

See The Wonders Of War Through The Pan-Chro Scope!

If you have ever been to the "movies" and watched the magnificent spectacle of a fleet of Uncle Sam's huge battleships under full speed—or a thrilling infantry charge "over the top"—or gazed upon the melancholy ruins of a Belgian village—then you have some idea of what you see when you look at the same scene through the Pan-Chro Scope, only of course the objects are stationary—not moving.

The Pan-Chro Scope is a new invention—something like the stereoscope, but larger and more powerful, being fitted with twin stereo-lens of wonderful magnifying power. The war views are taken with a specially constructed double lens camera. On the back of each view is printed a complete and accurate description of the scene represented. You place the view in the Scope, adjust the focus to fit your eyes, and immediately you find yourself face to face with an astonishing lifelike scene that resembles a section of a moving-picture film. One moment you are on the deck of an American warship;—the next moment you are "somewhere in France" looking into a trench where an anti-aircraft gun is working;—next you find yourself among the barbed wire entanglements in "No Man's Land;"—again you are watching fierce house-to-house fighting in a trench where an anti-aircraft gun is working;—next you find yourself among the barbed wire entanglements in "No Man's Land;"—again you are watching fierce house-to-house fighting in a septiment of the firing line, and many other scenes of actual warfare just as interesting and exciting.

The different views take you direct to Belgium, to France, or wherever the place may be, and show you the scenes just as plainly as though you were there yourself.

48 Views Free With The Scope!

New views for the Pan-Chro Scope are con-New views for the Pan-Chro Scope are constantly coming out and we have made arrangements to send you a set of forty-eight views free with the Scope. Think of it! Forty-eight genuine war views—all different. Among them you will find such scenes as:

In a British Camp in France.

Deep Trenches Bitterly Contested in Battle of Ypres.

French Military Camp Near Rheims.

Barbed Wire Entanglements Protecting German Trenches.

Barbed Wire Entanglements Protecting German Trenches.

Allied Soldiers Firing From Trenches and Periscope in Use.

Anti-Aircraft Gun Being Worked in a Trench
Fighting the Germans House to House.
Beigian City Leveled to the Ground by German Bombardment.
Beigian Field Artillery on the Firing Line, and many other scenes just as interesting and exciting—forty-eight of them in all.

The Pan-Chro Scope should be in every COM-FORT home. It will prove a constant source of pleasure and instruction to every member of the family. Boys and girls attending school should have one. One look through the Scope will teach

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Given For A Club Of Four

them more than hours spent in hearing or reading descriptions.

Send for a Pan-Chro Scope today! Entertain and instruct yourself and family with these realistic war views right from the camera—views that show you war as it really is. We will send you one with a set of forty-eight views if you will accept the following

·

A tremendous and beau-tiful collection of sizzling hot, up - to - the - minute made - to - measure Fash-tons for Tall and Winter. 56 Fabrics

WHOLESALE

EARN MUSIC

AT HOME!

New Method—Learn to Play By Note— Piano, Organ, Violin,

Piano, Organ, Violin, Banjo, Mandolin, Cornet, Harp, 'Cello, Guitar, Trombone, Clarinet, Piccolo, Flute, Ukelele, Saxophone, or Sight Singing. Special Limited Offer of free weekly lessons. You pay only for music and postage, which is small. No extras. Begimers or advance pupils. Everything illustrated, plain, simple, systematic. Free lectures each course. 16 years success. Start at once. Write for Free Booklet Today—Now.

Today—Now.
SCHOOL OF MUSIC
Brunswick Bidg., New York City

Tan or Liver Spots positively removed by using Stillman's Freckle Cream. Preone purpose only—clearing the ou have freckles, write us today ree Booklet "Wouldst Thou Be Fair?" Stillman's Cream is sold by most druggists, 50c a jar, or direct from us, same price, prepaid. Write now. We can help you. Stillman Cream Co., Dept.10, Aurora, III.

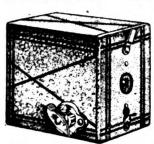

Premium No. 8483

THERE has been no Premium offer in years that has been so pleasing to our friends as this new Comb and Brush Set. The great beauty of this latest style dark green or Malachite finish on the back of brush with the SILVERINE shield for engraving initial or monogram has made this set one of the best as a present for birthday, wedding or any special occasion. The brush is affue inches long over 2 1-2 inches wide with splendid firm white bristles well fastened and should last for years. The Comb is black, seven inches long and one do one half inches wide with coarse and fine teeth.

Club Offer. For three one-year subscriptions to COMFORT at 35 cents-each, we will send this Set Free by parcel post prepaid. Premium No. 8483. Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

PREMO CAMERA

Roll Film Carridge and a complete Instruction Book. This is the well-known "Premo" camera, made by the Eastman Kodak Co., therefore you can depend upon it to produce the most pleasing and satisfactory results. It takes a picture 11-4 by 13-4 inches, is fitted with the best quality Meniscus lens and an automatic shutter sdapted for suap shots and time exposures. The pictures may be taken either the long way or the short way of the camera. It uses the regulation roll film carridge containing six exposures, and this may be put in the camera and taken out again in broad daylight, so that you don't have to go into a dark room every time you want to load the camera. Anybody can make good pictures with this camera. Being small and compact it is just the thing to carry with you to "snap" pictures of your friends, sports, etc. with. And remember, we send you not only the camera itself but also include One Six Exposure Roll Film Carridge and Instruction Book, all packed together in a strong box and sent to you Free by Parcel Post, prepaid, on the terms of the following special Club Offer. For a club of six one-year subscriptions to COMFORT at 35 cents each, we will send you by Parcel Post, prepaid, this Freme Camera with one Roll Film Cartridge containing six exposures and complete Instruction Book. Premium No. 7496.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Comfort Sisters' Corner

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 24.)

Cure for rheumatism and hay fever.

MRS. N. CURRISTON, TWINING, MICH. Poem, "The Women Who Went to the War." This was published twenty-five years ago in a Buffalo, N. Y.,

A COMFORT reader has requested the poems, "Over the Hills to the Poor House," and "Mother's Own Beautiful Hands."

Will some of the sisters send me some California Beer seed, the large kind. Will return favor.—Mrs. OPHELIA ALVIS, Brush Creek, Tenn.

OFHELIA ALVIS, Brush Creek, Tenn.

Poem, "Ostler Joe," beginning: "I stood at eve as the sun went down, by a grave where a woman lies."—Mrs. E. Saller, Eureka, Nev.

I would like words of song, "The Fatal Wedding." Will return favor. Please write first. Will send postage.

Mrs. IDA HOYLE, SCODEY, MONT.

Information of a Mr. Harris of Watsonville or San Jose, California, who used to make medicine for cancer.

Mrs. PEDRAS, TURLOCK, CAL.

Will some sister, who makes switches of our hate.

Will some sister who makes switches of cut hair please write to me.

MRS. BERTIE COLLINS, R. R. 4, RANGER, TEXAS.

Mrs. Fred Fetzner, Falls City, Nebr., would like the following poems: "The Two Glasses," "The Gin-gerbread Man," and poem beginning, "Father calls me William."

Would like to hear from readers living in Western states or any U. S. possessions, describing soil, climate, work and living conditions.—LUELLA SKELTON, R. R. 2, Auburn, Mich.

Cure for Indigestion.—Mix together five teaspoons of Epsom salts, one tablespoon of Turkish rhubarb, powdered, two tablespoons of sugar and one teaspoon of soda. Blend well together and take a little in water every half hour until relieved. I have known this to relieve gall stone spasms.

MRS. N. Curriston, Twining, Mich.

RHEUMATISM CURE.—This remedy was given fine by an Indian woman. Put a teaspoon of powdered sulphur in each of your stockings before putting them on in the morning. It will have disappeared by evening.

Bronchitis and Colds.—Put pine tar in a can and heat it smoking hot and breathe the fumes down deep into the lungs. It causes coughing and some are not strong enough to stand it. Also put some of the tar in a cup and fill with water and let it stand all day, then drink the water. Mrs. M. P., Wisconsin.

Missing Relatives and Friends

A suitable reward for information of Walter and Clifford Kennedy, age 12 and 10 years, formerly lived at Graham Hill, Sask. Mrs. Aug. W. Bucholz, Rock Lake N. Debt. at Graham Hi Lake, N. Dak.

Information about Clarence Lowery, black hair, brown eyes, dark complexion. If any one has seen or heard of him, please write Mrs. V. M. Lowery, Brewton, Ala. Information of my friend, Hoe H. Howard, with whom I used to work at Curtin, W. Va. His native state was Pennsylvania. Jesse J. Jackson, Worthington, W. Va.

News of Walter E. Akin, last heard of in Fairmont, Minn. J. D. Akin, Thompsonville, Ill.

Information of my father, Clinton Jones, or his children, Will and Elizabeth Jones, or any of his relatives. Last heard of near Tulsa, Okla., about 20 years ago. Write his daughter, Mrs. Ida Mac Miller, Ida, Okla. Would like to hear from Monroe Long or his wife, Maud. From his sister, May Pope, Hackett, Ark.

Comfort Post Card Requests

The following would like to correspond with other subscrib-ers for the exchange of souvenir post cards.

A. J. Warner, Box 86, Summit, N. Y.

The Escaped Convict

By Jane Hart

Copyright, 1918, by W. H. Gassett, Pab. Inc.

Some of the southwesters of the southwes For a Glub of Six!

We will also inclided free of charge one Six Exposure Roll Film Cartridge and a complete Instruction Book. This is the de by the Eastman epend upon it to processory results. It takes attended with the best stated with the stated with t someone hear!" Then suddenly I heard from the direction whence came the dogs, David's voice in a long "Whoo-ee!" And I looked to see him galloping ahead of the two farm hands, who followed on plow horses.

How slowly they seemed to come! "David! help!" I shouted. I ran to the cradle and snatched up my frightened, waking baby, and turned in time to see the bulldog close on the convict's throat. As David came near I pointed to the fence, and then, as he drew his pistol, everything went black. My arms about the baby grew limp, and we dropped to the floor in a heap.

When I regained consciousness I was lying in Three Wheel Chairs in August 484 is COMFORT'S Total to Date

Three wheel chairs in August seems like a big drop from the seven awarded in July, but I have learned to expect just such a tumble each summer during hot weather.

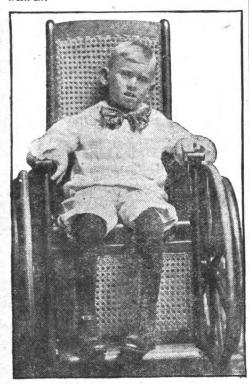

The three August chairs go to the following named shut ins and the figures after their names indicate the number of subscriptions sent in by them or by their friends for them.

Elvie L. I. Tutor, Randolph, Miss., 188; Josephine Rebecca Taylor E. Lexington, Va., 150; Mrs. Adella Evans, Ardmore, Okla., 133.

Elvie Tutor, age 5, has been crippled from birth by curvature of the spine. His mother, herself an invalid, writes that she is not strong enough to take care of her little crippled boy without the help of a wheel chair.

Josephine Taylor, age 15, is crippled by bone disease of the right leg. The subscriptions for her chair were obtained largely by school children of her acquaintance who canvassed the town for her.

Mrs. Adella Evans, age 59, has been afflicted with rheumatism for 23 years which has rendered her helpless except that she has sufficient use of her hands to feed herself. Her husband draws a small pension which is their only income. The wheel chair will enable him to take her out into the sunshine and

HARLON BERL LANE ENJOYING HIS COMFORT WHEEL CHAIR.

Please remember that there are many other crip-ples suffering for a COMFORT wheel chair fo enable them to get the benefit of sunshine and fresh air, and don't cease your efforts to help them just because the weather is hot. Give the Wheel-Chair Club a boost this month.

Sincerely yours,

W. H. GANNETT, Publisher of COMFORT.

P. S. For the information of our many new subscribers let me explain that for each and every 200 one-year subscriptions to COMFORT, at 35 cents each, sent in either singly or in clubs by persons who direct that they are to be credited to COMFORT'S WHEEL-CHAIR CLUB instead of claiming the premiums to which they would be entitled, I give a FIRST-CLASS INVALID WHEEL CHAIR to some needy crippled Shut-in and pay the freight, too. It is a large and expensive premium for me to give for that number of subscribers, but I am always glad to do my part a little faster each month than you do yours. Any shut-in who has friends to help him get subscriptions can obtain a wheel chair free. Write me for information.

Enjoys His Comfort Wheel Chair

DEAR MR. GANNETT:
We wish to thank you and the many frends who helped us get the wheel chair for Harlon, which came in good condition. I enclose photo of Harlon enjoying his wheel chair.

Sincerely your friend,
MRS. G. T. LANE.

COMFORT'S Roll of Honor

The Roll of Honor comprises the names of those who have sent five or more subscriptions to credit of the Wheel-Chair Club during the month previous. Following each name is the number of subscriptions sent.

lowing each name is the number of subscriptions sent.

W. O. Taylor, Va., for Josephine Rebecca Taylor, 150; Mrs. J. M. Aston, Miss., fo Elvie L. I. Tutor, 29; Mrs. M. E. Carson, Ark., for F. F. Carson, 27; Johnnie Watson, Tenn., for own wheel chair, 24; Mrs. Z. T. Isaacs, Va., for Isaac Price, 23; Mrs. Mary Whitenburg, Ala., for Johnnie Whitenburg, 22; Mrs. D. W. Brunson, Ill., for R. M. Sanders, 22; Mrs. D. W. Brunson, Ill., for R. M. Sanders, 22; Mrs. J. E. Warrick, Texas, for Mrs. Adella Evans, 21; D. W. Brunson, Ill., for R. M. Sanders, 21; Lizzle Goheen, Ky., for Naoma Goheen, 20; Mrs. J. H. Jenkins, Ga., for own wheel chair, 20; Joe McGregor, Miss., for Elvy Tutor, 20; Mrs. S. E. Furgerson, Miss., for Elvy Tutor, 20; Mrs. S. E. Furgerson, Miss., for Elvy Tutor, 20; Mrs. S. E. Furgerson, Miss., tor Elvy Tutor, 20; Mrs. S. E. Furgerson, Miss., for Elvy Tutor, 20; Mrs. S. E. Furgerson, Miss., for Elvy Tutor, 20; Mrs. S. L. E. Furgerson, Miss., for Elvy Tutor, 20; Mrs. S. Lula Matthews, Texas, for Clee Bailey, 18; Mrs. T. C. Satterfield, Tenn. for Mrs. J. H. Jenkins, 12; Mrs. I. E. Huddleston, Missouri, for Ira B. Huddleston, 12; Mrs. Lula Veonia Brown, Okla., for Harold Lester Brown, 12; Mrs. R. L. Burt, Okla., for Mrs. J. H. Jenkins, 10; Miss Jessie Parker, Calif., for Mrs. S. V. Hughey, 10; Clyde Tutor, Miss., for Elvy L. I. Tutor, 8; Mrs. C. R. Britt, Ga., for Mrs. J. H. Jenkins, 6.

Tay This.—She was waiting for him.
Gathering her brows like gathering storm, nursing her wrath to keep it warm, and when he entered the room she began:
"This is a nice time of night—"
"I—er—know I'm late," he hastily interrupted, "but I couldn't help it, my dear. Club had—er—big discussion on female beauty."
"And what had you to do with that?" demanded the fretful wife.
"More'n any one there. I was the one—er—who had the most beautiful wife, an'—er—of course, the best authority on female beauty, an—"
"Why don't you take off your overshoes, Henry? Let me get your slippers for you. It's awful cold outside; I think you must be half frozen."
Half an hour later Henry was safely ensconed in his easy-chair with his wife at his feet putting his slippers on.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Family

Doctor

The remedies and advice here given are intended only for simple cases; serious cases should be taken to your local doctor.

Address The Family Doctor, COMFORT, Augusta,
Maine. Sign your true name and give your address.
Name will not be published.

Mrs. E. S., Willow Shade, Ky.—The burning and irritation of the tongue is probably due to Rigg's disease of the teeth, so-called. You should have your teeth cleaned by some competent dentist at once, and after they are cleaned and any cavities filled that may be found there, you should use milk of magnesia to rinse out the mouth once or twice daily. It is also important to look into your general health. Maybe you have some kidney complication, or you may be rheumatic, causing excessive acidity of the secretions of the mouth, especially of the saliva, hence the local irritation and the deposit of tartar about the teeth. Pain in the ear, mentioned, is undoubtedly due to the same condition as above, and is secondary to this condition. Consult a good dentist and have the mouth cease.

MRS. G. A., Liboll, Tenn.—Warts are best removed by the use of the actual cautery, as described so ofter in COMFORT. Of course a physician must apply the cautery, and attend to the subsequent treatment.

MES. N. S., Allens, Ark.—Cancer of the breast is first noticed in precisely the same way as described in your letter. A lump begins to form in the breast, becomes larger, and finally results in a malignant growth, if not attended to at once. Surgical procedures are always indicated in conditions of this kind. The sooner the growth is removed the better, and the more probability of cure.

"WORRIED SNOOKS," Fort Meade, Fla.—A properly adjusted corset will help you stop the "flopping of your breast." You can also use gentle massage to make them firm, also dash cold water on them daily for the same purpose.

MRS. M. E. P., Cumberland, Md.—Operation is the only thing for you. The operation known as ventro fixation is the one indicated, we think, in your case. Don't delay, as the tissues become lax and the result not so good if you delay too long. Have operation done at once.

MRs. R. S., Griggsville, Ill.—Your spots are undoubtedly due to the irregularity of your bowels. Get some aromatic cascara mixture at the druggist's and take one or two teaspoonfuls at bedtime. This will regulate your bowels, and no doubt cure your dull headache also. It might be well to supplement the cascara mixture, once in a while, with two compound cathartic pills taken at night. Say once in two or three weeks.

weeks.
R. H. D., Choctaw, Ala.—Pimples on the face, as a rule, are due to some error in diet. Keep your bowels free, eat no sweets, drink plenty of good spring water and bathe frequently in cold water.
R. G. S., Blaine, Wash.—You must have an operation for the rectal fistula. It is easily cured in this way. Your other trouble is undoubtedly dependent on the local condition, and will be relieved or cured by the operation indicated.

Mrs. R. S. V., Slate Springs, Miss.—Use Dobell's

Mrs. R. S. V., Slate Springs, Miss.—Use Dobell's solution locally for your nasal catarrh. As to your other condition, you should consult your family doctor and have your lungs examined, as well as your throat, for the presence of some more serious trouble. Milk, warm from the cow, will not cure or even help constipation. Use aromatic cascara, so often referred to in COMPORT.

in COMFORT.

L. E., Spangle, Wash.—Blood pressure is the force of the heart as measured by an instrument known as the sphygmomanometer. It must be taken by a physician, and has a great bearing on the health of the individual. From your letter, you should have your blood pressure taken, as well as your kidney condition looked into. Your circulation has no doubt much to do with swelling of feet and extremities mentioned.

mentioned. Man Market Huntington, W. Va.—No! Mrs. J. R. B., West Huntington, W. Va.—No! Some good has been accomplished, recently, in selected cases, by operation—so-called decompression operation, but in the main, epilepsy has so far baffled the best physicians, and as before indicated, is considered incurable.

MR. J. P. G., Gresham, Oregon.—You should wear an elastic bandage. Apply the bandage in bed before rising and remove the bandage at night on retiring. The breaking out on the legs is no doubt due to obstruction of the return circulation—venose circulation. The bandaging will help the return circulation, and no doubt cure the local trouble.

no doubt cure the local trouble.

MRS. A. L., Houlka, Miss.—Read the above case and treatment and act accordingly. Your trouble is the same. You might, in addition, apply an oxide of zinc ointment to the swelling. There is an oxide of zinc ointment in regular strength, put up by the druggist. Use it full strength. Catarrh can possibly be cured by operation or treatment. Have your father use Dobell's solution, as a spray in the nostrils daily.

Mrs. V. G., Spokane, Wash.—The spots before your eyes come from your stomach. You should not eat much meat, if any. Drink plenty of good water also. You no doubt are overworked and need rest away from home and home surroundings. This will do you more good than medicine.

Mas. F. N., New Brighton, Pa.—The electric needle, in the hands of a competent party or physician, is the only real cure for the condition mentioned in your letter. The process is a slow one, as each hair must be treated separately, but the result is all that can be desired.

MRS. M. E., Bronson, Texas.—Massage of the bust the best thing to develop the bust. Use cocoa but-er and rub the bust gently once a day.

MRS. E. F., Dallas City, Ill.—Apply Lassar's paste to the part, full strength, twice a week only, and report the result.

Tapestry Table Cover

Given For A Club of Four

THIS beautiful, fringed Tapestry Table Cover is nearly one yard square which is a size large enough for any stand or small table and is very elaborately made up in handsome -colors on an interwoven background which is of a color that harmonizes with the fringe which extends entirely around the cover. Add one or more of these beautiful colored covers to the furnishings of any room and it will enliven and cheer up the whole atmosphere of your home. They are just as durable as they are handsome and taken altogether are something any woman should be pleased to own and display. We will send you this Table Cover, exactly as described, if you will accept the following Club Offer. For four one-year subscriptions to you this Tapestry Table Cover free by Parcel Post prepaid. Premium No. 7784.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

How Three Big Men Made Good

Men Made Good

By Carl Jchuz Lowden

HE annual income of the oil king, John D. Rockefeller, is incomprehensible. He seemed to have an innare knowledge of how to save and he started with a big bunch of grit as his working capital. At the outset of his career he lived at a cost of a dime a day. With this lone daily dime he paid for his food, his lodging and his clothing. This phenomenal man also attributes his success to the good advice his mother gave him. He says she taught him to analyze a situation, to see its opportunities for profit, and to make everything count.

"When I became a partner in a grocery," he confessed upon one occasion, "I got some barrels of beans cheap because there were many black ones among them. I expected to sell them cheap, too, but my mother said:

"John, put in all your spare time, night and day sorting these beans. Then they will be of extra quality, and you can sell them at an extra price."

"For weeks I worked, picking over those beans by night, throwing out the black ones. It was a lesson I have never forgotten. Through me my mother says to all young men: "Throw the worthless out of your life, make everything count.'

In an Allegheny cotton mill there was once a bobbin boy who was paid the princely sum of twenty cents a day for his labor. He saved a portion of his daily wage, and as a worker he gave his employer extra value. He seized opportunities. With pluck and persistence he constantly made good.

When Andrew Carnegie reached seventy-six years of age, the one-time bobbin boy is the Allegheny cotton mill had amassed two hundred and fifty millions of dollars in stock, real estate and fifty millions of dollars in stock, real estate and interest of the prince of Philadelphia, never had this magnificent opportunity. He began work with a publishing house at the low figure of $1.50 per week or twenty-five cents a day. Just think of that! Somebody set down the recipe of his success:

"He was painstakingly prompt, polite and acceptably active: and he mounted up into prosperity step by By Carl Schuz Lowden

Silk Remnants

Premium No. 5561

All Sizes, Shapes and Colors-A Large Package Sent You For One Subscription (not your own)

Remnants of real silk, in all shapes, sizes and colors. They are carefully trimmed and just what you need for making up beautiful quilts, tidies, pillow tops and all kinds of "crazy patchwork." We will send you a package containing more than one hundred of these beautiful silk pieces and 5 skeins embroidery cotton in different bright colors. If you order at once we will also send you, in addition to everything else an Instruction Book with eight full-page illustrations showing how to ornament seams of crazy patchwork and other work where fancy stitches are used. It tells you how to put pieces of patchwork together to get the best effect, how to cover up-seams with fancy stitches, how to join the edges, etc. This book illustrates over one hundred and flify of these besides containing full and explicit directions for working the Outline and Heasington Stitch, Arrasene and Chemille Embroidery, ribbon work, plush or tuffed stitch, also directions for Hensington painting. Remember you get one nice lot of these Silk Remnants (over 100 pieces), 5 skeins Embroidery Cotton and an instruction Book, as above described, all sent to you free by Parcel Post prepaid if you will accept the following Free Offer. For one one-year subscription (not cents we will send you one package of these Silk Remants, free by parcel post prepaid. Premium No. 5561. Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

THEY are in the midst of death and desolation. Their spirits must be kept up. They need the inspiration that comes from friendly words from home. It is only a small thing for them to ask for, but a very important thing for us to do—to write, and write frequently. This is just as necessary for victory as the shipping of food, arms and ammunition. If you have a friend or a loved one in the service, write, write, write. Whether he is in training camp, or in the trenches, let him know that he is not forgotten. Send him long, cheerful letters telling about the little intimate things that are happening in the home-what his friends are doing all the neighborhood events that he is interested in. To be sure, they may seem small to you, but he will read them with absolute joy. Then again, don't wait for replies. Write again—and again. And in between your letters send him post cards—lots of them.

Stirring, Patriotic Post Card Messages To Soldiers! A Big Package Mailed You Free!

There are thousands of COMFORT homes from which son, brother or husband has answered his country's call. To each of these homes we want to send a package of these Post Cards. If you have no near relatives in the service then you need these cards to send to your friends and acquaintances who have gones.

If you have no near relatives in the service them you these cards to send to your friends and acquaintances who have gone.

Beautiful-inspiring—patrictic—they are just the thing to mail to soldiers anywhere. There are 24 cards in the package, every one different, but all carrying an appropriate message or tender words of greeting and remembrance to some soldier boy who is now fighting for you. You will be delighted with these cards—and so will the boy who receives them. The striking designs, showing President Wilson, the American Flags, Flags of the Allied Nations, Shields and other patrictic emblems, are all highly embossed in the most beautiful colors, while the verses of greeting, good wishes, etc., are cleverly worked into the designs in a most artistic manner.

The cards themselves are of regulation post card size—3½x 5½ inches—and there are the usual spaces for the address and any personal message you may care to write yourself.

We want to give a package of these cards to every COM-FORT reader who has a friend or loved one fighting for Unde Sam. You need them—they are the finest, most appropriate message to soldiers ever thought of. Nothing like them was ever seen before. They will be treasured for years as souvenits of the great war. If you have no son, brother, husband or sweetheart "over there," some of your friends or neighbors have. Write to them! Send them letters, and one of these Patriotic Post Cards every now and then. Remember, they are everlasting peace for the whole world.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Our Special Offer

W E shall send you a package of these beautiful, patriotic Post Cards—24 cards in allif you will send us one one-year subscription (not your own), to COMFORT at 35 cents. Remember, it must not be your own subscription, but the subscription of some friend or neighbor. You will receive the cards by mail postpaid. If you want more than one package, you can have them by sending one one-year subscription (not your own), at 35 cents for each package wanted. Better send for at least two packages right away. You will need them. Premium No. 8271.

his aid his a d his sid his sid his sid

The Emporium of Bargains and Opportunities

Pithy Little Advertisements that are Interesting, Instructive and Profitable to Read, for they put you wise to the newest and best in the market and keep you in touch with the world's progress.

AGENTS WANTED

Agents: New vulcanized rubber apron. Acid-proof, grease-proof, water-proof. Five sizes. Needs no laundering. Sells in every home, to men and women in factories, laundries, restaurants, etc. Write for samples. Thomas Apron Co., 4119 North St., Dayton, O.

Large Man'f'r wants agents to sell shirts, underwear, hosiery, dresses, waists, skirts, direct to homes. Write for free samples, Madison Mills, 503 Broadway, N. Y. City.

Sell Insyde Tyres, inner armour for auto tires double mileage, prevents punctures and blow-outs, big profits. Details Free. Am-erican Accessories Co., Dept. 1110, Cincinnati.

How Much Gasoline can you sell at 2c per gallon? World tests for three years to prove it. Secure exclusive rights for your county. "Carbonvoid," Box "G", Bradley Beach, N. J.

We Start You without a Dollar. Scaps, Extracts, Perfumes—ToiletGoods. Experience unnecessary. CarnationCo., 31 So. Main, St. Louis.

Agents $40 a week selling new lantern, 300 candle power. Burns coal-oil. Can't set fire to anything, Burns in all kinds of weather. Rainproof, wind-proof, bug-proof. Sells everywhere. Write for agency and sample. Thomas Lantern Co., 4219 North St., Dayton, Ohlo.

$10 to $15 per day handling new house-hold articles. Big war time sellers. All on spare time. Outfi free. Territory going fast. Write quick. Duo Co., Dept. W. 40, Attica, N.Y.

Agents Profits—Our plan beats anything ever before offered. Goods practically sell themselves. "Horoco," 131 Locust, St. Louis, Mo.

Agents! Quick Sales! Big Profits! Out-at Free! Cash or credit. Sales in every home for our beautiful Dress Goods, Hosiery, Under-wear, etc. National Importing & Mfg. Co., Dept. H 2, 425 Broadway, New York.

Agents—Pair Silk Hose Free. State size & color. Beautiful line direct from mill. Good profits. Agents wanted. Write today. Triple-wear Mills, Dept. G, 1524 Chestnut St., Phila., Pa.

Young Man, please wear this suit and show it to your friends. Write for book of free samples, latest styles and wonderful offer. Banner Tailoring Co., Dept. 564 Chicago, Ill.

Agents—Get particulars of the best paying household proposition ever offered. Great demand—large profits—$2000 yearly. Address for particulars. E. M. Feltman, Mgr., 7415 Third St., Cincinnati, O.

Agents. Sell rich looking 36x68 imported Rugs, $1 each; Carter, Tenn., sold 115 in 4 days, profit $57; you can do same. Write for sample offer selling plan; exclusive territory. Sample rug by parcel post prepaid 98c. E. Condon, Importer, Stonington, Maine.

American Military Styles are all the rage in men's tailored to measure suits this season. Easiest to sell; everybody wants them. Far ahead of all others in real class and beauty. Lowest prices,—less than common ready-made suits. Our Agents are coining money. You can earn $10 daily. Send for full particulars, terms and sample book of styles and patterns. American Woolen Mills Co., Dept. 907, Chicago, Ill.

Want Reliable, Energetic Investors to sell locally, established proven oil stocks and Pirst Mortgage Real Estate bonds. Write for circulars. L. N. Rosenbaum & Co., 135 Broadway, New York.

Hobbies of Our Presidents

By Carl Schurz Lowden

Telling a joke was the hobby of "Honest Abe" Lincoln. As a prelude to talking over the proposed Emancipation Proclamation, he told the cabinet members he would die if he could not laugh occasionally.

John Adams and his son, John Quincy, leved the rod and line. They loved it too well, for neither of them obtained a coveted second term at Washington. Grover Cleveland, also a confirmed fisherman, failed of re-election but tried again and succeeded four years later.

Horse-racing delighted the heart of George Washington. He made many trips from New York to Philadelphia to see the fascinating sport. His own letters reveal his immense pleasure at joining in the fox chase and hunting wild game.

In the matter of horse-trading, Andrew Jackson was an expert. He was a failure at donkey-trading, for the lot he gave for a fine animal is now in the heart of New York City. "Old Hickory" also for a fine animal is now in the heart of New York City. "Old Hickory" also knew a thing or two about wrestling and boxing which were his favorite sports.

"At sixty years of age," an author comments upon Grant, champion smoker among our presidents, "the General felt he had earned a rest, and being 'healthy, wealthy and wise,' settled down to smoke his ever-present cigar in a comfortable home in East Sixty-sixth street, New York."
Romping with his children was the York."

Romping with his children was the hobby of Garfield. One day his son, Harry, came into his room and, turning a handspring, asked: "Don't you wish you could do that?"
"I think I can," the President replied.

"I think I can," the President replied. Though not as nimble as his youthful son, he accepted the challenge and performed the stunt in short order.

The luxuries of the table appealed strongly to William Henry Harrison, and his few days at Washington were dotted with visits to the market. In a huge basket he carried to the White House the results of his bargaining.

Madison delighted in roses and used his odd moments in cultivating them. The famous Madison Meadows were produced by him. The hobbies of William McKinley, for whom we appropriately wear a carnation one day in each year, were flowers and croquet.

The Germans have seized the rolling stock and equipment of the trolley line from Maestricht to Lanacken (Belgian Limburg). Rails have been shipped to Germany. The occupying authorities are also pursuing the same policy with the southern trolley lines of Limburg. are also pursuing the same policy with the southern trolley lines of Limburg and the line of Northern Liege.

TOILET ARTICLES

Freckles Positively Removed, by Dr. Berry's Freckle Ointment, or money back. By mail, 45c. Free Booklet. Dr. C. H. Berry Co., 2975 Michigan Ave., Chicago.

Make Your Own Hair Tonic. A bottle of P. T. Compound will make I quart of good Hair Tonic and Dandruff Remover just by adding water. $1.00 by mail. P. T. Ufheil, Lock Box'561, Huntington, Ind.

STORY WRITERS WANTED

Authors:—Stories, poems, photo plays etc. are wanted for publication. Submit Mss. Literary Bureau, C4, Hannibal, Mo.

HELP-MALE AND FEMALE

Earn $25 Weekly, writing for news-papers, magazines. Experience unnecessary; details Free.Press Syndicate, 451 St. Louis, Mo.

MOTION PICTURE PLAYS

Phôtoplay Ideas Wanted By 48 Companies. $25-$500 paid. Experience unnecessary details Free. Producers League, 311, St. Louis.

BOOKS

"From The Ball Room To Hell" mailed anywhere 25c. L. E. Muncy, 136 E. Pleasant Ave., X, Syracuse, N. Y.

PHOTOPLAYS, STORIES

Wanted—Men and women ambitious to make money writing Stories and Movie Plays. Send for wonderful Free Book that tells how. AddressWriters' Service, Dept.31, Auburn, N.Y.

ROOTS, HERBS, ETC.

$5.00 a Day Gathering Evergreens, Roots and Herbs. Ginseng, $141b.; Belladonna Seed, $84 lb., or grow it yourself. Book and war prices free. Botanical-2, New Haven, Conn.

FEMALE HELP WANTED

Wanted ten bright, capable ladies to avel, demonstrate and sell well known goods travel, demonstrate and sell well known goods to established dealers. $25.00 to $60.00 per week; railroad fare paid; weekly advance for traveling expenses. Address at once. Good-rich Drug Company, Dept. $2, Omaha, Neb.

Thousands women wanted. Government War positions. $190 month. List Free. Frank-lin Institute, Dept. T 9, Rochester, N. Y.

We Have Customers who will buy from you tea aprons and dust caps in dozen lots. They also want fancy work of all kinds—Embroid-ery, Crecheting and Tatting. Send 20e for pat-terns and prices. Returned if dissatisfied. Ken-wood Sales Shops, 6238 S. Park Ave., Chicago.

Be Expert Dress Designers. $125 month. Sample lessons free. Write immediately. Franklin Institute, Dept.T 850,Rochester,N.Y.

MALE HELP WANTED

Government Pays $900 to $1800 yearly. Prepare for coming "exams" under former Civil Service Examiner. New Book Free. Write Patterson Civil Service School, Box J-15, Rochester, N. Y.

Male Help Wanted. Firemen, Brakemen, Baggagemen, $140-$200 monthly. Colored Por-ters, by raliroads everywhere. Experience un-necessary. $28 Ry. Bureau, East St. Louis, Ill.

HELP WANTED

Men and Women Wanted, 18 to 80, to fill thousands of vacancies and new positions in Government Service in Washington and else-where. Permanent, higher salaries, patriotic work, easy hours, paid vacations. Quick ap-pointments. Write for free Book RE, listing positions. Washington Civil Service School, 2004 Marden Bldg., Washington, D. C.

MICH. FARM LANDS FOR SALE

Michigan's Best Hardwood Land. 10 to 160 A. $15 to $30 per A. Small payments. Pree insurance. Farm advisers. R. R. fare with sale. Fine grain, stock, fruit land. Towns, schools, churches, markets. Big booklet free. Swigart Land Co., C1246 First Nat'l Bk. Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

PIGS FOR SALE

O.I.C. Hogs, Large, Prolific, prize winning blood Bred Sows. 60 service boars. Pr. pigs mated $25. W. D. Ruebush, Macomb, Ill.

Comfort's Comicalities

PATENT ATTORNEYS

Patents, Write for List of Patent Buyers and Inventions Wanted. $1,000,000 in prizes offered for inventions. Send sketch for free opinion as to patentability. Our four books sent free. Patents advertised free. Victor J. Evans & Co., 641 Ninth, Washington, D. C.

Patents Promptly Procured.1818 Edition Patent book free. High class service. Fees reasonable. Send sketch for actual search and report. George P. Kimmel, Patent Lawyer, 27-I Oriental Building, Washington, D. C.

Wanted An Idea! Who can think of a wanted an Idea: Who can taink of some simple thing to patent? Protect your ideas. They may bring you wealth Write for "Needed Inventions" and list of "Patent Buyers." Ran-dolph & Co., Dept. 112, Washington, D. C.

Millions spent annually for ideas! Hundreds now wanted! Patent yours and profit! Write today for free books—tell how to protect yourself, how to invent, ideas wanted, how we help you sell, etc., 203 Patent Dept., American Industries, Inc., Washington, D. C.

Ideas Wanted—Manufacturers are writing for patents procured through me. Four books with hundreds of inventions wanted sent free. I help you market your invention. Advice Free. B. B. Owen, 18 Owen Bldg., Wash. D. C.

Invent Something. Your ideas may bring wealth. Send Postal for Free book. Tells what to invent and how to obtain a patent through our credit system. Talbert & Talbert, 4206 Talbert Building, Washington, D. C.

MOUING PICTURE BUSINESS

Big Profits—Small Investment—Com-plete Guaranteed Moving Picture outfit fur-nished on Easy Payment Plan. No experience needed. We start you successfully. Free Cata-log. Dept. M1, Monarch Film Service, 228 Union Ave., Memphis, Tenn.

$15.00 to $20.00 Nightly on small investment. Complete Moving Picture Outfit, Machine, Film, etc. at manufacturers Prices sold on installments. Free catalog. Moving Picture Sales Co., 540 Plymouth Place, Dept. OT, Chicago.

$75.00 buys complete professional Moving Picture Outfit Machine Films supplies. Make big money. Small investment. Write fer Par-ticulars. Ellsworth Film Co., Dept.SD, 537 Sc. Dearborn St., Chicago.

FOR THE GARDEN

Frost Proof Cabbage Plants, leading varieties, $2.00 per 1000 not prepaid. Clark Plant Co., Thomasville, Ga.

"Jest for Fun"

Lost Property

"Look here, young rascall Did you break that window?"
"No, sir. Honest, I didn't.
"Do you know who did break it?"
"No, sir; I don't know anything about it at all."

"Well, get away from here. I don't want you kids hanging around in front of my house."

"All right, mister. Will you please give me my ball before I go?"

"Give you your ball? Where is it?"

"I think it's in your front parlor."—

Louisville Herald.

Taken by Storm

The cruel winds tore at the waves as if to whirl them away. The man and the maid sat close to-gether on the beach and watched the storm.

storm.

"How the wind howls, darling," said she, yelling to make herself heard.

"Yes," shrieked her lover.

"Why does it howl?" she screamed.

"Dunno. Perhaps it's got the toothache," he bellowed.

"The toothache?" she howled. "However—"

"Yes," he roared. "Haven't you heard of the teeth of the gale?"

Then the wind howled worse than ever, as she handed him back the engagement as she namuel ring.—Stray Stories.

For Safety Sake

Few things have suffered a bigger smack from the desolating hand of war than wood. At the present time a bun-dle of firewood of most delicate physique costs a penny.

A watchman was discovered asleep minus his wooden leg, and a friendly wayfarer awoke him with the exclamation:

"Hey, man, they've stolen your leg."
The sleeper sat up and glowered.
"Did ye think," said he, sarcastically,
"that I wud gang tae sleep in this locality wi' onything about me for burnin? The wife tas awa' my leg every night and brings it back i' the mornin.'" —Pearson's Weckly.

An Omission

The head nurse—"Stop it! Are you trying to shake that sick man's ribs

The substitute nurse—"No, not that. But I just gave him his medicine and I forgot to shake it, as you told me to, so I'm doing it now."—Boston Herald.

Hot Shot

Mother wanted Fannie to marry the millionaire. Father wanted her to marry the poor man.

"You married for love yourself, my dear, did you not?" smiled father sentimentally.
"Yes," answered the mother decisively, "and you don't suppose I'm going to stand by and see our daughter make the same mistake, do you?"—Boston Herald.

"These short skirts are rather bewildering."

"Yes, it isn't safe any more to offer to take what you think is a little girl on your lap."—Kansas City Journal.

A Note to Mr. Hoover

Dear Herbert—Today at a luncheon I ate, And wheatlessly there I maneuvered; As clean as the back of your hand was my plate,

I hoovered and hoovered.

—Philadelphia Ledger.

The Hello Girl

How doth the busy hello girl Out-buzz the busy bee Especially betwixt the hours Of niun and thuree.

Diner—"Look here! Isn't that a hair on the butter?" Waiter—"Yes, sir, a cow's hair. We always serve one with the butter to show that it isn't oleomargarine—Tid-Bits.

Proving It

Father sat in his study one afternoon writing out a speech when his son called shrilly from the garden: "Dad! Look out of the window!"
"What a nuisance children are at times!" grumbled the parent, as he put down his pen and advanced to the windown his pen and advanced to

dow. With a half smile he raised the sash and stuck forth his head. "Well, Harry, what is it?" he asked.
The boy, from a group of youngsters, called out: "Dad, Tommy Perkins didn't believe that you had no hair on the top of your head."—Onward.

ory. "'Did you mail A Lesson in Politeness

E. H. R. Green, son of the late Hetty Green, tells this one on himself. His office boy came rushing in one morning and said:

"Say, there's a great ball game on this afternoon. Kin I go?"
Green looked at the boy a moment and then said:

Now, Johnny, you sit here and make then said:

Now, Johnny, you sit here and make believe you're I and I'll make believe I'm you, and I'll show you how you should have come in and said that."

Green went out. A minute later the diverges. It and dropped it in the first letter box I came to on C gress street."

"Oh, you did, did you,' she answe with a laugh, 'well I didn't happen give you any.'"—Portland Express.

door opened softly, he came in and turning toward the desk he said;
"There's a ball game this afternoon, sir. Do you think I could get off for a few hours to see it?"
"Sure," replied the boy, "and here's "Sure," replied the boy, "and here's a quarter to get in with."

Their Fortunes Made

Pat and Mike enlisted in an English regiment and were promised three shillings each for every German they killed. One night when both were on duty in an observation post, Mike, whose eyes had been glued on the Teuton line, turned excitedly to Pat and whispered, "They're coming."

"Who's coming?" retorted Pat.
"The Germans," answered Mike.
"How many?" queried Pat.
"Fifty thousand," Mike replied.
"Begorra, Mike, our fortunes are made," exclaimed Pat.—Portland Express.

Has His Own Troubles.

There was an expressman, alas and alack! Who tumbled down-stairs with a stove on his back.

When asked how he felt, he replied with a frown,
"I'm somewhat stove up, but I got the stove down."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

There was an expressman, who suffered shocks!
Fell headlong down-stairs as he carried a box.
As he looked at the pieces, he said with a grin,

"Now I'm out of that man's box, what a box I am in!"—Detroit Free Press. There was an expressman, alack and alas!

alas!
Who plunged down the stairs through a big looking glass.
He stared at the pieces with a scowl and with squint—
And made some, reflections that no one could print.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

There was an expressman, alas and alack!

Who staggered upstairs with a trunk on his back.
When three flights he'd climbed, much to his dismay,
He learned that the owner had just moved away.—Portland Press. He

Once He Guessed Wrong

on Co

"My wife put one over on me last night," said one of Portland's leading lawyers, who is long on legal lore and short on mem-that letter I gave you this morn-ing?' she asked me when I got home.

"'Certainly,

my dear, I replied, I carried it in my hand so I wouldn't forget it and dropped it in the first letter box I came to on Con-

COINS AND STAMPS BOUGHT

Will pay $100.00 For Trade Dollar 1885; $7.00 for 1893 Quarter without arrows; $750.00 for certain $5.00 gold without motic. Cash pre-miums for rare coins to 1912. Get posted. Send dc. Get our Large Coin Circular. Numiumatic Bank, Dept. 6, Fort Worth, Texas.

PHOTO FINISHING

Mail Us 10c with any size film for develop-ment and six velvet prints. Best material, Skilled operators. Get our book. Roanoké Photo Finishing Co., 228 Bell Avc., Roanoké, Va.

Special Trial Offer. Your next Kedak film developed 5c. Prints 2c each. Moser & Son, 2122 St. James Ave., Cincinnati, O.

Any Size Kodak Film developed 10c, six rints Pree with first roll; or send six negaprints Free with first roll; or send six nega-tives and ile for trial. Ask for Bargain Price-list. Shea & Williams, 2076 E. Third St., Dayton, Ohio.

Films developed free. High class work, perfect prints at 3 to 7c. We do the best work in the Photo City. Remit with your order and get returns same day. Bryans Drug House, Rochester, N. Y.

SALESMEN WANTED

Salesmen—To sell Oils, Belting, Hose, Paint, Varnish, to factories, mills, auto own-ers, stores, threshers, outside large cities. Ex-cellent proposition. Paid weekly, O. L. Doty, Century Building, Cleveland, Ohio.

MUSIC FOR SALE

War Song, latest. Title, "Be A Pilgrim," Sent any address in the states 10 cents silver. Cordell Music Co., Kearney, Mo.

INVENTIONS

Have you a practical invention to sell outright or place on royalty? Send details to Adam Fisher Mfg. Co., $1 A, St. Louis.

INTEREST TO WOMEN

Manual Voluntary Aid 1606 20th St., N., W., Washington, D. C. Twenty-five cents. Directions for woman's war work. Order

Women. The best kitchen-floors you ever had. Made from your old carpets and my pre-paration. Easy to clean and wears for years, Better than linoleum. Send 15 cts. for for-mula. Box 239 G. St. Station, Akron, O.

BOYS AND GIRLS

Boys & Girls. Send us your name and we will send you 10 beautiful war pietures. Including Over The Top, Liberty For All, For Ever, Duty Calle, and many others. Seil them at 20c each. When sold send us $1.00, you keep $1.00 Bverybody buys. Yankee Studio, 2064 W. Lake St. Dept. A, Chicago.

PHONOGRAPHS AND RECORDS

The Riverside Phonograph from factory to you $35, $50, $75. Free catalog. Agents wanted. 16 Columbia Records 60c. Riverside Phono. Co., Milwaukee, Wis.

Ten Commandments of the French Consumer

the French Consumer

During the War

The economic and social section of the League of Patriots, with headquarters in Paris, Rue Stc. Anne, has distributed a leasiet urging the French to endure without complaint the restrictions imposed upon them in the interest of their country. The following is a copy:

"(1). Do not forget that we are at war. In your smallest expenditures never lose sight of the interests of the native land.

"(2). Economize on the products necessary for the life of the country: Coal, bread, meat, milk, sugar, wine, butter, beans, cloths, leather, oil. Accept rations. Ration yourself as to food, clothing, amusements.

"(3). Save the products of French soil, lest some day you deprive your father, your son, your husband, who are shedding their blood to defend you.

"(4). Save the products that France must buy from foreign countries. Do not drain reserves of gold which are indispensable to victory.

"(5). Waste nothing. All waste is acrime which imperils the national defense—prolongs the war.

"(6). Buy only according to your selfishness raises prices and deprives those of smaller means of things indispensable to existence.

"(7). Do not travel unnecessarily. Reflect that our trains are, before all, destined for the transportation of the troops, the feeding of the population, the needs of our natural production.

"(8). Do not remain idle. According to your ageand your ability work for your country. Do not consume without producing. Idleness is desertion.

"(9) Accept without murmuring the privations which are imposed upon you. Reflect upon the sufferings of those whe are fighting for you, upon the marry-dom of the population whose hearths have been devastated by the enemy.

"(10). Remember that victory belongs to those who can hold out a quarter of an hour the longest.

"That France may live, she must be victorious." During the War

Real Affluence

Our idea of wealth beyond the dreams of avarice would be to be in a position to subscribe a cool $100 to every one of the worthy causes now confronting us is such numbers and not feel it especially.

—Ohio State Journal.

The Next Greatest Peril

When Edison discovers a method at safety from the submarine peril he might tackle the automobile.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

This Special

Upholstered

Rocker

Sent for Only $1

Frame is entirely of kiln dried hardwood, kiln dried hardwood, exposed parts genuine oak with bent rocker runners. Handsome golden finish. Four easy, strong springs in seat, supported on steel bands. Upholstered in brown imitation Spanish leather. Height of seat from floor 16 inches. Height of back from back from floor back from Price $6.99.

Send $1.00 now.

Bal. 75c per month.

Chicago warehouse or factory in Western New York State.

Vulcan Hot-Blast

Here is a wonderfully efficient and intense heating stove which will save fuel for you. Guaranteed high quality. Hot blast makes perfect combustion and burns up the smoke and gas. Full black cast iron base. Wedge joint securely holds body to fire pot. Handy shaker door. Neat design, handsome finish, durable. Ash pan free. Diameter fire pot 15½ in., body 15 in. Height 50 in. Feed door opening 12x8 in. Floor space 21x21 in., Fipe collar 6 in. Note plain near Colonial columns and handsome design. Shipped from foundry in Central Ohio. Shog. wt. abt. 156 lbs. Order by No. 387TMA16. Price $18.75. Send $1 now. Balance $2.00 per month.

Brings Any Article Shown Here Mammoth Bargain Catalog is Yours

The famous Hartman credit plan makes it easy for you to have highest quality furnishings without feeling the cost. Anything you select from this ad sent for only $1 with order. Use it 30 days. Then, if for any reason you are not satisfied, return it. We will refund your $1 and pay freight both ways. If you keep it, pay on our easy credit terms. Pay all at one time if you wish but the price is no more if you buy on credit.

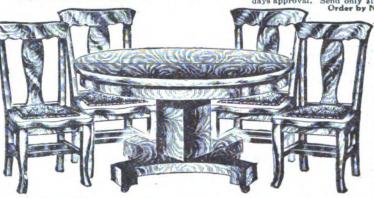

This offer comes from a house with a record of over 60 years for giving the greatest values—a house with $12,000,000.00 capital. You choose from a wonderful assortment. Our guarantee of satisfaction is back of everything you order. This is the easiest, most sensible, most economical way to buy. You take no risk. You decide everything after you have seen and used the goods. Send now for anything you see here. Send $1 for each article. Or send for Hartman's Bargain Book showing thousands of other money saving offer. ings. The coupon or post card brings it free.

Complete Set Sent for Only $1.00

Artistically made of seasoned solid oak, handsome fumed finish, in Mission design, upholstered in imitation Spanish brown leather. Set consists of large arm rocker, arm chair, table, sewing rocker, desk chair, tabourette and book ends. Mich cut out design on panels of chairs and table. Seats of chairs and rockers upholstered over strong, easy steel spring slats. Large arm chair and large rocker stand % in. high and are 25½ in. wide; seats 21x18 in. Very roomy seats of smaller rocker and chair are 17x16½ in. Table is 24x36 in. Tabourette is 17 in. high and has octagon shaped top about 12 in. wide. Book ends just the right size and weight to easily support large books. Shipped from our Chicago warehouse or factory in Western New York State. Shipping weight, carefully crated, about 140 lbs.

Correctly Designed Mission Style A really tremendous bargain of big value and a wonderful example of Hartman's ability to make you big savings in house furnishings. The above illustration can give you only a faint idea of the richness and artistic Only by seeing and using it can you appreciate its great value. Sent absolutely on mend only $1.00 now. You're sure to be delighted and proud of this set. Order by No. 110TMAS. Price $23.65. Send $1,00 now. Balance $2.50 per month.

51-Piece

Solid Oak Dining Room Set

Solid oak throughout. Choice of golden oak or fumed oak finish. 45-inch round top table, extends to 6 feet. Fitted with Hartman smooth running extension slides; solid oak leaves. Square box pedestal, neat block legs and easy-running casters. 4 Chairs have solid quarter-sawed oak top, back and panels; balance of seasoned solid oak, Full box pad seats 16x18 in., upholstered with imitation Spanish brown leather.
Height 37½ in. Sensational value, combining low price, high quality, finish, style, design, terms and guaranteed durability. Shipped from our Chicago warehouse, Slipping weight about 190 lbs. Order 4 Chairs (Golden Oak) by No. 233TMA24, (Fumed Oak) by No. 233TMA25. Price $11.65. Send $1 now. Balance $1.25 per month. Order
Table (Golden Oak) by No. 233TMA26. (Fumed Oak) by No. 233TMA27. Price $17.65. Send Order by Price $14.78. Send $ Now. Balance $1.50

11-16 in. continuous pillars. Bottom tube and fillers % in. Head and foot ends never wo bble or "lean to" when bed is occupied.

Send for this fine Kitchen Cabinet, set it up in your kitchen and use it for 30 days at our risk. Learn for yourself how handy it is, how many steps it saves you, how it lightens your work. Then, if you are willing to part with it and decide not to keep it, send it back. We will promptly return your $1.00 and pay charges both ways. If you keep it, you keep it, you keep it, you have a little each month.

return your $1.00 and pay charges both ways. If you keep it, pay a little each month.
Easily moved on casters without scratching floor, Height 62 in. Basswood top 25x42 in. Bread and cake box 17x11½x8 in. with tin sliding lid. Linen drawer 20x11½x3 in. Disappearing kneading board. Cabinet has one tilting, removable flour bin, with sifter. Has ample capacity. One 8-lb, pullout sugar bin. Two small drawers. Roomy china closet with shelf. Handsomely furnished with copper trimmed hard-ware and in beautiful golden oak gloss. Has bread drawer with ventilating sliding lid; cutlery drawer and pan rack on inside of lower cupboard door. Shipped from factory in Central Indiana, Shipping weight about 175 lbs.
Order by No. 277TMA4. Price $19.85. Send $1.00 now. Balance $2.00 per month.

Will Not Scald, Rust, Chip or Crack

Sent for Only $1.00 We guarantee every piece well made, of proper guage. Sanitary, light, very serviceable. This wonderful 42-piece "Longware" Aluminum Set consists of: 9-piece combination double roaster with 2 outer shells, inside pudding pan, 5 custard cups with perforated pan holder. Two outer shells make an excellent roaster for chicken, steaks and other meats. Using perforated inset and small pudding pan, it is a combination cooker and steamer. The 3 pans are also used separately over-the fire as a cake pan, bake dish, pudding pan or for any purpose where open pans are used; 7-cup coffee percolator with inset (2 pieces); 6-qt. preserving kettle, 2 bread pans; 2 pie plates; 1-qt. and 2 qt. lipped sauce pans; 1 ladie; 2 jelly cake pans, with loose bottoms, (4 pieces); 1 caster set; salt and pepper shakers; tooth pick holder and frame, (4 pieces); 1 measuring cup; 1 combination funnel, (6 pieces); 3 measuring spoons; 1 strainer; 1 sugar shaker; 1 grater; 1 cake turner; 1, 10 bs. Shipped from Chicago warehouse.

39. Send 31 now. Bal. 31.25 per mo.

Mark an X in coupon or write a letter to show what you want. Then mail it with only $1 for each article selected. That will bring the goods for 30 days' trial. If you don't order, send coupon or post card for Hartman's big Bargain Book with its hundreds of pictures, many in most beautiful colors. Wonderful bargains in Furniture, Stoves, Silverware, Jewelry, Clocks, Watches, Curtains, Talking Machines, Sewing Machines, Kitchen Cabinets, Kitchen Utensils, Washing Machines, Baby Carriages, Carpets, Rugs, Dishes—everything needed in the home—and all on our easy credit terms. Be sure to get this wonderful bargain catalog. It is free. Send coupon or post card asking for it.

ARTMAN FURNITURE & CARPET CO. 3964 Wentworth Avenue, Dept. 1334, Chicago

Hartman Furniture & Carpet Co.,

3964 Wentworth Ave., Dept. 1334, Chicago

Send me the merchandise marked X in below, it being understood that I am to have the use of it for 30 days and if for any reason I do not want to keep it I may return it at the end of that time and you will pay freight both ways and refund my payment. If I keep it I am to pay balance as indicated. I cpclose $I on each article marked.

7-Plece Library Set	Upholstered Rocker	51-Piece Dinner Set	Hot-Blast Heater
No. 110TMA8	No. 74TMA3	No. 325TMA7	No. 387TMA16
Royal Easy Chair	3-Unit Steel Bed	Aluminum Set	No. 277TMA4
No. 83TMA8	No. 155TMA3	No. 415TMA15
Oak No. 233TMA24	Oak No. 233TMA25	Table, Golden Oak No. 233TMA26	Table, Furned Oak No. 233TMA27

☐ Send me Hartman's Bargain Book FREE

HARVEST NUMBER The Key to Happiness and Success in over a Million and a Quarter Homes

Copyright, 1918 (Trade-Mark Registered), by W. H. Gannett, Publisher, Incorporated.

See page 13

Table of Contents on Page 8

Newspapers and Magazines Reduce Number of Pages and Drop Subscriptions at Expiration to Conserve Paper

N the interest of conservation for war purposes the people have submitted gracefully to being allowanced in their consumption of certain foods, notably sugar, flour and meat. And now they must accustom themselves to a rigid economy in the use of paper. The war has caused a scarcity of paper of all kinds, attended by a sharp advance in the prices of all grades. The Government, through the War Industries Board, has taken the situation in hand to the extent of regulating the price and distribution of print paper to the publishers. The shortage is the more acute because the decrease in production has come at a time of increased demand, when the public is eagerly calling for more news and periodical reading matter and the Government has largely increased its use of paper and especially for war propaganda and publicity pur-

The demand so far exceeds the supply as to necessitate a general curtailment in the use of paper, and therefore, in order that all legitimate users may share in fair proportion, the publishers have promised the War Industries Board to cut their consumption of paper to the lowest practicable limit. Among the numerous rules prescribed by the Board and agreed to by the publishers for economy of paper stock are two important requirements which affect the public as well as the publishers.

First, newspapers and magazines must be reduced in weight and bulk, which will relieve overtaxed transportation facilities as well as save paper. Consequently people will notice that their papers and magazines are lighter and thinner with less pages than heretofore, and when they understand that it is in pursuance of the Government's policy of conservation due to war conditions they will accept the situation cheerfully as they have the food regulations. But on this score comparatively little deprivation will be realized by readers because of the diligent efforts of publishers to make the best use of the limited allowance at their disposal by filling their pages with high quality matter, boiled down and condensed to cover the field as fully and satisfactorily as when larger issues were attainable. We assure our readers that no department or essential feature of Comfort will be omitted or impaired in value although some, if not all, of them have had to be abridged. It is our purpose to present the full substance in fewer words by careful revising and editing.

Second, publishers are not allowed to carry any credit subscriptions; they must be kept paid in advance. All subscriptions must be cut off short immediately on expiration unless previously renewed and paid for. Heretofore it has been customary, for the accommodation of subscribers who were slow or careless about renewing. to carry their subscriptions on credit for a limited period and send them copies of one or more issues after expiration in order to give such delinquents an opportunity to renew, without missing one or two numbers meanwhile. But this practice is strictly forbidden by the new rules which do not permit us to send even one copy after expiration, until the subscription is renewed. It is important that subscribers bear this in mind and renew promptly on or before expiration in onder to avoid the inconvenience of missing an issue. And, furthermore, we cannot supply back numbers to those who are remiss in renewing, as we are not allowed to print surplus copies for this purpose. On each wrapper, over the subscriber's name, is always printed a number which indicates the month when the subscription expires.

Look at the wrapper on your copy of Comrorr this month, see what the number is over your name and figure out the month when your subscription expires; it is easily done. If it is 360 it means that your subscription expires with this present October issue and that you will not receive November Comfort unless you renew at once. If it is 361 it means that the expiration comes next month with the November issue; 362 means the next December issue, and so on, a month later for each succeeding number. With this key you can figure out your expiration month. Get in the habit of looking at the wrapper each month so to keep in mind your expiration month, and don't wait till the last month to renew your subscription. Attend to it a month or two in advance so to make sure not to miss an issue by letting the expiration time slip by you. Advance renewals will be credited and extended the full period paid for beyond date of expiration, and you can see for yourself by keeping tabs on the number on your wrapper. In this way you can do your bit to assist Comfort's publisher in living up to the letter and spirit of the new rules.

But print paper is not the only kind that is scarce. There is a shortage of all sorts of paper, writing paper, wrapping paper and paper bags, and it is everybody's duty to conserve the scanty supply so far as possible. Let none go to waste. Save all paper; frequently it may be used over again for some purpose, and paper and cotton rags that are unfit for your use should be stowed away until they can be sold to the junk man to be ground into pulp and made over again into paper. Present prices of waste paper and rags make it worth while as well as a duty.

Government Urges Farmers to Secure Winter Supply of Mill Feed Early

THE enormous burden of moving troops, military equipment, munitions and war material has overtaxed the transportation facilities of the country. The necessity for expediting shipments for war purposes delays all other freight fortunate enough to escape being refused transportation under temporary or indefinite embargo. So difficult was the railroad freight situation last winter that certain sections were threatened with a food famine and actually did suffer a severe shortage of cattle and poultry feed in consequence of the temporary extension of the embargo even to these necessaries. The same conditions are likely to recur the coming winter and therefore, in a recent bulletin issued by the U. S. Food Administration, the farmers are advised to lay in a full winter's supply of mill feeds early in the fall. It is also stated that the Department has established fair prices for mill feeds, which licensed millers and dealers cannot exceed without incurring a penalty, so that there is no object in delaying orders in expectation of lower prices, and it is pointed out that, besides the transportation difficulties in winter, the demand for feed at that season usually exceeds the output of the mills which, of itself, makes deliveries un-"Feed actually in your possession" it adds "is feed you can depend on." It concludes by saying that "the Food Administration has established conditions in the feed industry that will result in better service and moderate costs. Your early order for feed will help to prevent congestion in industry and disappointing delay for yourself." In the light of last winter's experience those who fail to act on this advice must blame themselves for the consequences.

Order Your Incubator Early to Offset Delays in Transportation

In view of the delays in railroad transportation, previously mentioned, and the possibility of temporary embargo next winter it would be no more than common prudence on the part of anyone- intending to procure an incubator for early hatching to place his order as soon as possible in order to make sure of having it in due season for use when needed. The Food Administration's advice regarding feed is equally applicable to incubators—the incubator actually in your possession is the incubator you can rely on. If you delay ordering your incubator until shortly before you need to use it you may lose the best and most profitable use of it the coming season.

The War and the Harvest—Prospects of Both Are Promising

HE war-stricken and famishing world awaits with equal anxiety tidings of the harvest and news of battle. Both now are cheering and give promise of such decisive victory in the near future as shall crush the power and curb the plunder lust of the piratical Huns and bring the peaceably disposed, liberty-loving nations surcease from war.

The splendid strategy of General Foch's counterattack, in progress since July 18th, and executed with perfect precision and superb gallantry by the British, French and American armies, has reclaimed nearly all the territory taken by the Germans in the previous four months and at some points has driven the enemy even beyond the line whence the German advance started last March. The Kaiser's forces are still retreating on the entire battle front of more than a hundred miles and, although the fighting continues fiercely. the resistance of the Germans is slackening and their courage seems to be weakening under successive defeats and heavy losses in killed, wounded and missing. The Allies have taken one hundred and fifty thousand prisoners besides more than fifteen hundred guns, innumerable small arms and an enormous quantity of munitions. At the present rate of advance the beginning of winter will find the allied armies intrenched on or near the German frontier ready to push the seat of war over into the "fatherland" next Spring. It is believed that, when that stage is reached, the German people, who rejoiced in starting the war in expectation of conquest, pillage and indemnity, and were willing to carry it on so long as the fighting and destruction were wholly in enemy countries, will see the hopelessness of further efforts to attain their purpose and will sue for peace on almost any terms that will save their own country from devastation by invasion. If they can not keep the allied armies out of Germany it means peace at the frontier or after the Allies have fought their way to Berlin. And surely they can expect no better terms by prolonging the conflict to the point of self destruction.

Food has as much to do as soldiers with winning the war. The severe food shortage in Germany is aggravated by unfaverable crop conditions there, while the allied countries together are harvesting crops sufficient to feed their people and their armies through the coming year. Although agricultural production has been curtailed in France and Italy by shortage of labor and by the enemy's occupation of parts of these countries, Great Britain has increased her acrease under cultivation and her crops by about onethird, chiefly by means of American tractors. But the United States and Canada, which with their vast agricultural resources are the main dependence of the Allies, have responded with large crops of all kinds except American cotton, of which latter there will be a considerable shortage. Canada has largely increased her acreage planted to food crops, while on our side of the line the farmers have planted twenty-three million more acres than in 1916. Our war gardens also have contributed their share. Recent reports show that the war gardeners planted five million two hundred and eighty-five thousand home food producing plots during 1918, an increase of fifty-one per cent over 1917. The total value of the war garden products this year is estimated at five hundred and twenty-five million dollars, a gain of fifty per cent over 1917, and a large part of this produce has been conserved for winter use by canning or drying. Buy Liberty Bonds and help provide the sinews of war.

COMFORT'S EDITOR.

COMFORT, PUBLISHED MONTHLY BY W. H. GANNETT, PUB., INC., AT AUGUSTA, MAINE.

Subscription price in United States and United States Possessions 35c a year; Canadian subscriptions 50c a year, foreign countries 75c a year. No premiums or prizes will be given on Canadian or foreign subscriptions. Please send your renewal just as soon as your subscription expires. De can not continue sending COMFORT to you unless you do. If you do not get your magazine by the 25th of the month write us and we will send you another copy free. Please notify us immediately in case you move, so that we can change your address and see that you do not miss a single copy. Remember that we must have your former address, as well as your new address to make the change. Be sure to send both. We do not supply back numbers.

IN @ AROUND The HOME

For Baby's Comfort

HENEVER a small, but important, new member arrives in a family the question of comfort-able waking and sleeping quarters becomes one of thoughtful con-

Our illustration, Fig. 1, shows a foundation basket which settles one of these matters nicely for it will make a thoroughly practical bed for the wee one. A basket of handle from side to side across the center, or the ends, and some wood for standards will be need-ed. The four ed. The four strips of wood this shape a-bout thirty-two inches long by twelve deep with either a FOUNDATION BASKET. FIG. 1. should roundation basket. Fig. 1. should be smooth, each one measuring thirty-two by two and one half by one inches. These should be securely nailed to the top of the basket, then crossed and held securely by a strip or rod just underneath the basket, as shown.

If one prefers, the basket and standards can be painted and then enameled, but if finished with a drapery only the posts need be painted. To fit up as shown in Fig. 2, first cover the inside of the basket and add a deep flounce to the outside of either pink or blue silkateen or muslin, then cover with dainty lawn or dotted muslin finishing the lower edge with a hem and tucks or band of insertion or having the and tucks or band of insertion or having the and tucks or band of insertion or having the edge of lace.

An easy way to arrange the outside ruffle is to have it with an elastic run through the top, which will fit tighter around the edge of the basket, then cover this with a ribbon run beading, finishing with a bow. This should be of either pink or blue to match the under ruffle.

Fit the inside of the basket with a hair pillow if possible, or cover a feather pillow with a cotton pad, a smaller rubber blanket, sheets and blanket, or puff, and a tiny pillow.

BASKET BED FOR BABY. FIG. 2.

Either in its plain painted simplicity, or covered daintily, this little basket bed will prove a pretty bit of furniture for mother's room or

It also has an advantage over a larger and heavier bed or crib, as it can be moved about to wherever mother is busy, or placed on the piazza so that the fresh air nap is possible.

Such a basket as this is very convenient when travelling as baby can rest, comportably on the travelling as baby can rest comfortably on the journey, and when a change is necessary baby can be carried and the basket used for the can be carried and the basket used for the numerous things necessary on a trip.

In our illustration, Fig. 3, is shown another basket which baby surely needs for its comfort.

Here is a place where all the little toilet necessities may be kept easily at hand and in an attractive way. This basket may also be set on a standard or not as seems most convenient.

To fit up, cover first with a color and over To fit up, cover first with a color and over this use white the same as for the bed. Pretty little pockets, their fullness looped in with ribbons, are convenient in the corners for holding all the little things which would otherwise so easily become misplaced.

The colored lining should first be sewed to the basket's top with but slight fullness, then gathered muslin placed over this.

ARTICLES FOR BABY'S COMFORT. FIG. 3.

Sew this flounce on from its under side, and then turning it over tacking down around the bottom of the basket. Finish the outside with a double ruffle as shown and the edge of the basket outline with ribbon run beading and bows of baby ribbon.

To one side of the basket add a daintily made cushion and over the bottom fit a pad made of heavy cardboard covered to match.

The other fittings depend upon the mother's individual taste, but should include a little comb and brush, a powder box and puff, soap

Materials required: One skein white Saxony, four skeins blue twisted embroiders silk, one fine steel hook, No. 1 bone hook and mappiness and mother's convenience should be kept together in this basket.

Sunburst Wheel Cottar

For the crocheted collar one should use 80 or 100 crochet eotton for the most lacy effect. The wheels should all be made first, then arranged of the case of the content of the most lacy effect. The wheels should all be made first, then arranged of the case of

on a well-fitting pattern cut from light weight cotton material and joined crocheting in the smaller motifs shown in Fig. 1. Wheels. Ch. 5., join in ring, ch. 3, 1 d. c., ch. 1, 1 d. c., ch. 1, repeat until having 15 d. c., ch. 1, slip st. to first ch. 3.

Ch. 3, 1 d. c. between ch. 3, and first double, 1 treble, work off all excepting last two loops.

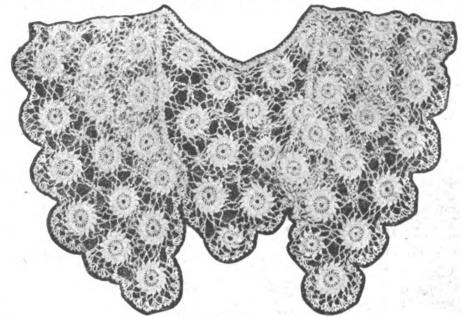

And work back and forth for 14 rows. Sew up back of leg. Finish top as follows.

1st round.—With steel hook and silk make 25th row.—6 sps., 4 blks., 1 sp., 1 blk., 1 sp., 2 blrs., 1 sp., 2 blrs., 1 sp., 2 blrs., 1 sp., 2 blrs., 1 sp., 1 blk., 1 sp., 3 olks.

Ch. 3, 1 d. c. between ch. 3, and first double, 1 there are 4 rounds of s. c. and 3 of star sts.

With blue wool fasten with s. c. * skip 1 s. c.

24th row.—6 sps., 4 blks., 1 sp., 1 blk., 1 sp., 2 blrs., 1 sp., 1 blk., 1 sp., 2 blrs., 1 sp., 1 blk., 1 sp., 3 olks., 2 sps., 2 blrs., 1 sp., 1 blk., 1 sp., 3 olks., 2 sps., 2 blrs., 1 sp., 1 blk., 1 sp., 3 olks., 2 sps., 2 blrs., 1 sp., 1 blk., 1 sp., 3 olks., 2 sps., 2 blrs., 1 sp., 1 blk., 1 sp., 3 olks., 2 sps., 4 blks., 1 sp., 1 blk., 1 sp., 3 olks., 2 sps., 4 blks., 1 sp., 1 blk., 1 sp., 3 olks., 2 sps., 4 blks., 1 sp., 1 blk., 1 sp., 3 olks., 2 sps., 4 blks., 1 sp., 1 blk., 1 sp., 3 olks., 2 sps., 4 blks., 1 sp., 1 blk., 1 sp., 3 olks., 2 sps., 2 blrs., 1 sp., 1 blk., 1 sp., 3 olks., 2 sps., 2 blrs., 1 sp., 1 blk., 1 sp., 3 olks., 2 sps., 2 blrs., 1 sp., 1 blk., 1 sp., 3 olks., 2 sps., 4 blks., 1 sp., 1 blk., 1 sp., 3 olks., 2 sps., 4 blks., 1 sp., 4 blks., 1

CROCHETED SUNBURST COLLAR.

With these on hook make another treble and | and in next st. make a shell of 5 d. c., skip 2 s.

Filet Edging

Ch. 24 sts., turn.

1st row.—1 d. c. in 4th st. from hook, 9 d. c. in next 9 sts., * ch. 2, skip 2, 1 d. c. in next st., repeat from * making 3 more spaces, ch. 5, turn. 2nd row.—4 sps. over sps., 2 sps. over doubles, 1 d. c. on each of last 4 doubles, ch. 9, turn. 3rd row.—1 d. c. in 4th st. from hook, 6 d. c. in ch., 4 d. c. over 4 d. c., this increases a row 2 blks., and is always worked in the same way, 6 sps., ch. 5, turn.

4th row.—8 sps., 2 blks. or 7 d. c. increase by sps., ch. 5, turn.

4th row.—8 sps., 2 blks. or 7 d. c. increase by chaining 9 as before.

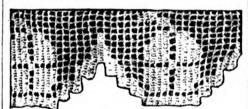

5th row.—3 blks., 9 sps., ch. 5, turn.

6th row.—11 sps., 1 blk., increase 1 blk. by 6th row.—11 sps., 1 blk., increase 1 blk. by chaining 6.

7th row.—2 blks., 11 sps., ch. 5.
8th row.—12 sps., 1 blk., ch. 6.
9th row.—1 blk. on ch. 6, 2 sps., 2 blks., 1 sp., 2 blks., 6 sps., ch. 5.
10th row.—5 sps., 3 blks., 1 sp., 3 blks., 1 sp., 1 blk., ch. 3.
11th row.—1 blk., 1 sp., 3 blks., 1 sp., 4 blks., 4 sps., ch. 5.

12th row.—Same as last, but reversed.
12th row.—I blk., 4 sps., 1 blk., 4 sps., 1 blk.,

3 sps.
14th row.—2 sps., 1 blk., 1 sp., 4 blks., 1 sp., 4 blks., 1 sp., 1 blk.
15th row.—The same, reversed.
16th row.—1 sp., 1 blk., 3 sps., 3 blks., 1 sp., 3 blks., 1 sp., 1 blk.

FILET EDGING.

17th row.—1 blk., 2 sps., 2 blks., 1 sp., 2 blks., 17th row.—1 blk., 2 sps., 2 blks., 1 sp., 2 blks., sps., 1 blk., 1 sp.
18th row.—1 sp., 1 blk., 10 sps., 1 blk.
19th row.—2 blks., 11 sps.
20th row.—11 sps., 1 blk.
21st row.—3 blks., 9 sps.
22nd row.—8 sps., 2 blks.
23rd row.—4 blks., 6 sps.
24th row.—4 sps., 4 blks. Inc. 2 blks. and repeat pattern.

peat pattern.

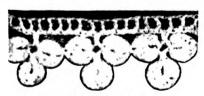

Clover Leaf Edging

Make chain desired length, turn, make 1 d. c in 8th st., ch. 2, skip 2, 1 d. c. in next st., repeat. Ch. 1, 2 s. c. in each first two spaces, 1 s. peat. Ch. c. in third.

hook, 12 d. c., 1 s. c. in loop. 2nd clover.—Ch. 9, sl. st. to form loop, 12 d.

c., 1 s. c. in loop, 2 s. c. over ch. 3.

3rd clover.—Ch. 7, form loop, 12 d. c., 1 s. c., then 3 s. c. over ch., 1 s. c. in space, 2 s. c. in each next 5 spaces, ch. 9 and repeat from first clover, joining to last leaf made after the 6th double. Repeat until length desired.

CLOVER LEAF EDGING.

Crocheted Baby Bootees

Materials required: One skein white Saxony.

work off all stitches two at a time, ch. 5, repeat all around, break thread. Joining motif, ch. 4, join in ring.

C. and make 1 s. c. in next st. Repeat from star round top of bootie.

With silk make a round of 1 s. c. in each st.

For the Foot

With white wool commence at center back and make 26 s. c. along side of foot. Make 7 s. c. across the toe, 1 in each ridge, 26 s. c. along the other side of foot. Repeat this along the other side of foot. Repeat this round 3 times more.

5th round.—1 s. c. in each st., skipping s. c. at center of toe.
6th round.—1 s. c. in each st.
7th and 8th round.—Same as fifth.
Crochet the two edges together. Use wool cord and tassels or ribbon for the ring.

Clover Leaf Insertion

tween doubles, ch. 4, 1 tr. c. in first s. c. in last row, ch. 1, turn.
3rd row.—5s. c. under chains each side of shell, ch. 8, turn.
4th row.—1 d. c. in 4th s. c., ch. 2, skip, 2 s. tow, ch. 1.
5th row.—Same as first row, repeat pattern.
Filet Scarf End

Of No. 60 crochet cotton ch. 118 sts., turn, 1 d. c. in 9th st. from hook, ch. 2, skip 2 sts., 1 d. c. in next st., repeat, making 37 spaces in all. Four more rows 37 spaces, ch. 5 at end of each row before turning.
6th row.—3 sps., 2 blks., 1 sp., 2 blks., 1 sp., 2 blks., 1 sp., 2 blks., 2 sps., 1 blk., 2 sps., 1 blk., 2 sps., 3 blks., 3 sps.
10th row.—6 sps., 1 blk., 22 sps., 1 blk., 2 sps., 3 blks., 3 sps., 2 blks., 1 sp., 1 blk., 4 sps., 2 sps., 1 blk., 4 sps., 2 blks., 1 sp., 2 blks., 5 sps., 3 blks., 5 sps., 3 blks., 5 sps., 1 blk., 2 sps., 1 blk., 2 sps., 1 blk., 2 sps., 1 blk., 1 sp., 1 blk., 4 sps., 2 blks., 1 sp., 2 blks., 5 sps., 3 blks., 5 sps., 1 blk., 2 sps., 1 blk., 1 sp., 2 blks., 1 sp., 1 blk., 4 sps., 2 blks., 1 sp., 3 blks., 4 sps.

10th row.—6 sps., 1 blk., 1 sp., 1 blk., 1 sp., 1 blk., 2 sps., 1 blk., 2 sps., 1 blk., 1 sp., 2 blks., 1 sp., 2 blks., 1 sp., 3 blks., 4 sps.

10th row.—6 sps., 1 blk., 1 sp., 1 blk., 1 sp., 2 blks., 1 sp., 1 blk., 1 sp., 3 blks., 2 sps., 1 blk., 1 sp., 2 blks., 1 sp., 3 blks., 2 sps., 1 blk., 4 sps., 2 blks., 1 sp., 3 blks., 4 sps.

10th row.—6 sps., 1 blk., 1 sp., 1 blk., 1 sp., 5 blks., 1 sp., 3 blks., 4 sps.

10th row.—6 sps., 1 blk., 1 sp., 1 blk., 1 sp., 5 blks., 1 sp., 3 blks., 4 sps.

10th row.—6 sps., 1 blk., 1 sp., 1 blk., 1 sp., 5 blks., 1 sp., 1 blk., 1 sp., 3 blks., 1 sp., 1 blk., 1 sp., 3 blks., 2 sps., 3 blks., 6 sps., 5 blks., 1 sp., 1 blk., 2 sps., 5 blks., 1 sp., 1 blk., 1 sp., 1 blk., 1 sp., 1 blk., 1 sp., 1 blk., 2 sps., 5 blks., 1 sp., 1 blk., 4 sps., 2 blks., 1 sp., 3 blks., 1 sp., 1 blk., 1 s

Conducted By Mrs. Wheeler Wilkinson

2 biks., 5 sps., 4 biks., 1 sp., 1 bik., 10 sps., 27th row.—7 sps., 4 biks., 1 sp., 1 bik., 10 sps., 2 biks., 1 sp., 4 biks., 7 sps., 28th row.—11 sps., 2 biks., 9 sps., 1 bik., 2 sps.,

1 bik., 11 sps.
29th row.—7 sps., 3 blks., 1 sp., 1 blk., 1 sp., 2 blks., 7 sps., 1 blk., 2 sps., 1 blk., 1 sp., 3 blks., 7 sps., 1 blk., 2 sps., 1 blk., 1 sp., 3 blks., blks., 7 sps., 1 blk., 2 sps., 1 blk., 1 sp., 3 blks., 7 sps.

30th row.—2 sps. 2 blks., 5 sps., 3 blks., 1 sp., 2 blks., 7 sps., 2 blks., 1 sp., 4 blks., 8 sps.

31st row.—12 sps., 2 blks., 9 sps., 3 blks., 6 sps., 2 blks., 3 sps.

32nd row.—5 sps., 1 blk., 4 sps., 3 blks., 8 sps., 1 blk., 2 sps., 1 blk., 1 sp., 2 blks., 8 sps., 3 blks., 3 sps., 1 blk., 1 sp., 5 blks., 1 sp., 1 blk., 2 blks., 3 sps.

34th row.—4 sps., 13 blks., 6 sps., 5 blks., 4 sps., 3 blks., 12 sps.

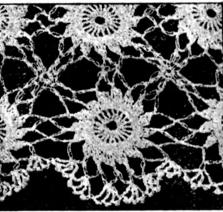

35th row.—11 sps., 3 blks., 5 sps., 5 blks., 5 sps., 5 blks., 1 sp., 3 blks., 1 sp., 5 blks., 3 sps., 3 sps., 1 blk., 7 sps., 3 blks., 1 sp., 4 blks., 8 sps.

39th row.—8 sps., 1 blks., 3 sps., 6 blks., 2 sps., 40th row.—9 sps., 4 blks., 3 sps., 1 blk., 1 sp., 4 blks., 15 sps.

41st row.—8 sps., 4 blks., 3 sps., 1 blk., 4 sps., 4 blk., 11 sps., 4 blk., 1 sps., 2 blks., 4 sps., 4 21d row.—8 sps., 4 blks., 3 sps., 2 blks., 1 sp.,

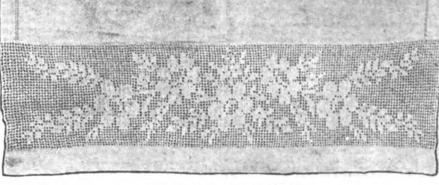

2 blks., 17 sps. 43rd row,—16 sps., 4 blks., 1 sp., 3 blks., 1 sp., 5 blks., 7 sps., 44th row.—7 sps., 6 blks., 3 sps., 5 blks., 16

45th row.—16 sps., 14 blks., 7 sps. 46th row.—8 sps., 3 blks., 1 sp., 1 blk., 4 sps., 4 blks., 16 sps.

DETAIL OF WORK IN COLLAR. FIG. 1.

47th row.-16 sps., 4 blks., 1 sp., 5 blks., 11

FILET CROCHET FOR SCARF END.

13th row.—7 sps., 1 blk., 1 sp., 1 blk., 17 sps., 1 blk., 1 sp., 2 blks., 6 sps.
14th row.—8 sps., 1 blk., 16 sps., 1 blk., 2 sps., 1 blk., 1 sp., 2 blks., 5 sps.
15th row.—5 sps., 2 blks., 1 sp., 1 blk., 1 sp., 2 blks., 13 sps., 2 blks., 1 sp., 1 blk., 8 sps.
16th row.—8 sps., 1 blk., 1 sp., 2 blks., 14 sps., 1 blk., 1 sp., 2 blks., 7 sps.
17th row.—9 sps., 1 blk., 17 sps., 2 blks., 1 sp., 1 blk., 6 sps.

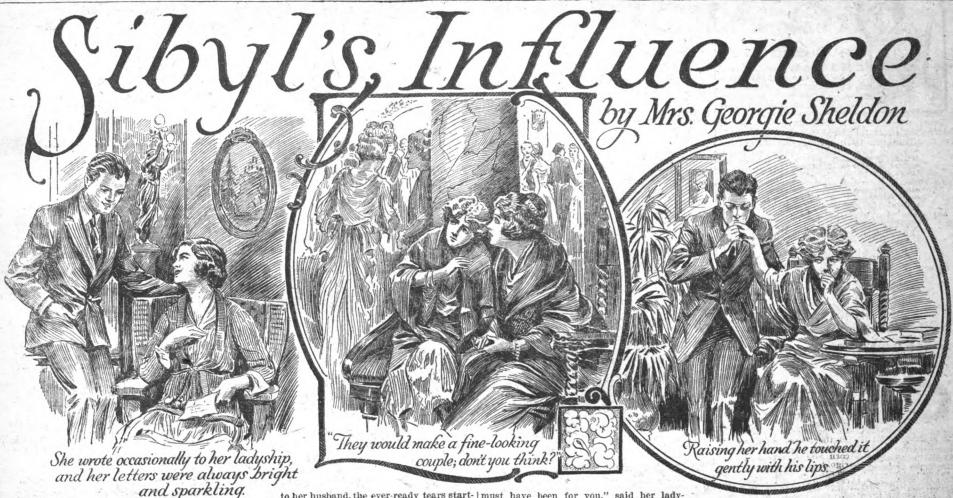

18th row.-6 sps., 2 blks., 16 sps., 2 blks., 1

59th row.—9 sps., 4 blks., 1 sp., 5 blks., 2 sps., 2 blks., 2 sps., 2 blks., 10 sps.
60th row.—12 sps., 2 blks., 1 sp., 1 blk., 2 sps., 5 blks., 1 sp., 4 blks., 9 sps.
61st row.—9 sps., 9 blks., 3 sps., 3 blks., 6 sps.,

61st row.—9 sps., 9 blks., 3 sps., 3 blks., 6 sps., 62nd row.—6 sps., 2 blks., 8 sps., 3 blks., 6 sps., 62nd row.—6 sps., 2 blks., 1 sp., 3 blks., 6 sps., 63rd row.—5 sps., 6 blks., 1 sp., 3 blks., 6 sps., 63rd row.—6 sps., 6 blks., 3 sps., 1 blk., 1 sp., 5 blks., 5 sps., 1 blk., 2 sps., 2 blks., 6 sps., 64th row.—6 sps., 2 blks., 1 sp., 2 blks., 5 sps., 65th row.—6 sps., 4 blks., 3 sps., 1 blk., 1 sp., 65th row.—6 sps., 2 blks., 1 sp., 1 blk., 7 sps., 66th row.—8 sps., 2 blks., 1 sp., 1 blk., 7 sps., 66th row.—8 sps., 2 blks., 3 sps., 1 blk., 8 sps., 7 blks., 1 sp., 2 blks., 8 sps., 67th row.—4 sps., 5 blks., 1 sp., 2 blks., 5 sps., 4 blks., 9 sps., 1 blk., 1 sp., 3 blks., 5 sps., 68th row.—6 sps., 4 blks., 8 sps., 7 blks., 3 sps., 4 blks., 5 sps.

sps., 4 blks., 5 sps.
69th row.—6 sps., 3 blks., 1 sp., 3 blks., 1

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 13.)

Copyright renewed, 1908 by Mrs. Georgie Sheldon Downs.

Serial rights by W. H. Gannett, Pub., Inc.

Serial rights by W. H. Gannett, Pub., Inc.

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS.

Lady Prescott, wife of Sir Athelstone Prescott, and her son Raymond, stop at a miserable inn, in a little fishing village on Plamborough Head. They are attracted to a little girl, Sibyl, who waits on them, and determine to take the child away. They learn that a woman who had been in a railroad smashup and injured, leaves the child, and Mistress Sloan, for the consideration of thirty pounds, consents to let the child go. That night, Sibyl is awakened and overhears Jem and his wife talking over the terms of the bargain, and through a chink in the wall she detects the place where an invaluable trinket belonging to her is concealed. She traces three letters, "S. H. S.," and which convinces Lady Prescott that the gem is Sibyl's, and by it she may be restored to her own people. Fiwe years later, her nineteenth birthday, Lady Prescott introduces her to society, where she meets Miss Ada Therwin, the adopted daughter of Count Eghert Shirley and the guest of General Maplewood. Miss Therwin refers to the ornament Sibyl wears, and to her surprise discovers the letters S. H. S. interworen in the jewels. To the query if it is an heirloom, Sibyl says she supposes it belonged to her mother. Miss Therwin promises to call. Sibyl has a strange distrust for her. Scheming to estrange her from the Prescotts, she calls on Lady Prescot, Sibyl and Ray, and invites Sibyl to ride with her, and to further her plans, requests Robert to stop at the Widow Martin's, who does work for two orphan girls under her care at home. Ada plots the ruin of Sibyl and the winning of Raymond Prescott and enlists the aid of an unscrupulous woman, Judith, to be known as Sylvia Hortenes Stillman. She makes a compact with the Duc d'Aubigne, to whom Sibyl conceives a dislike and repulses his attentions. Raymond asks Sibyl to be his wife. Going with Ada Therwin, Sibyl meets Mrs. Stillman, a widow and childless, who excites not only Sibyl's sympathy but her suspicions, when she hears the SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS.

CHAPTER XXXIV. SOCIETY GOSSIP.

OON after the return of General Maple-wood's party from the Continent, Ada had been peremptorily summoned home, and she was obliged to yield obedience, although she did so with great reluctance.

Before leaving, however, she managed that Lady Prescott should invite her to stend a few more days with her, during which time she way-laid Sir Athelstone, and by means of much coaxing and persuasion, exacted a promise that he would either bring or send Lady Prescott to spend a month with her during the London season.

Feeling much elated at having obtained this promise—for she well knew that the doctor would not feel willing to leave his patients for so long, and would doubtless send Raymond to act as his mother's escort—she returned to London in very good spirits.

mother's escort—she returned to London in very good spirits.

She wrote occasionally to her ladyship, and as her letters were always bright and sparkling, they were a source of great comfort and amusement to her; while Raymond appeared to enjoy them almost as much, until it came to be not an uncommon occurrence for him to add a line to his mother's replies. Thus messages passed back and forth, till at last there grew out of them a regular correspondence.

Thus the winter went by and spring came a regular correspondence.

Thus the winter went by, and spring came again. In May, a cordial and pressing invitation from the Countess of Shirley came to Lady Prescott, inviting her to come and spend a month with them in London. Raymond and the doctor were both included in the invitation.

It was hard for her to make up her mind to go.

"I have no heart for society, Athel," she said

hel,", to her husband, the ever-ready tears starting to her eyes, as she thought of Sibyling the third of the thi bereaved mother.

One evening, about two weeks after the arrival of Lady Prescott and Raymond in London, the count and party were to attend a grand reception given by the Honorable Mrs. Delmaine. Upon their arrival, they found the dressing-rooms so full that it was almost impossible to move in them.

Ada and Lady Prescott became separated in some way from the countess, and concluded it was best to wait until some of the guests passed down into the saloon before attempting to arrange their toilets.

They sat down in a little recess behind a marble pillar with their wraps still on.

Two other ladies were standing on the opposite side of the pillar, with their backs to the recess, and had not seen either Ada or her companion as they sat down.

as they sat down.

and had not seen either Ada or her companion as they sat down.

"I suppose you have heard the news regarding the beautiful ward of Count Shirley," said one. Ada started violently, and laid her hand upon Lady Prescott's arm, signifying that she wished to move away from the spot. She feared something might be said which would prejudice her ladyship against her, but they could not move now without attracting attention, and she whispered to her to sit still,

"No, I have not heard anything new," returned the person addressed.

"Well, it is rumored quite generally that she is really engaged to the distinguished-looking stranger who is visiting the family—Prescott, I believe, is his name.

"Indeed; and is he a good match?"

"Exceedingly, I am told; but why the affair is not allowed to be made public I cannot comprehend. He is very attentive, enough so, I think, to warrant the report; and I suppose it must be true, or it would have been contradicted before this."

must be true, or it would have been contradicted before this."

"Are you acquainted with him?"

"Nothing beyond a formal introduction. He is a very fine-looking man, although there is a very sad expression about his eyes. I intend to ask the countess about it the first opportunity I have. I owe her a call, and will pay it at once, for I am getting quite curious over the affair, there is so much said about it."

"They would make a fine-looking couple; don't you think so?"

"Yes, indeed, and I am confident that the girl just worships him, for her eyes follow him everywhere. Come, I see the gentlemen are waiting for us."

The ladies moved away, and the crowd was fast disappearing. Ada sprang to her feet, her cheeks on fire, and her eyes dazzling bright.

Without saying a word to her companion, she darted through the dressing-room to a private room beyond, whither Lady Prescott immediately followed her.

She walked directly up to her and laid her hand on her arm, when, without saying a word, Ada turned and dropping her head upon Lady Prescott's shoulder, burst into a flood of tears.

"Dear child, how exceedingly disagreeable it."

She bent forward and kissed her cheek, saying again, gently:
"I am very sorry, dear, but do not mind."
"It is a perfect shame, when his heart is still so tender. I—I hope nothing of this will reach his ear," Ada said, excitedly.
"You are very thoughtful for him dear," Lady Prescott said, smiling at what she considered another indication of her love for her son, and she made a mental resolve, at once, as to what she would do in the matter.
"I—I wish I might be excused and go home," Ada said, with downcast eyes, and her lips quivered very prettily.
Lady Prescott smiled again, knowingly, as she answered:

Lady Prescott smiled again, knowingly, as she answered:

"That would never do, you know—your absence would occasion inquiry and remark, because there are some here who have already seen you. No, dear, act is if nothing unpleasant had occurred, and it will all come out right in the end!"

They found the count and his wife with Raymond, waiting to conduct them below, and very much to the latter's surprise, Ada immediately stepped to the side of her guardian and slipped her hand within his arm, instead of allowing him to take her down, as he usually did, while his mother accompanied the count and countess. Again Lady Prescott smiled knowingly at this maneuver, and quietly accepted the change in escorts, hoping that matters would settle themselves properly before very long.

CHAPTER XXXV.

MOCKERY.

"Mother, what makes Ada avoid me tonight?

"Mother, what makes Ada avoid me tonight? Have you any idea?"
"Does she avoid you?" she asked, thoughtfully. "Yes," 'Raymond replied; "if I go near her she darts away to another part of the room, with a laughing excuse of some kind, and she has only danced with me once, an occurrence which has not happened before since our coming to London," and Raymond looked exceedingly thoughtful, too.
"Do you suppose that I can have offended her in any way?" he asked a moment later.
"What makes you think that?" demanded Lady Prescott. "Is she cool to you?"
"No; but every time that I have spoken to her this evening the color has rushed quickly to her face, and she has appeared disconcerted—something I never saw in her before under any circumstances—while the fact of her preferring the count to take her down tonight somewhat surprised me."
"I do not believe that you have offended her, Raymond; but what is your private opinion of Adda—of her character, I mean?" his mother asked, with a searching glance at his handsome face.
"I think." he said, looking very grave, "that asked, with a face.

"I think," he said, looking very grave, "that next to—to Sibyl, she is the loveliest young lady! I have ever met."
"Young lady?" repeated Lady Prescott, with a smile at the peculiar emphasis he laid upon a smile at the peculiar emphasis he had aported the word.

"Yes, for no one can compare with my mother," he returned, fondly.

"Thank you, my dear boy, but I am glad to know that you think so well of Ada. I admire her exceedingly—more so since seeing her in her own home than I did before—she is so sweet and lovable. But I was very much prejudiced against her at first."

"Were you?"

"Yes. I could not make her seem true. I felt as if she were dissembling—acting a part for some purpose or other. But that impresson has all worn away, I am happy to say."

"I believe I do remember now of your once saying something about her lack of heart; but why are you so anxious tonight to know my private opinion of her?" Raymond asked, smiling. "Because I have something very disagreeable to tell you, and which will explain, I think, why she has treated you so strangely this evening."

Lady Prescott then related to him what had occurred in the dressing-room, not forgetting to describe Ada's distress and excitement, which appeared to be more on his account than her own.

Raymond was exceedingly disturbed as he lis tened.

"It was a great mistake, our coming here," he said, with troubled brow.
"I am very sorry, Ray," his mother answered, sadly.

"It was a great mistake, our coming here," he said, with troubled brow.

"I am very sorry, Ray," his mother answered, sadly.

He saw at once how very unpleasant such a report was going to make it for all parties, and for Ada particularly.

"Well, Ray," asked his mother, "what can we do about this very unpleasant affair?"

"I suppose something must be done. It would not do to subject Miss Therwin to any further annoyance if we can help it. Shall we go home tomorrow, and let the world think that she has—rejected me?"

Lady Prescott gave him a startled look, but she answered, quietly.

"Just as you think best. Of course, we cannot remain longer as things are now, but I fear our sudden departure would involve some unpleasant explanations to our friends, and poor Ada would feel as if she were in some way to blame for it, and had driven us away. She at at least would understand it all, and it would make her very unhappy, I am afraid," replied Lady Prescott, little thinking how much of truth those last words contained.

"Mother, how much do you like Ada?" asked Raymond. suddenly.

"Very much, as I believe I have already told you a number of times," she answered, smiling.

"But do you like her well enough to be willing to have her for a—daughter?"

"Do you care for her enough to make her my daughter, Ray?" she asked.

"Frankly, no, I do not. I can never love another as I love Sibyl even now," and the pain in his voice testified to the truth of his words.

"My poor boy! But time will soften your grief in a measure, and—you must marry some time."

"Time can never soften or alleviate my sorrow," he said, almost passionately; "and if I must marry some time, as you say, it will have to be some one who will please me better. Still, I do not love her. I can never love her. But I have been the cause, though unwittingly, of placing her in this very awkward position, and if she will accept me, knowing all—"

"I am not mistaken. I think Ada regards you with very favorable, I may say even tender feelings," interrupted his mother.

But he was so silent after her reply that she looked up with something of anxiety to observe nim.

His face was almost convulsed with pain.

"My dear boy, your heart is almost broken—how I wish I could comfort you," she cried, in sudden sympathy. "You must do as you think best, my boy, but remember that time is a great healer, and I believe that comfort will come even to you."

to you."

He had no answer to give her, but with a very white face he got up, and excusing himself, hastily quitted the room.

After breakfast the next morning, Raymond, with a pale, resolute face, requested a private interview with Count Shirley.

It was, of course, readily granted, and the young man in an open, straightforward manner asked the privilege of addressing Miss Therwin with the view of making her his wife.

There was no reason why this request should not be granted; for any one might be proud of an alliance with the son of Sir Athelstone Prescott.

But in his heart Count Shirley regretted that Prescott.

But in his heart Count Shirley regretted that Raymend professed a desire to marry his ward, for he believed him to be a true and noble man, and admired him exceedingly; while he feared that Ada would make his life miserable. He feared, in spite of the apparent change in her since her return from Dumfries, that she was only acting a part to accomplish this very end.

With this permission ebtained, Raymond immediately sought Ada. The matter must be

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 12.)

400

Department is conducted solely for the use of COMPORT sisters, whereby they may give expression to their ideas relative to the home and home surroundings, and to all matters pertaining to themselves and families; as well as opening a way for personal correspondence between each other.

Our object is to extend a helping hand to COMFORT subscribers; to become coworkers with all who seek friendship, encouragement, sympathy or assistance through the interchange of ideas.

abuse of this privilege, such as inviting cor-respondence for the purpose of offering an ar-ticle for sale, or undertaking to charge a sum of money for ideas, recipes or information men-tioned in any letter appearing in this depart-ment, if reported, will result in the offender be-ing denied the use of these columns.

Do not ask us to publish letters requesting money con-tributions or donations of any sort. Much as we sympathize with the suffering and un-fortunate, it is impossible to do this as we would be flooded with similar requests.

Please write only on one side of the paper, and recipes on a separate sheet.

Always give your correct and full name and address, very plainly written; otherwise your letter will receive no attention.

Address Mrs. Whereer Wilkinson, Care Comport, Augusta, Maine.

OMFORT has already given ideas on Hallowe'en decorations and if "Farm-erene," and others will refer to previ-ous October numbers they will find the declared information ous October numbers they will find the desired information.

Nature has practically solved the decoration problem and the stores hold nothing prettier or more appropriate than brilliant autumn leaves, golden corn and grinning Jack o' Lanterns, and late marigolds, asters and chrysanthemums from the flower garden, and the same lavish hand has provided nuts and apples for games and decorative purposes. The stores may be visited for black paper for witches and cats and even marshmallows to toast, but doughnuts or pumpkin pie and coffee are the customary Hallowe'en refreshments, not forgetting crisp, buttered pop-corn.

buttered pop-corn.

Tell us about your Hallowe'en party and how it differed from other parties.—Ed.

DEAR MRS. WILKINSON AND COMFORT SISTEMS:
Simpshine, this is the way I wash our clothes.

Dick out the finest pieces and wash them first and then the next finest and so on, boiling or scalding in turn. It is not necessary to wash through two waters before boiling unless the clothes are extremely dirty. The best way I think is to have the water just past lukewarm when putting the clothes in the boiler. After taking the clothes out, add a pailful of cold water so the water won't be too hot when the next hot is added, as any solded parts you did not get off will set in the boiling water; then add enough cold water to the clothes you have just taken out so they can be handled. Ringe in clear water, and then bluing water, starch and hang out. How many of the sisters know that corn-starch makes good starch for clothes? Make it the same as any other starch. As it is a substitute for flour, I get it sometimes and it saves flour for those who use librarch.

Miss. H., surely you can do something to overcome know what I would do without them. They are a great help too, now that school is out for the summer. As I said before, I have joined the Red Cross and we meet every Thursday. There are only a few of us but we turn out a good deal of work and I enjoy doing my bit, which I think is every true American woman's duty to do. If she can't attend the meetings, surely she can do something at home and it doesn't hart any woman to give a little of her time to help the boys who are giving their lives for us. Now a few lines of poetry for the benefit of Mrs. H. and others.

"If our boys over there can whistle
And take hardships as they come,
Can cheerfully face the shell fire
And mock at the bursting bomb—
If our lads can sing in the trenches
And go over the top with a grin,
If their lives they willingly offer
That for you they finay victory win,
Then surely you'll aid them by keeping
The home fires bright with your cheer—
If they can smile over yonder,
Surely you can keep smiling here.
So away with your glooms and your grouches!
Despair is the wrong kind of dope;
Henceforth let your face shine with courage,
Spread cheer, optimism and hope!"

Always, CHEERFUL.

SOMEWHERE IN WEST VIRGINIA.

DEAR MRS. WILKINSON AND READERS:
Will you welcome a West Virginian into your circle?
I am sitting under a great maple tree whose rustling leaves and cool shade bring relief and content to many a weary city dweller, while all around me are ferns and wild flowers and nearly an ice-cold stream trickles down, forms a spring and flows on down and joins a creek which is great for fishing (CONTINUED ON PAGE 7.)

Comfort Sisters' Recipes

HE Hallowe'en idea is better carried out, for the Hallowe'en party, if the refreshments show witches, cats and pumpkin faces. Chocolate cookies with these figures traced in white frosting delight the taste and sight and the Orange Surprise, shown below, is a delicious dessert for the Hallowe'en supper. Black cats, ensity cut from black paper and made to perch on cups of coffee, add to the scheme of things.—Ed.

Pickled Beets.—Select the smallest beets and cook until tender. Put in cold water and remove skins. Pack in glass jars and cover with hot vinegar to which has been added a teaspoon and a half of salt and the same quantity of sugar, for each quart jar.

Beet Relish.—One quart of chopped beets, cooked, one quart of chopped cabbage, raw, three quarters cup grated horseradish, one tablespoon salt, one tablespoon black pepper, one and three quarters cup of sugar, and one quarter teaspoon red pepper. Cover with vinegar and put in cool place.

Grape Marmalade.—Pick over, wash, drain and remove stems from grapes. Separate pulp from skins and put pulp in preserving kettle and heat to boiling point and cook slowly until the seeds separate from the pulp. Rub through a fine sieve and return to kettle with the skins. To this add equal quantity of sugar and cook slowly twenty-five or thirty minutes.

Baked Stufferd Tomatoes.—From the stem end of large, smooth tomatoes, cut a thin slice. Remove soft pulp and seeds and mix with an equal amount of buttered cracker crumbs seasoned with sait, pepper, sugar and onion juice. Fill the cavity with the mixture, heaping well at the top and cover with bread crumbs. Top with a small piece of butter, place in an agate pan and bake in hot oven until crumbs are brown. Serve at once.

BAKED STUFFED TOMATOES.

BAKED TOMATOES.—Wash tomatoes, cut in halves and lay them in buttered pan. Dust with buttered crumbs and bake till brown.—Mrs. J. A. LOVETT, Monroe, La.

WAR COOKIES.—One half cup sugar, one half cup molasses, one half cup shortening, two eggs, one teaspoon soda, one half teaspoon cream of tartar, one half teaspoon each lemon and ginger. About equal parts rye and barley flour and a little rice flour to roll. Use rice flour on board.

CREAM PART.—Boil one cup of sweet milk, and stir into it one heaping teaspoon of flour and one egg, with enough milk to moisten it, and stir until cooked. Season with lemon and sugar and spread between layers.

Brown Bread.—One cup of brown sugar, one cup of sweet milk, one cup of sour milk, one level teaspoon of soda, one cup of flour, one teaspoon of baking powder, two and one half cups of graham flour, two teaspoons of melted butter and add one cup of raisins or chopped nut meats.—Mrs. C. A. Johnson, Ionia, Lova

Iowa.

ROLLED OATS PUDDING.—One egg, one cup sweet milk, one cup cold cooked oatmeal, and two table-spoons of brown sugar. Beat well. Add nutmeg or lemon, as preferred. Cook slowly one half hour. Let brown. Serve with sugar and cream or whipped Drown. Serve with sugar and cream or whipped cream.

CORNMEAL PUDDING WITH APRICOTS.—Pour three cups of scalding hot milk on one cup of sifted corn meal. Stir in two tablespoons of sugar, one teaspoon of powdered ginger and one half teaspoon of salt. Now add six apricots, sliced thin. Bake one and one half hours in a moderate oven. Garnish with slices of apricot and serve with sauce made from the juice.—Mrs. James Spirkway, Billings, Mont.

Fairy Gingeerbread.—Four level tablespoons sugar, four level tablespoons shortening, one half level teaspoon soda, one level teaspoon ginger, one level teaspoon soda, one level teaspoon soda, one level teaspoon bearing powder and one cup of flour. Beat egg for two minutes and add rest of materials in order given. This makes one dozen gens or it may be baked in cake tin.—Offila Charles, Norman Sta., Ind.

COFFEE FRUIT CAKE.—One half cup of butter, one

COFFEE FRUIT CAKE.—One half cup of butter, one half cup of sugar, two well-beaten eggs, one cup of cool, strong coffee, one cup of molasses, one pound of seeded raisins, one half pound of shredded citron, one tablespoon of ground allspice, cloves, cliniannon and ginger and three cups of flour—Miss L. Rose, Illinois.

AMAZING DISCOVERY!

Wonderful Little Tablets that Save Half the Soap and Take Work Out of Washday. Your Chance to Make Big Money!

Washday drudgery gone forever! Scrubbing on the washboard out of

One-half a cake of soap doing the work of a whole cake—and doing it better. Clothes saved from the wear and tear of old-fashioned washing.

Wonderful—amazing—yes, but true. Spik and Span—the modern washday miracle has done it.

Spik and Span Tablets, made from absolutely pure ingredients—no lye, potash, or paraffin, no injurious chemicals—have freed women from washday

Send No Money

Just the Coupon-Cet 10 Packages by Return Mail

Not one penny-just sign your name it brings you your trial package. Pay for it if you wish at the end of thirty days-could anything be more fair? It's your chance-act quickly. Spik and Span is the greatest seller on the market today-it is ready for your territory. Send the coupon.

EGGLESS COFFEE CAKE.—One cup of sugar, one half cup of cocoa, one teaspoon of vanilla, two tablespoons of lard, one and one quarter cups of strong, cold coffee, one and one quarter cups harley flour, one quarter cup white flour and two heaping teaspoons baking powder. Cream sugar and lard together, add vanilla and cocoa. Next add coffee and flour alternately and last the baking powder, sifted in a little flour.—Mrs. W. L. W., Idaho.

Diverging Cover with soling water and cook five minutes. To prove the course of sugar little governments.

PINEAPPLE CAKE.—One and one half cups of sugar, one half cup of butter, yolks of three eggs, one cup of pineapple juice, two and three quarters cups of flour, two teaspoons of baking powder and whites of three eggs beaten and added last.—CAROLINE SCHUMACHER, Cushing, Iowa.

SWEET PICKLE FOR BEEF,—Mix together one gallon of warm water one pound of brown sugar, one pound of coarse salt and half an ounce of saltpeter. Have this thoroughly mixed and pour over meat. This is sufficient for ten or twelve pounds of meat.

OATMEAL MOLASSES COOKIES.—One cup of molasses, one cup of brown or white sugar. Put in large pan and bring to boiling point but do not boil. Add one cup of butter or lard; when melted, take from stove and add one heaping teaspoon soda. Mix well and let cool. Then add one half teaspoon each of cloves and ginger and one teaspoon of cinnamon, two eggs, two tablespoons cold water, two cups water and flour enough to roll. These keep a long time and improve with age.—Mrs. Fred Fetaner, Falls City, Nebr.

age.—Mas. Fred Fetener, Falls City, Nebr.

Baked Apples.—Take sound, large, ripe apples, moderately sour, and remove core with apple corer or a sharp penknife. Then wash and place them in a baking pan and fall the cavities with sugar and butter; put a cupful or more of water in the pan and bake in a moderate oven until they are soft all through, no longer, else they are apt to become a shapeless mass. Take them out with a spoon and arrange tastefully on a glass dish and dip the syrup, that formed while baking, over them and set aside to cool. Just before serving, sprinkle with powdered sugar.—MINNIE MACKINTOSH, San Diego, Cal.

CEEAMUR CELENY—Cut for medium sixed stalks of CEEAMED CELERY.—Cut five medium-sized stalks of celery into small pieces, cover with salted water and let simmer until tender. Drain. Put one cup of rich milk into a sauce pan with two teaspoons of butter, and when hot add the celery. Season with salt and pepper and let cook a few minutes, then add enough corn-starch, mixed in a little cold water, to thicken. Stir thoroughly and serve very hot.

RHUBARE PUDDING.—Peel and cut rhubarb into small pleces, though if it is very tender it need not be peeled and the red peel will give color to the pudding. Put into double boiler and cook until tender. Add very little water, if any. Sweeten to taste, thicken with corn-starch and pour into mold to cool. Serve with whipped cream. Flavor with vanilla.

RHUBARB TAPIOCA. - Soak three quarters of a cup of Dirt vanishes-stains come out, the clothes are spotlessly clean in a surprisingly short time. No rubbing necessary. Cleans everything around the house.

Women are enthusiastic-hundreds upon hundreds of letters are pouring in -thanking us for this invention.

We want to introduce Spik and Span to every woman in America. They are waiting for it—ready to buy—anxious to buy. It's your opportunity.

Spik and Span-ten tablets to a box -enough for 5 big washings-only 15c. Think of it!-and there's a great big money-making profit to our agents.

FREE TRIAL COUPON S. NEWBERRY COMPANY 914 W. Lake Street, CHICAGO

Geutlemen: Please send me trial package of ten fifteen-cent boxes of Spik and Span tab-iets. Postage paid. I promise to send the special price of $1.00 to you or return the goods within 30 days.

																				-	-	-
A	d	d	•	e	8.5

Special Offer. If you send this coupon in at once, we will put a one dollar free advertising certificate in each 15 cent package.

RHUBARB AND DATES.—Stone one half pound of dates, cover with boiling water and cook five minutes. To this add three cups of rhubarb, cut into small pieces, and let cook until the rhubarb is tender. Sweeten to taste, though less sugar will be required than usual. Rhubarb Custard.—Stew one and one quarter pounds of rhubarb and three quarters of a cup of sugar. Make a soft custard of two eggs, a cup and a half of milk and one tablespoon of corn-starch, using double boiler for this purpose. Let both rhubarb and custard cool and pour the custard over the rhubarb.—A. M. P., Waterville, Me.

To try in your home 30 days free no matter where you live. Show your friends, send it back at our expense if you do not want to keep it. Million members of families enjoying the comforts and pleasures of "Hoosler" Stoves & Ranges, perfect bakers and heaters, beautifully finished, smooth latest design, guaranteed for years.

Write for our big free book above. write for our big free book show-ing photographs, describing large assortment of sizes and designs of Steel and Cast Ranges, Cooks, Soft Steel and Cast Ranges, Cooks, Soft and Cook of Casters, to select from, and beautiful and the steel of the cooks.

HOOSIER STOVE CO. 264 State St., Marion, Ind. USED WITH A COMMON PEN

PAYSON'S INDELIBLE INK CO., 326-328 Henshaw Av., Northampton, Mass.

New Feather Beds only $9.00

New Feather Pillows $1.80 per pair. New Feathers. Best Ticking. Satisfaction guaranteed. Write for New catalog SOUTHERS FEATHER & PILLOW CO. 201 GREENSBORD, N. C. or Money Refunded.

MAIL COUPON CLOTHE YOURSELF EXTRA EXPENSE Just because it costs so much these days to keep your pantry supplied do not think you will have to go without new clothes. By buying your foods, soaps and other home supplies direct from the Larkin Factories and saving the middleman's expense, you may clothe yourself with fashionable serviceable garments as a LARKIN Factory-to- SAVING

Send for our new Money-Saving Catalog which describes this lustrous Black Broad Cloth Coat also many other articles of wearing apparel and useful home furnishings you can get as Premiums by this economical method of Factory-to-Family Dealing. We will reward you for interesting your friends in our great War-time Economies.

Coupon i Postal to Nearest Address

Larkin Co. Buffalo, Chicago, Peoria

Please send me your new Fall Catalog No. 76.

G. P. 385

LEAGUE RULES :

To be a comfort to one's parents.

To be kind to dumb animals.

To love our country and protect its flag

CONDUCTED BY UNCLE CHARLIE

ADDRESS all letters to COMFORT, Augusta, Maine. See Instructions at the close of this Department. COMFORT for one year and admittance to the League of Cousins for ADDRESS all letters to COMFORT. Aspata, Maios. See lastructions at the close of the Department.

The Condoctive of merchand German and German pays and horribly, one has only to dip into the interactive and near the history, and horribly, one has only to dip into the interactive and near the history and are responsible for the Prussian's way of looking at life, which is different from the way of the control o soldier suffer."

"Oh, Germany, hate now! Arm thyself with steel and pierce with thy bayonet the heart of every foe, no prisoners!—lock all their lips in silence; turn our neighbors' lands into deserts," writes Vierordt. Isn't that exquisitely humane and beautiful? Nietzsche exorts the German people thus: "Ye shall love peace as a means to new wars and the short peace more than the long." Frederick William IV in his speech from the throne, April 11, 1847, said: "All written constitutions are only scraps of paper." No wonder Germany invaded Belgium, and tore up the treaty which made her responsible for its protection.

Now just for a few more words from the Kaiser, the "Christian gentlemen" who hear the in command of Turkish roops looked on and enconvaried the perpetration of the most finedisk recovery and the propertical of the most finedisk recovery and the law to share the vessels of its enemies, it is a well understood principle of international law and of all the laws of decency, humanity and of the law of decency, humanity and the law of the RIDGEWAY, OHIO.

RIDGEWAY, OHIO.

DEAR UNCLE CHARLIE AND COUSINS:

I go to Ridgeway public school. Am in the sixth grade and eleven years old. I like to go to school very well, and I also like my teacher. I have been reading the letters of the young folks in COMFORT for a long time, and thought I would write a few lines. I have one sister and one brother. I have twenty-five dollars in war savings stamps. I have light hair and brown eyes and live three miles southwest of Ridgeway.

Your niece, JENNIE FISH.

relatives. If all little girls and boys of your age had done as much as you have to finance the war, the whole terrible conflict would be more than half won. When Billy the Goat gets mad with me he calls me a "poor fish," but as long as you hang on to those war savings stamps, Jennie, no one will be able to call Jennie Fish a poor fish. Tell your brother to hurry up and get into the army, for as he is a Fish, he would be able to swim to France and save Uncle Sam a whole heap of money for transportation charges. Incidentally he might catch a few submarines going over. Three cheers for Jennie Fish. Now all you boys and girls, take a lesson from Jennie. It will cost a lot of money to whip the Kaiser, but remember all the money you loan Uncle Sam he will repay you with interest. No matter what the cost in blood and treasure, it will be the best investment humanity ever made.

LA CROSSE, 629 Rose St., Wis.

DEAR UNCLE CHARLIE:
My school closed today. I am twelve years old.
I'm not one of the smartest boys of my age, I guess the smart wheel was left out of my head. I have two brothers, but they are not old enough to go to the war. I have three sisters and I am the baby of the family. I hope we are going to win this war soon so that my brother will not have to go. I composed a parody on the song, "On Wisconsin." We shall win this war.
Your loving nephew,
Archie H. Scriener.

On Wisconsin, on Wisconsin, Wisconsin's right in line, Shoot the ball clear round old Germany, bring her down this time.

On Wisconsin, on Wisconsin, fight on by the score, Fight, brave soldiers fight, and we shall win this war.

on Wisconsin, on Wisconsin, fight on by the score, Fight, brave soldiers fight, and we shall win this war.

Thank you, Archie, for your pottery and your letter. You are lucky to have had the smart wheel left out of your head. Unfortunately the smart wheel was not removed from my cranium and my head has been smarting and has kept on smarting for some half a century. If your brothers are not old enough to go to the war, maybe your sisters are. I have two of my old Billy the Goats over at the front. One is driving an ambulance, and the other who in my story book tells how she met me, is doing war work in Paris. The army needs nurses. You girls should get the smart wheel into your heads so as to acquire sufficient education to enter a training school and become nurses. In some sections of the country the school year is so short—a few miserable weeks—that it is a wonder the hospitals can get any nurses with sufficient brains to take care of a sick grasshopper. I've only space for one verse of your patriotic pottery, Archie. From the fact that you hope your brand of patriotism. In one of the first sections of your pottery spasms you say: "Shoot the ball clear round old Germany." That line would tickle the Kaiser all to bits. What we want to do is to shoot not only one ball, but a billion balls clear through Germany. Shoot the muntil Germany looks like a Swiss cheese, a reproduction of Belgium, Serbia and other lands that she has crushed beneath her iron heel. Not until Germany gets a dose of her own medicine will she and her people's homes is fine sport, but when you get your own home smashed and your own blood spilled, the joys of home smashing are not quite so appealing. For three years the Germany looks like a Swiss cheese, a reproduction of Belgium, Serbia and other lands that she has crushed beneath her iron heel. Not until Germany looks like a Swiss cheese, a reproduction of Belgium, Serbia and other lands that she has crushed beneath her iron heel. Not until Germany looks like a Swiss cheese, a reproduction of

MUNDEN, VA.

Jean Uncle Charlie:

Jean ten years old, in the fifth grade. Have two sisters and one brother. We live on a farm with our mother. Father died some years ago. I have tried to milk our cow but could not get the milk. I can crochet, but cannot knit. I like to read books and papers and love to go to school. Miss Gladys Bane has been my teacher. I want to take music this summer. I wish this horrid war would end and the United States and the Entente Allies be victorious. We have several friends in France or in the Camp Lee training camp.

ETHEL CARROLL.

Ethel. I am sorry you have been so unsuccessful in procuring milk from your cow. There is an idea prevalent in many sections of the country that cows give milk. This however is not the case, for unless the milk is taken from them in a correct and expert manner, you just don't get it. I have been drinking a quart or more of milk daily for many years, but we get our milk from a horse and wagon instead of a cow. There are many reasons of course why you may have failed in securing milk from your cow. Maybe you do not understand a cow's geography, and are uncertain as to the exact location of the region from which the milk originates. Maybe too, now that Grade A milk is seventeen cents a quart in New York, your cow has become a millionairess and has retired from business, or has sold all her milk and converted the money into Liberty Bonds. Again, the cow may be pro-German, a bovine slacker, and declines to do her bit in winning the war. If you will send the four-legged lady up to me by parcel post, I will have her cross-examined by the Department of Justice and a few other experts, and try and find out what is the matter. I am glad Miss Bane has bane a good teacher, and trust she will continue so. All my teachers were the bane of my life, but they were horrid male things with whiskers, and were not upholstered with such beautiful and romantic names as Gladys. You are a lucky girl, Ethel.

PHOENIX. ARIZONA.

DEAR UNCLE CHARLIE:

I am a girl in the sixth grade. I have a fifty dollar Liberty Bond and a baby bond. I have brown hair and blue eyes. I am getting some freckles on my face because I have been going bareheaded so much. They look like those awful Germans on my face. I intend to get them off right away. Wouldn't you? I hope that Billy the Goat does not get my letter.

Your loving niece,

ABBY STEWART.

The treaty which made her responsible for its protection.

Now just for a few more words from the Kalser, the "Christian gentleman" who has made even satan ashamed of his profession: "Upon me the Spirit of the Lord has descended. Those who oppose me I will crush. Looking upon my serven satan ashamed of his profession: "Upon me the Spirit of the Lord has descended. Those who oppose me I will crush. Looking upon my self as the instrument of the Lord, without regard to the opinions and intentions of the day, I go my way."

Do you wonder that Goethe, the great German poet, spoke of the Prussians thus: "The Prussians are cruel by nature; civilization will make them ferocious."

Heine, that other great poetical German genius, had also taken the measure of the Hun. He said: "The Prussians * * Nature has made them stupid, science has made them wicked."

I could fill a whole issue of Comfort with the language of the thug, the murderer, the assassin and the horse thief. Do you wonder that a nation that servilely accepts and cringes under the domination of such sangulary brutes,

Free Book Shows 30 New Styles

Send Name for Free Book

THE BOND SHOE MAKERS, Dept. 1710, Cincianati, Ohio

stake is only round steak and costs fifty cents a pound. Now as regards that terrible freckle affliction. Nearly every beauty specialist in the magazines devotes half her space telling ladies, young and old, how to remove freckles, much to the amusement of the freckles, which stay right where they are and grow fat on all the lotions that are designed to effect their destruction. Personally I would rather see a girl's face freckled by the sun, honest and clean, than smothered in six inches of paint procured at the drug store. There are some things in this world that nobody can understand. I've been going bareheaded nearly thirty years and never accumulated a freckle, while you go out in the sun for two minutes and come home with a carload. If these freckles have a Germanic appearance, all you have to do is to report the matter to the Department of Justice, and they will be removed at once and sent to the detention camp. My advice to you, Abby, if you want (CONTINUED ON PAGE 15.) (CONTINUED ON PAGE 15.)

What is News?

Newscan only be that which is true-confirmed fact, evil exposed, and constructive good made known. Not rumors of the worst. Nor accidents, scandals and crimes of the day, with grewsome details.

The gossip of a community does not constitute news, but a statement of the substantial progress of a world does.

The Christian Science Monitor An International Daily Newspaper looks first for fact.

Constructive fact it enlarges upon.

And it is entertaining as well as true, thorough and

This motive and method has given it a universal news service, a world-wide circulation, an international advertising patronage.

The Christian Science Monitor is $9.00 a year by mail, or may be obtained at news stands, hotels and Christian Science reading-rooms. A monthly trial subscription by mail anywhere in the world for 75c; a single copy for 3c stamp.

THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE PUBLISHING SOCIETY U. S. A. BOSTON

Sole publishers of all authorized Christian Science literature

Comfort Sisters' Corner

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 5.)

and canceling and is sought by hundreds from the city when the thermometer reaches the 90 mark, for no stream in W. Va. affords a more pleasant bathing no stream in W. Va. affords a more pleasant bathing place.

The farmhouse sets on a hill and is surrounded by fine old trees and apple orchards. There are five large alry rooms and one room I call my Sunshine Hoom. It is furnished mostly in yellow—yellow curtains, yellow shades, a rug with a yellow and brown center and cream-colored walls. The result is beautiful. Fields of oats and corn surround us and potatoes, tomatoes and beaus, cabbages, onions and pease tender that I often wonder how we ever ate the store vegetables. If I have an unexpected caller there is no running up a store bill for a few extras for the table. The ferns and flowers furnish a bouquet, the garden the edibles in the vegetable line, the cows the rich cream and golden butter and an April hatch of chickens the meat and, to and behold, a meal fit for a king. It is so healthful here that I wish all the ailing sisters could enjoy it with me. There is always a good breeze even in the hottest weather and yet we are only twenty-five minutes' walk from the edge of the city. We moved here in March, so you can imagine how good it seems to us after living in the city with just a small yard. There are one hundred acres here.

Will the sisters tell me how to decorate for Hallow-e'en party and their ideas as to games and refreshments. Something that is not expensive.

A FARMERINE.

DEAR CORNER FOLKS:

For once, I've had a hideous nightmare while reading in our dear Corner. I thought I was a man and a vampire had fastened itself on my chest, and.....

No, I wasn't sleeping; I was wide awake and reading a letter in the July Comfort. Ugh!!! My, but I was glad when I came to, and read the next letter! The sun shone, the birds sang, and life was so grand I wouldn't have missed it for anything—and all because of glorious Pearl Vesey!

My husband and I have come to the conclusion that it doesn't make so much difference where one lives, for there's beauty everywhere, and one can be happy and must work wherever he is. Still, I do wish all of the sisters could enjoy this fine country. We have been here only a few years, but are satisfied with it in every respect. Camp Lewis is quite near us and we visit it often. Mount Ranier, with its inspiration to "come up higher," stands in plain view, on perpetual guard. The boys like the life, but in their desire to get at the Kaiser, some of them laughingly quote the Indian who said, "Too much salute; not enough shoot?" We looked over the books and magazines in the Y. M. C. A. reading-rooms, and found that they need Comfort, so I enclose a sub.

So many good suggestions are given by the sisters that I feel ashamed of coming empty-handed. But when I rummage in my mental storehouse ("scrapbag" is more correct), I find very little that is new. Here is a remedy for that discouraged, blue feeling that sometimes comes to the strongest of us—but it is old, too, for I got it from my grandmother, who always advised, "Do something for somebody, quick!" Her life was full of misfortune and bitter grief, and yet she lived chieerfully through it all by following the advice she so often gave to others.

'If you like persimmons, you will be glad to know that they can be kept until spring by putting them in layers in stone jars, sprinking each layer with a generous handful of sugar.

The question of a wife working outside of her own home has not yet been discussed by the sis

Mrs. E. H.—Thanks for giving us something new to talk about and such an interesting something too. I feel sure the boys at Camp Lewis will appreciate your gift, as we have received numerous requests for COMFORT from boys at various camps. Needless to say, these were complied with promptly.—Ed.

BURLINGTON, KANS.

HELLO THERE, SISTERS : IELLO THERE, SISTERS:
I didn't know it would make a person so excited write a letter that may (?) be read in all parts
the United States.
My parents took COMFORT for a number of years nd I've taken it since I was married, more than wo years.

My parents took Comport for a number of years and I've taken it since I was married, more than two years.

First of all I want to say I think this corner fine. I have got lots of help from the hints and recipes. Now for Lula. I'm going to start at the top of her letter and chide her to the end.

Well, well, so you don't love your husband? That's not strange, since from the tone of your letter it is plain to see you do not love anyone but yourself. If you would look around at some other men who do drunk and gamble and notice how their wives have to get along maybe that would awaken love spark No. I. What in the world have you got to fuss at him about? He does the work Sunday, is a good provider, doesn't talk back and doesn't drink. Why don't you meet him at the door and kiss him or if he isn't sentimental, greet him with a cheery, "Hello, old pard! How did work go today?" He would more than likely say something pleasant in return. Keep that up a while and here comes spark No. 2. Now pray tell me, if you haven't any children and aren't sickly, why you want to rest on Sunday? Seems to me poor old Hubby ig the one to rest after working all the week. I think you have an angel or a fool for a mah, to take all you pile on him and not even peep.

I'm not any better than the common run of women but here's how we spend Sunday. I do my baking on Saturday (we are common farmers, I forgot to mention) and also get some canned or fresh fruit, have a chicken baked or meat of some kind, and we have a cold dinner if we don't have company or go somewhere. While Daddy does his chores I make my beds (sweeping and dusting done the Friday before, Lula) and while Daddy and Trudge (that's our girlie) drive around while he looks at the fences and crops, I wash the dishes and when they get back the porch is fixed with rugs and pillows and a stack of magazines and books. In the afternoon someone most always comes or we go visiting and to church in the evening. When bedtime comes Daddy has forgotten the "bad times" the week before and is f spending a Sunday or two that way and behold, love spark No. 3.

Here's the awful part of your letter, Lula—"I never would consent to give birth to a child." Are you the one to hold such a wonderful, mighty thing as motherhood in your hands? Where then, do you place the Savior? Didn't He give women that divine privilege and how shall you answer to Him if you willfully abuse that privilege? And think what you are missing. I'd rather give up every earthly pleasure than miss the soft, dimpled hands around my neck and sunny, trustful face lifted to mine. She toddles through the house, pulling things down to be replaced later and she makes lots of washing, ironing and sewing, but the little kisses more than pay it back. Yop'd be surprised too, to see how a really good husband would treat you. Daddy would hardly let me move before Trudge was born and the first thing he said when he came home at night was, "Have you made any more doil clothes?" Now they are the best of pals. Try it Lula and the first thing you know your heart will be brimming ever with love for your husband and you'll be sighing for your wasted yoars. or cheer.

I have several old light summer dresses, from which place the Savior? Didn't He give women that divine privilege and how shall you answer to Him if you willfully abuse that privilege? And think what you are missing. I'd rather give up every earthly pleasure than miss the soft, dimpled hands around my neck and sunny, trustful face lifted to mine. She toddles through the house, pulling things down to be replaced later and she makes lots of washing, ironing and sewing, but the little kisses more than pay it back. Yoff do surprised too, to see how a really good husband would treat you. Daddy would hardly let me move before Trudge was born and the first thing he said when he came home at night was, "Have you made any more doil clothes?" Now they are the best of pals. Try it Lula and the first thing you know your heart will be brimming over with love for your husband and you'll be sighing for your wasted years.

I'' tell you about our country and climate. This part of Kansas is smooth and rolling. The summers are rather droughty and the winters generally dry and cloth All kinds of grain are raised but just now it is the wheat craze and everyone raises wheat and I am glad of that for I want our boys over there to have all they want to eat.

Daddy and I kint for the soldiers last winter. I am got to the Red Cross meetings, of which we are both members. We have bought a Liberty Bond and are trying to do our bit.

Do you want to know how I look, Lula? I know, she has a long nose, false teeth and a long stongue and I'll bet she's skinny. But I haven't and I'm not. I am five feet, two inches tall, weigh 110 pounds and have brown hair and sort of blue-blackgrey eyes, round face, pug nose and a big mouth. No body thinks I'm pretty but Daddy.

Fearl Vesey, I'm going to write to you some of these days. I wish I lived near you.

Good by.

Mas. N. F. G.

Mrs. G.—Come again and tell us if Trudge is your girlie's real name, for someone will want to know. I should like to visit you some Sunday afternoon and enjoy the comforts of your cozy porch, but Kansas is too far away for afternoon calls.-Ed.

your cozy porch, but Kansas is too far away for afternoon calls.—Ed.

Thorett, Tenn,

Dear Comport Sisters:

I am an interested reader of the sisters' letters and have thought of writing but somehow the time has slipped by and a new Comport comes and each time the letters were so much better than I could have written that I'm glad I did not write and now it is Lula's letter that prompts me. Her letter is the very limit. Sisters, do you think she deserves the kind treatment her husband gives her? Judging from her letter, she does not. You know the old saying, "Love is blind," and it is true in this case. Maybe she is trying to joily us and we will hope so until we hear from her again.

Pearl Vesey, I would like to shake hands with you. You write such cheerful letters. These hot days make one glad vacation time is here and by the time this letter reaches you I will have taken mine and gotten back home again. Do you know, sisters, the real good of a vacation is not so much that it rests your mind and body as that it makes you satisfied with your lot. It is good to go away but it is great to come back. I suppose the psychology of the thing is that most of the time we stay too closely at home to realize how beautiful our blessings are. We have to get far enough away to get the right view of them. I always spend my vacations with my grandmother, as my father and mother have both paased away. She lives in a pretty little country village and has the traditional vine-wreather covery contonal pirty of the same work of the place where things have begun to get on my nerves and I have only once and the property of the same work of the place where things have begun to get on run nerves and I have commenced pitying myself and wondering if I didn't make a mistake when I married the nice little farmer who proposed to me when I was sixteen years old. I have begun to get on run nerves and I have commenced pitying myself and wondering if I didn't make a mistake when I married the nice little farmer who proposed to me when I was si Jimmie.—Your letter afforded me a good laugh. It is so true to life that almost any woman can see herself in it. Come again.—Ed.

FIFIELD, WIS.

Dear Old Comforters:

Because I love Mother Nature in all her moods—providing there's a setting of tail timber for her to "mood" in—I love you the more and wish you could spend the day around our campfire—mosquito smudge—while we listened to the wood sounds and—slapped mosquitoes. The kiddles got the long end of the wishbone, and I must be content with a perch in our Corner which just now means to me—Ladles' Aid, Church, Club, Library, Friendship League and all the rest that goes with social life here.
Your personal letters made me twice glad. Some of them nearly leaped from the envelopes to pat me on the back, and my long neck would get several inches shorter—sort of bowed up with pride. Then would come one which I could hardly drag from the cover, and it would be full of biting sarcasm and my rubber-like neck would attain its natural length and leave me five feet, nine and one half inches long, again. This time I won't tell you a thing about raising again. This time I won't tell you a thing about raising again. This time I won't tell you a thing about raising at all. They are mannerly and good, because we are mannerly and good to them. They sing and play as the birds do and run as wild as the deer in the Slashings. I think it as cowardly for a woman to strike a child as it is for a man to strike a woman there is too much "power" about it, and not enough reason. I find that "power" lasts only while the rule is present, while loving explanation of the whys and wherefores lasts for a lifetime, allowing for little sidepaths through childish "forgetteries," which aren't deliberate disobediences at all. Let us stop "raising" the children, letting them just grow up, while we make.

Friend husband—in the plurality—doesn't needscolding at all. They wrote me several of above mentioned "pat" letters, in which they told me all about it. I had a sneaking belief that more than one masculine eye perused our columns, and now I know it to the children, letting the beconnected by way of argument that w masculine eye perused our columns, and now I know it. The only sarcastic "Brother's" letter was typed, and stated by way of argument that women of today cannot cook, and that the writer is getting to be a woman hater. If Henry will send me his address, I will mail him my recipe for flapjacks, that he may fire that cook and live after the fashion of woman haters in general. I shall not argue with him, for two reasons: First—I'm Irish and I might say something that would cause him to "vote" against me. Secondly—I'm a wee bit leary of my own culinary abilities since I began Hooverizing.

Tonight Jack Frost reminds me that Santa Claus will soon begin packing his gifts, and I am going to put my money where it will either have to fight or cheer.

I have several old light summer dresses, from which I have several old light summer dresses, from

Girl's Complete 3-Piece Outfit

ORDER Now Before Prices Go Up!

Color of Coat. / Size
If I am not satisfied with the Girls Outfit, I can return it and get my payment back.
Otherwise, I will pay advertised terms of $2.35 monthly. If you want the BARGAIN BULLETIN, which is Free, put X here [] opening for latest paper, glasses, pipe and tobacco. Lula may not like smoke, but we do! Smoke smells like "Dad." Dad smells like smoke, and they both smell like the home-fires. If poverty really is the mother of invention, we must cultivate her more. She knows how to give a personal touch to her gifts that any amount of cash cannot bring, and just now Uncle Sam needs all the money we can spare. I was once a designer, and though I no longer work at it, I am not entirely out of practice. If you need help in putting your favorite flowers, fruit or scenery on your gifts, and will furnish suitable paper and stamped envelope, I will gladly draw them for you, "free of charge." I must ask you not to send me money or gifts—only cheerful letters. I am not in a position to return favors—much as I would like to. I, too, think it is better to give than receive, hence that big ache in my liver—for I have received several boxes of candy, also magazines, pictures and the pretitest white apron I ever saw. Thank you all, and remember—no more presents to be sent. I think most of you cah make belts, handkerchief boxes, slippers, splashers and the many kinds of crocheted and fancy gifts. I will close with the suggestion that you paint a lot of tomato cans, and start slips in them now. Where your gifts are not to be shipped, they are the best ever.

You will hear from me occasionally, when I think of something to say. My heart being in the woods, I will send the Big Woods full of love to "you"—the only sisters I have.

Pearl Vessy,—When I faced the four hundred

Pearl Vesey.—When I faced the four hundred or more letters which it is my pleasure to receive every month, I said: "I wonder if there is a letter from Pearl Vesey." and when I found it I was as delighted as your admiring sisters will be when they see it in print. No, I've never kissed the blarney stone, though my grandmothers may have. Never mind the knockers, but come again.—Ed.

TACOMA, 19 Bridgeport Ave., WASH. TACOMA, 19 Bridgeport Ave., WASH.
DEAR COMFORT SISTERS:
Seeing what one sister says about dancing, I cannot help but say a few words. No, I do not believe in dancing.
I have four girls, aged thirty, twenty-six, twenty and sixteen, and they have never danced. The two oldest are married and have little families. They say oldest are married and have little families. They say their girls shall never get the dancing fever either. When I was a girl I danced and found no harm in it, but my husband was raised a Baptist and would not let the children dance. I now thank him for it, as we have ten children and they are all an honor to our name. Many of the girls of my acquaintance dance and during the fifteen years I have lived here, most of the girls who have blighted their lives, left home or made bad marriages, spent their Saturday evenings dancing and Sunday mornings in bed.

When I was a girl I danced and found no harm in to ur name. Many of the girls of my acquaintance dead conting here it was worse. I have two sons and a son-inlaw in camp and it worried me to see those lone-some boys with no place to go but with a tough crowd. After talking to my son, who explained a soldier could not scrape acquaintance with decent people on the street, I decided to have some of them come to my house when in town. I have a boy of eighteen at

Please send me Girl's Outfit No. S-37 []

American Feather & Pillow Co., Desk 250, Nashville, Tenn.

THE GIRL HE LOVED

By Adelaide Stirling

Comparison of the control of the c cook give me."

"What trousers?" said the prosecuting attorney, and the next second was sorry he had what the next second was sorry he had spoken.

"The torn ones he was dressed up in, that he'd stolen from Captain Gordon," said the witness stolidly. "He told me Captain Gordon had give them to him, but I knew he took them, because I saw him coming out of his room with them, and I knowed he'd no call to be there. When there was that fuss about them he made me put them on in the posting-shed and wear them up to London. The got 'em on now"—simply—"and I found these two letters down the leg," producing the Umbrella's useless, well-meant warnings.

"Why did you write from London that you were happy?" said the prosecution sharply.

"Me?" said Towers. "Lord, sir, I can't write." In a dead silence the Umbrella's letters were read out, the letters that proved it had been past and not present meetings for Lady Levallion and Adrian Gordon. And then, with damning proof against Carrousel and against the missing Hester Murray, it was shown that Towers' supposed epistle and the letter from the pension in Boulogne were both in the same writing. And the telegram found in the mouse-hole fitted in with both—for if Adrian's detectives had not found Hester Murray they had found that she had never been in Boulogne at all, and that the Pension Bocage was kept by Carrousel's sister. Adrian's letter of inquiry had been forwarded to him, and his answer posted in Boulogne. Sir Thomas Annesley swore bostively that the clean-shaven Carrousel was the man he had seen in the wood and taken for Gordon. He had known him in Paddington Station before he followed him to Bethnal Court. then up to London. I've got 'em on now"—simply—gand I found these two letters down the let," producing the Umbrella's useless, well-meant warnings.

"Why did you write from London that four is a stand not present meetings for Lady Levalion and Adrian Gordon. And then, with damning proof against Carrousel and against the missing lester Murray, it was shown that Towers' stapposed epistic and the letter from the pension in Boulogne swhere she had gone. She had son, whom the letter from the pension in Boulogne wre both in the same writing. An intended the lond that the found that the found the found that she had force. Murray they had found that the Pension Bocage was kept by Carrousel's sister Murray. I went there, on the chance, I waited here for inquiry had been forwarded to him, and his answer posted in Boulogne, Sir Thomas Annesley swore besitively that the clean in the wood and taken for Gordon. He had known in the wood and taken for Gordon. He had known in the wood and taken for Gordon. He had known in the wood and taken for Gordon. He had known in the wood and taken for Gordon. He had known in the wood and taken for Gordon. He had known the letter from the pension is considered the first that the long had been governed to the first that the long had been forwarded to him, and his answer posted in Boulogne, Sir Thomas Annesley swore besitively that the clean is they swore the first the long had been forwarded to him the wood and taken for Gordon. He had known the first has the pension for the found that t and capital.

Lady Annesley, having worked much evil, had wiped it out. Yet her stepdaughter never saw her after that day in court. A few lies, a scrap of india-rubber, had cost two men's lives, and a woman's good name.

Levallion "had been kind," had died indirectly because he chose to marry her. Ravenel turned from the dock and went away with Tommy and the duchess, knowing that in a way the dead man had been dear to her, neither as lover nor husband, but as a friend whose love had passed knowledge.

And Adrian Gordon let her go; let the pass till Tommy was in the service and Mr. Jacobs fighting with all the dogs in Aldershot. And one day in May could wait no more.

By the lake at Avonmore she was sitting when, at the sound of his step on the gravel, she looked up and saw him.

"Adrian!" ske said, forgetting that for this many a day he had been Lord Levallion. But she got no further, for the look in his eyes that were on her face.

"May I come and speak to you?" he asked quite simply, as a child does, but his mouth had the same look as his eyes. "You've traveled a long way without me, Nel. Won't you—come home?"

And she knew what he meant. There was only long way without me, Nel. Won't you—come home?"

And she knew what he meant. There was only one home in the world for her, in Adrian Gordon's arms. Perhaps she had no pride, for without a word she went there.

In the May sun he looked at her, as in one May two years past. There was no change—but there was! He had never dreamed she was so beautiful. But as he would have kissed her she pushed him away.

"It isn't fair to you!" she cried. "People will say things if you marry me."

"We won't hear them," he returned, and in so much the manner of the dead and gone Levallion that she cried out.

"You never half-knew him, Adrian! He was good to une."

"My sweetheart," he said, with a queer understanding of her loyalty to the dead.

"He was a botter man than you," she cried, and her eyes filled with tears. "But, oh, Adrian, I loved you best."

THE END.

CONTENTS

Page Editorial -In and Around the Home Conducted by Mrs. Wheeler Wilkinson Sibyl's Influence (continued) Mrs. Georgie Sheldon Comfort Sisters' Corner and Recipes Comfort's League of Cousins Uncle Charlie The Girl He Loved (concluded) Adelaide Stirling The Pretty Girls' Club Katherine Booth . The Modern Farmer Poultry Farming for Women Mrs. Kate V. St. His Goddess of the Harvest Joseph F. Novak Little Children on the Farm N. F. Milborn Home Dressmaking Hints Geneva Gladding 14 What I Did With Ten Cents' Worth of Dye Elizabeth Firth The Boy Trappers of Beaver Bend -16 Veterinary Information Manners and Looks -Manners and Loops Talks with Girls Information Bureau 20 Home Lawyer - - - Two Wheel Chairs in September - -21 Family Doctor -The Emporium of Bargains and Opportunities Comfort's Comicalities War Economy in Food with Suggestions and Recipes

All Subscriptions Cut Off At Expiration

The Government requires all newspaper and magazine subscriptions to be cut short off on date of expiration, unless the subscription is renewed and paid for. Not even one copy can be sent, after expiration, until the subscription is renewed. If the number over your name on the wrapper on this magazine 360, or any less number, it means that this is the last copy of COMFORT you will receive until you renew. Renew today.

november

COMFORT

will be a big Anniversary Number to signalize the beginning of COMFORTS thirty-first year. It will contain the thrilling first part of our splendid new serial "What She Lived For."

It is an inspiring story of heroic sacrifice and devotion and deals sympathetically with the social problems that are shaking the world.

Don't miss the first part, in November COMFORT, which tells of the great strike that forces these lovers to array themselves on opposite sides of a bitter conflict between labor

All subscriptions must be dropped at expiration unless renewed and paid for in ad-Not even one copy can be sent, after expiration, until the subscription is renewed. Look at the number over your name on the wrapper on this magazine. If it is 360 it means that you will not receive November COMFORT unless you renew at once. Renew today.

Some Special Features for November

"Farson of the Y. M. C. A" A beautiful romance of the great war, which pictures truly things that your boy, your brother, husband or sweetheart may be doing "over there" in the service of Uncle Sam.

"Substitutes for Meat and Butter" With meat and butter scarce and costly it has become necessary for every housewife to learn the good substitutes for these articles and how to use them advantageously.

"Some Tricks in Magic" explained and illustrated so you can perform them for the entertainment of your guests at Thanksgiving or at other social gatherings. A little practice and preparation makes them quite bewildering.

"Restoring Crippled Soldiers" tells what our government is doing and the wonderful results accomplished by modern methods of reconstructing the wounded and fitting them for usefulness.

If the number over your name on the wrapper on this magazine is 360 it means that your subscription expires with this present issue and that you will not receive November COMFORT unless you renew your subscription at once—we can not send you a single copy, after expiration, until you have renewed.

end 50 cents today for a two-year renewal and make sure not to miss November COMFORT. We can not supply back numbers. Use coupon below.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES: 35 cents a year, 70 cents for three years, 50 cents for a TWO-YEAR newal, in U. S. and Cuba. (In Canada 50 cents a year.)

Publ	SUBSCRIPTION COUPON FOR RENEWAL OR EXTENSION ONLY lisher of COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.
l date	l enclose cents for renewal and extension of my subscription full years from of expiration.
Date	8
Post	Street and No.
	P. D. No

Crumbs of Comfort Courage alone saves.

God called the light Day. No lilacs bloom in February. The unknown is always great. Past all shame is past all truth. A noble deed is a step toward God. Action is the main business of life. Medicines are not meant to live on. The morning sun cannot last the day. The best pilots are often found ashore. Deal gently; deal kindly; deal lovingly. Better twice measured than once wrong. An old man's sayings are seldom untrue. The best things in life lie about our feet. Curiosity is the kernel of forbidden fruit. Money going before can open many gates We may live fools, but fools we cannot die. There is no pleading against Time or Fate. What man is so blest that he never mourns? A lie is a handle that fits all the tools of sin. The mind of man is the proper judge of men. Some men are hammers Patience is a bitter tree that hears sweet fruit. There is no religion but can boast its martyrs. Sloth and folly build the impossibility they fear. The bridge of life has three score and ten arches. The greatest difference between men is in energy. Mystery magnifies danger as the fog does the sun. Love one human being purely and you will love all. Right laws do not restrain freedom, but maintain it. It is easy to forgive when vengeance is in our power. A strong memory is often joined to a poor judgment. A man should keep his friendships in constant repair. There is nothing greater than the soul but its creater. Because God could not be everywhere, he made mothers. Change yourself and your fortune will change with you. Some men shun mankind only to meet the devil in pri-One may ascend to God by contemplation of created things. Man is the only creature endowed with the power of laughter.

He that doubts the existence of mind, by doubting,

Great men, like great cities, must have dark alleys in their hearts.

Observed duties maintain our credit, but secret duties

FREE TRIAL

We ship the famous Oliver Typewriter— rand new—direct from the factory to you or free trial.

for free trial.

If you want to own it, pay us at the rate of $\frac{3}{2}$ per month. Or return it. You are your own salesman and save $\frac{5}{2}$ It his new way. Before our direct-to-you plan the Oliver price was $100, now it is $49. All the saving comes from our economical distribution. Write for details of plan and our new catalog. Then you may have an Oliver for 5 days free trial. Write today for details.

The Oliver Typewriter Co. 1607 Oliver Typewriter Building Chicago, Ill.

Beautify the Complexion

Nadinola Cream The Supreme Beauty Re-quisite Used and En-dorsed by Thousands

NADINOLA banishes tan, freckles, pimples, liverspots, etc., extreme cases. Rids pores and tissues of impurities. Leaves the skin clear, soft, healthy. Directions and guarantee in package. By toilet counters or mail, two sizes, 50 cents and $1.00. Address Dept. A. C. NATIONAL TOILET COMPANY, Paris, Tenn.

War Garden Parties Should Be Popular All the Year

If the suggestions of the United States Food Administration are heeded, garden parties, instead of teas and receptions, will be the vogue for the period of the war.

The garden parties are not to be entertainments on spacious lawns lighted with lanterns and dotted with tables on which rare food delicacies are served, but garden parties in the sense that on all occasions the food will be furnished from the the home or local gardens.

According to the Food Administration, for a church supper, a political rally, a Sunday school picnic, or a "company dinner," it is far more patriotic to use food stuffs out of the home or local gardens than to eat the food freighted into town, because transportation is the greatest problem of the war and shipping space the most precious thing in the world.

War Savings Stamps help provide that "Force, force to the utmost, force without stint or limit, the righteous and triumphant force which shall make right the law of the world," which President Wilson says must be used against our enemies.

Gray Hair Banished

Kolor-Bak positively guaranteed to restore your gray hair to its original color. Not a dye or stain. Cures dandruff in two applications, stops falling hair. Harmless, colorless, stainless. Pay nothing if it fails. Write Kolor-Bak Products Co., 68 West Washington St., Dept. 1053, Chicago, for free book and positive proof.—Advertisement.

PREMO CAMERA

Premium No. 7496

For a Club of Six!

We will also include

The Pretty Girls' Club

Conducted by Katherine Booth

Keeping Back the Cuticle

HAVE so much trouble with my finger-nails," writes Evelyn. "The cuticle is so hard and dry I have tiny hangnails, which I can't help pulling or biting, and my nails are getting thick and hard."

The fact that the cuticle about one's nails is dry indicates that the whole body is a little bit out of order. For such a condition one should eat fruit and vegetables, drink plenty of water, see that all the bodily functions are regular, and soon the entire system will begin to show improvement. In the meantime, to keep the cuticle about the nails soft, vaseline or a little olive oil should be applied each night, rubbing around the base of the nail and even upon the nail itself.

Strong soaps should be avoided, the hands washed only as often as necessary to keep them clean, and a hand lotion applied immediately after washing. Soap, of course, removes the natural oil of the skin and if used many times a day, a dry cuticle is a quite natural result.

It will do no harm to use vaseline on the nails and surrounding cuticle in the daytime, only of course it must be applied very sparingly. Hangnails will flee before this treatment, but if they appear before a change has had time to take place, never bite or tear them. Take your manicure scissors and clip them carefully.

There is a new method of removing the cuticle where it has grown on the nail. Little rubber discs just about as large around as the end of a lead pencil and a quarter of an inch thick, are clasped tight in a tweezer-shaped instrument, the nail smeared with a nail-cream to which powdered pumice has been added, and the little rubber wheel used to rub the entire surface of the nail and to push back the cuticle at the base. An enterprising young friend of mine used a slice of the eraser from the end of a leadpencil, held it in the tweezer she uses to get rid of an occasional obtrusive hair on chin or lip, and added powdered pumice-stone to ber own nail-cream. The result was perfectly satisfactory, although the little outfit sold for this purpose is less trouble, for this purpose is less trouble, since the tweezer clasps shut.

Try the suggestion. Even pumice-stone in your hall-cream will work wonders if you pad the end of your orange-wood stick with cotton and use it as a "pusher." By this method the cuticle is more easily kept back, and there is very little clipping with the manicure scissors. By the way, girls, you know, do you not, that you should not cut your finger-nails, but file them? And that your manicure scissors are really to remove hangnails and trim the edges of the nail where it grows into the fiesh, and not to shape the nail itself? Use a very thin flexible file, and be sure to cleanse under the nail with an orange-wood stick, after filing. The nail-cream plus pumice-stone is excellent to cleanse under the nail, but be sure to get it all out afterward. Here your nail brush and soapy water will do the deed.

Always rinse the hands in clean water after using soapy water, and apply a hand lotion. If you follow these suggestions, girls, I should like to see your finger-nails a month from now.

Answers to Questions

Miss May—For large knuckles, massage is the best remedy. Before going to bed, on arising, and at any other time in the day that you can manage, use a little olive oil, and with the fingers and thumb of the other hand gently work the knuckle up and down, pressing at the sides of the knuckle-joints. Keep the body in good condition, and use a hand lotion or hand cream on the hands before going to bed, to keep them soft and white. Eat plenty of fruits and vegetables, and do not eat too much red meat. Drink quantities of water that all unhealthful deposits may be removed from the body. Keep the pores of the body open by dally body-baths, deep breathing and plenty of fresh air—this for the same reason as the water taken internally; to rid the body of unhealthful deposits. When you wash your hands, always, in drying, massage the knuckles at the side of the pressing with the thumb on one side and wiffirst or second finger on the other.

USE THE ORANGE-WOOD STICK AS A PUSHER.

Roll Film Cartridge and a complete Instruction Book. The just the thought on one side and with the first or second finger on the other.

Eprik.—I am sorry that it is against the rules of this department to answer letters by mall. So many people have exactly the same problem to solve, and to any people have exactly the same problem to solve, and to any people have exactly the same problem to solve, and to any people have exactly the same problem to solve, and to any people have exactly the same problem to solve, and to any people have exactly the same problem to solve, and to any people have exactly the same problem to solve, and to any people have exactly the same problem to solve, and to any people have exactly the same problem to solve, and to any people have exactly the same problem to solve, and to any people have exactly the same problem to solve, and to any people have exactly the same problem to solve, and to any people have exactly the same problem to solve, and to any people have exactly the same problem to solve, and to any people have exactly the same problem to solve, and to any people have exactly the same problem to solve, and to any people have exactly the same problem to solve, and to any people have exactly the same problem to solve, and to any people have exactly the same problem to solve, and the same problem to answer letters by mall. So many people have exactly the same problem to solve, and the same problem to answer letters by mall. So many people have exactly the same problem to solve, and the same problem to answer letters by mall. So many people have exactly the same problem to answer letters by mall. So many people have exactly the same problem to solve, and the same problem to answer letters by mall. So many people have exactly the same problem to solve, and the same problem to answer letters by mall. So many people have exactly the same problem to solve, and the same problem to answers are printed break are in a day, and more days than there are in a day, and more days than there ar follow these directions, face, neck and hands will soon begin to grow magically white. Too hot water, or too frequent applications of hot water will also make a neck look, as you express it, "grained." Hot water should never be applied to the face except for curative purposes—tepid water is better. Where there are blackheads, it is desirable to use hot soapy water at night, but thoroughly rinse thereafter; but in the daytime when the skin is exposed to different temperatures indoors and out, tepid water is the only kind to use. Here is a formula for a hand lotion:

To Whiten the Hands

Rosewater, two ounces; orange-flower water, two ounces; borate of soda, one fourth dram; spirits of benzoin, one half dram; bruised almonds, one half ounce.

Add the bruised almonds to the orange-flower and rosewater, and let stand for twenty-four hours, strain, add the sods, shake well, and when this is dissolved add the benzoln, a drop at a time, shaking continually. Strained honey can be used in conjunction with this. Always apply after washing the hands, and add an extra application before going to bed.

Mas. M. E.—The surest way of removing superfluous hair is by the electric needle. I am not permitted to name firms or business places in these columns, but there are several large beauty shops in Chicago, at any one of which you could have your hair removed. The treatment costs five dollars an hour, and the ordinary person can only take about fifteen minutes' treatment at a time. Fifteen minutes disposes of quite a number of hairs. Do not go to an unskilled local operator—your face can be scarred by so doing. When you reach Clicago, inquire at the Information Department of Marshall Field's and they will tell you of some large beauty shop in the neighborhood. In the meantime, you can do much to reduce the unsightly hair by using the French treatment, applying peroxide of hydrogen to the hair one day, mopping it on and letting it dry; then ammonia the next day, in the same manner. If the skin becomes irritated after a few applications, discontinue the treatment for a day or two, rubbing in a little cold cream, then go back to the peroxide and ammonia. The former bleaches the hair, so that it is not so noticeable, and the latter, in time, kills the roots so that the hair falls out. This will remove superfluous hair, but it is a very slow process, and requires patience and perseverance.

USE A THIN FLEXIBLE FILE TO SHAPE THE NAILS.

BLACK BRAUTY.—I should be very careful what I and requires patience and perseverance.

BLACK BRAUTY.—I should be very careful what I used on those few black hairs on my lip. I imagine they are not at all noticeable, except to you. Try looking at the other girls, and you will find that almost everybody has a little hair on the lips. In the meantime, however, you can use peroxide and ammonla, which is the only safe treatment for hair on the face (except the electric needle in the hands of a skilled operator). See answer to "Mrs. M. E."

E. H.—See the first sentence of answer to "Black".

ammonia, which is the only safe treatment for hair on the face (except the electric needle in the hands of a skilled operator). See answer to "Mrs. M. E."

E. H.—See the first sentence of answer to "Effie." You say you perspire too freely under the arms. Of course, perspiration is necessary to health, so we do not want to stop it, but I understand how uncomfortable it is to perspire so excessively. Take a sponge bath every morning, rubbing the body over quickly and vigorously. Unless you have a warm room to take this in, in cold weather, only expose a small part of the surface of the body at one time; sponge it, then dry it with a rough towel; cover, and proceed with the next fraction of body surface. In this way you will not take cold. Remove the hair from under the arms by using a depilatory. It will return, of course, but you can remove it as frequently as is needed. The hair holds the perspiration, besides causing it by making the armpit warm, so just this one precaution may help you greatly. Then make yourself a bag of corn-starch—using loosely-woven flannel. After bathing, dry the armpits, then with a cake of white soap, barely damp, rub the armpit over, gently. Use your flannel bag afterward and shake against the armpit surface. This will check perspiration. Wear shields in all your dresses, and wash them daily—otherwise they become offensive. Anybody who is troubled with excessive perspiration—needs to be even more careful about bathing and changing clothes than other people—always put on perfectly fresh underwear before going out in the evening, and see that the dress itself is perfectly fresh. Sponging the armpits of a dress with alcohol (not wood alcohol) will cleanse and freshen it without destroying the color. Alcohol is so high now that this makes an expensive cleanser, Gasoline can be used, however, and the dress thoroughly aired afterward. Quince-seed lotion may be used on the hair before putting up on curlers; it is not injurious. You say you have quite a little dandruff; do you take your hair it will answer all your questions.

M. E.—See answer to "Mrs. M. E." Be glad that you have a comparatively small bust, for if you knew how many women had to struggle with the opposite condition, you would not change with them for the world. Your weight indicates that you are not bony and scraggly, and I should imagine your bust is prettier as it is than it would be larger. However, if you want it larger, I suppose I must help you. Buy a cake of cocoa butter at the druggist's, and anoint the breast with it, holding the butter over a lighted candle to soften it, then rubbing it round and round, following the outline of the bust. Do not do this vigorously, as the breast is sensitive. Arm exercises, such as I give in Compour from time to time will also develop the bust, so practice them daily.

Address all letters containing questions to
KATHERINE BOOTH, CATE COMPORT,
AUGUSTA, MAINE.

Send Only With Coupon

and we will ship you this Pure Silk Dressy Frock

This smart frock is made of the finest grade of silk taffeta or satin. The finest grade of silk taffeta or satin. The fancy shaped lapels of self material have overlaid white collar of silk crepe dechine prettily hemstitched. The waist part is made in circular Eton effect extending around in novel butterfly belt effect in back. The lapels and waist front are elaborately embroidered with silk and gold colored threads. Dress can be had with self colored georgette sleeves having silk cuffs or all silk sleeves. Mention choice. Skirt is made with fullness in both front and back. This is a copy of a regular $25.00 dress but produced to sell at this special price. Furnished in sizes 34 to 44 and Misses 16 to 20. Colors, Navy Blue, Plum. Copenhagen, Black or Silver Grey. Be sure to give Bust, Belt, Hip and Length measurements, also style of sleeve and color wanted.

Order by No. B42, Georgette Sleeves No. B43, Silk Sleeves Only $1.00 down, $2.70 monthly. Price, $16.95.

Six Months To Pay

Order this bargain on our liberal credit terms. No need to pay all down to get the very latest styles and amazing values in anything you want to wear. We trust honest people no matter where they live. Buy the easy way! Send today for this offering and see for yourself what a big advantage it is to use your credit with us. Act at once.

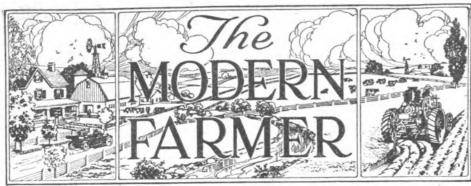

Mail Coupon Now! Thousands will be sending in for this bargain. It will be first come first served.

first come first served.

Mail coupon with $1.00 P. O. order. Order before prices go up! Prices on everything are going up! up! up! and we may be forced to advance the price on this wonderful bargain before long. So order NOW! Also get our remarkable free bulletin of men's women's and children's clothing on credit. on credit.

Elmer Richards Co. Wasto St Chicago

Gentlemen: I enclose as first	payment.
Please send the No. B-42 Georgette S Ladies' Frock No. B-43 Silk Sleeve	Sleeves
Color Size Bust Belt Hip	Length
If I am not satisfied with the Ladies' Frock, turn it and get my payment back. Otherwise pay $2.70 a month until paid for.	can re-
Name
Address
Post Office State
Many want the Donnels Dallate Att t P	w 1 . f 1

Bumper Crops

ET us give thanks." Next month is Thanksgiving and we have much to be thankful for. Last spring we were urged by the Federal government to plant and the consequent still plant. "Food will upon us from every show window and confronted us from every newspaper. Despite the draft and the consequent labor shortage, we have increased our acreage and raised more crops for human food than the average of the past five years.

Europe Wants Bread

"If he ask for bread will ye give him a stone?" The cry went up—the world wants bread—and we have met this cry not with stones, but with a 900,000,000 bushel crop of wheat, over ten per cent more than the average crop. In addition to this we have produced nearly 100,000,000 bushels of bread crops.

Barley Comes Invo Its Own.—Since the war broke out barley has come into its own as a human food, its flour finding popular approxal. This year we have produced nearly a quarter of a billion bushels of barley, an increase of ten per cent above the average yield of the past five years.

Corn Shows Big Gain.—Corn, too shows a big gain—over 3,000,000,000 bushels now being used for human food have shown and human food here words, all cereals that are now being used for human food have shown and human obeing used for human food have shown as how being used for human food have shown as pour gain of the past five years.

Corn Shows Big Gain.—Corn, too shows a big gain—over 3,000,000,000 bushels now being used for human food have shown as the average crop. In other words, all cereals that are now being used for human food have shown and the overage crop were the section of the past five years.

Corn Shows Big Gain—corn, too shows a big gain—over 3,000,000,000 bushels now being used for human food have shown and the consequent wheat should be unfair to pay the same price to keep the wheat to the seaboard. That is, deents a bushel bushel to seents due to the sum of the seame of this saving in freight.

He wheat to the seaboard. The sushel to sent a bushel howe and wheat near Chicag

"If he ask for bread will ye give him a stone?"
The cry went up—the world wants bread—and we have met this cry not with stones, but with a 900,000,000 bushel crop of wheat, over ten per cent more than the average crop. In addition to this we have produced nearly 100,000,000 bushels of rye and buckwheat, or about a billion bushels of bread crops.

Barley Comes Into Its Own.—Since the war broke out barley has come into its own as a human food, its flour finding popular approval. This year we have produced nearly a quarter of a billion bushels of barley, an increase of ten per cent above the average yield of the past five years.

Corn Shows Bio Gain.—Corn, too shows a big gain—over 3,000,000,000 bushels now being harvested, or about ten per cent more than the average crop. In other words, all cereals that are now being used for human food have shown an average increase of about ten per cent over the past five years. Surely this is something for which to be thankful. Most inspiring of all is the fact that this splendid showing is due most largely to the favorable season for growing crops, with which we have been blessed.

MEAT AND DAIRY SUPPLIES SHOW LIKE INCREASE.—From all data now available a similar increase of ten per cent will be shown in our meat and dairy products.

We have passed the crisis and with proper use of substitutes and careful saving the United States will not only be able to take care of its army and navy and keep our boys well fed and in fighting trim, as well as supply the food needs of our Allies, but also accumulate a food reserve against the time of need, as an insurance against crop failure, labor shortage or other disaster.

Surely the Lord has favored us, for which we should with the greatest appropriateness ren-

Surely the Lord has favored us, for which we should with the greatest appropriateness render unto Him our heartfelt thanks.

Insure Your Corn Crop

Insure Your Corn Crop

The best way to insure a come copy is to keep the years' supply of seed on hand. Had this rule been generally practiced we would not have had the difficulty we experienced last spring in getting good seed corn. Despite the hard time we had in finding seed corn, one of the biggest corn crops in the country in the country in the country of the control of the standard of the corn crops in the country of the country in the country of the country in the country of the corn between the ones who saved the day.

Seed Conn Must B Delen — our experience last year clearly proves that seed corn must be done of the steam from cooking, washing and so on. In the attic or furnace room away from the corn by use of fire as soon as picked. It will not do to dry it over the kitches are considered as necessary as the band the corn between the ones who saved the day. Seed Conn Must B Delen — our experience last year clearly proves that seed corn must be do pick in the field and immediately hung it upin a drying room were the ones who saved the day. Seed Conn Must B Delen — our experience last year clearly proves that seed corn must be to pick in the field and hang the corn up on strings in the wagon-shed or on a proch of under a roof where it will be provided the corn is thoroughly ripe it may be safe to pick in the field and hang the corn up on strings in the wagon-shed or on an experience last year clearly proves that seed corn must be done of the side of the house of the steam from cooking, washing and so on. In the attic or furnace room the windows s

"Discount" wheats worth two cents to sever cents per bushel less than ordinary varieties

Yellow Hard Winter. Red Spring. Red Walla. 4. Red Durham.
5. Soft White.
6. White Club.

How Grades Are Fixed

What constitutes No. 1 wheat? There several factors which decide the grade. Firs weight per bushel. For common varieties No. 1 must weigh 60 lbs, per bushel. No. 2 " " 58 " " " " No. 3 " " 56 " " "

Next comes the moisture content-something which the farmer can't determine. A sample of wheat is thoroughly dried and its loss in weight during drying is moisture content. For common varieties

No. 1 must not contain more than 131/2 per cent of moisture.

No. 2 must not contain more than 14 per cent of moisture. No. 3 must not contain more than 14½ per cent of moisture.

Next come impurities such as dirt, weeds, seeds and damaged kernels. For common variefor silage should be cut when the seeds are ripe and hard. Rather let the sorghums suffer a touch of frost than cut them into the silo too green. If corn is allowed to become too ripe and dry it cuts up into fluffy stuff that will not pack properly into the silo. Such loosely packed silage spoils from molding, as air pockets occur in the mass. Dry silage must be wetted to make it pack and all silage should be well tramped in the silo, especially around the walls. Silage tends to fall or shrink away from the walls as settling occurs and air then gets in and moldiness results. The faster the silo is filled the firmer must the silage be tramped and as help is scarce this year it would be best to fill slowly and allow the silage to settle daily, then tramp well just before adding more silage. When a silo is rushed full, and the outfit leaves the farm, settling occurs quickly and many feet of the silo is left unfilled. It would be better to fill slower and tramp better if it is impossible to refill that part of the silo left empty by settling. Silage must be well wetted if it does not pack well under foot. Experience will tell the right "feel" of the silage when tramped upon and dry silage must be made to have that right feel by addition of water, which is best added by allowing a stream to enter the blower.

Perfect distribution and spreading of the cut corn is absolutely necessary. In many instances the tendency is to have most of the corn fall in the center of the silo. Try to have it spread well over the surface by having it delivered in the silo by a tube of jointed sheet metal attached to the top of the blower pipe and hanging down far into the silo and with a canvas pipe at the down end. Keep the cut corn higher at the wall than in the center, the opposite of the rule for stacked building, but keep the edges well tramped. When the silo has been filled cover the cut corn with a layer of wet oats, or hay, or straw. Some people even use strawy manure, but clean hay or straw is better. The object is to keep the a

Beware the Drug Faker!

Reports come in every day of dishonest men going about the country humbugging and cheating the farmer by selling him unnecessary and often wholly useless concoctions, dopes and alleged cures, preventives or remedies for real and imaginary ills and diseases of animals. Prices for livestock are so high that the farmer is, more than ever before, anxious to prevent losses; then, too, he has more spare cash than usual to invest in anything that is highly recommended or that "looks good" to him. The medicine faker knows these conditions and is taking advantage of them to make a "war profit" and is not concerned as to the outcome as regards anyone other than his selfish self. Give such men the "cold shoulder" and the "marble face" and no "glad hand." If they are peddling a hog cholera "cure" better turn the dog on them or scare them good and proper in the quickest and easiest way possible; for such men often carry cholera infection on their boots and clothes and the dope they sell is useless. There is no cure for hog cholera and no preventive other than vaccination, which is an emiment success if properly done by a trained veterinarian, using reliable serum. Waste no money on cholera "cures" and beware the dope pedler as a very probable source of the disease.

Neither is there a cure or preventive in the shape of a drug or combination of drugs for blackleg, anthrax, hemorragic septicemia, tuberculosis, rabies, glanders, contagious abortion, influenza, distemper, pink-eye or any other contagious or infectious disease. Some of these diseases may be prevented by vaccination, the first three named, for instance; while scientific diagnostic agents have been perfected for some of the other maladies of our list, notably, tuberculosis, abortion and rabies; but only the graduate veterinarian can safely be trusted to deal with such diseases and the agents indicated for their control or detection. Money spent for alleged cures and preventives for such diseases is wasted: nor is there any profit in doping animals with condition p

Some October Farm Jobs

Some Problems System November 1 N

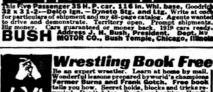

THE MORLEY CO., Dept. 766, Perry Bldg., Phila. DOWN ONE YEAR" TO PAY shown here.

er Burns, 3047 Ramge Bldg., On

17 Cents a Day Pays

For the mellow-toned Symphonic Piano. Several beautiful models in genuine Mahogany, Oak and Walnut. Guaranteed 25 years. Sold the celebrated Larkin Factory-to-Family way. Many music lovers have saved $100 to $200 in buying Symphonics. Our plan permits 30 days' trial in your home. Four years' time without interest. Convenient monthly payments. Ask today for FREE Catalog illustrating and describing Symphonics. Shows

Symphonic Pianos Also Player Pianos and Grands

ments in actual colors. Please state whether interested in mphonic Plano, the Symphonic Player Plano (which and m play) or the Symphonic Baby GRAND. Write now for Larkin Co. Desk PCT 1018, Buffalo, N. Y.

Furniture of All Kinds

You can furnish another room with what we can save you

From Factory to You

Bathroom Outsits Office Farniture Baby Carriages Sewing Machines Talking Machines

BROADWAY SALES CORP., Broadway, New York City Send for our FREE descriptive catalog New York City, N. Y.

High School Course in Two Years Learn at home, fr

Here is complete and simplified high school course that you can finish in two years. Meets all college entrance requirements around by londing members of the faculties of the faculties of the faculties of the faculties of write for bookiet and full particulars. No obligations whatever, Write today—NOW. AMERICAN SCHOOL OF CORRESPONDENCE pt. H 3047 Chicago, U.S.A.

$125.ºº JOB ₭®

We will make of you a good bookkeeper-stenographer-penman BY MAIL at 1-6 cost of course at coblege; will secure for you $85:to-$125-a-month position or REFUND your money. Business men indores our EIGHT WEEKS Civil-Service-Mercantile-Bookour EIGHT WEERS CIVII-Service-Mercantile-Book-keeping Course, Government approves our Civil-Serv-ice-Bookkeeping Set; about 85 per cent of Govern-ment stenograpiers write our Shorthand. More than 300,000 bookkeepers, stenographers, bankers, owe their success to our Home-Study Courses. Write right now DRAUGHON'S COLLEGE, Drawer 174, Nashville, Tonn.

Become a Stenographer

LEARN AT HOME - THE NEW WAY in typewriting and 125 to 150 words a minute in a teed! Entirely new method. Learn at home in sp. Write Today for Amazing Office. Course on Trial. Complete husiness training Entire Course on Trial. Complete business training included, Send today for new descriptive book and special offer. Address THE TULLOSS SCHOOL, 7770 College Hill, Springfield, O.

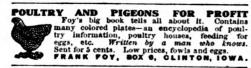

BELL-ANS

Absolutely Removes Indigestion. Druggists refund money if it fails. 25c

Why Hens Won't Lay

P. J. Kelly, the Minnesota Poultry Expert, 78 Kelly Bldg., Minneapolis, Minn., has published a book, "The Tale of a Lazy Hen." It tells why the hens won't lay and how to make them lay every day. Mr. Kelly will mail the book free to anyone who will write him.

BY KATE V. SAINT MAUR.

Help Beat the Huns by Keeping Hens. Profit Even in Small Flocks

Profit Even in Small Flocks

VERYBODY that possibly can should keep a few, for it small yards should keep a few, for it foed the people of our country and time, and now, when we have to let our pork and beef go over the seas to feed the men who are fighting for us, we home folks are more than ever dependent on eggs and poultry, for to a great extent these must serve the purpose of meat on our own tables, to keep up additional time, and now, when we have to let our pork and beef go over the seas to feed the men who are fighting for us, we home folks are more than ever dependent on eggs and poultry, for to a great extent these must serve the purpose of meat on our own tables, to keep up and depleted by the scarcity of butcher's meat. But the high price of meat bars it from the ordinary family table almost as effectually as an absolute embargo would. We must have eggs, for they form part of most of our made dishes, and are the most nutritious and easily digested whome table with eggs and chickens is doing a good bit to aid the general welfare of our country and a threatened shortage, in consequence of house, with the high side of which the prospect of reaching unprecedented heights the coming fall and winter. This means that the prospect of reaching unprecedented heights the coming fall and winter. This means that the prospect of reaching unprecedented heights the coming fall and winter. This means that the prospect of reaching unprecedented heights the coming fall and winter. This means that the prospect of reaching unprecedented heights the coming fall and winter. This means that the prospect of reaching unprecedented heights the coming fall and winter. This means that the prospect of reaching unprecedented heights the coming fall and winter. This means that the prospect of reaching unprecedented heights the coming fall and winter. This means that the prospect of reaching unprecedented heights the coming fall and winter. This means that the prospect of reaching unprecedented heights the coming fall and winter th

Today the writer looked up the wholesale New York quotation on high quality eggs, and found it fifty cents per dozen at almost the first of August, and the price continues to climb. Many who have kept poultry for years are not getting alarmed. It is certainly a time at which the poultry keeper should think things over and leason things out carefully. Do not forsake the poultry flocks in a hurry, and repent at leisure. Hold on to them, for in most cases this advice will prove good.

Hold on to them, for in most cases this advice will prove good.

In many articles that have been published in the last few weeks, much has been said about starting into the poultry business for those people who have never tried it, but who are in a position to make a beginning. The main reason advanced for this is that a small flock of chickens could be maintained in back yards and on small places where heretofore none has been raised. This could be done with small chances of loss, but with great advantages to those doing it. And it is undoubtedly true. The writer has seen several such new poultry flocks started of late, and the owners are going to benefit from them. There are thousands of people employed in the cities and living in surburban or small towns, who have available space and spare time with which to take care of a small flock of chickens. There are good reasons why poultrymen have advised such people to start this year. The small flock of from ten to thirty-five or forty birds, if given good care, will produce eggs for the family through this coming winter, eggs that are fresh and good. This point alone seems a sufficient reason. Fresh eggs will be high priced and hard to get, without a doubt. These eggs can be produced mainly on table scraps and kitchen refuse which would otherwise go to waste. A small amount of time morning and evening will take care of the small flock. A small house and yard will provide an environment in which they can thrive, summer and winter. Then besides the eggs that will be furnished for the table, if one or more proves to be a poor layer. But the fresh eggs are the things of paramount importance.

How Many Eggs Can One Expect from a Hen?

This is a perfectly fair question, and one upon which every one starts his figuring, when thinking about a flock of chickens. The average good hen should produce in a year around one hundred eggs. The average production for hens on farms in general is not that much, and on the other hand, on good poultry farms it exceeds that figure considerably. But under average conditions one hundred eggs is a fair number to expect from a hen. Put your expectations between ten and twelve dozen, but do not criticize her too severely if she doesn't go far over a hundred, for the chances will be that she was not to blame. Taking the wholesale price of eggs quoted above, for August first or thereabouts, and the value of one egg is over four cents. The retail price at the store for that same egg is five cents or more. These are New York prices, but though lower in some places eggs are high everywhere. One hen ought to give you, if you do your share, from two and a half to five dollars' worth of eggs in a year. Supposing that you figure on ten hens or even twenty? Then for safety's sake figure that three or four of these hens do not prove more than half as good as others. You still have a lot of eggs to count on.

How Much Will It Cost to Keep a Hen?

Again a fair question, and one upon the answer to which much depends. Under normal grain prices it usually costs a large poultry raiser something in the neighborhood of one dollar and seventy-five cents to feed a hen for a year. But it must be remembered that he has to buy all the food for her, and table scraps form but a small part of the feed item, if they figure in it at all. For the small flock, concerning which this article relates, the use of waste table scraps costs nothing and will in fact be a saving. Some grain and some mash may be fed with benefit and profit, but the majority of food for such flocks will come from the kitchens. Under such conditions, with even the prevailing high grain prices the cost of feeding a hen would not come up to the average on a poultry farm. The cost of keeping her, even though it did equal the market value of her eggs, would and should not prohibit her from appearing, for the advantage of having fresh eggs at all times would counter-

How Could One Start a Small Poultry Flock?

How Could One Start a Small Poultry Flock?

The answer to this question will vary with different localities and with different situations. In general, the best thing to do after one has provided a place to keep the chickens is to look around and inquire about the possibilities of getting a few pullets from reliable poultry raisers. It is a mistaken policy to expect to find good layers in the open poultry market. The culls are those which are marketed. Take a little more time and trouble to look up a good poultry raiser and try to get pullets from him. Get the pullets; birds that were raised this past spring and that are getting ready to lay this fall and winter. Old hens won't pay the small flock keeper. A pullet is always the one to get. Get a well-developed one and a good healthy one. Be willing to pay from a dollar and a half to two dollars at least for a good pullet.

When Will a Hen Start to Lay in the Fall?

floors, in which they can scratch. Exercise is es-Exercise is es-sential to health.

Correspondence

USEFUL COOPS WHICH CAN BE USED AS BROODERS

FOR SMALL FLOCKS.

Subscribers are entitled to advice of our Poultry Editor, free, through the columns of this department. Address Poultry Editor, COMFORT, Augusta, Maine. BE SURE to give your full name and address, otherwise your letter will receive no attention.

poultry Editor. COMFORT, Augusta, Maine. BZ SURZ to give your full name and address, otherwise your letter will receive no attention.

B. H. W.—With only an acre of land it would not be advisable to try raising any number of turkeys. You have been overfeeding the young ones. They should have nothing for thirty-six hours after they are hatched, and then only a piece of cottage-cheese mixed with sharp, clean sand. Divide a tablespoonful into five parts, and feed one part five times a day; this is enough for the first three days. After that mix crushed wheat with finely chopped hard-boiled egg (chop shell and all). Add charcoal and sand in equal parts, and feed about the fourth of a teaspoonful to each bird five times a day until they are a month old. Give them all the sour milk they will drink after they are thirty-six hours old. Most of the discases which attack young turkeys are transmitted from old birds by means of microbes and germs in the droppings, so if the old birds can be thoroughly cleared of worms and their intestinal troubless before there are any young ones around, they have a much better chance for existence. During the winter I use permanganate to a gallon of water, and stir thoroughly until it is all dissolved, then add one tablespoonful of the mixture to every quart of drinking water as it is a wonderful germ killer. I add half an ounce of permanganate to a gallon of water, and stir thoroughly until it is all dissolved, then add one tablespoonful of the mixture to every quart of drinking water as good purifier and should be given to the birds regularly. We give it to young ones from the time they are hatched. To make a good insect powder at home, slake one peck of lime, and add two ounces of capbolic acid; mix it very thoroughly, then add as much tobacco dust as you can stir into it. Let it dry, and then roll down to a powder. Keep it in jars or cans with air-tight lids. Another good home-made powder is gained by mixing equal parts of very fine coal ashes and tobacco dust, and then moistening th

G. P. E.—For the last few years it has been getting more and more difficult to raise young turkeys, owing to the wide spread of the disease known as blackhead. Sour milk is one of the best aids in ohecking the germs of the disease. Please read answer to B. H. W. I think it is a mistake to breed from young stock year after year. I prefer hen turkeys between two and five years of age; toms from fifteen months to three and four years.

O. K.—As the turkey hens and tom are not related, you could keep them another year and then get a younger male bird. Please read answers to B. H. W. and G. P. E.

you could keep them and the product of the pounce male bird. Please read answers to B. H. W. and G. P. E.

Mrs. C., Florida.—Undoubtedly worms and lice are the cause of the diarrhea, and from your account I should imagine that the whole flock and house are in a very bad condition. First of all, to get rid of lice and mites, clean the inside of the house. If the nests and perches are movable, carry them out of the house, pour a little kerosene inside of the nests, and over the perches and then set fire to it. Let them burn until well scorched, then beat out the fire, and when cold whitewash. Swab the walls and celling of the house to remove all dirt and dust, and apply a thick coat of whitewash made of fresh lime and boiling water. Add one cup kerosene, one ounce crude carbolic acid, to every pailful just before the lime stops boiling. To purify chicken houses, the whitewash should be as thick as heavy cream, and instead of an ordinary whitewash brush use an old swabbing broom. It is safer, and it enables you to spread the whitewash into all cricks and crevices. If the perches are put back in place, wrap the ends where they touch the sides of the house in an old woolen cloth, and saturate it with kerosene every afternoon, se that any lice which may be on the birds can't get back onto the walls of the house. For the birds themselves get some good insect powder; put it into a flour dredger or a tin that has holes pierced in the lid; then hold the walls of the house. For the birds themselves get some good insect powder; put it into a flour dredger or at in that has holes pierced in the lid; then hold the walls of the house. For the birds themselves get are not the walls of the house. For the birds themselves get as for the house in an old woolen cloth, and saturate it with kerosene every afternoon, se that any lice which may be on the birds can't get back onto the walls of the house. For the birds themselves get in that has holes pierced in the lid; then hold the walls of the house. For the birds themselves get fre

Got 117 Eggs. Instead of 3

Says One COMFORT Reader

Any poultry raiser can easily double his profits by doubling the egg production of his heas. A scientific tonic has been discovered that revitable is the flock and makes hens work all the time. The tonic is called "More Eggs," Give your hens a few cents worth of "More Eggs," and you will be amazed and delighted with results. A dohar's worth of "More Eggs," and you will be amazed and delighted with results. A dohar's production of eggs, so if you wish to try this great profit maker, write E. J. Reefer, poultry expert, 3047 Reefer Bldg., Kanass City, Mo., who will send you a season's supply of "More Eggs" Tonic for $1.00 (prepaid). So confident is Mr. Reefer of the results that a million dollar bank guit intees if you are not absolutely satisfied, your dollar will be returned on request and the "More Eggs" costs you nothing. Send a dollar today or ask Mr. Reefer for his free poultry book that cells the experience of a man who has made a fortune out of ponitry.

One Compour subscriber says, "More Eggs increased my supply from 3 to 117 eggs."

Poultry Raisers Write From All Parts of U.S. Wonderful Results of More Eggs

Five Times as Many Eggs Since Using "More Eggs" Tonic

Since using "More Eggs" do not think there is one chicken that is not laying. We get from 40 to 50 eggs per day. Before using "More Eggs" we were getting 8 and 9 eggs per day.

A. P. WOODARD, St. Cloud, Fla.

It Gets the Eggs

"More Eggs" sure gets the eggs.
J. M. PARKER, Conway, N. C.

"More Eggs" Paid the Pastor

"More Eggs" Faid the Fastor

I am so thankful to you I can't express in words how much I have been benefited by "MORE EGGS." I've got more eggs than I ever did. I've paid my debts, clothed the children in new dresses, and that is not all—I paid my pastor his dues, and as I write, this beautiful morning, the cackling of the hens are praising God "from Whom all blessings flow." I sold 42½ dozen eggs last week, set 4 dozen, ate some and had 1½ dozen left.

Mrs. Lena McBroon, Woodbury, Tenn,

"More Than Doubled in Eggs"

I am very much pleased with your "More Eggs" onic. My hens have more than doubled up in heir eggs.

L. D. NICHOLS, Mendon, Ill. their eggs.

126 Eggs in 5 Days

I wouldn't try to raise chickens without "More Eggs," which means more money. I use it right along. I have 33 hens and in 5 days have gotten 10½ dozen eggs or 126.

Mrs. J. O. Oakes, Salina, Okla.

Never Saw Anything Like the "More Eggs" Tonic

I gave the "More Eggs" tablets to my hens and in three weeks they began laying and layed all winter.

I never saw anything like them in the Mrs. Albert Smith, Penn. R. R. Ore Docks, Lockawana, N. Y.

75 Per Cent Layed Every Day

The "More Eggs" I ordered from you last winter proved out very satisfactory. Fully 75 per cent of my hens laid every day.

H. C. Rader, Greenville, Tenn.

A Great Transformation

I want to thank you for your booklet. I never had such a transformation as I have seen in my hens since giving them the "More Eggs." They are laying straight on every day.

MES. T. T. BANKS, Fayetteville, N. C.

12 Tablets Cured the Flock

In the spring a disease broke out in my hens and I lost fourteen. I had 12 or 13 "More Egg" tablets left and I used it in their drinking water and the rest of the sick ones got well and went right to laying.

MRS. EMMA WRIGHT, Memphis, Neb.

Delighted With "More Eggs" Tonic

I am delighted with the "More Eggs" Tonic remedy. I did not get any eggs this winter until I got the "More Eggs."

Mrs. J. E. Tillson, Mize, Miss.

Better Than We Say

I have used your remedies for two years and they are even better than you recommend. JENNIE M. JAMES, Unionville, N. C.

Never Laid as They Do Now

am very much satisfied with the "More Eggs" nic. My chickens never laid as many eggs as Tonic. My chickens never they do now.
W. A. GRUETZMACHER, Great Bend, N. D.

"More Eggs" Give Entire Satisfaction

"More Eggs" Tonic has given me entire satisfaction, and has increased my egg production at least 80 per cent.
F. W. SCARBOROUGH, Kosciusko, Miss.

Goddess o'the Harvest Ceres appeared, drawn by two splendid white horses. He was greeted by the villages Their hands met in a most charming girl,

Copyright, 1918, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher, Inc.

Alice Lovell

ESTLEY Thompson came slowly through the field of yellow stubble, wending his way absently around the noble shocks of corn. He was big of body, handsome and bronzed, a fitting figure for the scene about him. Virility was in his every line, and in his of one whose close communion is constantly with There was a look of anxiety not to say

They had reached the town. Everywhere were signs of the coming Harvest Festival and Home Coming Week. On the street corners, great shocks of corn were erected and over them trailed graceful grape-vines. Festoons of corn, wheat and other grains were looped from column to column placed at set distances along the streets. These columns supported horns of plenty, loaded with pumpkins, squashes and other offerings of a bountiful harvest.

The street decorations were all designed and placed under the direction of Archibald Breneriton, an actor and adept at such things. He also was directing the rehearsals of the Harvest Pageant which was to be produced nightly at the Town Hall during Home Coming Week.

As Westley walked toward the Town Hall with Alice, a hate for the beauty of nature displayed all about him arose. A mean harvest would have tabooed this waste of nature's gifts, there would have been no thought of a Harvest Celebration, Brenerton would not have been hired and Alice would not have suddenly developed this wild desire to go on the stage.

The Town Hall was filled with the young people of the village who were to take part in the Pageant, all costumed, for tonight was the dress rehearsal.

As Westley and Alice entered, Brenerton stepped from the wings clad in sombre magnificence as "Pluto, God of the Lower World." His robes were draped about his naked throat and shoulders, he wore sandals upon his feet. The graceful manner in which he carried himself denoted the finished actor.

"Now, young people," he began, as he threw aside his mantle and stood forth in an undergarment fashioned on the style of a Grecian hoy's costume, "hurry and we'll commence. Ah, Goddess Ceres" (noting Alice), "we are waiting for you."

Alice hurried to the dressing-room.

Westley did not take part in the Pageant. It is true that Brenerton had raved over his splendid physique and asked him to take the part of "Pluto," but Westley hadn't the first instincts of an actor and declined flatly, and since there were none of the young men wil were Home great doing it.

Monday morning came, the first morning of Home Coming Week. Crowds of people came on the trains, and many motored or drove in. Fakirs were crying their wares, and the side-shows were opening up. All was bustle and holiday spirit.

warm clasp.

turned to Alice, and with a big smile of happy content on his face, he opened his arms to her, and the next moment he held her close.

"This is no place for me," Brenerton laughed gently, "you'll pardon me if I go?"

"But you must not go until we assure you of how much we appreciate what you've done," Alice said.

Again he laughed, albeit a little tenderly. "Don't I know what you'd sacrifice if you gave up love for ambition? I have experienced the joy of love and I've a wife and darling baby. But I mustn't let it be generally known. My work of the past few weeks is my manner of harvesting for my loved ones. Congratulations and good luck," he finished, and shaking their hands, he departed.

"Who would have believed this of Brenerton?" Alice said. "One would never have suspected this side of his character. Get my cloak, West, and take me home. Never mind my costume. Let it be crushed. It hasn't half the attraction that a cover-ail apron will have in the future. Come."

The first of the second second for the second second for the second second for the second second for the second se

Wouldn't YOU like to make this guest towel? An extremely easy matter to make this towel and many other beautiful and useful Christmas gifts when you have the Nufashond Rick Rack Book. This handy volume tells you how to make table covers, lunch sets, aprons, doilies, collars, center-pieces, camisoles, pincushions, insertions, edgings, etc. We charge only 10 cents for the book because it helps to advertise Nufashond Rick Rack Braid. Your department store or needlework shop has the Nufashond Rick Rack Book. If not, send us 30 cents and we will supply the book together with one full piece of Nufashond Mercerized Rick Rack Braid and one ball of Nufashond Mercerized Crochet NUFASHOND, Dept. E, Reading, Pa. - Mufashond Rick Rack Braid

Oil-Gas Burners Fit Any Stove Attach to your stove, fill the tank with kerosene or coal oil and it's ready for use, Economical. Cooks and bakes better than coal or wood, Gives more heat, Turns on and off like gas. No fires to start. No kindling, ashes, coal or wood, Saves hours of work daily. Absolutely Safe, Write For FREE Literature. Agents Wanted. GUIVER OIL-BAS BURNER & MACHINE CO., IS North Broadway. ST. LOUIS. MO. Solves the Coal Problem WOMEN SAY our work makes sewing easy and takes away that "Home-made look." We do accordion, knife, side and box pleating. Cover stylish buttons that won't come apart, to match your dress. Hemstitching, pecot edging, pinking, ornamental stitching, embroidered scalloping, machine button holes, etc. Work sent any place in the U.S. Write today for free price list. Satisfaction or money refunded. Give Your Garments the Touch of Style.

Give Your Garments the Touch of Style.

WELLS PLEATING & BUTTON CO.,

Pruden Bidg., 8 Fifth St., Dayton, Ohio.

Established 17 years—reference Winters National Bank.

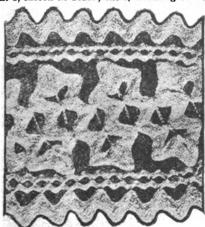

In and Around the Home

Rickrack Edging

This pattern requires two different widths of braid, using the wider one draw loop through 1st and 6th points of first edge, fasten * ch. 5, 1 sl. st. through 2nd and 5th points, ch. 3, 1 sl. st., through 3rd and 4th points of braid, ch. 4, fasten in braid, ch. 4, working on other.

RICKRACK EDGING,

edge of braid make 1 sl. st. through 5th and 10th points, ch. 5, 1 sl. st. through 6th and 9th, ch. 3, 1 sl. st., through 7th and 8th points, ch. 5, " working on first edge skip two points, join the next point to 5th point from it with a sl. st. and finish as before. When this is finished sew it to two rows of narrow braid as shown in illustration and then finish both edges with a row of wider braid.

Filet Scarf End

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 3.)

3 blks., 6 sps., 2 blks., 1 sp., 1 blk., 1 sp., 3 blks., 6 sps.
70th row.—7 sps., 4 blks., 1 sp., 1 blk., 3 sps.,
1 blk., 3 sps., 2 blks., 1 sp., 5 blks., 1 sp., 2

1 blk., 3 sps., 2 blks., 1 sp., 5 blks., 1 sp., 2 blks., 6 sps.

71st row.—6 sps., 2 blks., 1 sp., 5 blks., 1 sp., 2 blks., 3 sps., 1 blk., 3 sps., 1 blk., 1 sp., 4 blks., 7 sps.

72nd row.—11 sps., 1 blk., 4 sps., 2 blks., 1 sp., 1 blk., 3 sps., 5 blks., 9 sps.

73rd row.—9 sps., 2 blks., 1 sp., 2 blks., 2 sps., 2 blks., 1 sp., 1 blk., 3 sps., 5 blks., 3 sps., 1 blk., 1 sp., 1 blk., 4 sps., 2 blks., 8 sps.

74th row.—4 sps., 2 blks., 3 sps., 4 blks., 4 sps., 3 blks., 17 sps.

75th row.—11 sps., 1 blk., 6 sps., 2 blks., 5 sps., 1 blk., 4 sps., 2 blks., 5 sps.

76th row.—6 sps., 1 blk., 5 sps., 3 blks., 2 sps., 1 blk., 6 sps., 2 blks., 5 sps., 1 blk., 4 sps., 2 blks., 5 sps.

77th row.—7 sps., 1 blk., 3 sps., 2 blks., 6 sps., 1 blk., 1 sp., 5 blks., 3 sps., 1 blk., 2 sps. 3 blks., 1

Little Children on the Farm

By N. F. Milborn

See front cover illustration

Copyright, 1918, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher, Inc.

Copyright, 1918, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher, Inc.

UCH is said and written about making farm life attractive to young people, but there are few persons who realize that the training of our future farmers and farmers' wives must begin in early childhood.

One of the principal reasons for dissatisfaction and unrest among country young folks is that older persons have the habit of talking much about the hardships of a farmer's life, inveighing against the weather, fretting over loss of animals, failure of crops, etc. This constant complaining creates a very harmful atmosphere. In consulting several city dwellers, who are working in different occupations, as to why they left homes in the country, they have almost universally declared it was because their fathers constantly complained about the hard work, etc. Nothing was ever said about the absolute security the farming people have against want, the independence of being one's own boss, the joys of country life, the beauty of the woods and hills in changing seasons, and the interest of the growing animals and crops!

The value of fresh air, pure, wholesome food, plenty of room outdoors for play or exercise, tranquility of mind and communion with Nature, in raising a family of children, far outweighs any advantages of education, chances to make money, or amusement facilities which are found in the crowded, busy city.

Why not impress these things upon the plastic, attentive minds of children? It pays to cultivate the habit of cheerfulness, hopefulness and patience in any situation of life. In dealing with the uncontrollable forces of Nature, the farmer should hold fast to reason and philosophy and never grumble.

Optimism becomes a habit if one persistently looks on the bright side. I have a friend, Anna B., who has suffered from long-continued ill health, financial misfortune, anxiety, and deep sorrow. Yet she is always cheery, sunny and pleasant. It is needless to say that her society is eagerly sought, that she has many warm friends, and that she is a power for of capability and efficiency in manhood or womanhood.

As soon as a child can toddle about the house, the mother should teach it orderly habits and usefulness, by telling it kindly to pick up its own toys and put them in a box or basket, should allow it to carry small articles from room to room for her, and pick up chips for the kitchen fire. The dear little one will be happy to think it is "helping mother." Children should be taught to be self-helpful and to help others. A child of three or four years will be proud to partially wash and dress itself and then help wait on the baby; to bring towels and soap for washing, to help dress it, buttoning its apron, lacing its shoes, etc.

At this age, a child can have a small broom and dustcloth and assist in tidying up the rooms. When mother washes dishes, it can wipe teaspoons, pans and saucers, and put them in place on the table. One tactful mother makes household tasks a round of games for the little helpers. They play being automobiles while carrying dishes from kitchen table to cupboard, play being brownies or fairies and make beds, sweep hearths, dust furniture, etc.

Singing familiar songs while working lightens

78th row.—4 sps., 2 blks., 1 sp., 1 blk., 3 sps., 5 blks., 1 sp., 1 blk., 6 sps., 2 blks., 3 sps., 1 blk.,

5 blks., 1 sp., 1 blk., 0 sps., 2 blks., 3 sps., 1 blk., 1 sp., 7 sps.
7 spt. row.—7 sps., 2 blks., 3 sps., 1 blk., 1 sp., 1 blk., 4 sps., 1 blk., 1 sp., 5 blks., 3 sps., 1 blk., 2 sps., 3 blks., 2 sps.
80th row.—4 sps., 2 blks., 1 sp., 1 blk., 3 sps., 5 blks., 1 sp., 1 blk., 4 sps., 1 blk., 1 sp., 1 blk., 3 sps., 2 blks., 7 sps.
81st row.—8 sps., 1 blk., 4 sps., 2 blks., 1 sp., 3 blks., 2 sps., 5 blks., 3 sps., 2 blks., 6 sps.
82nd row.—5 sps., 1 blk., 2 sps., 3 blks., 1 sp., 4 blks., 1 sp., 5 blks., 2 sps., 4 blks., 9 sps.
83rd row.—9 sps., 4 blks., 2 sps., 15 blks., 7 sps.

sps.
84th row.—7 sps., 6 blks., 3 sps., 6 blks., 2 sps., 2 blks., 1 sp., 2 blks., 3 sps., 1 blk., 4 sps.
85th row.—1 sp., 2 blks., 2 sps., 1 blk., 4 sps., 2 blks., 1 sp., 1 blk., 2 sps., 3 blks., 1 sp., 2 blks., 3 sps., 4 blks., 8 sps.
86th row.—11 sps., 1 blk., 4 sps., 1 blk., 1 sp., 1 blk., 3 sps., 3 blks., 2 sps., 2 blks., 1 sp., 1 blk., 2 sps., 2 blks., 2 sps.
87th row.—4 sps., 3 blks., 1 sp., 4 blks., 3 sps., 4 blks., 1 sp., 1 blk., 3 sps., 4 blks., 1 sp., 1 blk., 3 sps., 4 blks., 1 sp., 2 blks., 2 sps., 2 blks., 1 sp., 2 blks., 3 sps., 6 blks., 2 sps., 2 blks., 1 sp., 2 blks., 3 sps., 1 blk., 3 sps.
89th row.—7 sps., 4 blks., 3 sps., 1 blk., 3 sps.
89th row.—7 sps., 4 blks., 3 sps., 1 blks., 8 sps.

89th row.—7 sps., 4 diks., 3 sps., 10 diks., 1 sp., 10 diks., 2 sps., 2 diks., 1 sp., 3 diks., 1 sp., 5 diks., 3 sps., 2 diks., 2 sps., 2 diks., 5 sps., 91st row.—3 sps., 2 diks., 1 sp., 1 dik., 5 sps., 2 diks., 1 sp., 3 diks., 5 sps., 1 dik., 5 sps., 2 diks., 2 sps., 1 dik., 1 sp., 3 diks., 5 sps., 2 diks., 2 sps., 1 dik., 6 sps., 2 diks., 4 sps., 5 diks., 4 sps., 5 diks., 4 sps., 1 dik., 6 sps., 5 diks., 4 sps., 1 dik., 2 sps., 3 diks., 3 sps., 94th row.—2 sps., 3 diks., 2 sps., 1 dik., 4 sps., 1 dik., 1 sp., 3 diks., 1 sp., 1 dik., 3 sps., 3 diks., 2 sps., 10 diks.

Now reverse pattern from 75th row, thus: 95th row same as 75th row. 96th row same as 74th and 97th row same as 73rd, etc.

as nails, hammer, small saw, etc. They will soon learn to mend small breaks in fences, make chicken coops, dove cotes, rabbit traps, etc.

All children love animals. Pet dogs, cats, chickens, ducks, tame rabbits, squirrels, etc., are sources of never-failing delight. The habit of regularly caring for pets, bringing them food and water at appointed times, supplying them with fresh straw, etc., is valuable training for children.

Dangerous pitfalls should never be permitted on a farm, and the fences should be secure against roving cattle. This ensures peace of mind for the mother without constant recourse to "Don'ts," which are very difficult for an active, enterprising child to remember.

It is very easy to keep a young child quietly entertained. A pile of clean corn-cobs will afford occupation and anusement. It can learn to make walls, log houses, fortresses, fences, etc. Corn-cobs can be dressed in scraps of calico to make dolls for little girls. Odd-shaped gourds will serve as different kinds of animals. Acorn cups can be doll dishes, and hickory-nuts serve as heads for dolls made of corn-husks. There is an infinite store of treasures to be found in the woods and fields. Moss and wild flowers can be transplanted and made into fairy gardens. Bright pebbles or queerly shaped stones can make tiny rockeries.

Parents should purchase books telling about plants and animals and thus be able to answer

Parents should purchase books telling about plants and animals and thus be able to answer a child's pertinent questions about Nature's won-a child's pertinent questions about Nature's wonders.

Of course, all ambitious parents take an interest in the progress of their children in school. Father and mother should consider it a duty to lay aside their own reading or sewing in the evening to help the little ones with their studies. It is worth while to revive one's knowledge of arithmetic and grammar and keep in touch with new school methods.

All sorts of home occupations and innocent amusements should be encouraged by parents.

If the mother and father can join in candymaking, popping corn, cracking nuts, playing checkers, singing choruses around the piano, reading aloud and telling stories, they will be laying up stores of happy memories and rivet the chains that bind the children to country life and the old home farm.

On account of their isolated situation, many country lads and lassies are oppressed with a sense of bashfulness and awkwardness, when meeting strangers.

There is no need of this peculiarity, however. Careful, kindly, home training will eradicate such tendencies and give ease of manner and proper speech.

I have known of two families of agricultural speech.

I have known of two families of agricultural people who were deservedly popular and much admired because of their cordial, courtly be-admired because of their cordial, courtly behavior.

Both of these families were descended from several generations of country dwellers. In each home, from the days of infancy, the little ones were shown the correct way to express themselves in speech, proper table habits, polite forms of greeting, etc. There is nothing more pleasing than to hear a little child lisp "Thank you" or "Excuse me" readily and naturally. A timid little tot should be led by the hand to visitors and told to say "Good morning."

Cheerful morning greetings should be exchanged in the home. In a household where hospitality abounds, the children have ample opportunity to become accustomed to well-bred social conduct.

There is no better preparation for success in life than a foundation of self-respect and good manners.

Physical culture tends to eliminate muscular

Physical culture tends to eliminate muscular awkwardness. Simple gymnastics can be practiced at home as well as at school. Turning poles, dumb bells, Indian clubs, trapezes, swings, etc., can be made and boys will greatly enjoy cultivating their strength and muscular control in the big barn on rainy days.

One wise mother as soon as her children are old enough to go to school, allows them to invite one or two schoolmates to spend the afternoon or entire day on pleasant Saturdays. Each child has its regular tasks every day. On Saturday these are quickly accomplished in anticipation of the company. When there is extra work, the little girl guests must think it great fun to help wash dishes, and churn butter, while the boys help husk corn, or weed in the garden. A plain country dinner is served at noon, and before the children leave for home, a simple, wholesome lunch of bread and butter and a glass of milk is given to each one of the hungry, happy band.

In the country, the Sabbath still retains its primal significance, as adder of the country in the country of the same of the country is a day of the country in the same of the country is a day of the country is a day of the country of the same of the country is a day of the country is a dishes from kitchen table to cupboard, play being brownies or fairies and make beds, sweep hearths, dust furniture, etc.

Singing familiar songs while working lightens all labor.

Of course, young children should never be allowed to carry heavy loads, or work at tasks until fatigued. "Just a little" of several different duties is the best way to train them.

Out-of-doors children love to follow a kind father about, and if controlled properly need never be in the way. The sharp ears and bright eyes will learn much of agricultural methods and store up useful knowledge.

Country children should never be allowed to have miniature truck and flower beds of their own.

Boys should be given a few essential tools,

Ten Golden Rules of Health

HE Ten Golden Rules of Health, as pre-scribed by the Minnesota Division, Woman's Committee, Council of Na-tional Defence, and Minnesota Commis-sion of Public Safety, are as fol-lows:

Iows:

I. Play hard and fair. Be loyal to your team mates and generous to your opponents.

II. Eat slowly. Do not eat between meals. Chew food thoroughly. Never drink water when there is food in the mouth. Drink water several times during the day.

III. Brush your teeth at least twice a day. Rinse your mouth out well with water after each meal each meal.

IV. Be sure to cultivate regular daily habits.
V. Keep clean body, clothes and mind. Wash your hands always before eating. Take a warm bath with soap once or twice a week; a cool sponge (or shower) bath each morning before breakfast and rub your body to a glow with a rough towel. rough towel.

VI. Try to keep your companions, especially young children, away from those who have contagious diseases.

VII. Use your handkerchief to cover a sneeze or cough and try to avoid coughing, sneezing, or blowing your nose in front of others.

VIII. Study hard, and in study, work or play, do your best.

IX. Sleep: Get as many hours in bed each night as this table indicates for your age. Keep windows in bedroom well open.

Hours of Sleep for Different Ages

																		13
																		12
																		1114
10	to	12																11
12	to	14																1036
14	to	16																10
16	to	18				•	•											91/2

X. Be cheerful, and do your best to keep your school and your home clean and attractive, and to make the world a better place to live in.

Send Only With Coupon

and we will ship you this

SmartVelour Plush Coat

This smart warm coat is made of a fine grade of mercerized velour plush which is one of the season's newest and most attractive fall coatings. The collar, cuffs and pockets are of the same material but in and pockets are of the same material but in beaver color, offering a striking contrast. Colar may be worn as illustrated or in open lapel effect, if desired. Coat has all-around belt of self material with back cut in unique effect and trimmed with buttons. Entire coat is lined throughout with a fine grade of black mercerized serge lining which is very attractive and serviceable. Furnished in Burgundy, Navy Blue or Green. Sizes 34 to 44. Mention size and color wanted. Order by No. B-38. Only $1.00 down and the balance in small monthly payments of $3.00. Only $18.95 in all.

6 Months to Pay

Order this bargain on our liberal credit terms. No need to pay all down to get the very latest styles and amazing values in anything you want to wear. We trust honest people no matter where they live. Buy the easy way! Send today for this offering and see for yourself what a big advantage it is to use your credit with us. Act at once,

Mail Coupon

Thousands will be sending in for this bargain. It will be first come first served. Mail coupon with $1.00 P. O. order. Order before prices go up. Prices on everything are going up! up! up! and we may be forced to advance the price on this wonderful bargain before long. So order NOW! Also get our remarkable free bulletin of men's, women's and children's clothing on credit. on credit.

Elmer Richards Co. W. 35th St. Chicago-

Gentlemen: I enclose ______ as first payment.

Color.	Size Bust
If I am not satisfied with the it and get my payment back a month until paid for.
Name
Address

Post Office ... State ...

If you want the Bargain Bulletio, which is Free put X here '

Home Dressmaking Hints Forecasts for Fall Fashions

By Geneva Gladding

terial and the body of the coat of serge.

The new motor coats are fashioned after trench coats. One smart model of mohair is leather trimmed and warmly lined, so as to afford ample protection in cold weather.

Broad-soled and low-heeled shoes will be correct for the coming season—and that in black or brown.

Tailored waists and dresses have standing collars in a variety of effects, though others continue to have the comfortable front opening with collar in shawl or other eutline that rolls high at the back and continues over the front as far as the bust or below. as the bust or below.

Pattern Descriptions ALL PATTERNS 15c. EACH Unless Other Price Is Stated

2215—A New Riding Skirt. This model has trouser portions joined to the skirt portions and will make a very comfortable and practical garment. The pattern is good for Jersey cloth, serge, mannish mixtures and broadcloth.

Cut in six sizes; 22, 24, 26, 28, 30 and 32 inches waist measure. It requires five yards of 44-inch material for a 24-inch size.

2220—A Smart Dress for Mother's Girl. Linen, galatea, seersucker, gingham, percale, drill, voile, serge, plaid and checked suiting, all are nice for this style.

galatea, seersucker, gingham, percale, drill, voile, serge, plaid and checked suiting, all are nice for this style.

Cut in four sizes; six, eight, 10 and 12 years. Size 10 years requires three and one fourth yards of 44 inch material.

2326—Girl's Blouse Dress, with two styles of sleeve. This will be a very attractive model for a school dress in serge, galatea, linen, repp., checked or plaid suiting.

Cut in four sizes; eight, 10, 12 and 14 years. It requires four and one half yards of 44-inch material for a 12-year size.

2249—A Simple Coat and Cap for the Little One. Serge, cheviot, gabardine, velvet, plush, silk, linen, corduroy, pique and all cloakings suitable for children, are nice for this style. The cap may be of the same material, or of embroidery, lawn, faitle or fur. The pattern includes coat and cap.

Cut in four sizes; one, two, three and four years. Size two requires two yards of 36-inch material for the coat and five eighths yard for the cap.

2264—House Coat for Men. This model has the cap.

2264—House Coat for Men. This model has fronts and collar cut in one. It is suitable for serge, cheviot, double-faced mixtures, broadcloth, drill cneviot, double-faced mixtures, broadcroth, drift and alpaca.

Cut in seven sizes; 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches breast measure. Size 38 requires three and one eighth yards of 36-inch material.

2271—A Simple, Stylish Model. This will make a smart business suit in serge, cashmere, gabardine or mixed suiting. It is also nice for linen khaki, satin, silk, velvet or corduroy.

Cut in three sizes; 16, 18 and 20 years. Size 18 will require four and seven eighths yards of 44-inch material.

2297—A Simple, One-piece Model. Satin or serge with braid or embroidery could be used. It is also nice for velvet and crepe, cashmere or gabardine.

18 will require four and seven eighths yards of 44-inch material.

2297—A Simple, One-piece Model. Satin or serge with braid or embroidery could be used. It is also nice for velvet and crepe, cashmere or gabardine.

Cut in six sizes; 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires seven yards of 36-inch material.

2302—A Pretty Frock for Mother's Girl. The model is also nice for taffeta, velvet or corduroy, for linen and other wash materials.

Cut in four sizes; six, eight, 10 and 12 years. Size 10 requires four and three fourths yards of 36-inch material.

2314—A Popular, Practical Garment. Serge, drill, khaki, gingham, gabardine, fiannel and cashmere are good materials for this model.

Cut in five sizes; four, six, eight, 10 and 12 years. Size 12 requires four yards of 44-inch material.

2349—A Comfortable Dress for Mother's Girl. This will be nice in brown serge with soutafble braid for trimming, or in blue gabardine, with collar and cuffs of plaid or cheeked material.

Cut in four sizes; four, six, eight and 10 years. Size eight will require three and one half yards of 36-inch material.

2521 Waist; 2520 Skirt—A Good Combination for Business or Home. The Waist Pattern (2521) is cut in seven sizes; 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust measure. It requires three yards of 27-inch material. The skirt is cut in seven sizes; 22, 24, 26, 28, 30, 32 and 34 inches waist measure. Size 24 requires three and seven eighths yards of 44-inch material. Two separate patterns, 15 cents for each pattern.

2547—Girls' Drawers, to be finished with straight lower edge or in knickerbocker style. Cambric, longcloth, nainsook, lawn, crepe, muslin or batiste may be used for this design.

Cut in five sizes; four, six, eight, 10 and 12 years. Size 10 will require two and one eighth yard of 36-inch material, for either style.

2547—Girls' Drawers, to be finished with straight lower edge or in knickerbocker style. Cambric, longcloth, nainsook, lawn, crepe, muslin or half years of 36-inch material.

2560—A Neat Dress button saving.

Cut in three sizes; 16, 18 and 20 years. Size 18 requires four and one fourth yards of 54-inch material.

2566—A Popular Blouse Suit. This suit may

USE THE COUPON

Special Offers. For one one-year subscription (not your mail you any one Pattern free. Or for a club of two one-year subscriptions at 35 cents each we will mail you any three patterns free. The cash price of each pattern is 15 cents unless a different price is stated. He seure to ecder by number and give size or age wanted. Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Cut in four sizes; six, aight, 10 and 12 years. Size eight will require three and three eighths yards of 36-inch material.

2569—An Ideal House Dress. This model is made with reversible closing, and its fullness is held by a belt that fastens at the center back. Cut in seven sizes; 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust measure. It requires for a 38-inch size, six and one eighth yards of 36-inch material. material.

material.

2571—A Good Model for a School or Play
Dress. Checked or plaid gingham, chambray, percale, galatea, serge, voile, poplin, repp or linen would be nice, too. The pattern for this neat little dress is easy to develop.

Cut in four sizes; four, six, eight and 10 years. It requires three yards of 44-inch material for an eight-year size.

2573—A Smart Dress for Mother's Girl. This style is nice for gabardine, woolen or cotton 2249 2577 2560 2302 2592 2314 2571 2563

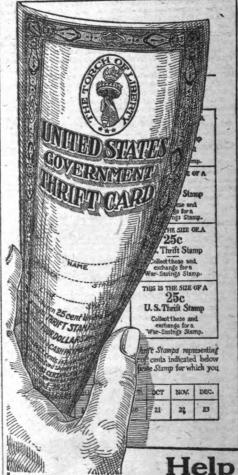

Please Fill Out This Coupon And Send It With Your Remittance cash, (or COMFORT, Pattern Dept., Augusta, Maine. I enclose $____ subscription and $______) for which please send me Patterns No. No. Street and No. Box No. Post Office R.F.D. No. as write names on separate sheet and pin this coupon to it.

2547

plaids and checks, serge, corduroy and velvet.
Cut in four sizes; four, six, eight and 10 years. Size eight requires three and three fourths yards of 36-inch material.
2574 Waist; 2576 Skirt—A Good Style for Matronly Figures. The Waist Pattern (2574) is cut in seven sizes; 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust measure. The Skirt (2575), in seven sizes; 22, 24, 26, 28, 30, 32 and 34 inches waist measure. A medium size will require three and one half yards for the skirt, three yards for the tunic and three and three fourths yards for the tunic and three and three fourths yards for the waist, of 27-inch material. Two separate patterns, 15 cents for each pattern.
2576—A Simple, Practical Apron. This apron slips over the head and is adjusted at the shoulders. Its fullness is held by a belt which may be omitted. It is nice for gingham, seersucker, drill, percale, khaki, sateen, lawn or cambric.
Cut in four sizes; small, 32-34; medium, 36-38; large, 40-42, and extra large, 44-46 inches bust measure. Size medium will require four and one fourth yards of 36-inch material.
2577—Stylish One-piece Dress. It will develop equally well in satin, silk or cloth. It is also good for serge, gabardine and Jersey cloth.
Cut in six sizes; 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. Size 38 requires five and one half yards of 36-inch material.
2578—Just the Frock for Gingham, Calico, Serge, Satin or Velvet. When all is said and done, the one-piece dresses are very comfortable and practical, in more ways than one.
Cut in four sizes; six, eight, 10 and 12 years. Size eight requires four and one eighth yards of 36-inch material.
2588—Here is an Ideal Suit for the Growing Girl. As portrayed, velvet and satin are used for the coat, and plaid suiting for the skirt. The coat may be of the same material as the skirt, with the vest of contrasting goods.
Cut in three sizes; 12, 14 and 16 years. Size 14 will require three and five eighths yards for the coat and seven eighths yard for the vest, of 27-inch material.
2592—A Comfortable Hous

ALL PATTERNS 15c. EACH Unless Other Price Is Stated

Sugar bowls have been banished from American dining cars—a traveler is served his portion of sugar and no more.

Your Country And Yourself

H ERE is your opportunity to help win the war and yet not invest a cent of your own money. COMFORT is willing to buy 25-Cent War Thrift Stamps and give them to you in place of a premium or eash commission. By following this plan you will soon have enough Stamps to fill a Thrift Card. Then you can start all over again and fill another Card—and so on.

As soon as you have filled each Thrift Card with sixteen 25-Cent Thrift Stamps, you can then take it to any post office, bank or other authorized agency, pay a few cents in cash and receive in return a $5 War-Savings Stamp bearing interest at the rate of 4 per cent, compounded quarterly. And remember—every $5.00 War-Savings Stamp which you buy or secure free on this offer strikes a blow at our enemies and hastens the victorious ending of the war. Furthermore, you are saving money for yourself or children in the form of U. S. Government Bonds—the best and safest security in the world.

We consider it our duty to offer Thrift Stamps to our club-raisers instead of premiums or cash commission and we have made our offer as liberal as possible in order to make it easy for all to earn the stamps. By accepting this offer you can obtain all the 25-Cent Thrift Stamps you want without paying any money yourself. We will buy the Stamps and give them to you in return for subscriptions to COMFORT.

Our Offer. For two one-year subscriptions to COMFORT at 35 cents each, we will send you one 25-Cent War Thrift Stamp and a Thrift Card free and prepaid. (Premium No. 8662.) For three one-year subscriptions we will send you two Stamps and a. Thrift Card. (Premium No. 7883.) For ten one-year subscriptions we will send you seven Stamps and a Thrift Card. (Premium No. 73610.)

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

by us here in Buffalo.

You deal with the makers,

middleman

not a

What I Did with Ten Cents' Worth of Dye

By Elizabeth Firth

Copyright, 1918, by W. H. Gannett, Pub., Inc.

HREE pretty faces looked disconsolate. The order 1 'd gone forth that economy must rune the wardrobe. This was a domestic tragedy, for the girls dearly loved to be well dressed, as all normally constituted young people do. So they put their heads together to see what could be done to remedy the unfortunate state of affairs.

"I have an idea," exclaimed the blonde after thinking for a minute or two. "Let's all dye." "Are you crazy?" said the brunette. The girl with gray eyes just looked at her in surprise. "Oh, you stupids," said the blonde. "I don't mean d i e—but d y e. If we dye some of our old clothes a different color, everybody will think they are new. Suppose each one of us sees just what we can do with ten cents' worth of dye."

dye."

No sooner said than decided upon unanimously and each girl set to work to outdo her

No sooner said than decided upon unanimously and each girl set to work to outdo her friend.

Now the blonde knew that there were going to be a great many little festivities in the village during the winter, so she thought she would try to make a new party dress out of the pale blue silk that she had worn for two seasons. For several years she had longed for a pink silk frock, but it seemed always just out of her reach. Filled with the confidence inspired by her new idea, she ripped all the white lace trimming from her old frock, and she purchased a ten-cent package of the pink dye intended for silk and woolen materials and studied very carefully the directions on the envelope. She learned that the first thing to do was to remove all grease spots with soap and water and then, after preparing the dye, to test its color with a sample of the material before submitting her dress to the tender mercies of the dye pot. In her case, this was an old dish-pan. After a search through her piece-bag, the blonde found a small bundle of silk scraps that were left when the dress was made. She plunged a bit of the pale blue silk into the boiling dye and was delighted when it came out a lovely coral shade. So she put in the dress and lifted it up and down with two sticks so that the dye would penetrate thoroughly each part of it and there would be no streaks, but a clean, even color. When it had boiled the required time, she hung it up to dry and then rinsed it according to directions to remove the "free dye" and make the color fast. When she had pressed it she was delighted with the result. Next she washed the white lace carefully with warm water and white soap and pressed it while still a little damp. When this was put back on the frock and the whole set off by a touch of black velvet, the result was charming.

The blonde was enthusiastic until she remembered that her party slippers were blue and so were her very best stockings. But she did not let this discourage her very long, for she knew the answer was the same as it had been in the case of the dress,—dye!

The stockings could go in the dye-pot, and in her enthusiasm along with them went a white chiffon cloth scarf that had become too yellow and dirty to wear, together with some faded ribbons and an old white silk necktle. These all-came out satisfactorily, so next she tackled the slippers. She purchased at a garage five cents' worth of gasoline. This she mixed with a little of the dye powder until she got the exact shade of the frock. Then she took a paint-brush and painted the satin tops of the slippers, being careful not to stain the leather soles. Gasoline can always be employed to color silk or satin in this way without spoiling the luster of the material, but it must be used in a room without artificial light or fire, as it is very explosive.

The brunctic's experience was just as fortusilk or satin in this way without spoiling the luster of the material, but it must be used in a room without artificial light or fire, as it is very explosive.

The brunette's experience was just as fortunate. She set her heart on a new mustard-tolored crepe waist to wear with a certain white corduroy skirt that was her special pride. Packed away in a trunk in the attic she had an old very pale pink crepe gown that she had not worn for years because it had faded such an ugly color it would not pay to make it over. She brought it out, ripped it apart and found that though there was not enough for an entire new frock—it was made with a very narrow skirt—she had plenty and to spare for a pretty blouse. The silk was washed and then dyed very satisfactorily. Into the same dye-pot she also dipped all her old light-colored ribbons and a faded pale blue silk belt. The result was so good that she bought another package of cardinal dye intended for cotton and dyed an old white cotton voile bright red. With a satin belt this would make a pretty house-dress and could also be worn to informal parties.

The girl with gray eyes could not afford to buy a new suit and her winter suit of three seasons ago had such a narrow skirt she was ashamed to wear it. But she had a white serge suit that was up-to-date in cut but was sø dirty from last summer's outings that she had despaired of ever getting it clean; besides she needed a dark suit. So she purchased a package of navy blue dye and followed the directions to the letter. The result surpassed even her expectations. Then she put through the same process a dirty white silk blouse and painted an old white felt hat dark blue with dye and gasoline.

When the suit was pressed it was found that it had shrunken a little and es it had elways it had shrunken a little and es it had elways in the same process.

when the suit was pressed it was found that it had shrunken a little and as it had always been a bit too big, this only improved the fit. Worn with a white organdic collar and cuffs, it made a very smart suit. The blouse was of course exactly the color of the suit and so was the hat, which, when trimmed with a wing and a tough of ribbon, most attractively completed the costume. the costume.

the costume.

When the three friends next met and enthusiastically related "What I did with ten cents' worth of dye," it was unanimously decided that henceforth dye should every season aid in refurnishing the wardrobe.

Knit Socks and Dollars

Get away from slow hand knitting-use the fast, reliable, modern Auto Knitter. Profitable work in peace and war time.

socks you do not wish to dispose of otherwise, and pay you highly profitable prices for them. The demand is tremendous, our workers cannot begin to

No yarn problem, we send replacement yarn FREE when working for us, and guarantee you

The Auto Knitter works by turn-liberal pay for your work.

yours too?

More Socks the Urgent Call where you live.

AUTO KNITTER HOSIERY CO., INC.

ing a handle-thousands of stitches a minute. It is easily learnt, our He needs Instruction System is very clear them and simple. It is a pleasant, permanent, money maker in thousands of homes-why not War Relief Organizations throughout the Allied countries are using Auto Knitters with wonderful results. One or two of these fast, reliable machines in each district can do more work than fifty ladies hand knitting. Made Quto. It is your Patriotic duty to answer it—now—and you provide yourself with a good income maker at home with the Auto Knitter, no matter Write today for full particulars enclosing 3c stamp, and see what you and your family can now earn at home and do for Patriotic work. Dept. 95 A, 821 Jefferson St., Buffalo, N. Y.

Comfort's League of Cousins

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 6.) to dispense with any portion of your apparel in the summer time, is to shed your shoes and stockings, then if you get freckles on your feet, no one will ever know it.

HORTON SUMMIT, VA.

HORTON SUMMIT, VA.

I am sixteen years old and live on a farm in the southwestern part of old Virginia, in Scott County. Uncle, what do you think of the world's war? People think it will end this year, what do you think about it? I hope the United States and the Allies will give the old Kaiser the whipping he deserves. I have a brother in training at Chickamauga Park, Ga. My brother reports that he is getting along fine. It pleases me to see our boys volunteer and show their patriotism and not wait until they are drafted into the army. I hope to be a soldier myself in the near future and trust I may see the time when Germany will be driven back and made to stay on her own soll. God help all our boys who are fighting for victory and humanity. With love to Uncle Charlie and all the cousins,

Your true friend,

Bradshaw Bowen.

own soil. God help all our boys who are ighting for victory and humanity. With love to the charle and humanity. With love to the clear the many and humanity. With love to the clear the many and humanity. With love to the clear the many the work when you have been publicly and the thirty years. War? As for ourselves, we have only just begun fighting. Up to July 29 last, when the Germans were being publied back from the tribity years. War? As for ourselves, we have only just begun fighting. Up to July 29 last, when the Germans were being publied back from the tribity years. When the Germans were being publied back from the tribity years. When the Germans were being publied back from the tribity years. When the German were being publied back from the public to the tribity years. When the German were being publied back from the work of the policy of the public years. When the German were being publied back that time we had been active participants in this great conflict for over firteen months, our losses, and were the public of the public of the many the public of the many that the public of the many that the public of the firthers, France a million and a quarter, the firthers, France a million and a q short war, until these docile pirates and cut

DEAR UNCLE CHARLE:

My belief is that the war was bound to come and that there was no way of avoiding it. I believe when nations become overpopulated, a war will come some way or another, as it always has down to the present time. Who knows but what wars are the Almighty's methods of harvesting souls. It may be part of His divine plan of which we do not understand the meaning. War thins out overpopulated nations when they become too thick to thrive. Here's hoping Germany's population will be greatly decreased. If they are civilized what good is civilization doing when a whole nation will suddenly revert to the barbarians of the darkest ages. I believe the U. S. A. has got a lot to do in the affairs of the world in the near future.

ROY E. HARPEE. DEAR UNCLE CHARLIE:

to the barbarians of the darkest ages. I believe the U. S. A. has got a lot to do in the affairs of the world in the near future.

Roy I think your belief that the Almighty uses war as a means of harvesting souls and trimming down the population of over-crowded countries, is entirely wrong. In harboring such beliefs you are putting the Almighty on a par with the Kaiser's bloodthirsty tribal war god. What would God gain by hurrying millions of young men in the prime of life into eternity? The harvest of souls is His anyway, as all men and women die sooner or later. I have told you time and again in these columns that Germany willed this war and planned it. Her own statesmen admit it, though it is still necessary to humbug the masses of the German people and make them believe they were attacked. The present war is simply the logical development of the policy of conquest and expansion that Prussia has pursued for five hundred years. If my word is not sufficient to convince you on this point, send to the Bureau of Information in Washington, to the National Security League and the American Defense Society, New York, and get their pamphlets. Most of these pamphlets are free and the largest only cost a few cents. Germany was not overpopulated. She had plenty of room. She was so prosperous that emigration had dwindled to nothing, and she had to import labor from Russia and Italy to gather in her harvests, so busy was she in underselling all other countries in the markets of the world, and in dumping cheap goods with the familiar "Made in Germany." The birth rate before the war was declining in nearly all civilized countries. It was even decreasing in Germany, in spite of the fact that the government was doi all in its power to make its people breed as much cannon fodder as possible, for as civilization advances the birth rate declines. The world is not overpopulated. There is plenty of room. Once we get the Butcher of Berlin muzzled, war in all probability will be a thing of the past, and as we become more civilized, t been won by the sacrifice of our brave boys, of asking such people to move on. She does not want to lose one of her children, but like all of her kind she is mighty glad to take advantage of the sacrifices of others. Why should I give my boy to make the world a safe and comfortable place for Mrs. Olderen (CONTINUED ON PAGE 18.)

The Most Gigantic Offer Of The Century, You Need No Money. We Trust You. We Pay Freight.

To gain a wider distribution for our strictly pure, high-grade groceries and family supplies, we now offer ABSOLUTELY FREE, a magnificently embossed artistically floral decorated, full size 46-PC. DINNER SET for sale of 10 BOXES OF SOAP of extra quality and finely perfumed, giving as premiums, with each box of 7 large cakes, Baking Pow Perfume, Talcum Powder, Ieaspoons, Shears and Needles (as per Plan 2551) here fillustrated. QUALITY as well as QUANTITY are in this offer, as we buy in such large lots that we can afford to give more good goods for less money than any other concern in the entire country.

ALL OF OUR PLANS SELL AT SIGHT. One pleased customer brings another and with our other Baking Powder, Tea, Coffee, with our other Baking road Sosp Offers, you Spice, Extract, Perfume and Sosp Offers, you Spice, Extract, Fertumeand Soap Oners, you will get duplicate orders and earn some of our many useful premiums such as Dinner Sets, Toilet Sets, Linen Sets, Silverware, Clocks, Lamps, Furniture, Graniteware, Rugs, DryGoods, Wearing Apparel, in fact, anything we pay the freight on Soap, Dinner Set and Premiums, allowing you plenty of time to examine, deliver and collect before paying us one cent. Write at once for FREE SAMPLE OUTFIT and other things. If, after receiving them, you decide not to get up an order, you may keep everything we send you FREE of charge for the trouble in answering this advertisement. No license needed. We protect you. Our methods are honest. Satisfaction guaranteed! Reference: First National Bank, Provident Bank, Postmaster.

SPECIAL FREE.PRESENT.

We give a 6-Pc, High-Grande Granite Kitchen Set, or 12-Pc. Silverine Knife and Fork Set, or Elegant Decorated Parlor Lamp, FREE of all cost or work of any kind. Simply send us your name and address and ask for this FREE PRESENT.

We also give Beautiful Presents for appointing one or more Agents to work for us. You advance nomoney. You have nothing to risk. Remember, the SPECIAL PREMIUM AND SAMPLE OUTFIT are both absolutely free. A letter or postal card is your only expense. WRITE TODAY. THE PURE FOOD CO., 926 W. PEARL ST., CINCINNATI, OHIO.

THE RIGHT WAY Jim Riner and his wife were good, honest, industrious folks. Like a great many American families they wanted to have the best of everything. Jim loved his wise and would have given her anything in this world she wanted, had he been able to afford it, but although he worked steadily, it took all the money he earned to keep his family. If Mrs. Riner wanted, a new dreas or a piece of furniture for the home, it meant that they must deprive themselves of something else. One-day she received a letter asking her to distribute a few high-grade household articles among her neighbors and friends. It only required a small part of her time and she accepted the offer. For her services Mrs. Riner received a handsome Dinner Set, thes some fine Linens, a pretty lamp, and many other valuable household pieces. Mind you, she did not pay one cent for freight or other expense. Jost did the work in her spare time. If you can be apply to the control of the cont

RAPP Get MORE cash for your furs by shipping to Hill Bros. Fur Co.— The Fastest Growing ISE WE CHARGE NO COMMISSION FRE Fur Price List, Trappers' Guide, Guide, F. C. TAYLOR FUR CO., Int'l Fur St. Louis, Mo.

Get our big 68-page handsomely illustrated "PRACTICAL TRAPPERS GUIDE." Describes and pictures all fur bearing animals; tells their habits and haunts; shows how to trap tells their habits and haunts; shows how to trap them and care for their skins so as to BRING HIGHEST PRICES; chock full of other valuable information; no trapper can afford to be without this remarkable book. Sent FREE to any address together with our money-making fur price list. Write today.

ROGERS FUR CO.

Den't 122

ST. LOUIS, MO.

The Boy Trappers of Beaver Bend

Copyright, 1918, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher, Inc.

CHAPTER II.

OLD weather came and muskrat trapping began to get poor. The animals were not very active and we had practically cleaned up our grounds. True, we could have made our sets farther down the stream, but if we had done this we should not have had the time to look after things properly, for we were going to school. Hence, we pulled up our traps and looked around for signs of mink, raccoon, opossum and skunk. Our reading of all articles about trapping gave us information of great value. In the first place, we knew in a general way where to look for fur bearers, and then signs. Through a neighbor we learned the use of a flash-light which enabled us to search for tracks we should otherwise have passed by. Again, when we were dubious about a den which might be that of a skunk, all we had to do was to throw the rays into the hole and if we saw black, white, or black-and-white hair, we knew we could arrange our traps with a surety of getting fur.

Our folks gave us positive instructions not to trap skunk. Yet the price lists we received showed that it were did, and the result was a lure that proved reliable.

We caught skunk almost every day, with balted and unbaited sets. In fact, we had no trouble whatever in getting them ready for market without odor. We were about to devote all our time to taking this animal when the unexpected happened.

We got a large Broad Stripe in one of our traps near a small country school,—but how to get him out was the problem. That skunk was a lure that proved reliable.

We caught skunk almost every day, with balted and unbaited sets. In fact, we had no twelting but a touch to taking this animal when the unexpected happened.

We got a large Broad Stripe in one of our traps near a small country school,—but how to get him out was the problem. That skunk was a lure that proved reliable.

We caught skunk almost every day, witheat on unbaited sets. In fact, we had no twithout odor. We were about to devote all our time to taking the balted and unbaited sets. In fact, we had not rouble day dunt in to trap skunk. Yet the price lists we received showed that it was well worth our time to make sets for them. Accord-ingly we put our traps out.

ingly we put our traps out.

The first set we made was in a weed patch, at the entrance to a burrow. No bait of any kind was used. While we caught three animals and killed them with a club, there was practically no odor. We early learned to staple our traps to some object which was too heavy for the animals to move or carry into the holes. A long pole proved effective, as did a piece of brush. As soon as we discovered this we had no trouble in moving our sets.

before and went home sorely puzzled. The hired man on our farm—he had done some trapping—gave us a clew. "You're fine ones," he said. "Don't you know that crows and hawks got the flesh? Go right back at once and cover the pens with a thin layer of weeds or brush."

Jack and I did so!

We had no trouble whatever catching skunk, for we found that the animals seemed to have no fear of the traps and would actually step into bright, new ones. Experience taught us, however, that if we hid our sets right, we could expect once in a while a mink or raccoon. They would not approach a bright new trap.

We learned that the proper way to conceal a set was to dig a small hole just large enough for the trap, so that when it was set the jaws were slightly below the surface of the ground. For a covering, the best thing was something that grew nearby—that is, green grass ought that grew nearby—that is, green grass ought of yrgound. If dust or sand were used, we had to put a wad of cotton or wool under the pan so no foreign substance would hinder the trap from springing. Further, in digging the excavation we had to locate this so that the water did not drain into it and freeze. When this happens the trap is useless.

Jack wanted to try prepared scents.

"It's easy," he said. "All you have to do is to get some small fish and cut them up fine."

Leave these to rot in the sun and use the oil.
The bait is good for all flesh-eating animals."
"We'll make some," I agreed.
This we did, and the result was a lure that

"Let's get Towser?"
my companion suggested, referring to a dog that David Jones,
another neighbor, owned.
I agreed—and yet dibiously. I knew Jones was particular about this half-grown pup.
"You go," I suggested.
"Naw!" Jack rebelled. "Anyway, you can whistle louder. Just sneak behind his corn crib and call the dog."
So I started off while my partner watched the skunk.
Luck came my way.

and the entrance to aburrow. No bait of any kind was used. While we caught three animals and killed them with a clut there w. We carly learned to staple our traps to some object which was too heavy for the animals to move
A long pole proved effeetive, as did a piece of brush. As soon as we discovered this we had no trouble in moving
"Try this," said Wallace. "Let's build small three-sided pens where there are skunks, and we'll guard the lure with one or more traps.
I read that if we did this we could take several pelts, from the same than the proper way to conceal we made the pens according to directions. For a decoy we used pieces of rabbit flesh.

We were up bright and early. Disappointment stared us in the face. Four of our traps were not sprung, yet the bait was gone. What got it? Neither of us knew. We baited again as man on our farm—he had done some trapping—gave us a clew.

"You're fine ones," he said. "Don't you know that crows and hawks got the flesh? Go right lack at once and cover the pens with a thin lack and I did so!

We had no trouble whatever catching skunk,
for we found that the animals seemed to have no fear of the traps and would actually stop lock at once and cover the pens with a thin
lack and I did so!

We had no trouble whatever catching skunk,
for ew found that the animals seemed to have no fear of the traps and would actually stop
lock at once and cover the pens with a thin lag and a lot and the done were the flag small hole just large enough we were no first the wide our sets right, we could expect once in a while a mink or raccoon. They would not approach a bright new trap.

We learned that the animals seemed to have no fear of the traps and would actually stop
lock at once and cover the pens with a thin land and the long of the proper way to conceal as twas to dig a small hole just large enough
we had no trouble whatever catching skunk,
for we found that the animals seemed to have
no fear of the traps and would actually stop lock at once and cover the pens with a thin land t

"You're fooling us," Jack retorted, hopefully.
"You think—"

"You think—"
"Nothing of the sort. The air has carried the smell into your clothes. Now you two kids go out into the corn crib and get some gasoline. Soak a cloth in it and then go over your duds. After that, walk down to the further meadow and drive up the cows. The fumes will be evaporated by that time and I hope all the smell. And say," he added, "be sure you have no matches in your pocket."

Wallace and I followed directions. When we returned, the hired man pronounced us all right.

Give our boys in the army and navy every fighting chance. Pledge yourself to save to the chasers are doing their part. Are you doing utmost of your ability and to buy War Savings your part? Buy War Savings Stamps to your Stamps.

Send at once for Funsten
3-in-1 Book, FREE, Game Laws,
Trappers' Guide, Supply Catalog, listing lowest prices on traps, market reports, guns, smokers, etc. A postal brings it.
Every indication points to bigger money to trappers this year than ever before. Furs are the rage, many trappers have been drafted greater opportunity for you.
Write for this book and Fur Price List.

BROS. & CO. St. Louis, Mo.

LUMINOUS PAINT JOHNSON SMITH & CO., Dept. 14. 54 West Lake Street, Chicago

Fingers Before Forks

There were no forks in those days when the King of Sweden and the royalty of other nations buttered bread with the ball of the thumb. Then somebody introduced a knife with a sharp point, and the wooden spoon came next. High-born guests took their own knives and spoons when they visited.

"She would not even wash in common water," somebody wrote of the scorned princess that first dared to use a fork at her home in the Turkish capital during or about the eleventh century, "but had the cruelty to compel her servants to collect rain-water for her. But, what is most monstrous, this wicked creature would not eat with her fingers. She had her food cut into small pieces by her attendants, and then she actually conveyed them to her mouth with certain golden two-pronged forks."

Thomas Coryate introduced the fork into England in 1608, but he was roundly roasted for his trouble and called "that miserable fork-bearer."
The custom was stigmatized as "an insult to Providence who has given us fingers."

A certain metal-worker later pretended that the forks he had for sale were made from a statue of Charles I, and the Royalists eagerly purchased them. Thus forks became popular in England.

New York Colored Woman Goes Abroad for Canteen Service.—Mrs. Helen Curtis, of New York City, a woman prominent in philanthropic work, has gone to France to engage in canteen service under the National Young Women's Christian Association. Mrs. Curtis bears all her own expenses.

Learn Music At Home!

Piano Organ Violin Cornet Guitar Banjo Mandolin Harp Sight Singing Cello Trombone Clarinet Piccolo Fiute Saxaphone Ukelele

Easy Lessons Free!

No longer need the ability to play be shut out of your life. Just write us a postal today for our new Free Book fresh from the printer. Let us tell you how you can easily, quickly, thoroughly learn to play your favorite musical instruments by note in your own home, without a teacher, by our New Improved Home Study Method, without paying a cent for lessons! Different, easier than private teacher way—no tiresome, dry exercises—no inconvenience. No trick music, no "numbers," yet simple, wonderful, amazingly easy even for a mere child.

200,000 Pupils!

99 we have successfully taught over 200,000 people from seventy, in all parts of the world! Hundreds write—"Have more in one term in my home with your weekly leasons that may with private teachers." "Everything is so thorough and e." "The leasons are marvels of simplicity. My ll-year old not had the least trouble to learn."

Wonderful New Book Free!

We want to have one pupil in each locality at once to help advertise our wonderful easy system of teaching music. For a limited time, we therefore ofer our marvelous lessons free. Only darge is for postage and sheet music which is small. Beginners or advanced pupils. We have hundreds of pupils right here in New York, the musical centre of America, who prefer our Home Study method in place of best private teacher. Get all the proof, facts, letters from pupils, amazing free offer and fascinating New Book Just Issued, all free! Write postal today. Address U. 8. School of Music, 410 Brunswick Bidg., New York.

AGENTS—Only One in the World KEROSENE (Coal BURNER

Makes any stove agas stove.
Absolutely safe. Cheapest fuel known. Women delighted with it. Wonderful labor saver. No kindling to cut—no coal to carry—no ashes to empty. Easy sales.

Clean, Odorless, Cheap The high price and scarcity of coal make this burner sell everywhere. Write quick for agency, terms and sample.

Thomas Burner Co., 2130 Gay St., Dayton, Ohio

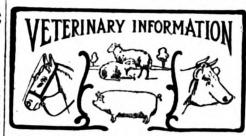

Subscribers are invited to write to this department asking for any information desired relative to the treatment of animal troubles. Questions will be answered in these columns free by an eminent veterinarian. Describe the trouble fully, sign full name and give your address; direct all correspondence to the Veterinary Department, COMFORT, Augusta, Maine. No attention will be given any inquiry which lacks the sender's full name and address, but we will print only initials if so requested.

LAMENESS; OBSTRUCTED TEAT.—I have a heifer with her first calf. When she brought it her hind feet were sore between the toes. When the calf was one month old her right hind teat appeared to be sore and gave very yellow, thin milk, and a growth seemed to be in the teat extending into the udder. Do you think the sore feet caused it?

G. V. L.

A.—Perfectly cleanse the feet and cut away any horn that is loose or rotten, then immerse for a few seconds in a solution of two ounces of sulphate of copper (bluestone) to the pfnt of hot water. Afterwards bind upon the affected parts oakum or absorbent cotton saturated with a five per cent solution of coal tar disinfectant and to be kept in place with bandages. Renew the dressing once daily. (2) The teat trouble was not caused by the foot trouble. The condition described is incurable. Dry off the milk secretion in that quarter or let the calf suck.

Short Teats.—My cow, two years old, came fresh that quarter or let the calf suck.

SHORT FEATS.—My cow, two years old, came fresh tici last February. I was not able to attend to her and it its sedious, as her teats are short. Is there anything I could rub on teats and udder to make them I could rub on teats and udder to make them I could rub on teats and udder to make them shore. If she is a good milker, it would be best to let my her suckle calves. The teats cannot be lengthened by such means as you suggest.

Astherence.

such means as you suggest.

ARTHRITIS.—My mare, six years old, has been lame in one of the fore fret for six months. She became lame while working in the fields and I did not work her. For three months it did not show at all and then the ankle began to swell. I cannot find anything wrong with the hoof. Can you suggest what I shall use or do?

A.—Deep-seated inflammation apparently is present, and may not prove curable. Keep cold wet swabs or bandages constantly upon the joint. If not better in a month, better have the joint and tendons line-fired and blistered by a qualified veterinarian, but not while the weather is very hot.

Chorac.—My doep had distemper, got better of its weather is very hot.

Chorea.—My dog had distemper, got better of it and then worse again. He has had hard work to get his breath and can't sleep. He jerks his shoulder. If you can, tell me something to do for him. A.-T. A.—The dog has chorea or St. Vitus' dance, which often results from a weakening disease such as distemper and is incurable. Some improvement may take place if you feed well and allow him to live an outdoor life.

oor life.

DISEASE OF GOATS.—I lose three or four goats every car from some disease. They take it by hanging the bend and frothing at the mouth their eyes turn whitish color, and the tongue swells, hanging out the mouth. They appear to have the blind stagers and refuse to eat or drink, living about four or we days.

L. K.

gers and refuse to eat or drink, living about four or five days.

A.—You should have the local graduate veterinarian investigate, as an examination is absolutely necessary to a correct diagnosis of such a disease. We suspect, however, that the disease may be hemorrhagic septicemia, which is incurable and contagious and best preventable by vaccination. Takosis is another contagious disease of goats, concerning which you can obtain a bulletin from the Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

disease of goals, concerning which you can obtain a bulletin from the Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Quidding of Feed.—My five-year-old horse is in medium condition, a good traveler and I feed corn and grain. When given grass, green, or hay, will chew and eject it. Tell me complaint and remedy.

A.—Have the teeth attended to by a traffed veterinarian, as the cause is there. A split or diseased molor tooth or milk tooth crowns that have not come away, or even sharp points, often cause quidding.

Pink-bye.—Will you give information regarding the following cow disease now prevalent in this district. The cows seem to get lame, then blind, a scum forming over the eyes. They get very poor, but rarely die from the disorder. It takes a long time for them to get over it.

A.—Contagious ophthalmia sometimes is termed pinkeye, but does not cause lameness. We suspect that the trouble you refer to is cottonseed poisoning, as you live where cottonseed meal and hulls commonly its fed to cattle. When made a well-nigh exclusive ration for a period of 100 days or more, it causes lameness and even paralysis, and the eyes show a blood-red ring around the pupil. The trouble subsfites after a time when other feed is generously supplied. If cottonseed is not fed, then the disease no doubt is contagious opthalmia, the treatment for which is to bathe the eyes night and morning with a saturated solution of boric acid and every other day dust the eyeballs with a mixture of equal quantities of finely powdered boric acid and calomel or iodoform.

Throat Trouble.—I have a cow that can't bawl at all. I would like to know what is wrong with THROAT TROUBLE.—I have a cow that can't bawl t all. I would like to know what is wrong with er.

J. W. S. her.

A.—The vocal cords are paralyzed or there is general inflammation and swelling of the glands of the throat. As tuberculosis would be probable cause, have a veterinarian apply the tuberculin test. The intradermal test is preferable in hot weather. Tuberculosis is incurable and contagious and makes the milk dangerous for use by man or animals.

for use by man or animals.

GARGET.—My husband has bought out a dairy and has many pure-bred Holsteins. When the cows freshen, their udders cake and he does not know what to do. Send me any information you can. Where can I get good reading on the care of dairy cows? Miss. C. B. G. A.—Apply to the agricultural experiment station of your state for free literature about care of dairy cows. When the udder becomes enlarged and caked, milk it out clean every two hours, massaging it each time, and two or three times daily bathe it with hot water. At night rub a mixture of one part each of turpentine and fluid extracts of pokeroot and belladonna and five parts of melted lard, sweet oil or soft-soap. Give the cow a pound dose of epsom salts in three pints of warm water and then twice daily two teaspoonfuls each of powdered saltpeter and pokeroot in soft feed.

WARTS.—I have a steer that has warts on his face.

Warts.—I have a steer that has warts on his face around his eyes and on his neck and fore leg. Tell me what to do to remove them. Miss B. F. A.—Twist off large warts that have narrow necks. Once daily apply freely to masses of small warts on face best castor oil, or fresh goose grease. To warts on legs or neck apply axle grease daily or pine tar once a week.

on legs or neck apply axle grease daily or pine tar once a week.

DEATH OF COW.—I had a cow. She breathed hard for seven weeks. A few days before she died her head swelled and a discharge came from the mouth. All I could find was in her neck and head. There were two big bunches the size of a man's fist. What was the matter and what should I have done?

R. E. S.

A.—Your description indicates that the cow either had tuberculosis of the glands of the throat and jaws, or actinomycosis of the same parts. You could not have done anything to save the cow, but if it was not a case of tuberculosis, an operation for liberation of pus might have given relief. Some cases of actinomycosis (lump Jaw) are curable.

Thin Cows.—I have two cows, two and three years old, that have worms on their tongues; they look like small red and black pimples. The disease is hereditary. (2) Another cow has a growth on her left side about the size of a hen's egg. It is sore. She has had it four years.

A.—We know of no such condition as you describe that is hereditary. It is quite possible for a cow to have worms or maggots in her tongue as the result of a wound or to have foreign bodies lodge in her tongue, or to have "wooden tongue" from actinomy-rossis of the organ. Without an examination it would be impossible to determine what is wrong, but we suspect that tuberculosis may be the true cause of the thin condition. Employ a qualified veterinarian and he will, if necessary, apply the tuberculin test. (2) The tumer should be dissected out by the veterinarian. Meanwhile, paint it with tincture of iodine every other day.

Meanwhile, paint it with tincture of iodine every other day.

SIDEBONE.—I have a horse twelve years old. His left fore foot seems sound, but in tretting, on rough road, especially, he limps, and if he strikes it against anything he hops. When I stop him he stands with that foot stretched out, and when he makes a crooked step he tries to walk on the toe of that foot. He limps slightly all the time. There is a hard gristle in the back part of his foot.

A.—Have the blacksmith cut away some of the wall of the hoof at the ground surface under the side-bone at the quarter near the heel and then put on a bar shoe. Afterward keep cold wet swabs constantly upon the hoof-head for a month, or let the horse run for a month in a low, wet pasture, if that is possible. If lameness then persists, clip the hair from the hoof-head and then blister two or three times with a mixture of two drams each of biniodide of mercury and powdered cantharides and three ounces of lard. Rub the blister in for fifteen minutes. The horse up short. Wash blister off in 48 hours. Then apply lard daily. Repeat blister at intervals of two or three weeks. Don't blister in very hot weather.

Sibyl's Influence

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 12.)

senseless gossips, and the thought of being an unloved wife is torture to me, yet—oh! Raymond Prescott, I have learned to love you to idolatry! What shall I do?"

Prescott, I have learned to love you to idolatry! What shall I do?"

"Ada, can it be possible?" Raymond cried, at once startled from his apathy, and speaking in tones of deep regret.

There was a long silence between them, which Miss Therwin improved by weeping softly.

"If what you say is true," he said, gravely, "there is then but one thing for you to do: you must be my wife, and—perhaps the future may bring us more of peace than we can anticipate under the circumstances. Shall we call it settled, Ada? May I tell the Count that it is all right between us?"

"Yes—and—Ray, I will yet make you love me," she said, looking up through her tears.

"God grant it for your sake as well as my own," he answered, and raising her hand he touched it gently with his lips, and went away.

CHAPTER XXXVI. ADA'S DILEMMA.

The long-talked-of engagement was announced at last; the Countess of Shirley gave a grand party in honor of the event, and "the world"

The long-taiked-of engagement was announced at last; the Countess of Shirley gave a grand party in honor of the event, and "the world" was satisfied.

Sir Athelstone Prescott had been duly notified of the consummation of his secret hopes, and, leaving his patients in the care of his assistant, he made for himself a holiday and came to London to rejoice over the good news.

He was very anxious that the marriage should not be delayed, for he saw that Raymond was very sad and depressed, notwithstanding that he made a great effort to appear cheerful and content whenever he was in the presence of any one. The countess demurred somewhat at this, saying a month was hardly time for the necessary preparations; but the doctor overruled all objections, and finally the wedding was set for the thirtieth of June, just a month from the day of his arrival.

A day or two after the party given in honor of the engagement, while the ladies were at lunch, a note was brought in to Lady Shirley.

She took it, broke the seal, and read it, and a slight expression of annoyance clouded her fine face for a moment afterward.

"This is quite unfortunate, coming just at this very busy time," she remarked, thoughtfully.

"What is it, auntie?" asked Ada.

"Lady Allstone has been called suddenly to her daughter in Manchester, and she wishes me to take charge of her poor people for a few days. We often exchange in this way, when one is called out of town or is sick," she explained, turning to Lady Prescott.

"But, auntie, you cannot do it now, when there is so much else to be done. We shall never get through unless we give all our time to prepare for the thirtieth," Ada replied, impatiently; and Lady Prescott. looked up in surprise—she had never heard her speak in that tone before, and it jarred upon her heart.

"Sibyl would have said, "Go by all means, auntie," she thought; and she was the more surprised, since Ada had "always been so deeply interested in the poor."

"I know, dear, it is very trying to have any interruptions just at this time,"

Would You ulously low factory price, easy terms, unusual ferror with the state of the state of the state of the state to you if within ten days of seeing this you etter or on a postal, "Send particulars of and address your postal card or letter: MEAD CYCLE CO., 3 Mead Block, Chicago

Witte Engine Works 3641 On ktond Ave. Kaneas City, Me.

Wear Wear Overland Aluminum Shoes From Factory to Feet No metal touches you. Keep feet No metal touches you. Keep feet production. Money back if eatisfied. Free catalog for a postal. Overland Shoe Co., Dept. 8B, Racine, Wis.

Sales Agent 1200

FIBRE ARMS

4-POUND FIBRE LEGS—ON EASY TERMS.
Orthopedic Braces for All Deformities. Send-for Booklet.
Ray Trautman, 657 Dean Building, Minneapolis, Minn.

ANOEOYRS

David A. Carson's Delightful War Songs. "Yankee Girls," "My Luvin' Baby" rag, 2 big HITS, "1'll Be Waiting For You Dearie" A girl to soldier lover. "My Aeroplane Girl," waltz song High every way. 15c each, 4 for 50c. American Music Co., AUDITORIUM. CRICAGO.

THIS AIR RIFLE accurate shooter, free for selling only 25 pieces of our Jewelry at 10c. each. Writerfor Jewelry today. Each Esoton, Mass. Packet WATCH CO., Dept. 330, East Boston, Mass.

How Many Words Can You Make This puzzle is a sure prize winner—absolutely everyone in this club wins a prize it is not hard, either—just a little ingenuity and skill. The nuzzle is to get as man words as no satishe out of the letters between the only the letters styren.

This puzzle is a sure prize winner—absolutely everyone in this club wins a prize. It is not hard, either—just a little ingenuity and skill. The nuzzle is to get as many words as possible out of the letter berewith given. Use only the letter for appearance of the letter berewith given. Use only the letter for appearance only as many times as they appear in this ad. For instance, the letter for appearance three times, so in all your words you must not use Y more than three they appear three times, so in all your words you must not use Y more than three they appear three times, so in all your words you must not use Y more than three they appear three times, so in all your words you must not use Y more than three three youngs and simple, but if you can make as many times as it appears in this advertisement. It is not necessary that you use up all the letters. The puzzle looks earny and simple, but if you can make as many as twelve words, send in your list TO-DAY, as the person winning first prize may not have more than that many words.

OUR OFFER We are the largest magazine publishers in the west and are conducting this big. EVERY BODY and the own of the word building and prize contest in content of the your can be appeared by the prize and full particulars as to how you can become a member of this you wotes in the club for each word and and the other valuable premiums. We give votes at the close of the club we will give you will you would be a proper to the prize, we are going to give away thousands of other valuable premiums of all kinds, too numerous of the fourth highest $35.00 in gold; to the fifth highest $10.00 in gold and the other valuable premiums of all kinds, too numerous of the fourth highest $35.00 in gold; to the fifth highest $10.00 in gold and the other valuable premiums of all kinds, too numerous of the prizes, we are going to give away thousands of other valuable premiums of all kinds, too numerous of the prizes, we are going to give away thousands of other valuable premiums of all kinds, too num A. J. KELLY, MCR., 514 CAPITAL BUILDING, TOPEKA, KANSAS

"Over There" Your Boy

Wouldn't You Like To See His Picture In This Handsome Service Frame?

"I wish I had a distinctive frame for Harry's picture. He looks so manly in his uniform and I am so proud of him."

10 Cents a Day Pays

for This Symphonola Plays all records, Victor, Columbia, Edison, Pathe, Little Wonder, Emerson. Take a year to pay, after 30 days trial. Compare its tone for clearness, volume, with more costly instruments. Return at our expense if it fails to make good. Ask today for the Beautifully Illustrated Symphonola Book FREE Shows this and other Symphonola Styles soid on easy payments.

Symphonola Records

Get our list of the latest song, dance, popular clear sounding, full toned disc records. Playable on any Phonograph.

Buffalo, N. Y. Desk SCT 1018.

PHONOGRAPH FREE

DO YOUR EYES BOTHER YOU? COULTER OPTICAL CO., Dept. B. CHICAGO, ILL.

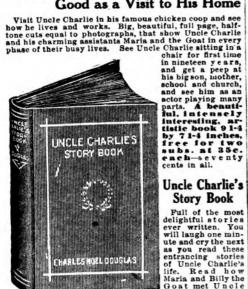

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM

For Restoring Color and Beauty to Gray and Faded Hair 50c, and $1.00 at druggists.

UNCLE CHARLIE'S LIFE & IN PICTURES

Uncle Charlie's Picture Book Good as a Visit to His Home

Uncle Charlie's Story Book

Full of the most delightful stories ever written. You will laugh one minute and cry the next as you read these entrancing stories of Uncle Charlie's life. Read how Maria and Billy the Goat met Uncle

Or Help Wanted" the funniest story ever written. 160 pages of mirth and merriment, pathos and tears, illustrated and beautifully bound in silk cloth, stiff covers, gold topped. Free for three subs at 35c. each—one dollar and five cents in all.

Also bound in heavy fancy blue paper covers for only two subs at 35c. each—seventy cents in all. Ideal birthday presents. COMFORT'S greatest premium bargains. Work for them today. Secure one or both of these superb souvenirs of this remarkable man who devotes his time and talents to the service of humanity.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Note. Full particulars of how to secure Uncle Charlie's splendid poems and song book will be found at the end of the Laague of Cousins Department.

"Virtue itself offends when coupled with forbid-ding manners."—Bishop Middleton.

Through the columns of this department free information pertaining to Etiquette, Personal Appearance and kindred subjects will be given in answer to questions by our subscribers, but not more than two questions the same month by any one subscriber. Address Etiquette Editor, COMFORT, Augusta, Maine, and give your own full name and address. Name will not be published.

E. M. Fowler, Kans.—Why do you think that either yourself or this department knows more than your mother? At fifteen you are most assuredly too young to "go with a young man." (2) All shades of brown, green and red should prove becoming to you, but black is the most suitable color for a girl who thinks of disobeying her mother.

disobeying her mother.

K. S., Lynchburg, S. C.—We think you would do better to wait one or two years before marrying, unless you are exceptionally unhappy at home. And be sure that this young man you think of wedding is capable of supporting you properly, or you will be preparing more trouble for yourself than that you think you have now. (2) Yes, you may kiss him once a month, and you may also arrange your hair in whichever way is the most becoming and convenient.

ever way is the most becoming and convenient.

A. L. B., Marietta, Ga.—You should return from the party with the same boy who escorted you there. You must not write to unknown soldiers.

D. J. Y., Kennesaw, Ga.—No expensive gifts should be exchanged before engagement. If you are no longer friends with the young man that gave you this ring, you should return it. (2) You should not write a first 'love letter' to a boy.

A. M. Y. Kennesaw, Ga.—You may shake hands or first "love letter" to a boy.

A. M. Y. Kennesaw, Ga.—You may shake hands or not when you meet a boy, but it is pleasanter to do so. (2) This department has stated many times that there should be no kissing before becoming engaged.

M. G. T., Bailey's Switch, Ky.—You need not be surprised that this young man—whom you met at a plcnic for the first time—did not accept your invitation to call. Men are fickle creatures, and he had probably had his picture taken many times before with other girls just as foolish as you were. But we would not worry about it, or give it any more thought than he has done. We do not think that either etiquette or your heart has been seriously injured.

L. E., Hulbert, Okla.—Now that you have recovered your heart has been seriously injured.

L. F., Hulbert, Okla.—Now that you have recovered from your illness, you are certainly wise in wishing to make up your lost time at school. We do not understand why your parents should object to this. You will never regret having made the effort to gain all the education possible. (2) Continue to decline the attentions of any boy who you are certain drinks and whose father is a drunkard.

A. G., McBride, Mo.—You may kiss your sweetheart good by when he leaves for France.

P. B., McBride, Mo.—You may go to your local dances if your parents do not object. (2) Do not go motoring at night unless some older woman is along Sweet Yellow Tulip, Belle View, Mo.—Why should you hug and kiss a boy because he may be called to war "at any notice?" Do you think this will make him fight any better? Do not cheapen yourself by accepting any such familiarities before you become engaged.

H. H., Thatcher, Ariz.—Your fiance should give you an engagement ring. You receive your wedding ring at the time of the ceremony. You need give no ring to your future husband.

X. Y. Z., Depart, Texas.—Of course you could not think of marrying this high school girl of sixteen. When she is three years older, if you still love her and believes that she cares for you, there would be no objection to your commencing to pay her serious attention. You will not be too old at that time. But do not make love to her now. (2) Your writing and spelling is most creditable.

N. H., Paducah, Ky.—No thirteen-year-old girl should ever go out at night with a young man of twenty-one. What does your mother say to this? (2) Do not worry about the attention any young man is paying to a "widow of forty." What you should worry about are your school books and your own silliness. You need a good spanking.

M. B., Exenia, III.—You are sensible to know that you should not be receiving the attentions of young men at your schooligirl age of sixteen. (2) If the automobile has only an entrance on one side, it would be necessary for the young man to enter first and take the wheel rather than to pass in front of you after you had entered the car.

Car Lover, Camo, Miss.—A girl of fourteen should had entered the car.

CAT LOYER, Camo, Miss.—A girl of fourteen should regard herself as a schoolgirl, and not be thinking about the attentions of a young man of twenty-four. (2) A gentleman offers his arm to a lady when this courtesy is necessary. The lady may take it or refuse.

PEGGY, Dunkirk, Ind.—It would not be proper for you to "speak to a boy first" if you had never met before. (2) If you have a friend who is leaving to take part in the war, it would be permissible for you to say that you would be glad to have news of him when he is gone.

October Girl. Thatcher, Ariz —It is the latest and the state of the courter of the part of the courter of the part of the courter of the court lie's department and his answers to the letters. I have all his books and would not take any price for them. I consider him the Greatest Man on Earth. Long may he live to enlighten us, and may his strength be equal to his task.

Comfort's League of Cousins (CONTINUED FROM PAGE 15.)

Your admiring friend,

MRS. LAURA SICKLER.

If I could have a personal chat with every German man and woman in this country, who was absolutely Kaiser crazy, I could prove to them that the downfall of the Kaiser and all he represents would benefit Germany more than any country on earth, for when he and his gang go, Germanv will be a republic and the plain people will come into their own. Those who uphold the Kaiser uphold monarchy and autocracy in their most venomous and vicious forms. Our fathers founded this republic to get away from the king idea and all it represents. Millions of Germans and the subjects of other European powers came here pitifully poor, to get away from the very same thing, and to better themselves in this new land, brimming over with opportunities. A good half at least of these immigrants were quick to appreciate our republican and democratic form of government and have become absorbed into our national life and are 'Americans to the bone. To these I extend my love and greetings. For the last thirty years, however, every effort has been made by the Imperial German government to make the Germans in the United States, even though they had forsworn allegiance to the Fatherland, more German than the Germans themselves. Thus it is that the Germans have settled in colonies, forming hundreds of little menacing foreign islands in the sea of our national life. These foreign communities have, thanks to coddling by axe-grinding politicians and the evil influences of the German language press, come to think they own the entire country. For America and its institutions they have nothing but contempt. The authorities have been wickedly lax in allowing this sort of thing to grow. Those who uphold Germany in this struggle should be notified that immediately war is concluded their farms and other property will be confiscated, and the same should apply to all other German sympathizers of foreign birth, and the whole bunch should be shipped to the lands from whence they came. Oh, what a howl there would be when they had to go back to their old ways of living—the poverty, the poor food, the long hours of labor, the bulldozing of a million officials, the goose-stepping and the drill master. Fat rolls of bills would no longer be in their pockets. It would be wooden shoes for travel instead of automobiles, and hot dogs instead of porterhouse steaks. I have scores of devoted friends of German birth who love and appreciate America in spite of all its shortcomings, and their contempt for the American Kaiser rooters is unbounded. The pacifist and the enemy alien are all ready and willing to profit by the sacrifice that we must pay in the blood of our sons for that liberty and freedom which are the most precious of all human possessions, and while we fight for them, they revile us and plot to destroy us. If Mrs. Olderen and others, who, through ignorance, prejudice and enemy poison, still believe this an unjust war, let them write to the Bureau of Information, Washington, D. C., the National Security League, and the American Defense Society, New York City, where an enormous amount of free literature regarding the war can be had.

Comfort's League of Cousins

The League of Gousins was founded as a means of bringing the scattered members of COMFORT'S immense circle of readers into one big, happy family. Its aim is to premote a feeling of kinship and relationship among all readers. Membership is restricted to COMFORT subscribers and costs forty cents, eighly five cents more than the regular subscription to COMFORT which is included. The forty cents makes you a member of the League and gives you an attractive League button with the letters "C. L. O. G." a handsome certificate of membership with your name angrossed thereon, and the privilege of having your name in the letter list, also a pald-in-advance subscription to COMFORT. You continue a League member as long as you keep up your subscription to COMFORT. There are ne annual dues, so after you have once joined all you have to do to keep in good standing is to keep your subscription to COMFORT.

How to become a Member

Send forty cents to COMPORT'S Subscription Department, Augusts, Maine with your request to be admitted into COMPORT'S LEAGUE OF COUSINS, and you will at once receive the League button and your membership certificate and number; you will also receive COMPORT for one year if you are a new subscriber; but if you are already a subscriber your aubscription will be renewed or extended one full year beyond date of expiration.

The League numbering over forty thousand members, unyond date of expiration.

The League numbering over forty thousand members, undepletedly is the greatest society of young people on earth.

Address all letters to COMFORT, Augusta, Maine, and they will promptly reach the head of the department for which they are intended.

League Shut-in and Mercy Work for October

"Inasmuch as ye have done it unto the least of these ye have done it unto Me."

Written references from postmaster and physician must positively accompany all appeals from shut-ins. Appeals unaccompanied by written references will be destroyed.

ences will be destroyed.

Fulton R. Lowe, Sheppards, Va. Has chronic neuralgia and stomach trouble. Unable to work. Needs money for food, medicine and clothes. Open your hearts and pocketbooks and send him a dime shower. Miss Sallie Satterwhite, Box 120, Blairstown, Mo. Shui-in. Tries to support herself, but the high cost of living and her invalid condition make the task utterly beyond her. Highly recommended. Give her a boost. Mrs. M. I. Carson, East Fruitland, N. C. Old, feeble and needy. Alone in the world. The postmaster says: "She is very needy and worthy of any assistance you can render her." Mrs. Clara Crawford, Hartford, Mich. Partially paralyzed. Widow, 72 years of age. Highly recommended. Help this poor, aged, lonely soul. Mrs. A. B. Walker, Box 17, Millboro, N. C. Seventy-one years of age. Invalid for many years. Would be grateful for any help you may send her. Mrs. Martha Geisler, Stella, Va. Invalid. Needy and worthy. Remember her. Burtney Barefoot, Four Oaks, N. C. Invalid for many years. Send him a dime shower.

Oaks, N. C. Invalid for many years. Send him a dime shower.

We have had a bountiful harvest. Won't some of you who have reaped that golden harvest from the Almighty's bounty, show your appreciation by sending a few greenbacks to these poor, sick and hungry brothers and sisters of yours?

Lovingly yours.

Uncle Charlie's Poems Is the Best Crop to Harvest

when he is gone.

October Girl, Thatcher, Ariz.—It is the place of your friend who is leaving to say good by first.

(2) If you are leaving your home town, it would be proper for you to write first from your new address to your old friends.

F. D., Hardensburg, Ind.—If your caller talks of leaving and the hour is late, rise and thus give him a hint that you are ready to have him go. If it is early, and you really wish him to remain, say so, Remember the best manners and the truest courtesy are founded upon kindness and sincerity. (2) A gentleman should keep every engagemnt he may make, or any that are made for him by his friends.

Crop to Harvest

The long evenings are here, the harvest gathered in. You have all you want for the stomach, but the feast is not complete until you feed the mind. Uncle Charlie's Poems, a gorgeous, lilac silk bound, 160-page volume of riotous fun, is the best brain food in the world. You will laugh! scream! yell! as you will find a few tears, and an absorbingly interesting sketch of Uncle Charlie's life. This superb volume of fun, free for a club of only three one-year substitutions to Comport at thirty-five cents each, Finest Christmas gift in the world. Work for it today.

Uncle Charlie's Song Book Contains the Prettiest Harvest Songs Ever Written!

Uncle Charlie's Song Book contains twenty-eight of the dandiest classiest songs ever written. Every song is a hit and worth fifty cents apiece. Songs for all occasions,—church, parlor, platform and joy rides. Put this splendid volume of song on your piano and it will fill your home with melody the year round. Superb pictures of Uncle Charlie decorate the artistic cover. Five dollars' worth of music for both voice and piano, free for a club of only two subscriptions to COMFORT at thirty-five cents each. Both books free for a club of five. Work for them today.

LOOK YOUR BEST. Make sure of smooth white arms, face and neck in spite of sallowness, blotches, freckles, blackheads etc. If you want to be charming and attractive—Don't pay 50c but send 10c at once for sealed Package, which will transform your appearance instantly. Warranted.TOILET COMPOUND CO. Box 1327A, Boston, Mass.

The Bee Cell Supporter

A BOON TO WOMANKIND Made from the purest, softest rubber. Six cups or faces render misplacement absolutely impossible. Endorsed by the medical profession. Send us $2.00 and we will mail you one postpaid in plain package. Money back if not entirely satisfactory. Write for descriptive cir-cular. It's FREE.

The Boe Cell Co., Dept. 168 White Bldg., Buffalo, M. Y.

Banish Pimples Easily, Quickly

Let Stuart's Calcium Wafers Give You a Complexion to Rival the Kind People Rave Over.

SEND FOR FREE TRIAL PACKAGE.

There is only one way to remove pimples, blackheads, eruptions and eczema with its rash and itch, and that is by Stuart's Calcium Wafers in the blood.

Their wonderful calcium sulfide supplies the blood wth one of the most remarkable actions known to science. This is its activity in keeping firm the tiny fibres that compose even such tiny muscles as those which control the slightest change of expression, such as the eyelids, lips, and so on. It is this substance which pervades the entire skin, keeps it healthy and drives away impurities. Get a 50-cent box of Stuart's Calcium Wafers at any drug store and learn the great secret of facial beauty.

A free trial package will be mailed if you will write the F. A. Stuart Co., G70 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

If You Are A Woman Who Loves Crochet And Tatting Here Is A Set Of Books You Will Be Delighted To Own!

Of Books You Will Be Delighted To Own!

Any one of these books alone is a veritable treasure house of the newest, most beautiful designs. The seven books combined form a complete library in which you will find any pattern in crocheting and tatting you could possibly ask for. You will fairly revel in the many handsome designs shown. There are edgings, beadings, insertious and laces for every conceivable use. The illustrations are actual photographs of the finished work and show every thread so plainly that they are almost as good to work from as the directions themselves. The directions are adapted for either beginner or expert. They tell stitch by stitch how each pattern is worked, also the quantity and size of material required and the correct sizes of hooks to be used. Following is a description of each book. They are 8 by 10 1-2 inches in size with the exception of Volume 1 which is 91-4 by 12 inches. Please order by numbers.

Volume 1 crocheted yokes for combinations envelopes, nightgowns, corset covers, etc.—fifteen all different, exquisite designs.

Volume 2 Handsome crocheted edgings and insertions suitable for handker-chiefs, underwear, creases and a multitude of other uses,—thirty-tharee different designs.

Volume 3 Eighteen lovely designs in Cluny insertions and laces for centerpleces, library scarfs, boudoir caps, corset coveryokes, piano scarfs, curtains, chemises, envelopes or combination suits.

Volume 4 Truesty-five handsome designs in Cluny insertions and laces for centerpleces, portiere, medallons, curtains, etc., etc.

Volume 5 Tweenty-five designs in novelty crochet, including mile-a-minute

Volume 5 Twenty-five designs in novelty and clover leaf crocheted yokes, primrose and sunflower yokes; doilles, centerpieces, boudoir caps unique edges and insertions for serving trays; novelty aprons and collars.

aprons and collars.

Volume 6 Thirty-two designs in tatting, Maltese and Irish crochet,—a varied and beautiful assortment of tatted handkerchief edges, edgings and insertions, tatted yokes, boudoir caps, towel edges, medallions; yokes, breakfast caps, centerpieces, edgings and lace in Maltese crochet and yokes in Irish crochet.

Volume 7 Thirty handsome novelty crocheted designs including rose, sunflower periwinkle, and Venetian yokes; bondoir caps, monkey face library scarf, and lace pillow; large and small baskets, hat pin holder, jewel box, vanity tray coin purse, utility bag, starfish dolly, pineapple centerpiece; edgings and insertions in pillow lace; daisy edging; spider, bell, rick-rack, novelty and coronation braid laces.

WE advise you to order all seven of these splendid books before the assortment is broken. If however you do not care for the whole library at this time we have arranged the following special offers which give you the opportunity to secure any three books or the entire seven books. When ordering please be very careful to state the desired number of each book.

Offer No. 8011. For one one-year subscription (not your own) to GOMFORT at 35 cents we will send you any two books free by parcel post prepaid. Be sure to mention numbers of books wanted.

Offer No. 8552. For two one-year subscriptions to COMFORT at 35 cents each, we will send you any four books free by parcel post prepaid. Be sure to mention numbers of prepaid. Be sure to mention numbers of books wanted.

Offer No. 8013. For three 1-year subscriptions at complete library just as described above—seven volumes in all, handsomely bound, printed on high-grade paper and containing nearly 200 beautiful photographic illustrations of all that is new and pretty in crochet and tatting designs with complete directions for working. When ordering please be sure to mention number of each book wanted.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Trixey, Anson, Texas.—Nature never meant me for a movie star, consequently I cannot tell you much about the work and whether it is nice or not, but I do know if I were drawing Mary Pickford's or Charlie Chaplin's salary I'd try my very best to make it a "nice" profession so I could stay in it. I think there are good and bad movie actresses just as there are good and bad people in all other professions and it is up to you, Trixie, to be good wherever you are or whatever you are doing. P. S. That applies to all the cousins as well.

CURLY, California.—Give him your friendship but not your photograph and don't take him back if he fiirts too much with other girls.

A MOUNTAIN GIRL, Pennsylvania.—If your mother doesn't object to the young man bringing you from school in his car, I don't see why I should, particularly as you seem to be a sensible sort of girl, as was evidenced by slapping his face when he tried to kiss you. Slap it twice and harder if he tries it again and then don't ride with him; but the fact that he hasn't tried it again shows that he is the right sort and understands. Your penmanship is excellent, Wish I could do as nicely. could do as nicely.

TROUBLED, VIRGINIA.—I don't think you are taking any more of a risk, if indeed as much, in marrying a man whose family is not respectable—provided they aren't degenerate—but who has risen above them and is all right himself, than to marry a man whose family is respectable but whose own life isn't clean and decent and who hasn't lived up to his early teachings. You are young, so wait a year or two and in the meantime tell him just why your father objects to him and give him a chance to show that he is worthy of you by working harder than he ever has before. Since "Father" objects so strongly, perhaps it would be best not to see him very often for a while, but if you really love each other you won't mind that, provided it is only for a while, and if you don't love each other it is better to find it out now than when it is too late.

HEART-BROKEN WIFE, Oklahoma.—Without doubt your is better to find it out now than when it is too late. Heart-broken Wife, Oklahoma.—Without doubt your sickness has made you nervous so that you notice little things that you otherwise wouldn't and brood over them until they seem worse. Perhaps your husband acts differently because he is worried over your sickness. Don't accept his mother's statement that he doesn't love you any more as final, but have him come where you are and talk the matter over with him alone and don't consult a third party about your personal affairs. Stop worrying and you will get well much quicker.

Brown-EYED Twin, Idaho.-If you were a maiden BROWN-EYED TWIN, Idaho.—If you were a maiden lady of forty-two summers, and goodness knows how many winters, I might possibly understand your desire to grab the first man that offered himself (though that is a foolish thing to do for there's lots worse things than being an old maid), but when a pretty seventeen-year-old American girl shows as little spirit as you do, it is utterly beyond my comprehension. If I had been in your place and it came time for the man to propose to me and instead he informed me that because his folks and mine were planning our wedding dinner he wasn't coming back any more, I certainly wouldn't have let him come back and I wouldn't marry him if he were the last man on earth. Seventeen is too young to marry anyone, least of all such a conceited person as he is.

SOLDIER'S GIEL AND SHY MAID, Georgia.—I know

seventeen is too young to marry anyone, least of all such a conceited person as he is.

Soldier's Girl and Shy Maid, Georgia.—I know the language of flowers but I don't know whether white silk hose signify love and black is knose indifference or whether white coldness on the part of the giver and black a warm feeling as black is warmer than white. Better find out if he hasn't given some other girl a pair of red silk hose and, if he has, I should say that he loves her most, for red is certainly warmer than black or white. It does signify, however, extremely bad taste on his part to make such a present and equally poor taste for you to accept it. Books, candy and flowers are permissible as gifts but not such intimate articles of clothing as silk hosiery, though I must confess I like 'em. (2) Uless it is understood that the dinner or supper is to be "Dutch" it is usually taken for granted that when a man invites a girl into a restaurant he expects to pay for what she eats, but have a heart and don't order the most expensive things on the menu just because someone lese is paying for it —even if he can afford it—for it shows a grasping, mercenary spirit and is often bad for the digestion.

O. O., White Plains, Ky.—Since you didn't tell me

J. M., Lapel, Ind.—Two wrongs never made one right and it was wrong of you to cheapen yourself just to get even with someone else, even if that "someone" did go out with another girl after promising you he would not. I haven't the slightest doubt in the world that you are a perfectly good girl, but sometimes it takes quite a while to convince a fellow of that fact after a girl lets him "pick her up," no matter if she did it just to get even. He didn't know why you did it and judged only by your actions, so don't do it any more, will you?

C. H. Lorena, Texas.—If you are engaged, it is more, will you?

C. H., Lorena, Texas.—If you are engaged, it is perfectly proper to kies your sweetheart when he leaves for the army. (2) How can you tell when a boy loves you? You can't. (3) Certainly it is all right to go with a boy who is engaged to another girl if you are both unfair and dishonorable enough to do such a thing—all right for her if she finds it out and is wise enough to let you have him. Three questions are all I'm allowed to answer, so come again with the others.

TEENY AND WEENY, Manchester, Ohio.—Your Cousin Marion may be a stupid old thing, but when "two wonderful, beautiful young girls," try to jolly her as you were trying to do, she sees through the little joke in a minute. Thought you were smart, didn't you, but I like you for it.

BLUE EYES OF OHIO.—Don't worry about your height. You won't be too tall even if you grow three or four inches taller and it is fashionable to be tall and willowy. Read the Beauty Department for your other

HELEN AND DOROTHY, Arizona.—If your mothers do of object to your going to a show unchaperoned and then for a ride with your best friends, it is perfectly all right, 'provided you get in before 2 A. M.''—at least four hours before that time.

There, that's all I have room for this month and I hope I have helped some of you and if I've been harsh and stern, just remember it is because you need to be talked to that way and if I didn't make my advice emphatic the first time it might be too late the second time.

Sincerely,

Cousin Marion.

Poultry Farming For Women

Conducted by Cousin Marion

In writing this department always sign your true name and give your address; if not, your letter will receive no attention. Name, will not be published.

There is something in the Autumn that is native to my blood—
Touch of manner, hint of mood;
And my heart is like a rhyme,
With the yellow and the purple and the crimson keeping time.

The scarlet of the maples can shake me like a cry Of bugles going by.
And my lonely spirit thrills
To see the frosty asters like a smoke upon the hills.

—Hovey.

No, my dears, that isn't original. I only wish I were able to express my thoughts in such a charming manner, for then I could scold you all you deserve to be scolded but in such a poetical way that you wouldn't realize you were being scolded. In other words, I'd sugar-coat my scoldings just the way doctors (some doctors) do their pills. Isn't it a dear little poem and wouldn't you know that it meant October, which, as I have told you before, is my favorite month, but I'll forego its beauties long enough to answer your letters.—Ed.

Trixey, Anson, Texas.—Nature pages meant and series of the birds are most probably suffering from the broder they have anything to eat in the morning give each bird way that you wouldn't realize you were being scolded. In other words, I'd sugar-coat my scoldings just the way doctors (some doctors) do their pills. Isn't it a dear little poem and wouldn't you know that it meant October, which, as I have told you before, is my favorite month, but I'll forego its beauties long enough to answer your letters.—Ed.

G. R.—The chicks are most probably suffering from chill. Are you careful to clean and air the brooder every day? Brooders become very damp and unsanitary from the droppings and moisture which collects from the body, and heat of the birds. This is especially so in fireless brooders. On the other hand, the trouble is of weak or unhealthy breeding stock. Chickens hatched from eggs laid by hens that are overfat, or have suffered from roup or any of the kindred diseases in the past, are liable to contract sore eyes or cramp on the slightest provocation, and doctoring small chicks is almost useless work.

W. I. G.—It the skin has only become hard and thick most useless work.

W. J. G.—If the skin has only become hard and thick on the bottom of the bird's foot, a few applications of iodine will reduce it, but if it is much swollen and looks as if there was any pus under the skin, it must be opened with a fine, sharp knife, the pus squeezed out, and then cleansed by washing with warm water to which carbolic acid or some other good disinfectant has been added. When you are sure it is quite clean, bind up the foot to keep out dirt, and put the bird in a small coop with a deep layer of straw on the floor. After about a week you will find it has healed, and he can be allowed his freedom. Bumblefoot is caused by an injury of some sort—a bruise which stops the circulation of the blood, causes the skin to thicken and pus to form. A cut from broken glass or a splinter will allow dirt to get in under the skin and cause the same condition.

D. J.—I am not quite sure of the points of the

D. J.—I am not quite sure of the points of the Speckled Sussex fowl. They have only been admitted to the Poultry Standard quite recently, but I will get in touch with some of the recognized importers and breeders and publish history and description in later issues.

R. R.—Young ducks must have a dry sleeping place and plenty of shade from the noonday sun, otherwise they are apt to be affected in the way you describe. Their drinking water should be kept in dishes deep enough to permit them to entirely submerge their heads, as the two small holes at the base of the bill are very liable to become clogged up with mud or soft food, and unless the birds can rinse them out constantly, they get stuck, and frequently die for want of being able to breathe freely. Mature hens carry the germs which cause white diarrhea in hens and chicks, but they do not have the disease in any active form. Perhaps your hens were attacked by cholera in the past, or the diarrhea was caused by worms. Read answer to Mrs. C., Florida. . Florida.

C. A. A.—There is no difficulty about killing and dry picking. Professional poultrymen use what is called a French killing knife, which has a narrow blade, sharp at both sides. Open the bill, and stick the bird in the roof of the mouth, giving the knife a sharp turn to sever one of the arteries. I think an amateur can do better and more merciful work with a sharp hatchet, for one quick blow severs the head, so there is no danger of a mistake and causing the bird suffering. To dry pick, you must commence as soon as the first flow of blood commences to stop. Hold fhe bird on your knee, the head hanging down. Take a few feathers in the fingers of your right hand holding the bird with your left hand, and give a quick pull, turning the feathers back from the tail to the neck. It takes some little practice and skill not to tear the skin, and for canning it is quite satisfactory to dip the bird in hot water before commencing to remove the feathers.

Y. W. C. A. Work Praised by Com. mander at Camp Dix

Gen. H. S. Scott, who is in command of Camp Dix, N. J., pays tribute to the work of the Y. W. C. A. through its Soldiers' Clubs and Hostess House, "which keep the young men in camp under refining influences."

"I am doing everything I can to assist the women," said Gen. Scott. "The women of America have risen to their responsibilities in this war in a very remarkable manner, and I feel sure that they will properly meet any condition that may arise in the future. In case the man power of the nation should be depleted, the women will take the places of the men just as in Russia, where I have seen women firing locomotives and commanding a battalion; and the women of America are in no manner a whit behind those of any nation."

$200 Saved By This Home Lover

One housewife had selected $550 worth of Furnishings locally before learning of this new Lorkin plan. The same selection at our low Factory-to-Family prices cost her only $550. Wouldn't you call this saving of $200 worthwhile? May we send all the interesting facts?

800 Furnishings At 17c a Day -2 Years to Pay

Small as well as large Furnishings' needs are easily and quickly filled under this delightful plan. Two years time and payments as low as 17c a day. Completely furnish an entire home or parts of several rooms this convenient way.

FREE

Secret Locket and Neck Chain, Pendant and Neck Chain, imitation Wrist Watch with adjustable leather strap and buckle and these Four lovely Rings. ALL Given FREE to anyone for selling only 12 of our Jewelry Novelties at 10c each. Fresh from factory. Be in fashion, D. C. Dale Mfg. Co., Providence, R. I.

Washington, the home of the Puthfinder, is the nerve-center of civilizations, history is being made at this world capital. The Puthfinder is the partial and correct diagnosis of public affairs during these streams. Figure 1 the stream of the stream of the stream of the world and tellisthe truth and only the truth; now in its 26th year. This paper fills the bill without emptying the purse; it costs but $1 a year. If you want to keep posted on what its going on in the world, at the least expense, of time or money, this is your ing, wholesome, the Pathfinder is yours. If you would appreciate a paper which puts everything clearly, fairly, briefly—here it is. Send 15c to show that you might like such a paper, and we will send the Pathfinder on probation 13 weeks. The 16c does not reary us, but we are glad to lovest in new friends.

The Pathfinder, Box 79. Washington, D. C.

Is Your Blood Starving For Want Of Iron?

Modern Methods of Cooking and Living Have Made an Alarming Increase in Iron Deficiency in Blood of American Men and Women

WHY NUXATED IRON SO QUICKLY BUILDS UP WEAK, NERVOUS, RUN-DOWN FOLKS-Over 3,000,000 People Annually Taking It In This Country Alone To Increase Their Strength, Power, Energy and Endurance.

"Is your blood starving for want of iron? Iron is red blood food. If you were to go without eating until you became weak, thin and emaciated, you could not do a more serious harm to yourself than when you let your blood literally starve for want of iron—iron that gives it strength and power to change food into living tissue," says Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly physician of Bellevue Hospital (Outdoor Dept.) New York and the Westchester County Hospital. "Modern methods of cooking and the rapid pace at which people of this country live has made such an alarming increase in iron deficiency in the blood of American men and women that I have often marveled at the large number of people who lack iron in the blood, and who never suspect the cause of their weak, nervous, run-down state. Lack of iron in the blood not only makes a man a physical and mental weakling, nervous, irritable, easily fatigued, but it utterly robs him of that virile force, that stamina and strength of will which are so necessary to successful and a strength of will which are so necessary to successful and a strength of will which are so necessary to successful and a surface of life. cess and power in every walk of life. It may also transform a beautiful, sweet-tempered woman O. O., White Plains, Ky.—Since you didn't tell me anything about your cousin, I can't advise you whether to go away with him or not. There are cousins and recursing, you know, but if this one has a wife and home and they will give you an opportunity to attend school, which you haven't at home, it might be well to go with them, but get your parents' permission, for you are not of age and they can compel you to return. into one who is cross, nervous and irritable. I have strongly emphasized the great necessity of corpuscles without ever realizing the real and cause of their trouble. Without iron in your blood your food merely passes through the body. something like corn through an old mill with rollers so wide apart that the mill can't grind. "For want of iron you may be an old man at thirty, dull of intellect, poor in memory, nervous, irritable and all 'run down,' while at 50 or 60 with plenty of iron in your blood you may still be young in feeling, full of life, your whole being brimming over with vim and energy.

"As proof of this take the case of Former United States Senator and Vice Presidential nominee Charles A. Towne, who at past 58 is still a veritable mountain of tireless energy. Senator Towne says: 'I have found Nusated Iron of the greatest benefit as a tonic and regulative. Henceforth I shall not be without I am in a position to testify for the benefit of others to the remarkable and immediate helpfulness of this remedy, and I unhesitatingly recommend Nuxated Iron to those who feel the need of renewed energy and the regularity of bodily functions.'

"But in my opinion you can't make strong, keen, forceful men and healthy rosy-cheeked women by feeding them on metallic iron. The old forms of metallic iron must go through a digestive process to transform them into organic iron—Nuxated Iron—before they are ready to be taken up and assimilated by the human system. Notwithstanding all that has been said and written on this subject by well-known physicians, thousands of people still insist in dosing themselves with metallic iron simply, I suppose, because it costs a few cents less. I strongly advise readers in all cases to get a physician's prescription for organic iron—Nuxated Iron—or if you don't want to go to this trouble, then purchase only Nuxated Iron in its original packages and see that this particular name (Nux-ated Iron) appears on package. If you e taken preparations such as Nux have and Iron and other similar iron products and failed to get results, remember that such products are an entirely different thing from Nuxated Iron." In commenting upon the value of Nuxated Iron as a means for creating red blood, strength and endurance, Dr. Ferdinand King, a New York Physician and Medical Author

"Scarcely a day goes by but that I see women whose careworn faces, dragging steps and generally weak, tired appearance show unmistakable signs of that anemic, run-down condition usually brought on by lack of iron in the blood. no strong.

iron in the blood.

"There can be no stron, healthy, beautiful women without iron and inasmuch as refining processes and modern cooking methods remove the iron of Mother Earth from so many of our most common foods this iron deficiency should be supmost common foods this iron deficiency should be supplied by using some form of organic iron just as we use salt when our food has not enough salt. "Iron is absolutely necessary to enable your blood to change food into living tissue. Without it no matter how much or what you eat your food merely passes through you without doing you good, and as a consequence you become weak, pale and sickly-looking just like a plant trying to grow in a soil deficient in iron. Pallor means anamia. The skin of an anamic woman is pale, the flesh flabby. The memory fails, and often they become weak, nervous, irritable, de-

Who Should Take Nuxated Iron THE ELDERLY INACTIVE MAN THE TIRED NERVOUS HOUSE WIFE THE RUN-DOWN BUSINESS WOMAN spondent and melancholy. Give such a woman a short course of Nuxated Iron and she often quickly becomes an entirely different individual—strong healthy and rosy-checked. I have used Nuxated Iron widely have used Nuxated Iron widely in my own practice in most severe, aggravated conditions with unfailing results. I have induced many other physicians to give it a trial, all of whom have given me most surprising reports in regard to its great power as a health and strength builder."

MARUFACTURER'S NOTE: Nuxated Iron which is used by Drawillean and others with such surprising results, and which is prescribed and recommended above by physicians, is not a secret remedy but one which is well known to druggists everywhere. Unlike the older inorganic iron products, it is easily assimilated, dees not injure the teeth, make them black, nor upset the stomach. The manufacturers guarantee successful and sutirely satisfactory results to every purchaser or they will refund your money. It is dispensed by all good druggists.—Advertisement.

OO PANTS MADE TO MEASURE Not $1.00, not even 50 cents, not Not $1.00, notevo...

our easy conditions. No extra charge for fancy styles, belt loops, golf bot-toms, pearl buttons, all FREE. Be-fore you buy a suit or pants, before you take another order, get our free samples and new offer.

We Have a New Deal That Will Open Your Eyes

Agents of other tailoring houses please write too. We ask every man to answer this, every boy in long pants, every man, everywhere. No matter where you live or what you do, write us a letter or postal and ask for this wonderful, new, free tailoring deal. Costs nothing. Write today. Address

KNICKERBOCKER TAILORING CO Dept 96, Chicago, ILL.

STERLING FIBRE BROOMS will outwear brooms $1.25 postpaid, agents wanted, free circulars. KEYSTONE PIBRE BROOM CO., 618 Duquesne Way, Pittsburg, Penns.

FREE Scientific Gem. Rivale diamond. Clear white, brilliant, flushing, decaives exwhite, brilliant, flushing, decaives exwhite, brilliant, flushing, decaives exwhite, brilliant, daining, decaives exwhite, brilliant, flushing, flush

SPECIAL SALE PRICE with a six (8) months' subscription to THE ILLUSTRATED COMPANION ONLY 20 CENTS.

This Book contains one of this noted author's best movels. The paths of this story sweeps all before it. It' touches the heart of the paths of this story sweeps all before it. It' touches the heart of the paths of this story sweeps all before it. It' touches the heart of the power of the paths of the paths and noble character of Luella, ungentle, lowing, self-ascrificing sistematics, respectively. The service of the large statement of the la

F. B. WARNER CO., Dept. C. T. 86 Chambers St., New York

Moving

A real moving picture machine. It uses the same kind of film as the big movie theaters. Get it absolutely free, with a box of film besides. Give shows at home. Make spending money easily, Don't miss this chance. Act before it's too late.

Boys! Girls! Act Quickly!

nd your name on a post card now. I will send a 12 beautiful, full colored, exciting, action pic-es of our fighters. Distribute them on a second beautiful, full colored, exciting, action p of our fighters. Distribute them on a spec er to people you know. It's easy. Everybo them. Then I will send you free prepais as Moving Picture Machine with abox of fil miss this chance. Send the post card no

Movie Man, Dept 3047 180 N. Wabash Ave., Chicago

Under this heading all questions by COMFORT subscribers on subjects not related to the special departments elsewhere in the paper will be answered, as far as may be. COMFORT readers are advised to read carefully the advertisements in this paper, as they will often find in them what they seek through their questions addressed to this Bureau. They will thus save time, labor and postage.

labor and postage.

No attention will be given any inquiry which lacks the sender's full name and address, but we will print only initials if so requested.

MRS. C. McC., Tex.—About forty years ago phremotory had a considerable vogue and having one's "head read" was a favorite diversion. Modern science, however, refuses to admit the claims made by the followers of Gall, who was the discoverer of this so-called science. There are numereus books on the subject which can be procured at any library or bookshop. Not the least interesting of the literature upon the matter would be back numbers of the "Phrenological Magazine." Bound volumes of this are often seen in second-hand bookstores. There is a periodical called the "Phrenological Era," which is now published at Bowerston, O. If you are interested, send for a sample copy. (2) All of the large cities and many of the smaller ones contain shops which purchase second-hand clothing. In the larger towns the addresses can be procured from a classified telephone directory, or secured by making proper inquiry. Such shops, as a rule are gathered in one section of the city. In New York, for instance, there is a section devoted to this trade on Seventh avenue below Thirty-fifth street.

Mrs. Frank Stark, Richmond, Mo., is desirous of Mrs. Frank Stark, Richmond, Mo., is desirous of procuring a book entitled "Anna Strong." We cannot help her. Perhaps some COMFORT reader can.

help her. Perhaps some COMFORT reader can.

F. G., Greensburg, Ky.—We cannot tell you to what use the government will put the cantonments now established when the war is over. This will be a matter for Congress and the War Department to decide, and this column cannot register any guess upon the emblace.

subject.

A. N., Seabrook, Tex.—It takes more than the desire to write short stories to accomplish the feat of turning out marketable literature. In these days all of such work is done by trained writers who have labored long and carefully at their craft. We cannot encourage you—a girl of sixteen—in believing that you can write stories which would sell. If you wish practice in working with your pen, try making contributions of some sort to newspapers in your vicinity.

M. B., Milan, Ind.—We do not believe that there is any school for nurses where a high school education or its equivalent would not be necessary for entrance. If you have lacked this advantage, we would suggest that you take up local nursing in your vicinity. The profession of a trained nurse is an important one, and requires a high order of ability and intelligence.

Mrs. C. C. H., Barboursville, W. Va.—Submit your

Mrs. C. C. H., Barboursville, W. Va.—Submit your piece of mineral to the laboratory of your state Department of Mineralogy at Charleston.

ment of Mineralogy at Charleston.

W. C. A., Hanceville, Ala.—It is true that dogs consume a great deal of food which is worth thinking about in these days of conservation and starving nations. Not only that but very many dogs are nuisances because of sheep-killing and other destructive habits. Yet Congress would find it difficult to enact a law to kill all "useless dogs" as you suggest. For every owner of a dog would think his own at least useful enough to love. Dogs are filthy animals and spread disease germs. Unquestionably the country would be benefited by killing half the dogs.

Mrs. A. M. W., Murfreesboro, Tenn.—The prophecy of Mother Shipton you write about is as follows:

Carriages without horses shall go,
And accidents fill the world with woe.
Around the world thoughts shall fly
In the twinkling of an eye.
Through the hills men shall ride
And no horse or ass be by their side.
Under water men shall walk,
Shall ride, shall sleep, shall talk.
In the air men shall be seen
In white, in black, in green.
Iron in the water shall float
As easy as a wooden boat.
Taxes for blood and for war
Shall come to every door.
The world then to an end shall come
In Eighteen Hundred and Eighty-one.

The true name of Mother Shipton was Ursula Sonthiel and she was born in Knaresborough, England, in 1486. She acquired great reputation as a prophetess during the reign of Henry the Eighth, and has to her credit many oracular utterances which were remarkably fulfilled. She died in 1561, after having predicted the time of her death.

F. A. Rockport, W. Va.—Bookkeeping would be profitable for you to follow as a profession if you made yourself skillful enough at it to be able to secure the salary that a competent accountant can command. As in every other line, the best salaries are earned by the best men—who know their job best.

G. F., Obion, Tenn.—If you desire work as a waitress in some Y. W. C. A., write to the Employment De-partment of the Y. W. C. A. in the nearest city to your town where a branch of the organization is maintained.

Mrs. B. M. W., Conneaut, O.—You could make but very little addressing envelopes, even if you were successful in securing such work. If you are a good sewer, as you state, we believe you would do much better to attempt the making of some fancy articles at home, and selling them through a "Woman's Exchange" in some nearby city. We know of many women who have made children's caps, embroidered luncheon sets, handbags, and other articles, and derived a considerable income from selling these. If you can get an introduction to a few wealthy familles and your work pleases them, you will soon have orders for all you can make.

Mrs. P. D., Watertown, N. Y.—See above answer

Mrs. P. D., Watertown, N. Y.—See above answer to Mrs. B. M. W. to Mrs. B. M. W.

J. C. S., Pontiac, Mich.—Write to the Council of National Defense, Washington, D. C.

Sibyl's Influence

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 17.)

(continued from page 17.)

answered; "but I do not like to fail Lady Allstone, for she has often obliged me in the same way. Besides, she speaks particularly of a young person whom she hopes I will not neglect to see every day, as she is extremely delicate. She has been thought to be in a decline, but seems to be gradually recovering now, and it is necessary that she should have close attention and a very nourishing diet. She feels particularly interested in her. Her other charges will not need so much attention, she adds."

"It is exceedingly provoking when we need every moment of time to ourselves," Ada continued, petulantly; then, catching sight of Lady Prescott's raised evebrows, she added, laughing, "I believe I must be getting nervous, or I should not feel such a slight interruption as this. Of course, you cannot refuse Lady Allstone's request, auntie, and we will get along without you, while you are away, as best we can."

"I shall have to go at once, then, in order to get home for dinner. I am really very sorry, Ada, when we were intending to do considerable shopping today."

Lady Prescott offered to assist Ada in the shopping, if the countess would intrust it to her, which she was perfectly satisfied to do; and that matter being settled to Miss Therwin's satisfaction, Lady Shirley departed to seek Lady Satisfaction, Lady Sanda Allstone's protegoe.

Driving to one of the poorer sections of London, she found the street and number indicated in the note, alighted from her carriage, and ascended to the second floor, as directed.

Here she knocked on the "third door at the left," and a weak though sweet voice bade her "come in."

left," and a weak though sweet voice bade her "come in."
Lady Shirley obeyed, and found herself in the presence of a lovely young girl, who was sitting in a large, comfortable easy-chair, by a sunny window.

She was actually startled at finding any one so beautiful in such a place, and did not wonder at the interest which Lady Allstone manifested in her protegee.

She went forward and presented her card, explaining why she was there, and she was still more surprised at the composure and grace with which the girl asked her to be seated.

The card simply bore the name "Lady Hortense Shirley."

Shirley."

"Have you been ill long?" the countess asked, noting the large, mournful eyes, the transparent hands, and the delicate, almost hueless lips.
"I had a very severe illness last fall, and have never wholly recovered from it," was the sad never wholly recovered from it," was the sad reply.

"And do you think you are really getting better and stronger now?"

"Oh, yes; since the days have grown warmer, and Lady Allstone has been so kind to me, I have been improving rapidly, and I hope soon to be able to work and do something for myself instead of being a burden upon others."

Lady Shirley saw the pale lips quiver slightly as she said this, and her heart was strangely stirred with sympathy for this lovely girl, whose name she did not even know.

"You must not think of work for a long time yet," she said, with a pitiful glance at the slender hands. "What do you intend to do when you get strong?"

"All that I can do is to teach, I suppose," answered the maiden, with a suspicious trembling in her tones.

in her tones.

"Have you ever taught?"
"Oh, no."

"Have you ever taught?"
"Oh. no."
"Pardon me, but teaching is considered very laborious, and you do not look as if you were accustomed to work of any kind," said the countess, wondering how one who had apparently been so delicately reared, happened to be in such a place as that.
"No, I do not know much about work," she said, with a sigh, as if that were a fact to be deeply regretted. "Do—do you believe I should be able to get any pupils without references?" she asked, with a wistful look in her great eyes. "I fear that would be rather a difficult undertaking, dear; but do not be troubled about it yet a while—it will be some time before you are strong enough to do anything of the kind, and meanwhile, we must do everything to make you strong, and bring the natural color back to your cheeks and lips. Do you live here alone?" "Oh, no, I live with a middle-aged woman, who takes care of me."

She did not mention any name, and the countess did not like to ask the question.

She remained some time longer, talking upon various subjects, and was greatly surprised at the intelligence and refinement which Lady Allstone's protegee manifested. She left her basket of delicacies, promising to come tomorrow, and went away deeply interested, and very glad she had come.

As the door closed after her, the young girl

See Monogram Kon the Genuine
The Antikamnia Chemical Co., St. Louis

HEADACHE

27 Years the Enemy of Pain

La Grippe and Colds

Women's Aches and Ills.

Rheumatic and Sciatic Pains Ask Your Druggist For A-K Tablets

For Headaches, Neuralgias, mantle of the same wrapped about her shoulders. A large, dark bonnet of straw covered her head, and somewhat shaded her features, and she wore black stockings, low shoes, and carried a little, worn black bag upon her arm.

The woman started on beholding the counters, as evidently she had not expected to encounter any one. She then bestowed a searching and closer look upon the stranger, when, with a sharp cry of fright, she dashed past her, springing up the stairs, and my lady heard a door above suddenly closed with a loud noise.

"Strange! who could that creature be?" mused the countess, with a puzzled look.

After her return to Shirley House, it was observed that she appeared very absent-minded, and looked wearied and pale.

Ada rallied her about her "extra duties," and declared they should have her sick, with those added to all the other things which engrossed them; but the countess replied, very gravely, that she was glad she had heeded Lady Allstone's request, and said she should go every day until that lady's return. And so the subject, for the present, was dropped.

Three weeks went rapidly by, and the preparations for the wedding were nearly completed.

The week preceding the wedding, Lady Prescott, destring something from home for the occasion, dispatched a telegram, bidding one of the (CONTINUED ON PAGE 21.)

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 21.)

went away deeply interested, and very glad she had come.

As the door closed after her, the young girl sowed her head upon her hands, with a low cry, and fell to sobbing bitterly.

A strange incident occurred below as Lady Shirley was about leaving the place.

She had reached the bottom stair, and was about leaving the house, when she was suddenly confronted by a little, wrinkled, sallow-faced woman, clad in a brown-stuff gown, with a streaked, faded gray hair, and make it soft and glossy. It will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy, and does not rub off.—Adv.

Down

Fumed Oak Suite

Send only $1.00, and we will ship you this handsome 6-piece Fumed Solid Oak Library Set. Only $1.00 down, then $2.50 per month, or only $24.90 in all. A positively staggering value, and one of the biggest bargains we have ever offered. Look at this massive set, clip the coupon below and have it shipped on approval. Then see for yourself what a beautiful set it is. If you do not like it, return it in 30 days and we will return your money. Send coupon with $1.00. Pieces not sold separately.

A Room Full of Furniture!

6 Pieces Massive Arm Rocker with thickly padded 19x19 in. Seat. Beautifully designed, 36 in. high Sewing Bocker, to match arm rocker. Luxuriously padded, seat 17x17 in., 36 in. high. Stately Arm Chair, very solid. Broad and comfortable arms. Thickly padded, 19x19 in. seat. 36 in. high. Reception Chair, extra solid. Thickly padded, 17x17 in. seat. 35 in. high. Elegant Library Table, splendid design. Legs are cut from 2-in. stock. Top 24x34 in. Roomy magazine shelf. Jardiniere Stand, matches other pieces. 17 1-2 in. high. Top 12x12 in. Chairs upholstered in superb Brown Imitation Spanish Leather. All 6 pieces built of solid oak, finished in richest dull, waxed brown fumed oak. Shipped K. D. saving on freight. Easily set up. Ne experience necessary. Weight about 175 pounds. No C. O. D.—no discount for eash. Order by No. B5186A. Price 824.90.

Easy Payments If you want anything in Men's, Women's and Children's wearing apparel, stoves, porch and lawn furniture, or any article of home-furnishing, do not fail to get our Big Free Catalog showing thousands of staggering home furnishing bargains on very monthly payments. One price to all. No discount for cash—no extra price for credit. Positively no discount from these advertised prices and no C. O. D.

Send the Coupon!

along with $1.00 to us today. No C. O. D. Get this remarkable offer while it lasts. Have this suite shipped-take about a year to pay. And we will send you at same time our big catalog and special bargain bulletin. Prices never approached, before. Don't wait. Send the coupon today—do it right now.

Straus & Schram Dept. 3047, West 35th St. Chicago, III.

[] 6-Piece Library Set, No. B5186A. $24.90.

Name
Address
Post Office	State
If you ONLY want catal
[] Furniture and Stove

FRECKLES Positively Removed

by Dr. Berry's Freckle Ointment Your Druggist or by Mail 65c-Send for Free Booklet Dr. C. H. Berry Co., 2975 Michigan Ave. Chicago

GENUINE MOVING FREE PICTURE MACHINE FREE common American Moving Picture II complete with film, given free for elling only 30 pieces of our jewelry 1 loc. each. You can earn money lying shows. Write today.

COLUMBIA NOVELTY CO.

Dept. 951, East Boston, Mass

FREE WATCH & RING This handsome stem wind a stem set Watch, fully Guaranteed, also a fine Ring for selling only 25 and the Ring for selling only 25 East Boston, Mass.

Sibyl's Influence

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 20.)

continued from page 20.)

nousemaids pack what she wished, and bring it to her, as she should need her assistance during the few remaining days of her stay in London. This girl, Melissy, was exceedingly capable and smart, very ingenious, too, and could turn her hand to almost anything.

When Miss Therwin became aware of this arrangement, she objected to it, and seemed greatly troubled; but the message had been sent, and nothing more was said or thought about it at that time.

The day that Melissy arrived, and only three days before the wedding was to be, the countess gave a dinner party to a few intimate friends and relatives, who were deeply interested in Ada's future prospects. future prospects

TO BE CONTINUED.

The Complete Story In Book Form

If you do not care to wait for the monthly installments of this new serial as they appear in Comport we will be glad to make you a present of the complete story in book form. You will enjoy this great story. "Sibyl's Influence," with an elaboration of interesting detail and thrilling incidents, tells the hardships and trials of two true lovers harassed by a fiendish plot. This splendid romance, written in Mrs. Georgia Sheldon's best style, is strong throughout, tragic in sarts and dramatic in its conclusion. Send us only one one-year subscription (not your own) to Comport at 35 cents, and we will send you a copy of id.

tile book free and postpaid.
Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Through the columns of this department subscribers may have free advice from our eminent legal adviser on all questions of law except divorce matters.

Address Home Lawyer, COMFORT, Augusta, Maine. Sign your true name and give your address. Name will not be published.

E. C., Alabama.—Under the laws of your state, we are of the opinion that upon the death of a married man, leaving no will, and leaving no child or descendant, his widow would receive dower of a one half interest for life in his real estate, and all of his personal property, absolutely, the balance of the real estate going to his parents, brothers or sisters or their descendants, depending upon who is left; if he leaves no heirs-at-law or next of kin the whole property would go to the widow.

Mes. B. M. L. Oklabama—Under the laws of property would go to the widow.

Mrs. B. M. L., Oklahoma.—Under the laws of your state, we are of the opinion that upon the death of a married man, leaving no will, and leaving a widow and more than one child, his widow would receive one third of his estate, the balance going in eq. all shares to the children, the descendants of any deceased child taking their parents' share. (2) We think real estate belonging to minors can be legally sold through the proper court proceedings brought for that purpose.

Mrs. G. W. Pennsylvania—Under the laws of Mrs. G. W., Pennsylvania.—Under the laws of your state we are of the opinion that upon the death of a married woman, leaving no will, and leaving only personal property, the husband would take an equal share with the children, if no issue the husband would take it all.

MRS. E. R., Arkansas.—Under the laws of your state, we are of the opinion that a daughter-in-law would have no interest in the estate of her mother-in-law, unless some provision was made for her by will.

will.

K. F., Washington.—Under the laws of your state, we are of the opinion that upon the death of a married man, leaving no will, and leaving a surriving widow, but no child or descendant, the widow would receive all of the community property, subject to the community debts, and one half of his separate property after payment of debts, the balance of the separate property going to decedent's father and mother, if both survive. If there be no father nor mother, then one half goes in equal shares to the brothers or sisters, and to the children of any deceased brothers or sisters by right of representation; the kindred of the half blood inheriting equally with those of the whole blood in the same degree; we do not think a stepmonther would have any interest in his estate, unless some provision was made for her by will.

Mrs. S. I., Pennsylvania.—Under the laws of your

Mrs. S. I., Pennsylvania.—Under the laws of your state, we are of the opinion that a husband can be compelled to provide separate support for his wife in case his ill treatment of her justifies her in leaving him, and provided she has no separate means, and is unable to provide for herself; we think that a court action or proceeding may be necessary to establish these facts.

F. F., Missouri.—We do not think there is any iw prohibiting the use of a pen name by an author

Mas. E. M., Ohio.—We think that if your husband desires you to collect checks made payable to him. he should execute a power of attorney to you for that purpose; we do not think your husband is liable for the debts contracted by you before marriage; we think that if you desire to terminate your subscription for a newspaper, you should notify the publisher and refuse to take same from the post office.

subscription for a newspaper, you should notify the publisher and refuse to take same from the post office.

M. M., Missouri.—We do not think you should enclose any written matter in mail sent to the soldiers at newspaper's rate of postage.

A. M., Montana.—We think that marriages between first cousins are prohibited in Alaska, Arizona, Arkansas, Illinois, Kansas, Missouri, Nevada, New Hampshire, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, Oregon, Pennsylvania, South Dakota, Washington, Wyoming and possibly one or two other states.

Mas. J. B., Mississippi.—The proper place to probate or prove a will is in the probate court of the county in the state of which the decedent was a resident at the time of his death; without any of this information you are liable to have a long and expensive search for the will you wish to find.

Mrs. G. C., Michigan.—Under the laws of Kentucky, we are of the opinion that a warranty deed, in fee simple without any reservation, signed and executed by all the parties in interest of the land you mention, would convey all mineral rights in such land.

Comfort Sisters' Corner

(CONTINUED PROM PAGE 7.)

nearest his belief, as I try to teach my children to respect all churches. My three children have been carrying on this program for nearly a year and no harm has come of it. The girls have lost their love of the uniform and try to judge the man who wears it. My boy has gained self-confidence and can entertain anyone now while before he was rather bashful. But best, the soldlers got a chance to judge between home life and clean entertainments and the dance halls and so far as I know the boys who visited us never took up with the street set and most of them accepted our invitation to come again and we introduced them to our friends, and a great many of the with a lot of the good people of this city. Several of the girls in these families have become engaged to soldlers.

Your sister, MRS. JOHN McDONALD.

Best Ways of Doing Things Around The Home

Iodine stains can be removed with liquid ammonia Rinse in cold water. Salt in the oven under baking tins will prevent the cake from scorching on the bottom.

In making cake that requires only the whites of eggs beat the cream of tartar with them and it won't fall. Mix a small quantity of finely pulverized tobacco with the earth when you pot your plants and you will not be troubled with earth worms.

Equal parts of turpentine and ammonia will remove paint from clothing. Saturate the garment several times with this mixture and wash in warm, soapy water.

To pick up small pieces of broken glass, thoroughly dampen a woolen cloth and lay it on the floor where the fragments are and pat it and the tiny pieces will stick to the clotti.

A reader gave directions for wall paper portieres. I wish to add a suggestion to her directions which I find makes them appear quite Oriental and more durable. After rolling the beads, put little daubs of gold paint on them and then shellac them with white shellac for light beads or dark shellac for brown glossy beads.

A READER.

Worms.—Dissolve a small piece of assafetida in alcohol and give a few drops in water twice a day or in the evening. It will expel the worms. I. B. L., Arkansaw, Wis.

NAIL WOUND.—When a rusty nail is run into the foot or it is cut with a rusty instrument, mix flour and sweet milk together until like biscuit dough and bind on wound.

Mas. S. B. F., Pa. GOITRE CURE. (Requested.)—Iodine, colorless three drams; alcohol, one and one half drams. Apply

Now sisters, write and tell us how you entertain the with tips of fingers each night at bedtime until the en in khaki. God bless them all and all who help swelling disappears. Avoid heavy lifting.

Cure for asthma.

Cure for granulated eyelids and chilblains.

Recipe for old-fashioned raised Indian corn bread. Will someone send me the songs, "All Night Long."
I've Been Waiting a Long Time, My Darling."
ROSA MIKESKA, Prague, R. R. 1, Okla.

Mrs. Isa Martin, Wolf Bayou, Ark., would like the January, 1916, issue of the Illustrated Companion. Will return paper or send others in place of it.

The numbers of COMFORT containing the poem, "How Paw Raised the Mortgage on the Farm," and "Whea She Had Her Kluona Cut Out." Also another poem entitled "Anastatia," the first few words of which are: "When I was in Australia, a doin' Central Asia, We caught a lovely ostrich fowl and named her Anastatia."

ELSIE VALE, Washington, 2408 North Capital St., D C.

CARDS, Dice, Magic Goods, Novelties, Catalog Free. D. M. SMYTHE Co., Newark, Mo.

Large List, Dialogs, Entertainments, Entertainments, Recitations, Drills, PLAYS Catalogue Free Entertainments, Becitations, Drills, PLAYS Catalogue Free Entertainments, Drills, PLAYS Catalogue Free Entertainments, Drills, Dialogue, III.

SONGS Over There Tapperury Was Brider Was Brider Was Balder Good Bys blogs America Frost Dear Uncleasure Balder Good Bys blogs America Frost Dear Uncleasure Balder Good Bys blogs Brown Dear Uncleasure Balder Good Bys blogs Brown Dear Uncleasure Balder Good Bys blogs Brown Dear Uncleasure Balder Good Bys Brown Dear Uncleasure Balder Good Brown Dear Br

Indiana
Heilo Haweii
For Yeu a Rose
Stop, Stop, Stop
This Is the Life
Old Maid's Bail
I Love the Ladies
For He and My Gal
Hawaiian Twilight
The the Guy
My Hula Leve
School Days

See The Wonders Of War Through The Pan-Chro Scope!

F you have ever been to the "movies" and watched the magnifeent spectacle of a fleet of Uncle Sam's huge battleships under full speed—or a thrilling infantry charge "over the top"—or gazed upon the melancholy ruins of a Belgian village—then you have some idea of what you see when you look at the same scene through the Pan-Chro Scope, only of course the objects are stationary—not moving.

The Pan-Chro Scope is a new invention—something like the stereoscope, but larger and more powerful, being fitted with twin stereo-lens of wonderful magnifying power. The war views are taken with a specially constructed double lens camera. On the back of each view is printed a complete and accurate description of the scene represented. You place the view in the Scope, adjust the focus to fit your eyes, and immediately you find yourself face to face with an astonishing lifelike scene that resembles a section of a moving-picture film. One moment you are on the you find yourself face to face with an astonishing lifelike scene that resembles a section of a moving-picture film. One moment you are on the deck of an American warship;—the next moment you are "somewhere in France" looking into a trench where an anti-aircraft gun is working;—fact you find yourself among the barbed wire entanglements in "No Man's Land;"—again you are watching fierce house-to-house fighting in a captured town, Belgian field artiliery in action on the firing line, and many other scenes of actual warfare just as interesting and exciting.

The different views take you direct to Belgium, to France, or wherever the place may be, and show you the scenes just as plainly as though you were there yourself.

48 Views Free With The Scope!

New views for the Pan-Chro Scope are con-stantly coming out and we have made arrangestantly coming out and we have made arrangements to send you a set of forty-eight views free with the Scope. Think of it! Forty-eight genuine war views—all different. Among them you will find such scenes as:

In a British Camp in France.

Deep Trenches Bitterly Contested in Battle of Ypres.

French Military Contested Trenches Military Contested Trenches Bitterly Bitterly Contested Trenches Bitterly Bitterly pres. French Military Camp Near Rheims. Barbed Wire Entanglements Protecting German

Trenches.

Allied Soldiers Firing From Trenches and Periscope in Use.

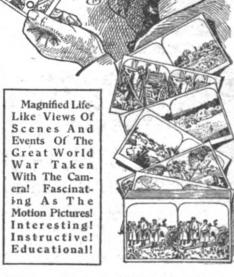

Anti-Aircraft Gun Being Worked in a Trench.
Fighting the Germans House to House.

Belgian City Leveled to the Ground by German

Belgian City Leveled to the Ground by German Bombardment.

Bengian Field Artillery on the Firing Line, and many other scenes just as interesting and exciting—forty-eight of them in all.

The Pan-Chro Scope should be in every COM-FORT home. It will prove a constant source of pleasure and instruction to every member of the family. Boys and girls attending school should have one. One look through the Scope will teach them more than hours spent in hearing or read-ing descriptions. them more than hours spent in hearing or reading descriptions.

Given For A Club Of Four

Send for a Pan-Chro Scope today! Entertain and instruct yourself and family with these realistic war views right from the camera—views that show you war as it really is. We will send you one with a set of forty-eight views if you will accept the following

CLUB OFFER. For four one-year subscriptions to COMFORT at 35 cents each, we will send you a Pan-Chro Scope with 48 War Views free by parcel post prepaid. Premium No. 7704.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

The jumbled letters in the crose

FARM LIFE, Department 153, SPENCER, IND.

Two Wheel Chairs in September 486 is COMFORT'S Total to Date

Only two wheel chairs in September, but the weather has been hot, and with cooler weather we shall do better in October-it ought to be much

The two September chairs go to Johnnie D. Whitenburg, Aspel, Ata., 133, and Harold Lester Brown, Gate, Okla., 132. The figures after their names indicate the number of subscriptions sent by them or by their friends for them.

Johnnie Whitenburg, age 16, has been a helpless cripple from birth and is unable to use hands or feet. His wheel chair will be a great help to his mother in caring for him.

Harold Brown, age 12, badly crippled by spinal trouble, is unable to walk and has but little use of His widowed mother, besides supporting his arms. herself and little daughter, has to take care of him.

In our list of applicants trying for a COMFORT wheel chair are many others whose sad condition is equally pitiful. Help them to get their chairs at an early date.

Below are some interesting letters of thanks from shut-ins who have recently received COMFORT wheel chairs.

Sincerely yours,

W. II. GANNETT, Publisher of COMFORT.

P. S. For the information of our many new subscribers let me explain that for each and every, 200 one-year subscriptions to UDMFORT, at 35 cents each, agal in either singly or in clubs by persons who direct that they are to be credited to COMPORT'S WHEEL-CHAIR CLUB instead of claiming the premiums to which they would be entitled, I give a FIRST-CLASS INVALID WHEEL CHAIR to some needy crippled Shut-in and pay the treight, too, It is a large and expensive premium for me to give for that number of subscribers, but I am always glad to do my part a little laster each month than you do yours. Any shut-in who has friends to help him get subscriptions can obtain a wheel chair free. Write me for information.

Wheel Chair Much Comfort to Him

CEDAR HILL, TEXAS.

The wheel chair shipped me for my husband has been ceived in good condition and he is well pleased with. It will be so much comfort to him. Many thanks you and my friends for helping me to obtain it for m. I will try to help others, in need of a wheel uair, to obtain one. to obtain one.
Sincerely your friend,
Mis. T. J. RAGLAND.

Well Pleased with Her COMFORT Wheel Chair

DEAR MR. GANNETT:

I received my wheel chair yesterday and am well pleased with it. Many thanks to you and also to the friends who helped me to get it.

Respectfully,

MRS. ADELLA EVANS.

Finds Wheel Chair Comfortable and Easy

ORONO, MAINE.

DEAR MR. GANNETT: I am very much pleased to let you know that I received my wheel chair, and I thank you. I find it very comfortable and easy to sit in and to be moved about in.

Very gratefully yours,

MRS. T. J. LIBBY.

Proud of Her Wheel Chair

BORDEN SPRINGS, ALA.

DEAR MR. GANNETT: DEAR MR. GANNETT:

I am pleased to tell you that Jessie Lee Bright received her wheel chair in good condition. She surely is proud of it. She can roll it herself. I thank you and all my friends who helped me get it for her. I will have her picture taken and will send you one for COMFORT.

Truly yours.

MES. ELLA BRIGHT.

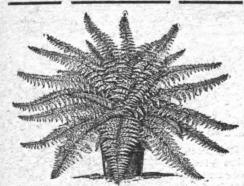

COMFORT'S Roll of Honor

The Roll of Honor comprises the names of those who have sent five or more subscriptions to credit of the Wheel-Chair Club during the month previous. Following each name is the number of subscriptions sent.

lowing each name is the number of subscriptions sent.

Mrs. S. A. Spillyard, La., for Octavic Sanders, 110;
Horace Mann, Ga., for own wheel chair, 70; Mrs. J. H.
Price, Okla., for Harold Brown, 34; Mrs. Mary Whitenburg, Ala., for Johnnie Whitenburg, 29; Miss Frances Morris, Va., for Maude Sparks, 28; Mrs. M. E. Carson, Ark., for F. F. Carson, 23; Mrs. Z. T. Isaacs, Va., for Isaac Price, 21; D. W. Brunson, Ill., for
R. M. Sanders, 21; Eleanor Nichols, Vt., for Clara Josephine Nichols, 16; Mrs. Katherine Corven, Vt., for Clara Josephine Nichols, 15; Mrs. Mattle McGregor, Miss., for Elvy L. I. Tutor, 12; Miss Lue Brooks, Ky., for David Berry, 12; Mrs. J. S. Pool, N. C., for Stroud Pool, 11; Mrs. Hattie E. Jones, Vt., for Clara Josephine Nichols, 10; Dudley C. Nichols, Vt., for Clara Josephine Nichols, 5; Mrs. G. R. Britt, Ga., for F. F. Carson, 5.

Four Beautiful Ferns

PREMIUM NO. 6112

Given For Two Subscriptions

OF all indoor foliage plants, none give more lasting pleasure and satisfaction than these popular house ferns. They need but little care and live indefinitely, growing larger and more beautiful year by year. The collection offered you here comprise four of the largest, handsomest varieties ever grown for house culture. They are the Aaparagus Plumosus or "Lace" fern, the Roosevelt, the Bostom or "Fountain" fern and the Whitmani or "Ostrich plume" fern. They will thrive in any dwelling room near a window and require almost no attention except a little sprinkling of water now and then. These ferns are guaranteed to be absolutely free from all injurious insects or diseases which destroy foliage plants of this type, and they will be packed carefully and mailed to you by Parcel Post so that you will be sure to receive them in just as good condition as though they were fresh from the greenhouse. We are able to illustrate only one variety, "The Roosevelt," but remember you get all all four ferns free on this offer.

offer. Club Offer. For two one-year subscriptions to Club Offer. For two one-year subscriptions to send you by Parcel Post prepaid the above described collection of four beautiful ferns, each of them a strong, healthy, well-rooted plant ready to pot and guaranteed to grow and develop into a fine specimen beauty. Premium No. 6112.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

The remedies and advice here given are intended only for simple cases; serious cases should be taken to your local doctor.

Address The Family-Doctor, COMFORT, Augusta, Maine. Sign your true name and give your address. Name will not be published.

MRS. J. C., So. Boston, Va.—Cataracts can be removed by operation after they are sufficiently advanced for operation, or in general terms, after one is unable to count one's fingers at a distance of one foot from the eyes. A preliminary operation known as iridectomy can be done at any time, and this will hasten the final operation. Operation is not painful. Hard pulse indicates hardening of the arteries and high blood pressure. You should have your blood pressure taken before you are operated on and, if found high, this should be lowered by appropriate medication before your cataracts are operated on. For your indigestion, take a compound cathartic pill two or three times a week. Also take American oil with your meafs to counteract the accumulation of gas in the intestines. Of the oil, take two teaspoonfuls with each meal.

Mas. M. A. W., Dodge Citv. Kansas.—Paralvais

MRS. M. A. W., Dodge City, Kansas.—Paralysis is due to hemorrhage in the brain due to weakened blood vessels and a high blood pressure. It is incurable in the main. The loss of eyesight is also due to the same cause. You should have your husband take cathartics daily, eat sparingly of simple foods, avoiding heavy meats, and have him also drink plenty of good spring water.

Mr. C. C. T. Denmark, Ark.—You probably have an enlarged prestate gland. You should consult a good genito-urinary doctor and have a local examination made of the affected parts. In the meantime drink plenty of some good alkaline water, such as Vichy water.

MR. CHAS. T., Dearaborn, Mich.—The only cure for rupture is an operation. We do not recall any prescription for the cure of rupture appearing in COMFORT at any time.

Mrs. J. D., Santa Anna, Cal.—There may be some local trouble that causes these night terrors in your sister. Look after her bowels; have her eat little and very simple food at night; keep her from meat, sweets, etc., and have her exercise in the open air daily until she is very tired. A cold douche to the spine before retiring, followed up with a stiff rub would be beneficial.

Mr. B. B., Jetmore, Kansas.—You can get Dobell's solution at any drug store. It is an official remedy and every druggist has it on hand.

Mrs. X. Y. Z., Fredericksburg, Va.—You are entirely used up from repeated pregnancies. You should be examined and ascertain whether or not you have been torn externally and internally during labor. All your symptoms seem to point to such a condition.

MR. G. M. G., Monticello, N. Y.—Only a doctor has the liquid snow mentioned in COMFORT, and only a doctor should use it. We do not know of any liniment such as you describe.

Miss M. W., Ashville, N. C.—The condition described is called purpura, and is due to thin blood. The only remedy is iron in some form. Ask your doctor for an iron tonic. Basham's mixture taken in tablespoonful doses in water might help you.

Mr. L. J. G., Bessemer, Ala.—Consult a good dentist about your teeth and gums. You probably have so-called Riggs' disease, which needs immediate treatment. Your rheumatism probably comes from the absorption of pus from your gums. Have them treated MRS. G. S., McArthur, Ohio.—Your child has, no oubt, scurvy. Give him the juice of one orange per ay with his food.

MRS. M. C. S., Stillwater, Okla.—Comfort has several times given a remedy for incontinence of urine. It was Petuitrin extract. This must be prescribed by the doctor and its action watched by the same doctor. The remedy is held to be almost a specific in this condition. We don't think the water the child drinks has anything to do with the bed-wetting.

Mas. A. C. C., Bowersville, Ga.—You should have your throat examined for so-called adenoid growths. If present, have your throat operated on. In the meantime you can use Dobell's solution as a gargle and spray. The worms mentioned are known as pinworms. An enema of salt and water taken just before retiring will remove them. Use about one half teaspoonful to the quart of water.

MRS. J. H. C., McDonough, Ga.—Have the of-fending tooth removed at once. Many cases of pro-nounced heart trouble have come from pus infection due to an abscessed tooth. This may account for all of your general symptoms as well as the local heart trouble.

heart trouble.

"Workled," Whistle, Ala.—The discharge at or in the navel is possibly due to a short sinus. It should be probed by a competent surgeon and properly treated, either surgically or by some remedy that will cause the sinus to close up from the bottom. You should not do any strenuous exercises at all until you have ascertained the exact condition of the navel, for in the end you may develop a hernia in that region.

We said to sail the attention of subscribers to the

We wish to call the attention of subscribers to the fact that letters addressed to this department unaccompanied with the full name and address of writer, will not be answered. Three letters this month have thus been deposited in the waste-basket.

Chinatown Behind the Trenches

By Carl Schurz Lowden

CHINESE lecturer recently remarked:

CHINESE lecturer recently remarked:
"China could send several million men to France to work; and China wouldn't miss them if they never came back." Already two hundred fifty thousand coolies have formed a city of their own back of the lines, helping the Allies win the war.

What can the Chinese do? In the first place they are the most intensive farmers in the world; they can work in munition factories and they can dig. Thus every peaceful Chinese in France liberates one fighting man to go to the front. This is one way that China jets about five cents a day working in the rice fields. On this he has to support a family. One day he is offered many cents a day for a period of three years, working in France, while his family is paid at home for letting him go. Chow has his doubts at first but finally is transported free of charge over to France, where he is fed, insured, given all necessary medical care at the government's expense. He in turn is to work eight hours a day at any work assigned him.

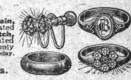

Chow Ching is taken to Chinatown, where his finger-tips are impressed and compared with those obtained when he enlisted in Canton. His finger prints are indexed and Chow is thus identified. The Chinaman then gets a work-card, on which the boss marks the hours he works or shirks. At the end of each month he is paid; at the end of his contract he will be transported back to the rice plantation from which he came, with no cost to himself. He is fed well while he works in France and should he die his family would receive his insurance.

Chinatown is near a sleepy little French village, in whose streets there is no trace of the coolie; but once inside the bounds of the compound the visitor imagines he is in the Orient. Acres upon acres are covered with white tents in which live the Chinese workingmen. There are Chinese policemen and Chinese guards; notices in Chinese are placarded everywhere; and coolies dressed in their home-togs pass to and fro with bamboo poles and bamboo baskets the same as if they were in Mongolian territory. There are Chinese stores and Chinese paraphernalia wherever the eye glances. Few white men are seen about this transported Chinatown back of the lines.

ALL THESE FREE

COLUMBIA NOVELTY CO. 173 EAST BOSTON, MASS.

of the lines.

This camp though has organization that only the English can give. The Chinamen work, to be sure, under bosses of their own race, but these bosses are in turn responsible to English officers. Although there are thousands of humans in the camp, here all records are kept with machine-like accuracy. A wonderful organizing system it is. No great industrial concern could handle such a problem with more sympathy, tact, fairness and efficiency.

An officer in charge of Chinese labor in the British army zone said of the coolies:

"They are well behaved and have not given the slightest trouble. They seem to stand the climate first rate, but we shall take special care of them during their first European winter."

When Misfortune Becomes Good Fortune

Sometimes misfortune turns out to be good fortune. Generally considered, deafness is not a thing one would wish upon himself, and yet there are times when it becomes a veritable blessing to be deaf. Edison accredits his great power of concentration to the very simple fact that he cannot hear well and can so easily shut out all distracting noises. A well-known composer was once heard to say that he considered Helen Keller most fortunate because she never had to hear Wagner played on a hurdy-gurdy.

In this class of people to whom deafness can

Wagner played on a hurdy-gurdy.

In this class of people to whom deafness can prove a relief and a blessing, is Queen Alexandra. She has a most wonderful energy and interest in things, and she never appears bored, no matter what the entertainment or what the company. She is very deaf. She only has to look; seeing never wearies one. She doesn't have to listen—it's listening to things which one wishes he didn't have to hear and from which he cannot politely get away from, which bores.

Lucky for Queen Alexandra at this war time that she is deaf, because no entertainment given, of any import at all, for the benefit of the soldiers and war sufferers, can be a success without her. She attends them all—but she has little to say and practically nothing to hear.

Our Special Offer

W E shall send you a package of these beautiful, patriotic Post Cards—24 cards in allif you will send us one one-year subscription (not your own), to COMFORT at 35 cents. Remember, it must not be your own subscription, but the subscription of some friend or neighbor. You will receive the cards by mail postpaid. If you want more than one package, you can have them by sending one one-year subscription (not your own), at 35 cents for each package wanted. Better send for at least two packages right away. You will need them. Premium No. 8271.

Agents: $50 a Week Introducing new 2 in 1 Reversible Raincoat. Two coats in one. One side a handsome black raincoat, re-verse side fine dress coat, rich tan. Water-proof. Positively guaranteed.

Make $2500 a Year

Wilake $2500 a fear

Sell to business men, clerks, farmers, teamsters, truck drivers, miners—every man in your community is a prospect. Kahn made $16 first day.
Robins sold 3 first day. Be first to introduce this new, easy selling, big money maker. Write for territory and demonstrating sample.

Themas Raincoat Co.,1130 Jass St., Dayton, O.

PHONOGRAPH and one Pepular RECORD

Handsome Mahogany finish, wonderful hand driven motor, plays all style records. Given for selling our beautiful Art & Beligious pictures at 10e each. Order 25 pictures today. Easy to sell, Wetrust you, When sold send us the money and select your prize according to our big premium list.

GAIR MFG.CO. Deut.701 CHICAGO

CASH © OLD FALSE TEETH Don't matter if broken. We pay up to $35.00 per set, also actual value for diamonds, old gold, silver and platinum. Send by parcel post, and receive cash by raturn mail. Will return goods if price is unsatisfactory, Mazer's Tooth Specialty, Dept. 30, 2007 S. 5th St. Phila. Pa.

Stirring, Patriotic Post Gard Messages To A Big Package Mailed You Free!

There are thousands of COMFORT homes from which son, brother or husband has answered his country's call. To each of these homes we want to send a package of these Post Cards. If you have no near relatives in the service then you have no near relatives in the service then you have no have gone.

Beautiful—inspiring—patriotic—they are just the thing to mail to soldlers anywhere. There are 24 cards in the package, every one different, but all carrying an appropriate message or tender words of greeting and remembrance to some soldier boy who is now fighting for you. You will be delighted with these cards—and so will the boy who receives them. The striking designs, showing President Wilson, the American Flags, Flags of the Allied Nations, Shields and other patriotic emblems, are all highly embossed in the most beautiful colors, while the verses of greeting, good wishes, etc., are cleverly worked into the designs in a most artistic manner.

The cards themselves are of regulation post card size—3½x 5½ inches—and there are the usual spaces for the address and any personal message you may care to write yourself.

We want to give a package of these cards to every COMFORT reader who has a friend or loved one fighting for Uncle Sam. You need them—they are the finest, most appropriate message to soldiers ever thought of. Nothing like them was ever seen before. They will be treasured for years as souvenirs of the great war. If you have no son, brother, husband or sweetheart "over there," some of your friends or neighbors have. Write to them! Send them letters, and one of these Patriotic Post Cards every now and then. Remember, they are fighting for you—all of us. Cheer them on to victory and everlasting peace for the whole world.

You can have a package, or more than one package, of these patriotic Post Cards every now and then. Remember, they are fighting for post cards free and postpaid if you will accept our special offer printed at the left. Read it and send in your order today.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

The Emporium of Bargains and Opportunities

Pithy Little Advertisements that are Interesting, Instructive and Profitable to Read, for they put you wise to the newest and best in the market and keep you in touch with the world's progress.

AGENTS WANTED

Agents $40 a week. New Kerosene Burner. Makes any stove a gas stove. Burns just like gas. Clean, odorless, absolutely safe. Women delighted with it. Low price. Big profits. Easy sales. Write for agency. Thomas Burner Co., 4319 North St., Dayton, Ohio.

Sell Insyde Tyres, inner armour for auto tires double mileage, prevents punctures and blow-outs, big profits. Details Free. Am-erican Accessories Co., Dept. 1118, Cincinnati.

Agents—Steady Income Large manufac-turer of Handkerchiefs and Dress Goods, etc., wishes representative in each locality. Factory to consumer. Big profits, honest goods. Whole or spare time. Credit given. Send for details. Freeport Mfg. Co., 60 Main St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

Young Man, please wear this suit and show it to your friends. Write for book of free samples, latest styles and wonderful offer. Banner Tailoring Co., Dept. 984 Chicago, Ill.

Agents $40 a week selling guaranteed hosiery for men, women and children. Must wear 12 months or replaced free. Agents having wonderful success. Thomas Mfg. Co., 2219 North Str., Dayton, Ohio.

We Start You without a Dollar. Soaps, Extracts, Perfumes—ToiletGoods, Experience unnecessary. CarnationCo., 31 So. Main, St. Louis.

$10 to $15 per day handling new house-hold articles. Big war time sellers. All on spare time. Outfit free. Territory going fast. Write quick. Duo Co., Dept. W. 40, Attica, N.Y.

Agents Profits—Our plan beats anything ever before offered. Goods practically sell themselves. "Horoco," 131 Locust, St. Louis, Mo.

Large Man'f'r wants agents to sell shirts, underwear, hosiery, dresses, waists, skirts, direct to homes. Write for free samples. Madison Mills, 503 Broadway, N. Y. City.

Could you sell coal at 29% off! We'll show you how to cut coal bills and secure the exclusive right for your County. A $1.00 trialwill convince you—your money back if you're not satisfied. Fair isn't it? The City of Louisville, Ky., saves 29.12% on coal costing $5.50. Figure the saving in your County. "Kqaline," P. O. Box T, Bradley Beach, N. J.

Agents 2 in 1 reversible raincoat. Two coats in one. One side a handsome black raincoat, reverse side fine dress coat. Something new. Not sold in stores. Steam vulcanized. Guaranteed water-proof. Big seller. All styles and sizes for men, women and children. Write for agency. Guaranteed Raincoat Co., 1819 North St., Dayton, Ohio.

Agents—Pair Silk Hose Free, State size & color. Beautiful line direct from mill. Good profits. Agents wanted. Write today. Triple-wear Mills, Dept. G, 1554 Chestnut St., Phila., Pa.

Agents! Quick Sales! Big Profits! Out-fit Free! Cash or credit. Sales in every home for our beautiful Dress Goods, Hosiery, Under-wear, etc. National Importing & Mfg. Co., Dept. H 2, 425 Broadway, New York.

Agents—The greatest opportunity ever of-fered—sell War Time Necessities—Big De-mand—a sale in every home—Essential. Write today for free offer. American Products Co. 7115 Third St., Cincinnati, O.

Photó Pillow Tops, Portraits, Frames, Sheet Pictures, Medallions, Patriotic Pictures, Pennants. Rejects credited. Prompt ship-ments; samples & cat. free to agents. 30 days credit. Jas. C. Bailey Co., Desk X, Chicago, Ill.

Agents.—If you have a position or not you can sell our fraternits buttons, jewelry, diamonds and watches, besides your other work; new offer; no experience necessary; goods sell themselves; everybody buys; write for particulars, free. Charles A. Keene, Dept. 3, 180 Broadway, New York.

Reliable people wanted—place our goods in stores and appoint agents. Eggine takes place of eggs at 9c doz.—Wonder pudding powder makes 6 to 7 large dishes of the most delicious dessert for 10c. Our goods are different from others. Novel, catchy, big value. Send dime for sample and full particulars. Morrissey Co., 4424 Madison St., Chicago.

Be a Money-Makeri Earn $10 a day easier than you ever earned $3.00 before. Lincoln Stylish tailored-to-order suits sell themselves. Why? Lower prices; handsomer, newer styles; finer patterns and more of them. No competition for you. Write for our wonderful Free Portrait of Abraham Lincoln Offer, style book and sample outfit. Lincoln Woolen Mills Co., Dept. 1007, Chicago.

Agents—Make a dollar an hour. Sell Men-dets, a patent patch for instantly mending leaks in all utensils. Sample package free. Collette Mfg.Co.,Dept. 462-B,Amsterdam, N.Y.

Drastic Measures for Control of Labor in Germany

Control of labor power in Germany is absolute, according to information just obtained from that country. The arrangement in force there contrasts strongly with the present plan of control in America through the United States Employment Service of the Department of Labor, and it is said that in no country of the allies has it been necessary to adopt any measures even approaching the drastic steps that have been taken in Germany.

166

は 1 日本の 1

in Germany.

Just how each workman is chained to Just how each workman is chained to his job may be realized when it is known that he can not change positions without the written consent either of his employer or of a board of seven members appointed by the military authorities. The boards of seven include an army officer as chairman, two Government officials, two employers, and two workingmen. The workingmen, therefore, not only have small representation on the board, but are denied the opportunity of choosing their own representatives, for that is undertaken by the War Office.

Any violation of the regulations con-

the War Office.

Any violation of the regulations concerning migration from one job to another is punished by heavy fine or im-

Both Bread and Meat in Soy-Bean

Washington, D. C. What would you think of a slice of bread that has the same food value as a beefsteak sandwich?

beefsteak sandwich?
It isn't a dream nor an exaggeration.
It is a fact supported by specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture. It is based on chemical analyses of and experiments with soy-bean flour, a "new" product that is expected to "pinch hit" for wheat, and not only to

PHOTO FINISHING

Films developed free. High class work, perfect prints at 3 to 7c. We do the best work in the Photo City. Remit with your order and get returns same day. Bryans Drug House, Rochester, N. Y.

Films Developed. 5c. prints 3c. each any size. Post Cards 4c. each, 40c. per doz Quick service. L. Loney, Hartford City, Ind.

Mail Us 15c with any size film for development and six velvet prints. Best material. Skilled operators. Get our book. Roanoke Photo Finishing Co., 228 Bell Ave., Roanoke, Va.

ROOTS, HERBS, ETC.

Gather or Cultivate Herbs, Barks, Roots for Us. Profitable, enjoyable, instructive. Buying list and illustrated descriptive booklet 10c. Wisco Herb House, Desk 11, 499 Chestnut St., Milwaukee, Wis.

PRINTING

100 Bond Noteheads, 4 lines printing and 100 envelopes printed corner, prepaid $1.8 outhwestern, 1413-C Berendo, Los Angeles, Cal.

HELP WANTED

Men and Women Wanted, 18 to 60, to fill Men and Women Wanted, 18 to 60, to fill thousands of vacancies and new positions in Government Service in Washington and elsewhere. Permanent, higher salaries, patriotic work, easy hours, paid vacations. Quick appointments. Write for free Book RE, listing positions. Washington Civil Service School, 2004 Marden Bldg., Washington, D. C.

Government Needs Thousands of Men and Women. Good salaries. Permanent pos-titions. We help you secure appointment. Par-ticulars Free. Write Today. Columbia School of Civil Service, 496 Jordan Building, Wash-ington, D. C.

HELP-MALE AND FEMALE

Earn $25 Weekly, writing for news-papers, magazines. Experience unnecessary details Free.Press Syndicate, 451 St. Louis, Mo

Government Pays $900 to $1800 yearly. Prepare for coming "exams" under former Civil Service Examiner. New Book Free. Write Patterson Civil Service School, Box J-15, Rochester, N. Y.

FEMALE HELP WANTED

Learn Dress Designing. Big demand. $30 week carned. Learn while carning. Sample lessons free. Franklin Institute, Dept. Y 850, Rochester, N. Y.

Wanted ten bright, capable ladies to travel, demonstrate and sell well known goods to established dealers. $25.00 to $50.00 per week; railroad fare paid; weekly advance for traveling expenses. Address at once. Good-rich Drug Company, Dept. 82. Omâha, Neb.

We Have Customers who will buy from you tea aprons and dust caps in dozen lots. They also want fancy work of all kinds—Embroid-ery, Crocheting and Tatting. Send 20c for pat-terns and prices. Returned if dissatisfied. Ken-wood Sales Shops, 6238 S. Park Ave., Chicago.

Wanted:—Girls. Women. Government po-sitions. $100 month. List positions free. Franklin Institute, Dept. V 9, Rochester, N. Y.

ENTERTAINMENTS

Plays, Speakers, Dialogues and Pstriotic Entertainments. Catalogues free. Dept. A, Ames Publishing Co., Clyde, Ohio.

FOR THE GARDEN

Frost Proof Cabbage Plants, leading varieties, $2.50 per Thousand, by Mail Prepaid. Clark Plant Co., Thomasville, Ga.

MALE HELP WANTED

Fall Government Clerk Examinations everywhere. Men-Women wanted. $100 month. Sample questions free. Franklin Institute, Dept. V 12, Rochester, N. Y.

Firemen, Brakemen, Baggagemen, 5140–5200 Colored Porters, by railroads every-where. Experience unnecessary. 828 Rail-way Bureau, East St. Louis, Ills.

We Establish You; Plans Free; In The profitable Carpet and Rug cleaning business. Own boss; Sure road to independence; $8. $10., and more daily. Can employ agents; Rulld up big increasing business; Repeat orders; Sole territory and no limit to possibilities. Rescoi M'fg Co., 1037 Third Ave., New York, N. Y.

PATENT ATTORNEYS

Patents. Write for List of Patent Buyers and Inventions Wanted. $1,000,000 in prizes offered for inventions. Send sketch for free opinion as to patentability. Our four books sent free. Patents advertised free. Victor J. Evans & Co., 641 Ninth, Washington, D. C.

Millions spent annually for ideas! Hundreds now wanted! Patent yours and profit! Write teday for free books—tell how to protect yourself, how to invent, ideas wanted, how we help you sell, etc., 203 Patent Dept., American industries, Inc., Washington, D. C.

Ideas Wanted-Manufacturers are writing for patents procured through me. Four books with hundreds of inventions wanted sent free. I help you market your invention. Advice Free. R. B. Owen, 18 Owen Bldg., Wash. D. C.

Wanted An Idea! Who can think of som simple thing to patent? Protect your ideas. They may bring you wealth Write for "Needed Inventions" and list of "Patent Buyers." Randoiph & Co., Dept. 112, Washington, D. C.

Invent Something. Your ideas may bring wealth. Free book tells what to invent and how to obtain a patent. References: Dun, Bradstreet and Washington Mechanics' Bank. Talbert & Talbert, 4206 Talbert Building, Washington, D. C.

MISCEL, FARMS FOR SALE

Money-Waking Farm, $1950. Bordors Sparkling Lake. 70 acres, 1000 feet frontage on one of prettiest lakes in state; boating, bathing, fishing; profits from loamy fields, brook-watered pasture, 20 acres wood, timber; much fruit; 8-room house, 50-ft barn, carriage house, poultry house, on good road, near station; owner's sacrifice 1950, easy terms. Details page 5 Strond's Catalogue of this special mid-summer bargain and others, many with stock, tools, crops; copy free. E. A. Strout Farm Agency, Dept. 3027, 150 Nassau Street, New York, N. Y.

MODING PICTURE BUSINESS

$15.00 to $20.00 Nightly. Small investment. Complete Moving Picture Outfit, Machine, Film, etc., at lowest prices sold on installments. Free catalog. Moving Picture Sales Co., 540 Plymouth Place, Dept. CT, Chicago.

Big Profits—Small Investment—Buy com-plete guaranteed moving picture outfit, ma-chine, films, everything direct from manu-facturers. Easy payment plan. No experience needed. Free catalog. Dept. M 1, Monarch Film Service, 228 Union Ave., Memphis, Tenn.

SALESMEN WANTED

Salesmen—To sell Olls, Belting, Hose, Paint, Varnish, to factories, mills, auto own-ers, stores, threshers, outside large cities. Ex-cellent proposition. Paid weekly, O. L. Doty, Century Building, Cleveland, Ohlo.

INDENTIONS

Have you a practical invention to sell outright or place on royalty? Send details to Adam Fisher Mfg. Co., 91 A, St. Louis,

COINS AND STAMPS BOUGHT

We pay to $80.00 for certain large cents; $5.00 for certain eagle cents, etc. High pre-miums paid for rare coins to 1912. Many in circulation. Watch your change. Send 4c now. Get our Large Hlustrated Coin Circular. Numismatic Bank, Dept. 6, Fort Worth, Texas.

Old Coins Wanted 24 page Buying Cat-alog 5c. A. H. Kraus., 211 Kraus Bldg., Mil-waukee, Wis.

MICH. FARM LANDS FOR SALE

Own A Farm Home. Ask about our week end excursions to our hardwood lands in Mich-igan's best Counties. 40,000 acres. $15 to $30 per A. Basy terms for wage carners and farm renters. Grains, stock, fruit, truck, chickens. Big booklet free. Swigart Land Company. Oldest Company in the business. Cl246 1st Nat'l Bk. Bidg., Chicago, Illinois.

INTEREST TO WOMEN

Waterproof Rubber Aprons for housework, nursery, dairy, etc. Checked gingham styles. By mail 81.25. The Agem Apron Co., 40 W. 38th St., Indianapolis, Ind.

PHOTOPLAYS, STORIES

Wanted—Men and women ambitious to make money writing Stories and Movie Plays. Send for wonderful Free Book that tells how, AddressWriters' Service, Dept. 31, Auburn, N.Y.

BELGIAN HARES

Big Profit Raising Belgian Hares for us. We furnish stock and pay you $6 pair, booklet and contract 10c, none free. Canada's Rab-bitry, 258 York, Denver, Colo.

STORY WRITERS WANTED

Authors:—Stories, poems, photo plays etc. are wanted for publication. Submit Mss. Literary Bureau, C4, Hannibal, Mo.

SHORT STORIES WANTED

Wanted – Stories, poems, etc. We pay on acceptance. Handwritten Mss. acceptable. Woman's Nat'l Magazine, Desk 394, Wash., D.C.

MOTION PICTURE PLAYS

Photoplay Ideas Wanted By 48 Companies. $25-$500 paid. Experience unnecessary; details Free. Producers League, 311, St. Louis.

BUSINESS OPPORTUNITIES

Henderson Will Tell You How to make money in spare time. Samples and Particulars free. Henderson, 438 E. 5th St., Dayton, Ohio.

Earn hundred dollars quickly organising UmakeM Toy Making Club for your achool, neighborhood or Red Cross. Address UmakeM, 127 Fifth Ave., New York.

PIGS FOR SALE

O.I.C. Hogs, Large, Prolific, prize winning blood Bred Sows. 60 service boars. Pr. pigs mated $25. W. D. Ruebush, Macomb, Ill.

do that, but to work in meat's place well. The "high-powered bread" that the scientific resemblance to a be stak sandwich does not even use all of the "voltage" of the soy-bean flour. This bread has been made from a mixture of 30 per cent soy-bean flour and 70 per cent wheat flour. It is extremely high in the protein element and is really a substitute for protein foods such meat and cheese.

meat and cheese.

Some people call soy-bean flour a "new" food, but it is far from that, for the soy bean was used in China and Japan in the dim dawn of history and has been used in those lands ever since. Only recently, however, has this bean become of importance in the world's commerce and only within the past few years has its food value been recognized in the United States.

German Diew of Christianity

German Diew of Christianity
Frederich Wilheim Nietzche was one of the most noted of modern German philosophers. How much has his philosophy affected the views and character of the Germans of today? Is not the answer written in the blood of the women and children, the old men of occupied France and Belgium? Are not the Lusitania victims witnesses to German adoption of Nietzche's faith?
Here is his indictment of Christianity: "With this I conclude, and pronounce my sentence: I condemn Christianity." To me it is the greatest of all imaginable corruptions. The church is the great parasite; with its anemic idea of holiness it drains life of all its strength, its love, and its hope. The other world is the motive for the denial of every reality. I call Christianity the one great curse, the one great intrinsic depravity, the one great instinct of revenge, for which no expedient is sufficiently poisonous, secret, underhand, to gain its ends. I call it the one immortal shame and blemish upon the human race."

Comfort's Comicalities "Jest for Fun"

Wrong Kind of Arms

"As soon as I get to camp I am going to send my girl a rifle and bayonet and a sword."
"Is she collecting souvenirs?"
"No; but she enjoys having arms about her."—Detroit Saturday Night.

Abbreviated Costumes

Manning—"The way you women dress nowadays proves you're doing pretty well in that line."

No Argument

"Do you realize what you did?" demanded the wife.
"No," said the husband, "but I'll admit I was wrong. What was it?"—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Easily Seen Through

He was fond of playing jokes on his wife, and this time he thought he had a wife, and this time he thought he had winner.

"My dear," he said, as they sat at supper, "I just heard such a sad story of a young girl today. They thought she was going blind, and so the surgeon operated on her and found—"

"Yes," gasped the wife breathlessly. "That she'd got a young man in her eyel" ended the husband with a chuckle. For a moment there was silence. Then

For a moment there was silence. Then the lady remarked, slowly: "Well, it would all depend on what sort of a man it was. Some of them she could have seen through easily enough."

Wise Beyond His Years

Teacher (of geography class)—"John-nie, how is the earth divided?" Johnnie—"Nobody will know until the European war is over."

The Force of Habit

Customer-"Have you any three-cent stamps?"
Drug Clerk—"No, madam, but we have something just as good. Here are some two's and one's."

In Loving Memory

Availing herself of her ecclesiastical privileges, the clergyman's wife asked questions which, coming from anybody else, would have been thought imper-tinent.

"I presume you carry a memento of some kind in that locket you wear?" she said.
"Yes, ma'am," said the parishioner.
"It is a lock of my husbaud's hair."
"But your husband hasn't gone," the lady exclaimed.
"No, ma'am, but his hair 'as!"—Boston Post.

Just Like a Man

All day a man will wait for a bite In a dinky boat—the sinner—But he won't sit down in an easy chair Possess his soul in patience there And wait for a bite for dinner.

—Yonkers Statesman.

All day a man will walk o'er the links
And golf till he's nearly dead,
But his energy fails when he's asked to go
To the store, tho' it's only a block or so,
To purchase a spool of thread.
—Judge.

All day a man will be polite,
And you will find him debonair.
He's nice as pie to his business friends
But when he gets bome his jollity ends
And he acts like a grizzly bear.
—Portland Express.

Comedian—"The Kaiser is crazy to get all the watermelons he can." Soubrette—"What for?" Comedian—"To feed his soldiers on the Rhine."

Gladys—"He said he would kiss me or die in the attempt." Gwendolyn—"Well?" Gladys—"Oh, he was too young to die."

Who Lost It?

The train was held up by robbers, and all the passengers were told to come out, line up together and hold their hands above their heads. Moses and I key stood together with their hands up, when one of the robbers came to search them with a loaded revolver in his hand. Said

Moses to the robber: "May I put my hand in my waistcoat pocket von moment?"

"Yes, and look sharp!" was the reply.
"Yes, and look sharp!" was the reply.
Moses put his hand into his pocket, pulled out $50, and turning to Ikey said:
"Here is the $50 I owe you."—Louisville Herald.

Once He Had It on Her

"See this string on my finger? My wife put it on to remind me to mail a letter for her."

"And you forgot, I suppose?"
"No, she forgot to give it to me."

After the Service Minister—"I was sorry for your wife his morning. She coughed so incessant-during the sermon that she attracted attention."

Pewholder—"Don't worry. She was wearing her new spring bonnet for the first time."—Portland Express.

Also Thrift Stamps Buy

Swat the fly, shoot the spy, cut out the lie, swear off on pie, quit drinking rye and never say die.—Fort Wayne News:

Easily Explained

"Pop, what are the silent watches of the night?" "They are the ones which their owners forget to wind, son."

Mistakes

Mistakes

When a plumber makes a mistake he charges twice for it.

When a lawyer makes a mistake, it is just what he wanted, because he has a chance to try the case all over again.

When a carpenter makes a mistake, it's just what he expected.

When a coro makes a mistake he buries it.

When a judge makes a mistake it becomes the law of the land.

When a preacher makes a mistake nobody knows the difference.

When an electrician makes a mistake he blames it onto induction; nobody knows what that means.

But when an editor makes a mistake—Good Night!!!

A Chance for You, Girls

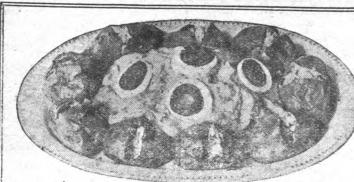

WANTED—a housekeeper under 30 years of age. If suitable, will marry. (Name omitted.)—Advt. in Rutland, Vt., Herald.

Nor in Maine Either

A young woman has been arrested at Los Angeles on a charge of conducting a school of firting. Such educational facilities are not needed in Indiana.— Indianapolis News.

Won't be Any Over There

"There'll be some new names in Who's Who in America after this war is over," says the Portland Evening Express. The revision of Who's Who in Germany will be more important.—Boston Globe.

WAR ECONOMY IN FOOD

TRIPE WITH STUFFED POTATOES

WITH

SUGGESTIONS AND RECIPES

By Violet Marsh

Copyright, 1918, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher, Inc.

ORE and more we are getting the feeling that all food belongs to a common store to be distributed to meet the needs of the hour. Directions are given from time to time for such voluntary shaping of our diet as will conserve the necessary supplies. As conditions change, the directions are modified. They are stiffened in one line, relaxed in another.

neutrals must not be abandoned to starvation; and finally our own army in France must never lack needed food. There is just one way in which these requirements can be met. North America must furnish the food. We have already sent over much more than our normal surplus, and this excess created by our savings has saved the situation and made possible the succession of victories in which our brave soldiers have borne a glorious part. But there is need of yet greater saving of food to meet the growing needs of war.

We do not need to starve ourselves. There is plenty in America, and it is the firm policy of the Food Administration to retain for our people, by its control of exports, a sufficient supply of every essential foodstuff. Nobody in our country ought to eat less than is necessary for good health and full strength, for America must have the full productive power of all its people. Much of the needed saving can be effected by substituting one kind of food for another. But the time has come to put aside all selfishness and disloyalty. The time has come for sacrifice.

The Allies ask us to meet only their absolutely imperative needs. They are restricting there is star-vation in Bel-

The Allies need wheat and meat and fats and su-gar. They

War-Time Economy

Choose food wisely. Store it properly. Cook it carefully. Serve it attrac-

4. Serve it attractively.
Don't give the new dishes a black eye by having too many of them at once. Use all the ingenuity you have to make them both taste and look well. Food habits like other habits are not easily changed. Lead gently into the new realm.

Five Rules for Wise Buying

1. DON'T BEGIN TO SAVE ON MILK.—Childrenmust have it; adults ought to. Milk builds bone and muscle better than any other food.

2. Spenn at Leasen.

family dietary better; if purchased in season and of the sort grown in your own locality, they need not be expensive.

4. Use Breadstuffs More or Less Freelly, According to Your Desire for Economy.—
They are usually the most economical of all the foods. The Food Administration does not ask you to use less bread but less wheat in your bread.

5. Be Sparing in the Use of Meats.—
These are usually the most expensive of the staple foods in proportion to their food value, and are not strictly necessary when a proper amount of milk is used. Meat may be decreased with less harm than any other of the other foods mentioned. The amount spent for meat may decrease as the amount for milk increases. tions are for such voluntary for such voluntary as will conserve the necessary supported as conditions change, the directions are modified. They are stiffened in one line, relaxed in another.

The food situation in Europe is critical—far graver than when the first reckoning was made of the world's supply for this year. Harvests fell below estimates, the shortage of shipping has grown more acute, remote markets have become inaccessible.

There is simply not enough food in Europe, yet the soldiers of the Allies must be maintained in full strength, their wives and children at home must not face famine; the friendly neutrals must not be abandoned to starvation; and finally our own army in France must not be nead and finally our own army in France must not elack needed food. There is just one way in which these requirements can be met.

America must further the properties of the strength and preparation and peas for the army instead of food for my family?

2. The exchange of milk, cheese, eggs, fish, game, beans, nuts and peas for beet, mutton, pork?

3. The use of barley, buckwheat, corn, oats, potatoes and rye instead of wheat?

We have

CAKE.

Substitution of the vegetable fats whenever possible?

6. The substitution of honey, molasses, corn syrup or other syrup for sugar so far as possible?

7. Meals adapted to the season and pocket-book? Have they character and flavor?

Recipes

sary for good health and full strength, for America must have the full productive power of all its people. Much of the needed saving can be effected by substituting one kind of food for another. But the time has come to put aside all selfishness and disloyalty. The time has come for sacrifice.

The Allies ask us to meet only their absolutely imperative needs. They are restricting the consumption of their own people to the minimum. They are controlling their food by drastic government regulation. There is privation a mong their women and children; there is star-ens and cook for five min-utes. Pour over fish and garnish with lemon slices.

corn Dodgers.—Pour one and three quarters cup of boiling water over two cups of corn meal, one teaspoons of fat. Beat well and when cool form into thin cakes and bake one half hour in a hot oven. These crisp biscuits are good served hot with butter or gravy.

UNDERWEAR

It looks well, it fits beautifully, it keeps you warm, and because of its unusually elastic fabric and patented stures, it affords a delightful degree of bodily freedom and comfort.

It is tailored for Styles and Sizes on living models—no guess work about fitting.

Made on Cooper Spring Needle Machines, the fabric gives, stretches, "springs back" with every movement

Made on Cooper Spring I vecture Iviaciantes, and the body.

The "V-H" Gusset in the crotch prevents binding. The fabric there is so placed that it has an "up-and-down" stretch—as you bend over it gives in the crotch.

A patented extra wide bust, close-fitting cuffs in sleeved garments, neat, dainty trimmings, the sliding waist band in two-piece suits, the long wear that it affords—all add to the advantage in Setsnug Underwear.

For Men, Women and Children—for health, comfort and contentment.

AVALON KNITWEAR CO., Utica, N. Y.

Send for free illustrated booklet teaspoon of soda and two teaspoons of baking powder. Bake in layer cakes or in two loaves for forty-five minutes.

for forty-five minutes.

TAMALE PIE (Serves six).—Make a mush by stirring two cups of corn meal and one and one half teaspoon of salt into boiling water and cook forty-five minutes. Brown one onion in one tablespoon of fat; add one pound of beef after it is put through the food-chopper, and stir until the red color disappears. Add two cups of tomato, one third teaspoon of cayenne pepper, or one small chopped sweet pepper, and one teaspoon of salt. Grease a baking dish, put in a layer of corn meal mush, add the seasoned meat, and cover with mush. Bake thirty minutes.

SMOTHERED RARRIT—Dross one relabit and oes, and season with fat, sait and peppers, it he cases with this mixture, brush with k, and bake for eight or ten minutes in a oven. Potatoes may be stuffed in the mornand heated at noon or in the evening for ner.

DATMEAL MUFFINS.—Heat one and one half so of milk and pour over two cups of rolleds and let stand for forty-five minutes. Add water to cover and simmer for one hour. Strain and to each cup add three rolleds and let stand for forty-five minutes. Add water to cover and simmer for one hour. Strain and to each cup add three rolleds and let stand for forty-five minutes. Add water to cover and simmer for one hour. Strain and to each cup add three rolleds and let stand for forty-five minutes. Add water to cover and simmer for one hour. Strain and to each cup add three rolleds and none beaten egg. Beat well and add one beaten egg. Beat well and add one cup of flour to which four teaspoons of baking powder has been added. Beat hard and bake half an hour in gem tins.

Corn Dodgers.—Pour one and three quarters oup of boiling water over two cups of corn meal, one teaspoon of salt and two reaspoons of fat. Beaf well and when cool form into thin cakes and bake one half hour in a hot oven. These crisp biscuits are good served hot with ought to. Milk builds

These crisp biscuits are good served hot with butter or gravy.

2. SPEND AT LEAST AS MECH FOR MILK AS FOR MEAT.—Remember that a quart of milk is equal in food value to a pound of steak.

3. SPEND AT LEAST AS MUCH FOR VEGETABLES AND FRUITS AS FOR MEAT AND FISH.—Fresh to the prov. A free use of them makes your add three cups of rye flour sifted with one half teaspoon of autmeg, for five minutes. Cool, half teaspoon of nutmeg, for five minutes. Cool, add three cups of rye flour sifted with one half to the prov. A free use of them makes your DRIED PLUMS.—Cover plums with boiling water, let stand twenty minutes, drain and dry in mouth of oven or in the sun. Useful for winter marmalade, sauces and puddings.

winter marmalade, sauces and puddings.

Dutch Apple Butter.—Boil cider down one half. Pare, quarter and core sound, sweet apples, using about half the amount of apple that there is boiled-down cider. Put apples into boiled cider and cook over rather a quick fire, stirring very frequently to prevent burning. When the apples are reduced to a smooth pulp, add a palatable flavoring of powdered allspice, and put the butter in earthen jars. If kept closed from the air, it will keep indefinitely.

DRIED PUMPKIN.—Cut into half-inch strips and pare. Plunge into boiling water for three minutes and then in cold. Remove surface moisture and string the same as apple. Dry in the sun or over the kitchen stove.

Furs in War Time Rise Sharply in Price meat stock or thickened grayy, one tablespoon of lemon juice and one bay leaf and continue cooking in the oven about one and one half hours.

MAKE YOUR OWN CORN-STARCH.—Take ripe but not dried white field corn. Grate the kernels down to the cob. Place in a bowl, cover with water and let the pieces of husk rise to the surface, then skim them off. Stir the corn and water well, then let it stand several hours.

Drain off the water, and fine white sediment will be found in the bottom of bowl, which is corn-starch. This will soon dry and can be put away in bags or boxes. Use to thicken soups and gravies, and to make into puddings. Also makes an excellent starch for clothes.

Home-Madde Fruit Vinegar.—Use apple cores and parings, pulp from jelly-making, skins and stones from pulping plums and other fruit, berries, etc. Add water to cover and simmer for eups of water and one tablespoon of molasses. Put into a creck. Tie a piece of cloth over the top and let it make in the sun from four to six weeks.

PLAIN TOMATO PASTE.—Stew the tomatoes unfine as fine sieve to take out the skins and woody portions of the pulp and woody portions of the pulp place what passes through a fine sieve to take out the skins and woody portions of the pulp place what passes through a fine sieve to take out the skins and woody portions.

Repairing Soldiers' Garments

Repairing Soldiers' Garments

Hundreds of women are now being employed by the government in the work of repairing the garments of soldiers and also in the laundries of cantonments. The former work is said by the mattermaster general's office to have cut down the issue of new clothing and new shoes from thirty to forty per cent in some instances. In employing the women, preference is given to the wives, sisters and mothers of men in the service.

The plants where the mending is done are run in connection with forts and camps by the camp quartermaster. When a soldier tears or rips a garment, he turns it in to his supply officer. In turn it is taken to the repair shop, managed by the conservation and reclamation officer. When in order the garment if possible is returned to the original owner.

The same methods of thrift are being used in conjunction with camp laundries. By paying one dollar a month a soldier is entitled to a weekly bundle of laundry of which the number or articles is not limited. In almost all instances women operate these laundries. They also mend and repair all garments before they are laundered.

.

		•
•			·
·
,

